"At last it began to grow lighter, but as far as I could see nothing met my gaze save the dark clouds rushing wildly over the heavens, and the mass of wild foaming waves that rolled thundering and foaming across the broad bosom of the sea. Once I thought I could perceive a sail in the distance, and my heart leaped joyfully in my breast, but as the object drew nearer I saw that it was a large sea bird. He came close to the spot I occupied, and with wild, unearthly screams, flew in circles about my head.

"'There is no hope!' I mentally exclaimed. "Even the bird's instinct tells him that I must die, and he is waiting that he may have the pleasure of feasting upon my body.

"At that moment, as if to encourage me, a ray of sunlight pierced the dark pall of clouds above, and shone upon me. The bowl of the blast began to subside a little, and I knew that the storm was going down. As I looked keenly to the eastward, I again saw something white; but supposing that it was another bird, I checked the exultant feeling that was rising in my breast. A tremendous wave bore down upon me; lifted my form high upon its mountain crest; and then seemed to roll onward in the direction of the object I had just seen. I watched it as it receded far in the distance, hiding the speck from my vision; but a few moments later this last again came to view as it was raised high above the level of the sea, and then my doubts were at an end.

"It was a vessel! I distinctly saw a black spot mingled with the white of the sails, which I knew to be the hull of the craft, and this circumstance convinced me that she was not so far off as I had supposed.

"Attempts to describe the joy which thrilled my frame at this discovery would be a vain one. I took my soaked handerchief from my pocket and waived it over my head as a signal, whenever a wave lifted me in the air; and as I continued to watch the vessel, I knew by the apparant increase of her size that she was approaching in my direction.

"'They have seen me!' I shouted exultingly.

"At that moment the bird, who all this time had continued to wheel in circles above my head, suddenly made a downward dart, with the probable intention of seizing upon some fish she had seen in the water. By some means or other, however, she missed her aim, and the end of her sharp bill came into contact with my neck, and pierced it. An agonizing sensation of pain thrilled my whole frame, and the next moment I felt the warm blood gushing from the wound, as the creature flew screaming away.

"A deadly faintness soon come over me. The sky and the vast ocean appeared to whirl before my vision; everything seemed shrouded in mist, then to grow dark; and the next moment I became unconscious.

"When I opened my eyes again, I found myself lying in the cabin of a strange vessel. There were bandages about my throat, and as soon as I could collect my scattered faculties, I knew that the flow of blood had been stopped.

"Two men stood by the side of my bunk, looking down upon me. My eager inquiries were soon answered.

"I was told that I was in an English bark bound to Valparaiso. My signal had been descried by one of the seamen, and the vessel had been put directly for the spot. Soon afterward, having approached sufficiently near, a boat was dispatched to pick me up.—But great was the surprise of the crew when they perceived my unconscious state, and the ghastly wound in my throat. Luckily they had a skillful physician on board the bark, and accordingly, taking me in the boat, they made all possible haste to reach their vessel, which, as you have perceived they succeeded in doing in time to save my life.

"A few more words will suffice to conclude my story. In a month I had so far recovered from my wound that I was able to be on deck. I there shipped in a merchant vessel bound to the East Indies, and from thence to China.

"Three years elapsed before I again returned home. Upon reaching Liverpool, I sought out the owners of the ship Champion; to whom I related the foregoing incidents; and in their turn they stated the fact that the vessel had not been seen or heard from since the date of my accident.

"There was accordingly no reason to doubt that she had been lost at sea, and that all hands had perished with her. I then felt, as I feel now, almost certain that the catastrophe took place on the same night that I met with my accident, and that had the watch been awake, as they should have been, ere the storm struck the ship, they could easily have saved her."

"Such is my story," continued the old seaman, as he put down his empty pipe, "and I hope you may profit by the moral it contains, which is this:—Always be faithful and wide-awake at the post of duty."

Why Wear Plasters?

They may relieve, but they can't cure that lame back, for the kidneys are the trouble and you want a remedy to act directly on their secretions, to purify and restore their healthy condition. Kidney-Wort has that specific action—and at the same time it regulates the bowels perfectly. Don't wait to get sick, but get a package today, and cure yourself.

"The book to read," says Dr. McCosh "is not the one which thinks for you, but the one which makes you think." A bank book, for instance.

No More White Butter. No dairyman can afford to make and sell white butter. People who buy butter want it yellow, and are willing to pay several cents per pound more for it than they would for the lardy looking stuff they often have to take. By using Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color, every dairyman can have the golden color of June the year round. It is for sale by A. Anderson, Tecumseh.

A youngter joyfully assured his mother the other day that he had found out where they made horses; he had seen a man finishing one—"he was just nailing on his last foot."

Kidney-Wort has proved a most effective cure for Piles and Constipation—be sure and try it.

THE GUILELESS WITNESS.

"Do you know the prisoner well?" asked the attorney.

"Never knew him sick," replied the witness.

"No levity," said the lawyer, sternly. "Now, sir, did you ever see the prisoner at the bar?"

"Took many a drink with him at the bar."

"Answer my question, sir," yelled the lawyer. "How long have you known the prisoner?"

"From two feet up to five feet ten inches."

"Will the court make the—"

"I have, Jedge," said the witness, ticipating the lawyer. "I have answered the question. I knowed the prisoner when he was a boy two feet long and when he was a man five feet ten—"

"Your Honor—"

"It's a fact, Jedge; I'm under my oath," persisted the witness.

The lawyer arose, placed both hands on the table in front of him, spread his legs apart, leaned his body over the table and said:

"Will you tell the court what you know about this case?"

"That ain't his name," replied the witness.

"What ain't his name?"

"Case."

"Who said it was?"

"You did. You wanted to know what I knew about this Case—his name's Smith."

"Your Honor," howled the attorney plucking his beard out by the roots, "will you make this man answer?"

"Witness," said the Judge, "you must answer the questions put to you."

"Land o' Goshen, Jedge, hain't I bin doin' it? Let the blamed cuss fire away. I'm ready."

"Then," said the lawyer, "don't beat about the bush any more. You and this prisoner have been friends?"

"Never," promptly replied the witness.

"What! Wasn't you summoned here as a friend?"

"No, sir. I was summoned here as a Presbyterian. Nary one of us was ever Friends—he's an old-line Baptist, without a drop of Quaker in him."

"Stand down," yelled the lawyer in disgust.

"Hey?"

"Stand down."

"Can't do it. I'll sit down or stand up—"

"Sheriff, remove this man from the box."

Witness retires, muttering, "Well, if he ain't the thick-headest cuss I ever laid eyes on."

A CONTRAST.

How noble is man in the pride and glory of his manhood! When all of his efforts are for good, how worthily is praise bestowed upon him! When he strives to better the condition of all around him, here giving a word of good advice, and there doing a worthy deed, how natural, how easy it is to praise his character! He stands as the salt of the earth; as a light to the wayward and desponding, as a guide to the sightless, a support to the wavering, and to the weak a tower of strength.

From this picture now turn to the ordination of a candidate for the ministry of rum! He stands before the city fathers. He is called to sell rum; has the evidence within him. A congenial brother of the same communion recommends him to the extent of a thousand dollars. He is looked over. He will do. He pays his money for the municipal authorities can be bought. He puts his hand upon that devil's document, a rumseller's license, and he goes out regularly commissioned by the ordination, which means this:

"Take thou authority to tempt men.

"Take thou authority to change them into beasts.

"Take thou authority to stain the streets with their blood.

"Take thou authority to destroy the reasoning powers of men, and educate them to commit the worst crimes and end in state prisons.

"Take thou authority to desolate homes, to break hearts, to ruin souls.

"Take thou authority to mark the way through the world with all wickedness, and when thou standest before the Eternal Judge—just show him this license."

"Crooked Haertel."

Accept a thousand thanks for that Golden Remedy. I suffered for many years with Rheumatic pains in my limbs, my legs were drawn together, and people called me "Crooked Haertel." I used St. Jacobs Oil, and was cured, and now feel so well that I think I could dance as in my young days. JOHN HAERTEL, Fremont, Ill.

Pin money is the unknown quantity in the great problem of life. It is very safely said that the amount required depends upon whether you are accustomed to a diamond pin or a rolling pin.

Hill's Buchu cures Gravel, Strictures, Gonorrhœa, Kidney, and all diseases of the Urinary Organs.

The motto of the hen is to eggshell.

SILVERS'
7th ANNUAL Spring Announcement!!

On Saturday, April 10th, 1880,

We shall place on Exhibition for Public Inspection the largest and best assortment of Clothing!

Hats & Caps, Boots & Shoes,
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS,

Ever offered in this market. We wish to call the special attention of our many Tecumseh and Franklin customers to the fact that

OUR STOCK OF SUITINGS,

For Men, Youths, Boys and Children,

Was never so complete in all its appointments as now.

REMEMBER, We don't ask you to pay any Advance on our Goods, as small concerns are doing, as our goods were all bought in the early Season and at last year's prices.

D. H. SILVERS.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!

READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!

Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.

Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.

Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnish-Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the

Old. Reliable, ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,

71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JOE. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

FINE FURNITURE!

Buyers of Furniture can save 15 to 20 per cent. by purchasing at the shop of

RICHARD CALDWELL.

He makes a Specialty of Extension Tables. Furniture of all kinds made to order and repaired promptly at Reasonable Rates.

ALL WORK WARRANTED.

Shop and Sale Room at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Pearl St.

Highest Market Price Paid for all kinds of Furniture Lumber.

A NEW STOCK OF

Lamps and Glassware!

AT

JAMES LOWRY'S
GROCERY STORE.

Call and See Them. Also

His New Machine for Cutting Dried Beef.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. B. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office in W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

LEWIS FAHEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery, U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

G. E. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent, District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co, with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haslen & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

9 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn. JOSEPH E. SMITH.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't.

CONSIGNMENTS OF BOOTS & SHOES, at Wholesale, for Cash. Sold on Manufacturers' account, WITHOUT LIMITED PRICE, to cover money advances. PRIVATE SALES daily. Special attention to orders. AUCTION Tuesdays at 10 o'clock A. M. W. D. ROBINSON & CO., Consignees and Wholesale Auctioneers, 182 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit.

REAL ESTATE. Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

JAPANESE NAPKINS. A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

A good side show—a pretty cheek.

The latest agony—tooth-ache at midnight.

Held for a further hearing—the ear trumpet.

Livery horses belong to the hire class of animals.

What is the brightest idea of the day? Your eye, dear.

It is in the toy drum that two heads are worse than none.

When will the alphabet be shortened? When you and I are one.

A man's deed's will live after him—and so will his mortgages.

Cats have no fixed political belief.—They're usually on the fence.

Why is the world like a piano? Because it is full of sharps and flats.

When a man is shot in Kansas, they say he died a natural death.

If you was to throw a white stone into the red sea, what would it become? Wet.

A western journalist says he always gets one article without pay—he gets bored for nothing.

Russia must be a great country for hard colds. Almost every one's name ends with a "koff."

A man who had a bad cold said he had just set up a rig of his own. It was a little hoarse and a hack.

What State in the American Union is high in the middle and round at both ends? O-hi-o.

The report that the baby elephant was born with a valise instead of a trunk is incorrect.

Some people put stockings on their hens to keep them from scratching, but a better plan is to "shoo" them.

A dealer received a fresh invoice of mouse traps the other day, and advertises "Grand arrival of Spring goods."

"Mamma, can't we have anything we want?" "Yes, my dears. But be careful and don't want anything you can't have."

A promising youth about to be chastised by his father called upon his grandfather to protect him from the "superfluous middle-man."

A Broadway engraver recently made this mistake: "Mr. and Mrs.—— respectfully request your presents at the marriage of their daughter."

A gentleman, speaking of a young beauty's fashionable, yellowish hair, called it "pure gold." "It ought to be," quoth a friend; "it looks like twenty-four carrots."

"We wish," says a Texas newspaper, "that a few of our citizens could be permitted to live till they die a natural death, so as to show the world what a magnificently healthy country Texas really is."

A Boston lawyer told another lawyer, who asked him a question, that he usually received pay for his advice. "Then," said lawyer No. 1, extending 50 cents, "tell me all you know, and give me back the change."

A timid friend of ours has married a lady whose weight verges closely upon 200 pounds. "My dear," says he her, "shall I help you over the fence?" "No," said she to him, "you help the fence."

Things that most people would like to see: Our society girls before breakfast, a church choir that never quarreled, a church out of debt and with money to lend, an editor who can please everybody, and a high-school girl who cannot whistle.

"You made a fool of me," said an irritated man to his wife, "and that's the way you got me to marry you."—"My love," sweetly responded the wife, "you do yourself an injustice.—Call yourself a fool, if you please, but remember that you are in all respects a self-made man."

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

"Well, Father Brown, how did you like my sermon yesterday?" asked a young preacher. "Ye see, parson," was the reply, "I haven't a fair chance at them sermons of yourn. I'm an old man now, and have to set pretty well back by the stove; and there's old Miss Smithe, Widder Taff, 'n Mrs. Rylan's darters, 'n Nabby Birt, 'n all the rest, setting in front of me with their mouths wide open, a swallerin' down all the best of the sermon; 'n what gets down to me is putty poor stuff."

A GLUT IN THE TEA MARKET.

A very heavy glut is likely to occur in the Japanese tea market in consequence of increased import of about ten million pounds during the present year over that of last year. The crop of Japan teas has been increased every year in consequence of the demand made for them in the United States. During the years 1876 and 1877 the exports from Japan to the United States were 22,397,280 pounds. Last year these exports were increased to 25,302,685 pounds, and to-day advices have been received that there will be exported this season 34,555,037 lbs. being an increase of over 36 per cent. above last year's exports. This increased exportation with the stock on hand, is likely to make the quantity of Japan teas on hand for the present year in New York about 45,000,000 pounds, which is far more than will be required for consumption, and has already weakened the market, with a prospect of lower prices. The result will be that the consumer will stand a chance of having good tea this year at a far lower price than has been known for some time past.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

HEATING CITIES BY STEAM.

The Boston Journal of Commerce is in favor of steam heating, and for these among many other reasons:—"The cost of it, as compared with the present so-called system, is insignificant, being anywhere from one-twelfth to one-quarter. For power, it has been proved that it can furnish from 25 to 50 per cent.—anything up to 25 or 50 horse power—for what a man can keep his own engineer and furnish his own fuel for, and the steam is always ready, night or day. The gas companies, horse railroads, and the property owners—some of them—are always found to be ready to fight any innovation on their 'rights,' yet we presume the people of Boston, as well as of many other cities, will sooner or later, come to this common sense way of doing business. Baltimore is already putting in these works, and estimates and specifications are made for two other cities which we are aware of, and we hope sooner or later to see the conservative men of Boston take the matter up and make a business of it."

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

WE have received from the Detroit Evening News a copy of their illustrated pamphlet of their fourth annual excursion to the White Mountains.—It contains a full description of the trip, the different places of stopping, and an account of each day's journey. This is one of the most delightful summer trips we know of. A copy of this Guide Book will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents.

ALL ENDORSE IT.

The Recorder, Americus, Ga., says: "Clerks, Senators, Representatives, Doctors, Lawyers, Citizens, in public or private life, are testifying by the thousands, and over their own signatures, that a remedy has been found for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys and for Diabetes; these are respectively known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure and Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure."

A HOUSEHOLD NEED.

A book on the Liver, its diseases and their treatment sent free. Including treatises upon Liver Complaints, Torpid Liver, Jaundice, Billiousness, Headache, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Malaria, etc. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

American Ball-Blue is a product of science applied to the housekeeper's wants. Pure, harmless, and of beautiful effect. Try it!

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE. (Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED. HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 13 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling. The best water-softener made. The best disinfectant. The following are some of the advantages gained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from Lye particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in tin cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or its strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 25 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

G. T. Lewis & Menzies Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold. REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Billiousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?
Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?
Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a package at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and

One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt. (Will send post paid.)

USED ALL THE YEAR ROUND!

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA,

—FOR—

LIVER COMPLAINT

—AND—

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 30 years, and has proved to be the best preparation in the market for Sick Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Liver Complaint, Pimples on the Face, Dyspepsia, Piles, and all Diseases that arise from a disordered Liver or an impure blood. Thousands of our best people take it and give it to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily, and cannot recommend it to others. It is strictly vegetable, and cannot hurt the most delicate constitution. It is the most delicate medicines in use for regulating the Bowels. It is sold by all responsible druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers. DETROIT, MICH. AMHERSTBURG, ONT.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

A NEW STOCK OF CLOTHING

AT THE

Palace Clothing House

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

Overcoats and all Kinds of Winter Clothing

For the next Thirty Days

AT COST.

Now is the time to secure Bargains.

George Heesen.

I AM THE EXCLUSIVE AGENT —FOR THE— Hammock

RECLINING CHAIR!

—ALL KINDS OF—

FURNITURE

—VERY CHEAP.—

CALL AND EXAMINE.

A. W. SLAYTON, Furniture Dealer, Tecumseh.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE, STRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 3 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

30 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" article.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh, - - Michigan.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Evening,

BY S. C. STACY,

Office in the New Herald Building, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One year, Cash in advance $1.50
Six Months 75
Four Months 50

Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births, and Death Notices free.

Rates on General Advertising, on long contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents desiring space in this paper, are required not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JUNE 10, 1880.

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

The Republican National Convention completed its labors on Tuesday last by the nomination of Hon. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, for President, and Chester A. Arthur, of New York, for Vice-President. The bitter contest between the friends of Grant and Blaine resulted in the overthrow of both of them, as was very generally anticipated, and Gen. Garfield was the dark horse that finally won the race. His nomination seems to give very general satisfaction to all factions, and Arthur was undoubtedly placed on the ticket by reason of his strength as a political manager in the city of New York. This ticket will make Ohio certainly Republican and New York a doubtful State. The emphatic defeat of the third term has rescued the Republican party from total shipwreck, while the selection of Garfield gives them an even chance for success in November. Much will depend upon the action of the Cincinnati convention. We present herewith a brief biography of Gen. Garfield, and the official tally of the thirty-sixth ballot, on which he was nominated:

Gen. James A. Garfield was born in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, Nov. 19, 1831. He graduated at Williams college, Massachusetts, in 1856, and engaged in the practice of law. In 1859 he was elected to the Ohio State Senate. In 1861 he entered the military service as colonel of the Forty-second Ohio volunteers. He served in southwestern Kentucky, where, in January, 1862, in command of a brigade he forced Humphrey Marshall with his command to evacuate Kentucky, for which service he was promoted to a brigadier-generalship. He participated in the battles of Shiloh, Corinth, etc., and in 1863 served as a chief of staff to Gen. Rosecrans, having been promoted in the meantime to the rank of major-general for gallantry at the battle of Chickamauga. In November, 1863, he was elected member of Congress, and resigned his commission in the army to take the seat he has since filled in the House of Representatives. In Congress he has served as chairman of the committees on military affairs, banking and appropriations. His present home is in Mentor, Lake Co., on the line of the Lake Shore railroad, twenty-two miles east of Cleveland.

The last change in the political career of this favored son of Ohio was when a few weeks ago he was named by that State as Thurman's successor in the United States Senate. He was one of the delegates at large from his State to the convention that made him the parties' Presidential standard-bearer in the coming campaign and was chairman of the Ohio delegation.

Mr. Garfield is a preacher of the Christian or Campbellite persuasion.

THE THIRTY-SIXTH BALLOT.

	Grant.	Blaine.	Sherman.	Garfield.	Washburne.
Alabama	16	4
Arkansas	12				8
California	12
Connecticut		1		11
Colorado	6
Delaware		6
Florida	8
Georgia	8	10	3	1
Illinois	24	6		7	5
Indiana	1			29
Iowa				22
Kansas	4			6
Kentucky	20	1		3
Louisiana	8			8
Maine				14
Maryland	6			10
Massachusetts	4			22
Michigan	1			21
Minnesota	2			8
Mississippi	7			9
Missouri	29			1
Nebraska				6
Nevada	2	1		3
New Hampshire				10
New Jersey				18
New York	50			20
North Carolina	5			15
Ohio				43
Oregon				6
Pennsylvania	37			21
Rhode Island				8
South Carolina	8			6
Tennessee	13	1		8
Texas	13			32
Vermont				10
Virginia	19			8
West Virginia	1			6
Wisconsin				20
Arizona				2
Dakota				2
District of Columbia				2
Idaho				2
Montana				2
New Mexico				2
Utah				2
Washington				2
Wyoming				2
Total	306	42	3	399	5

Total number of votes cast 755
Necessary to a choice 378

The graduating class of Manchester's union school are Misses Lulu Taylor, Clara Merithew, Florence Ide, Esther Bush; Charles Underkercher and Ben Chase.

A TRIP TO SAGINAW.

Last Monday afternoon we set out for East Saginaw to attend the Democratic State Convention. We took the afternoon train to Monroe and after taking supper with Capt. Sink at the Park Hotel, we took the evening train on the Flint & Pere Marquette road, and arrived at our destination at five o'clock Tuesday morning. Nearly the entire day was consumed in attending the session of the convention and in work pertaining thereto, so we had but little time to run about the city, but from a cursory view it we were very favorably impressed with the place. The city is finely laid out with wide streets crossing each other at right angles, and is a live business city in every respect. In its hotels, paved streets, and large retail business houses, produce exchange, daily newspapers, it is already putting on metropolitan airs, and seems to be destined to be the largest city in that portion of Michigan.

The convention was well attended, and was composed of as fine a body of men as we ever saw assembled together on a similar occasion. The delegates at large are excellent men and men of state reputation: Don M. Dickinson of Detroit, O. M. Barnes of Lansing, Col. Messmore of Grand Rapids, and Dr. Foster Pratt of Kalamazoo. The delegates from this congressional district are Seth Bean of Adrian, and C. H. Richmond of Ann Arbor, with John Strong Jr. of Monroe, and Ira B. Card of Hillsdale as alternates.

During our stay there we met many old acquaintances from different sections of the state and had two nice little surprises of this kind. We found A. H. Miller, an old Tecumseh boy, who is now living in East Saginaw. He has a dental office there, and has a fine practice. After the convention we met D. E. Soper another Tecumseh boy. He is now carrying on an insurance and real estate business at Newaygo, Mich., and was attending the convention as a delegate from that county. We also met Rev. J. H. Burnham in the afternoon and had a pleasant chat with him. At eleven o'clock Tuesday evening we took the Monroe train and arrived home yesterday noon, having enjoyed a pleasant trip. The other delegates from this part of the county were supervisors Bradner of Clinton and Holdredge of Raisin.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CLEVELAND, TENN., June 5th.

EDITOR HERALD:

I see by your paper that you have something from most everywhere, so I thought I would send something from Tennessee.

I live three miles from Cleveland, the county seat, which has a population of about 3,000, and no saloon.

There is also a very nice summer resort one and a half miles from us, owned by S. Y. Peirce, and called Waterville. He has accommodations for two hundred guests; also three large spring lakes within ten or fifteen rods of the house, which are well stocked with young perch. He has a number of boats and a large bath house, and is building a dancing hall for the young people who enjoy moonlight parties. There is a fine view of three ranges of mountains from Mr. Peirce's house. He is preparing for a large number of guests this season. He has four nice mineral springs, viz: sulphur, iron, freestone and limestone.

The crops are in a promising condition, except wheat, which is badly rusted.

Since the completion of the Cincinnati railroad, there is quite an increase of emmigration to East Tennessee, where there is pure air and pure water.

W. F. A.

DURING the recent session of the state homeopathic society at Jackson, a series of questions was submitted by the W. C. T. U., of Ann Arbor, in reference to the use of alcoholic liquors in the practice of medicine, asking if it was necessary, etc.? The society, after a protracted discussion, voted that it was not necessary—that other measures were more effective and less pernicious in after results.

A NEW game has just been started for evening parties. The ladies write their names on a slip of paper, wrap it up in a ball of yarn, twine, or rags, and when they get to where the party is to be held, each lady puts her ball in a basket. Before leaving the gentlemen draw a ball each from the basket, and take the lady home whose name is found in the ball. It is more fun than having the mumps to see the pairing off.

SOLDIERS would do well to note that any discharged soldier of the United States who has not made application for pension on account of wounds or disability received while in the service must do so before July 1, 1880. After that time pensions will date only from the time of application. The same is also true regarding application for additional bounty yet claimed by many soldiers.

TECUMSEH will celebrate Independence Day.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

Only Too True.

Detroit Evening News.—There will be plenty of disappointed men after March 4th next, as the pledges of offices and honors so freely made at Chicago to gain over delegates will be quickly forgotten or repudiated when the time comes for redeeming them. It is always thus, but there are always plenty of simple, confiding delegates found to put faith in them.

Touching up Conkling.

Adrian Times.—Senator Conkling is the last republican in the country who should have insulted a republican national convention by offering a resolution pledging the members of that body to support the man whom they should put in nomination, and then, when three members not inclined to pocket the insult declined to vote for the resolution, offered another resolution for their expulsion. Conkling was compelled to withdraw his last resolution when he saw what a tempest it would arouse.

Better Go into Bankruptcy.

New York Sun.—The Senatorial Triumvirate entered into a contract to deliver to the Imperial candidate at the Chicago Convention the one hundred and seventy delegates from New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois. It seems that they have been able to deliver only about one hundred from those three States. The failure to fulfil this agreement of bargain and sale is so marked that the Triumvirate had better embrace the occasion to go into political bankruptcy.

In Need of Reformation.

Detroit Free Press.—The jury system of Indiana is fatally defective. Only a few days since a juror in Logansport complained of the impurity of the air in the court-room; and absolutely refused to remain on the panel until an exceedingly offensive spittoon was removed and cleaned. The judge humored the man, regarding him, no doubt, as a harmless lunatic; but he saw of course, as every one else must, that a system, which permits men so sensitively organized to be drawn on a jury, is rotten to the core.

Tilden in the South.

New York Tribune.—It is already evident that Tilden is not going to get much strength from the South in the Cincinnati Convention. While the delegates from that section may not be united on any one candidate, they are likely to be almost unanimous against him. Some of them will be for Bayard, others for Hancock, and others for Thurman. There are many who would like Seymour, but there is a general impression that even if he would consent to be a candidate his disfavor with Tilden makes him unavailable. The southern wing of the party, like the northern, is anxious not to offend Tilden by taking a candidate obnoxious to him, but it is not willing to nominate him in person rather than offend him.

Pen Picture of Conkling.

Cincinnati Enquirer.—The central and commanding figure in the Chicago Convention is Roscoe Conkling, of New York. He is more than a lord; he is a king. He never had a finer opportunity than the present for the display of his splendid qualities of command. This is the first fierce convention the Republican party ever held. There is opportunity for leadership, and Conkling is a trained and shining leader. Among those 756 representative men from all the States and Territories, there are many men of ability; but Conkling is easily Captain. He is haughty, lordly, imperial, sometimes imperious, but he is a splendid commander.

Is Tilden a Candidate?

Washington Evening Star.—There has been so much speculation in regard to Mr. Tilden's plans and intentions that anything which tends to throw light upon the subject is of interest. A leading democrat in Congress who takes a great interest in all party matters, said to a Star reporter yesterday:

"Tilden will not be a candidate for the nomination at Cincinnati. That is settled, and you may rest assured of it."

"Then why does he not relieve his party of the embarrassment he is causing it, and at once announce that he will not be a candidate?" asked the reporter.

"For this reason," replied the M. C. "There are candidates for the nominations whom Tilden is anxious to defeat. He feels very bitterly toward Hendricks, who has certainly done very wrong and has been very indiscreet in abusing Tilden. Now, first of all, Tilden wants to prevent Hendricks from getting the nomination, and he thinks he can accomplish this by keeping his friends together, and having them organized and in harmony with his wishes in the Convention. He is also opposed to Bayard and Thurman, and will prevent them from winning the nomination if he can. This is the true secret of Tilden's silence on the subject of his candidacy. He will not be a candidate though, that is as true as that I am now talking to you.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. [illegible] the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D. C.

ORGANS 13 Stops, 3 Set Reeds, 2 Knee Swells, Stool, Book, only $98. PIANOS, Stool, Cover & Book $210 to $1600. Illustrated Catalogue Free. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington N. J.

WATERS' PIANOS & ORGANS!

BEST MADE; Warranted Six Years.—NEW PIANOS, Stool, and Cover, $160, upward. New ORGANS, $45, $50, $60, $75, upward. Illustrated Catalogue free. Agents Wanted. Second hand Instruments at Bargains. HORACE WATERS & CO., 826 Broadway, N. Y.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL!

We will send our Electro-Voltaic Belts and other Electric Appliances upon trial for 30 days to those suffering from Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Paralysis or any diseases of the Liver or Kidneys, and many other diseases. A Sure Cure guaranteed or no pay. Address VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich.

FITS DR. LASCELLE'S ENGLISH REMEDY, unlike the many so-called preparations for this disorder which only relieve while used by the patient, CURES PERMANENTLY and has been endorsed in this respect for the past 20 years by the leading medical authorities in Europe. NO CHARGE made to give it a fair test, as DR. LASCELLES undertakes to send each suffering applicant a FREE package on their forwarding name and Postoffice address to his Sole Agents for the U. S. and Canada, Messrs. SLOCUM & CO., No. 4 Cedar Street, New York.

MALT
UNFERMENTED
MALT BITTERS
TRADE MARK
Malt Bitters Company
MALT AND HOPS
BITTERS

THERE is no greater BLOOD-PURIFYING and LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE in the world of medicine than MALT BITTERS, prepared by the MALT BITTERS COMPANY from Unfermented Malt and Hops. It is a Perfect Renovator of feeble and exhausted constitutions. It enriches the blood, solidifies the bones, hardens the muscles, quiets the nerves, perfects digestion, cheers the mind, and vitalizes with new life every fluid of the body. It is so, because it strikes at the root of all debility—ENFEEBLED DIGESTION and IMPOVERISHED BLOOD. Sold everywhere.

MINNESOTA CHIEF

BEST THRESHER ON WHEELS

Is not a Vibrator nor an Apron Machine. It is wonderfully simple and admirably perfect in its threshing and separating qualities. Saves all the grain, and cleans it ready for market. Runs easily, is constructed durably, is finished beautifully, is the most economical, least expensive, and most satisfactory machine in the market. Will handle wet grain as well as dry. Has no equal in threshing flax and timothy, threshing and cleaning both at rapid and nearly as rapidly as wheat, and requires no change except the sieves. Has more square feet of separating and cleaning surface than any other machine made, and can not be overloaded. Is both strong and under-blast. Our CLOVER HULLING ATTACHMENT is new and very desirable. Does the work more rapidly and better than an exclusively Hulling Machine.

SEPARATORS of the various sizes fitted for Steam or Horse Power, as desired.

An Improved Pitts Power, an Improved Woodbury Power, and the Howard Equalizing Power, all mounted on four wheels, are manufactured by us, and are not surpassed by any in the market.

We are also prepared to furnish first-class Portable Engines with our Separators.

For Price List and Circulars, address

SEYMOUR, SABIN & CO.
Manufacturers, Stillwater, Minn.

Garfield and Arthur

Are the next Republican candidates for President and Vice-President, and after the 36th ballot, they immediately telegraphed to

W. J. KIES

for one of those

CLINTON SUITS of CLOTHES.

Special Bargains in all kinds of

SUMMER GOODS,

FOR

Men's, Youths', Boy's and Children's Wear.

We invite your attention to the following Goods, which are of excellent value:

Large line of light colored all wool suits, worth $15, fine quality, trimmed, and made in the latest style, at $12.

Bargains in Dusters, Thin Coats, Cassimere Pants, White Vests, Straw Hats, Gent's Furnishing Goods. Bargains in Everything.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

LADIES, EXAMINE

THE NEW STOCK OF

KID BUTTON BOOTS

& CENTENNIAL WALKING SHOES.

Boots & Shoes,

At Bottom Prices at

LEE'S

Popular Shoe House,

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs. 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN,

SPECIAL NOTICES.

PLANTS.

Jersey Sweet Potato and best varieties of late Cabbages, for sale by A. Anderson & Son, or at my garden. E. J. HOLLISTER.

CHOICE HOUSE PLANTS.

All the new varieties at the Green House, two doors north of Episcopal Church.
MRS. SPAULDING.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the co-partnership heretofore existing between the undersigned is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All accounts on the firm should be settled at once with Jas. H. Sherrard, who will continue the business at the old stand.
SHERRARD & ROBBINS.

May 10, 1880.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

BASE BALL.

Last Saturday a game of ball was played on the grounds of the Tecumseh club between the University Nine, of Ann Arbor, and the Tecumseh club. It was the finest game ever played here, and a much better game than could have been reasonably expected, owing to a drizzling rain which set in and continued most of the time during the day.

The game was called at half past three o'clock, with W. W. Frazer as umpire. The Ann Arbor boys went to bat. Derby and Hannan struck out, French making his base, and Davenport made third man out without hitting a ball. Tecumseh took the bat, and Bostwick got out on a foul, followed with Shaughnessy out at 2d and Tray at 3d.

In the second innings, Gallagher was out by a fly to Burton, Miller out at 1st and Reed struck out, making a second goose-egg for Ann Arbor. DeMyer took the bat for Tecumseh and made a rattling two-base hit to left, and making the first score. He was followed by Root and Chapman who both struck out, and Burton out at 2d.

In the third innings Hodges made a tally, the only one scored for Ann Arbor. French got out on a fly to DeMyer, Brown on a fly to Chapman and Davenport out at 1st, leaving Derby and Hannan on bases. McKinney took the bat for Tecumseh but did not reach his base. Freeman was put out at 3d and Tray at 1st, leaving Bostwick on base. The game standing 1 and 1.

In the fourth innings Gallagher took the bat and made 1st, but failed to reach 2d. Miller struck out and Brown out at 1st, leaving Reed on base. DeMyer struck out, Chapman out on a fly to Brown, and Root run out between bases, leaving Burton on base.

Ann Arbor went to bat in the fifth innings, Hodges getting to 2d, where he was left by Derby and Hannan out on fouls, and French struck out. McKinney got out at 1st. Freeman made 1st and on to 3d. Bostwick made 1st, and a wild throw by Hodges to 2d brought them both in. Tray got out on a foul and Shaughnessy at 2d. The game stood 4 to 1 in favor of Tecumseh at this time. No tallies were made on either side in the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th innings. In these four innings but two men reached a base—Chapman of Tecumseh and Miller of Ann Arbor.

The game was hotly contested and showed that both nines were very evenly matched, but few errors being made during the game. Shaughnessy did some telling pitching and was well backed by the rest of the nine. Following is the score:

ANN ARBOR.	O.	R.	TECUMSEH.	O.	R.
Derby 1 b	3	0	Bostwick, 2 b	2	1
Hannan, s s	3	0	Tray, c	4	0
French, r f	3	0	Shaughnessy, p	3	1
Davenport, p	4	0	DeMyer, 3 b	2	1
Gallagher, 2 b	4	0	Root, r f	4	0
Miller, c f	3	0	Chapman, 1 b	3	0
Reed, l f	3	0	Burton, s s	3	0
Brown, 3 b	3	0	McKinney, l f	4	0
Hodges, c	1	1	Freeman, c f	2	1
	27	1		27	4

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Ann Arbor	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	1
Tecumseh	0	1	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	4

An Ohio newspaper has at last woke up to the habit of swearing: "Young man, don't swear. There is no occasion for swearing outside of a newspaper office, where it is useful in proof reading and indispensably necessary in getting forms to press. It has been known also to materially assist an editor in looking over a paper after it is printed. But otherwise it is a very foolish habit."

THE wind on Sunday last did considerable damage to the fruit and shade trees in this vicinity.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JUNE 10, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

THE nights are cool.

THE ice man is cool and happy.

TECUMSEH is bound to celebrate the Fourth this year.

THE market for Paris green and Helebore is active.

E. J. SMITH, editor of the Adrian Press is now in Kansas.

GRANT'S army at Chicago stood by the old soldier to the last.

HAVEN'T heard any complaint recently about the dry weather.

IT pays to look over our advertising columns carefully every week.

No man from Rollin township, this county, ever held a county office.

HANK STEVENS sold seventeen of the Cincinnati buggies last week.

SCHOOL children can tell the number of days to the close of the school.

THE new store buildings on Chicago street are fast approaching completion.

C. W. CLOUGH, of the Clinton News, is visiting relatives and friends in Ohio.

IN these hurrying times some men seem to forget that the Sabbath is a day of rest.

FRANK ESTABROOK, of Clinton, gave us a call while in Tecumseh on Saturday last.

SOON the steady tramp of the kerosene torch burners will again be heard through the land.

MR. & MRS. H. WARNES of Brooklyn were in town last week and made the HERALD a call.

POLLY and Tommy came to town last Tuesday eve; glad to see them among us once more.

THE attention of our readers is called to the new advertisement of Jas. Lowry in this issue.

A large number of University students were over here last Saturday to witness the base ball game.

THE reunion of the old Fourth regiment Michigan infantry will be held in Blissfield on the 18th inst.

THE army worms are reported to be doing considerable damage to the grass on the prairie east of here.

IT is said that Michigan furnished more visitors to the Chicago convention than any other State, Illinois excepted.

Those parties having magazines bound at this office, can now get them as they have arrived from the bindery. Call soon.

IF you do not believe that the good work of "fixing up" is going on bravely about town, look around you and be convinced.

THE Hillsdale rowing club, at the regatta last week at New Orleans, won the two-oared and four-oared race and took first money.

MRS. J. BRUSH of Albany Oregon, sister of Mrs. W. H. Mather, arrived Wednesday last from Oregon to make a visit in our community.

THE Universalist Sunday School went on a picnic excursion to the lakes last Saturday, and they report having had a splendid time.

WILSON MCCLURE has purchased the interest of his partner Sloan in the Corner Grocery and hereafter proposes to run the concern alone.

MORENCI will celebrate Independence day on the 3d of July. The Hon. J. K. Boies, of Hudson, has been invited to deliver the oration.

A SECTION of new sidewalk has been laid on Railroad street this week,—There are many more around the village need the same kind of treatment.

JOHN A. MERRITT was in town last Friday. He had been up to the Chicago convention, and stopped over one day in Tecumseh upon his return to New York.

ON Tuesday last H. W. Stevens purchased the two first clips of wool which have been brought into Tecumseh this season, paying 35 and 37 cts. per pound.

Adrian Times: Shaughnessy, formerly pitcher of the Cass club, has been engaged to fill that position in the Tecumseh nine for the present season.—And Tom will fill it too.

MR. GILKEY, the agent of the popular Watertown Insurance company, will be in Tecumseh next week, and it will be well for those wanting reliable insurance to give him a call.

NEXT Sunday will be Rose or Children's Sunday at the Universalist church. The exercises will be partly conducted by the children and there will be a concert in the evening.

THE spring union mass meeting of the Sunday School Temperance Union will be held in the Baptist church, next Sunday evening June 13th, to be addressed by John R. Clark of this village.

A CENSUS man asked a lady where her children was born, and she innocently replied, "two of 'em was born in the parlor bedroom, and the other three up-stairs." Census taker had recourse to cold water and a smelling bottle.

THE Tecumseh and Raisin base ball clubs have a match game on our grounds this afternoon.

NEXT Saturday the Tecumseh base ball club will go to Ann Arbor to play their return game with the University nine.

As harvest draws near the price of wheat declines, the supply is fully up to the demand, and we predict, that in view of the coming harvest and increasing supply, it will be less than $1 before many weeks.

BUSINESS is slowly but surely reviving, and while the whole country is agitated over political achievements, booming, &c., our merchants are making necessary preparation for a business "boom" of their own.

THE red ribbon state convention will be held at Jackson, June 23 and 24. The call says it means business, in as much as the liquor men have boldly avowed their intention of capturing the next legislature.

HORACE MAYNARD, of Tennessee, was on Wednesday of last week confirmed as post master-general. He will get home from Constantinople and get nicely settled in his chair in the postoffice building just about in time to turn over his portfolio to the next administration.

H. W. STEVENS sold in six days fourteen of Emerson, Fisher & Co.'s Cincinnati buggies. This goes to show that H. W. S. can and does sell the best buggies brought to Tecumseh.—For style beauty and low cash price no manufacture can excel the old reliable Emerson, Fisher & Co.'s buggy.

JOHN R. CLARK, of this village, will deliver a course of three lectures to the citizens of East Tecumseh and vicinity next week. Tuesday, June 15,—"The Horizon of Reform." Wednesday, June 16,—"Blunders, Big and Little." Thursday, June 17, for the 117th time, "To and fro in London," with songs. Good singing will be provided. Each lecture commencing at 8 o'clock, P. M.

AN entertainment will be given at Reform Club rooms on Monday evening next, June 14. All friends of the cause of temperance are cordially invited to come and bring a pound or more of something useful, to be sold at auction. A jolly auctioneer will be present making a lively time. Music by a string band and others, also refreshments will be served to those who desire. Admission free.

THE Happy Minstrels did splendidly last Friday evening. We all felt confident that the troupe would reflect credit upon themselves but we did not expect so superior an entertainment. The people of Tecumseh have paid fifty cents a ticket to witness a professional company give a poorer program than we had last Friday evening. We thought of specifying the parts of each, but all did so well that we should get into trouble at once if we began making comparisons. The Guard made a mistake in not repeating the entertainment.

THE HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI.

We print below the officers of the Alumni association chosen last year, so that all may know what will be expected of them. Special efforts should be made this year to make the reunion surpass any hitherto held.

President—Lester P. Tribou.
1st VicePres.—C. S. Fitzsimmons, '76.
2d " —Allie McCowan, '75.
3d " —Dena Heesen, '79.
Secretary—Alf. W. James, '77.
Treasurer—Leon J. Dutton, '72.
Executive Committee—Harry G. Sherrard, '78; Thomas H. Temple, '75; Frank L. Osborn, '78; Miss Gussie Burlingame, '77; Miss Eunice Davidson, '77.
Orator—Fred B. Wood, '77.
Alternate—Will D. Robbins, '77.
Poet—Miss Clara Waldron, '77.
Alternate—Miss Janie Monaghan, '79
Essayist—Miss Jennie Frasier, '77.
Alternate—Miss Etta Wilson, '79.
Historian—Gurnsey P. Waring, '78.
Alternate—L. Cass Miller, '66.
Toast Master—Sumner Collins, '77.

Presbyterian Sunday School.

At the close of Sabbath School in the Presbyterian church last Sunday, Cyrus W. Wells resigned his place as superintendent on account of his removal from this community. For five years Mr. Wells has filled this important office with marked success, and retires carrying with him the fullest respect and warmest regard of all concerned. In accepting the resignation, the pastor took occasion to present a beautiful bronze clock, suitably engraved, and a fine copy of "The Teachers' Bible," gifts from the whole school placed in his hands for that purpose. The clock, said the speaker, would remind him of the flight of time, while the Bible would teach him what use to make of it. He also presented Mrs. Wells with a handsome bust, in marble, of Virgil, with the remark that he had never sang more sweetly than he would now in her heart as he became the symbol of the grateful remembrance of which she was held by her class of boys from whom the offering came, and in whose behalf he presented it.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells were deeply moved. Mr. Wells, with difficulty commanded his voice, while he accepted the offerings with thanks, both for himself and on behalf of his wife. They will both be much missed, both from the school, the church and the whole community.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Tecumseh Resolves to Celebrate—The Movement Fairly Started.

Tecumseh has finally concluded to celebrate the coming Fourth in a fitting manner, and a meeting was held at the Armory Hall last Tuesday evening to consider the subject. There was a goodly attendance of citizens present and the Clinton band was on hand to give us music and enliven the occasion. We append the official minutes of the meeting:

ARMORY CO. C, June 8th, 1880.

In pursuance to public notice given for a meeting of the citizens to be held this evening at this armory to consider arrangements for a Grand Fourth of July Celebration in this village, the meeting was called to order at 8 o'cl'k P. M. On motion W. C. Fitzsimmons was chosen chairman and Willis Merritt appointed Secretary.

The chairman then stated the object of the meeting and many citizens expressed their views concerning why Tecumseh should celebrate.

Henry W. Stevens then offered the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we celebrate here in connection with the Clinton people and others, on Saturday, July 3d, 1880, in honor of our nation's birth-day.

The following resolution was offered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of fifteen be appointed by the chairman, to be known as an executive committee, with full power to appoint all necessary sub-committees for the celebration; and that the chairman and secretary of this meeting be members of the committee.

The chairman appointed the following persons as members of the committee in pursuance of the resolution: A. B. Cotton, N. M. Sutton, L. Lilley, Dr. E. Hause, P. W. Adams, J. S. Strong, H. W. Stevens, H. E. Stout, Wm. C. Rogers, of Clinton; David Woodward, of Clinton; B. P. Anderson, T. D. McKinney, Dr. C. M. Woodward, Willis Merritt, W. C. Fitzsimmons.

The following resolution was then adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the chairman, on fire works.

The chairman appointed J. Davidson, J. H. Tribou, H. W. Conkling, W. S. Bordine and Chas. Arnold.

On motion, a vote of thanks was tendered the Clinton band for their presence and music upon this occasion.

The meeting then, on motion, adjourned subject to the call of the executive committee.

W. C. FITZSIMMONS, Chairman.
WILLIS MERRITT, Secretary.

It will be remembered by many of our citizens that we talked very strongly of getting up a celebration last year, but our Clinton and Macon neighbors started the ball first and so we yielded to them, with the understanding that when Tecumseh desired to have a celebration we could call upon them for aid. Tecumseh therefore feels very confident about securing the aid not only of Clinton and Macon, but also of all the other townships of Northern Lenawee. Tecumseh has not celebrated in several years, and it is our desire to have a good old-fashioned rousing Independence Day. In next week's HERALD we shall be able to give a definite idea of the program of exercises.

Last evening the Executive Committee met at the parlor of Sink's Hotel and made a splendid beginning for a large celebration. Different plans were suggested and discussed and finally a lot of sub-committees were appointed, which are herewith appended. It was decided to begin work at once. Invitations will be sent out today, and the work will be prosecuted vigorously every day henceforth.—Tecumseh means business this time and people may as well commence their preparations here for the next Fourth of July jubilee. The Ex. Com. remained in session over three hours and adjourned subject to the call of the chairman, A. B. Cotton. W. C. Fitzsimmons was chosen secretary of the committee.

THE OFFICERS.

The following named persons were chosen Officers of the day:

Marshall—Lucius Lilley,
President—Perley Bills.
Vice Presidents—Jno J Adam, E F Blood, S G Conkling, J S Hendryx, P R Adams, Wm Richard, J G Roberts, Dr A F Tuttle, J S Schreder, C A Stacy, A K Waldron, H Brewer, Dr I S Hamilton.

THE COMMITTEES.

On Invitations—S C Stacy, W C Fitzsimmons.

On Program—L Lilley, J S Strong, Willis Merritt, N M Sutton, D Woodward.

ON GROUNDS.

A Hanford, P W Adams, C A Slayton, G P Sparks, John Usborne, A A Kennedy.

ON FINANCE.

Henry Keyser, N M Sutton, W C Rogers, W C Fitzsimmons.

ON PRINTING.

G N Stacy, Willis Merritt, P W Adams, H W Stevens.

ON VOCAL MUSIC.

J S Strong, B F Steinhoff, J H Tribou, Dr E Hause.

ON DANCING.

T C Cummins, P J VanVleet, E R Smith, Will T Eccles, H U Matthews, T D McKinney.

ON INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

G W Zeigler.

ON DECORATIONS.

S W Anderson, D L Whitenack, T Adamson, A W Mills, Albert Hayden, H S Lee, J Davidson, J H Tribou, J L Waldo, C A Wright, J W Patterson, A W Slayton, W J Kies, C J Brewer, James Lowry, Henry McClure, Geo Heesen, Frank Buman.

TABLE COMMITTEES.

Tecumseh.—Dr C M Woodward, H Keyser, B P Anderson, Mrs N M Sutton, Mr & Mrs H E Stout, Mr & Mrs H W Stevens, Mrs Hudson Conkling, Mrs N R Merritt, Mr & Mrs J D Sholes, Mrs Dr Peters, Mrs Jehiel Davidson, Mrs J H Osborn, Mrs Wm McCowen, Mr & Mrs J W Patterson, Mr & Mrs Alva Waring, Mrs F A Seifert, Mr & Mrs W F Baxter.

Macon—J W Baker and wife, W H Osborn and wife, D C Pennington and wife, John C Mills and wife, A Easlick and wife, Alfred Lewis and wife.

Ridgeway—John Britton and wife, G P Waring and wife, Dr D W Loree, Chas Underwood and wife, C L Lowe and wife, Wm Wilson and wife.

Cambridge—F A Dewey and wife, C Cooper and wife, Geo Stafford and wife, Robert Wooden and wife, C A Blackmar and wife.

Raisin—James Cook and wife, J H Green and wife, D P Anthony and wife, Alex Richard and wife.

Franklin—B C Knapp and wife, B F Reynolds and wife, James Hunter and wife, C Roberts and wife, Frank Osborne and wife.

Clinton—D Silvers and wife, H B Roberts and wife, John Fisher and wife, I H Schreder and wife, Philip Kehoe and wife, C W Culbertson and wife.

Adrian—Ira Ladd and wife, A H Briggs and wife, W H Wiggins and wife, James Osborn and wife.

The above is only a partial list of the committees, but enough are here named to form a nucleus and commence work at once. But every resident of Tecumseh should consider himself a committee of one to help along the work. The general Executive Committee will meet again in a few days and then the sub-committees will be completed.

Two editors were sitting side by side at a circus. A trapeze woman was coming down the rope bottom side up, slowly, the rope wound around her limbs and body so that she scarcely moved. "How gradually she comes down," said one editor. Yes, said the other, "just like some of my subscribers." Then they went out and drank some red lemonade.

—Tinted and black lace Mitts at Eaton's.

—Best Lawns, 8 and 10 cents, at Eaton's.

—E. V. DePuy sells Perry's Hay Tedder. Call and see them.

—Nobby Suits for Young Men at W. J. Kies'.

—David Jones now sells Base Ball Gloves.

—All the best makes of Corsets at Eaton's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Go to Tupper's for Walking Shoes.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—A nice line of Mohair Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—D. Jones has one of the latest and best line of neck wear in the market.

—Walking Shoes for Ladies at Tupper's.

—100 Macinaw hats at W. J. Kies'.

—Toilet Slippers at A. H. Tupper's.

—Fresh Fish at the South Side Meat Market. Kilburn & Co.

—Go to Tupper's for shoes.

—Nobby White Vests at W. J. Kies',

—Orr's Pantaloon Overalls at W. J. Kies'.

—French Tie for Gents at Tupper's.

—Have you heard what Orr's Overalls are selling for at W. J. Kies'?

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at Will. J. Kies'.

—The "Royce Reaper" has less parts in the whole machine than many have in the rake head alone.—Exhibited at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Lady Washington's at Tupper's.

—Everything in the shoe line at Tupper's.

—See the Triumph Simple Reaper No. 2, sold by E. V. DePuy, before you purchase elsewhere. You will be well pleased with the way the lever works, dropping both ends of the table at once.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids. A. B. Cotton.

—Spring Tooth Harrows, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Carpet warp at Eaton's.

—David Jones has just received an elegant line of Kid, Buck and Dog Skin Gloves.

—Babies Walking Shoes at Tupper's.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The Three Rivers Vibrator can be seen at N. Bailey's.

—Buntings cheap at Eaton's.

—For No. 1 carpet warp call at Eaton's.

—David Jones has a splendid assortment of light pants patterns. Call and see them.

—Corn and Potatoe Cultivators, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin Curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new, A. B. Cotton.

THE ECONOMIST OIL STOVES.

Safe, durable, and cheap, without producing any superfluous heat, and perfectly odorless. Warranted to give entire satisfaction. Give them a trial. For sale by Sutton & Swan.

—Hammocks at Sutton & Swan's.

—Go to Fred Kilburn & Co's South Side Market for all kinds of fresh and salt fish, smoked meats, dried beef, chickens, pickels, &c.

—Grain Bags at Eatons.

—Ladies Street Boots, Spanish Arch Instep, very fine, at Tupper's.

—No. 2 Triumphs are going off fast. Sold by E. V. DePuy.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over. A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Gents Fine Oxford Button at Tupper's.

—A full stock of Whiting's Brushes just received; also transfers for carriages. Baker & Hall.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.
Brown, the Photographer.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Sandals, very nice, at Tupper's.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Sailors Ties for Gentlemen at Tupper's.

—Do not buy a Plow until you have examined the new style Wiard at Slayton & Son's.

—Scotch and Common Harrows at Ed Rowland's.

—Walking Shoes at A. H. Tupper's.

—It has been pronounced by all that W. J. Kies has sold more clothing during the month of May than all the other concerns in Tecumseh.

—All kinds of Meat at the South Side Meat Market. Kilburn & Co.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—Newport Ties for Ladies. A. H. Tupper.

—Linen Dusters at W. J. Kies'.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Street Boots, nice, at Tupper's.

—If you want a business or dress suit go to Davi Jones's, who will give you bottom prices.

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at W. J. Kies'.

—Ask W. J. Kies to show you the Eighme Shirt.

—For good Fresh Meat, go to the South Side Meat Market. Kilburn & Co.

—The best display of horse summer goods in Tecumseh will be found at the store of J. D. Sholes. Also trunks in good variety. Call and get prices.

DIED.

SNAUBEL—In Saline, May 13, 1880, Mrs. J. B. Snaubel, aged 54 years.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

J. F. JENKINS, N. G.
L. A. CHAFFEE, Sec.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB. NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings, at Seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, PRESIDENT.
G. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 15. Mail.	No. 17. Express.	No. 49. Accom.
Jackson	6 50 a m	2 30 pm	1 50 pm
Napoleon	7 10 "	2 55 "	2 35 "
Norvell	7 16 "	3 05 "	2 53 "
Manchester	7 30 "	3 20 "	3 35 "
Clinton	7 43 "	3 40 "	4 15 "
Tecumseh	7 55 "	3 50 "	4 40 "
Adrian	8 30 "	4 25 "	6 00 "
Detroit	10 50 "	8 15 "	.....
Toledo	9 50 "	5 25 "	.....

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 16. Mail.	No. 18. Express.	No. 48. Accom.
Detroit	7 50 am	6 40 pm	.....
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "	.....
Adrian	12 01 p.m	9 20 "	5 10 am
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 15 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't.
P. S. BLODGETT, Sup't Mich Div.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the west.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A. M.
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit ..... 3 30 P. M.

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A. M.
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M.

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

GOOD HEALTH.

How important that every one sh'ld familiarize himself with the general laws of health; how we may retain the powers than an all-wise Creator has in his goodness bestowed upon the human race, and left us to study out the laws by which they may be retained, and imparted to coming generations. And yet how few of the many cast even a thought upon a subject of so much vital importance. Every householder should see their surroundings are kept free from the foul odors of decomposing substances, that no cesspools are allowed to stand near said premises, giving forth their death dealing noxious exhalations, breeding sickness and dissolution to the occupants thereof. A free use of some deodorizing substance such as copperas, dry ashes, or even dry dirt from the street, applied every day or two, during the heated season, may be the means of saving much suffering in our midst. And what is quite as important as any other, see that the water used for drinking purposes is as near pure as [illegible] same frequently; situated as we are in this village, there is no excuse for impure water if proper precautionary measures are used. There are but few places within our circle of acquaintance where the water is so pure and evenly distributed as lies underneath this beautiful village. Then let it not be said that Tecumseh is behind her sister villages in all precautionary measures that appertain to the general health of our midst.

A. S. DOTY.

Tecumseh, May 5, 1880.

FLOOR CLEANING.

There can not, I think, be a doubt that for the bed-room floor dry cleansing is always the best. Water destroys the varnish on stained and painted floors, making them patchy and dirty looking; water destroys the evenness of surface; water makes the adoption of the waxed floor almost impossible; water when it is used often percolates into the joints of the floor-boards, causing them to separate and become holders of dirt; and, lastly, if water be used for cleansing the chances are many in the course of a year that the room will be left damp and chilly.—The floor will be washed on some damp and foggy days, the boards will dry imperfectly, and, though at bed time they may be to appearance dry, they will not be so entirely, while the air of the room will be still charged with moisture; so that although the sleeper does not get into a damp bed, he does get into a damp bed room, which in some respects is equally injurious.

I have seen such very bad results from damp sleeping rooms, in which the dampness of the air had been caused by washing the floors, that I do not press the lesson I wish to enforce at all too forcibly or earnestly.

When from any circumstances the floor of the bedroom can not have given to it a varnished or waxed surface—when, for example, the floor is constructed simply of deal planks—it may seem to be absolutely necessary to clean the surface with water. These floors, moreover, are just the floors that hold water the longest, and for all reasons are least adapted for water-cleansing. How, then, it will be said, are such floors to be cleaned? They are most easily cleaned in one dry way, viz., by dry scrubbing with sawdust. The servant takes up a small pailful of clean, fresh sawdust, and, taking it out by handfuls, spreads it on the floor, and with a hard, short-bristled brush scrubs with the sawdust as though she was using water itself. When the whole surface has been scrubbed in this way, she sweeps up the sawdust, and finds beneath it a beautifully clean and dry floor; or, if there be left any part still dirty, she easily remedies the defect by an additional scrub at that part. When all is finished she carries the dirty sawdust away, and destroys it by burning it in the kitchen fire. White sand may be used instead of sawdust for this same purpose, but it is not so convenient, and is not so quick a cleanser as sawdust. The same sand, if sand be used, can be applied several times, if it be cleansed by washing, and afterwards heating it over the fire until it is quite dry.—Appleton's Journal.

TAINTED MEAT.

A paragraph is going the rounds of the press, how to treat "tainted meat" by boiling it with charcoal. The parsimony of saving meat in this way instead of being commended should be condemned; and the editors who recommend farmers to save "tainted meat," should have a dish of it for dinner, "charcoal" and all. The best way, good house-keeper, to treat tainted meat is to throw it to some dog you have a spite against.

Bancroft, the historian, is tall, thin and a little stooped. His head is small, long and thin; but his eyes are youthful and his mouth expressive of great decision of character.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

The Supreme Court has 142 cases on its June term docket.

Sturgis girls go out in the woods and play cards on Sunday.

Grand Rapids is now guarded by 22 policemen.

The Clayton liquor bonds have now been fixed at $2,000, and whisky is again set at a-ble.

Track laying on the Marquette & Mackinac railroad has begun on the further end of the line.

The old Congregational church at Greenville has been sold to the Episcopalians for a modest sum.

Fifty bushels of wheat were stolen from Avery & Murphy's barn at Millington a few nights ago.

Charles Thompson, of East Saginaw, is under charges of having stolen $200 from his brevet wife.

They eat venison "out of season" at Alpena, and take the curse off by calling it "Wolverine."

It is asserted that the Detroit, Hillsdale & Southwestern railroad is to be extended to LaGrange, Ind.

The boarders at the Jackson state prison are not to wear striped clothing hereafter, but will be decked out in cadet grey.

It is authoritatively stated that the Charlevoix summer resort is not a baptist affair, but is owned by an association who will make it [illegible] a strictly non-sectarian ba[illegible]

Jacob Reulter, proprietor of the Milford brewery, has been convicted of selling beer at retail without a license. It being his second offense he was fined $50 and sent to jail for ten days.

Ground has been broken at Point St. Ignace for the Marquette & Mackinac railroad, and the work of building it northward has been fairly begun, dock and depot sites selected.

Wet weather has made Michigan corn planting slow work.

President Angell started for California en route to China last Monday.

Dr. A. B. Coleman, an old and respected physician of Plymouth, died on Tuesday.

Hillsdale college commencement and anniversary exercises will take place this week.

Another planing mill and lumber yard on an extensive scale has been opened for business at Hastings.

There comes a growl from Barry county and elsewhere, to the effect that the wet weather is damaging the wheat.

Two Marcellus men recently traded wives. There was a difference of two dollars boot money paid by one of the negotiators.

Good quality wool sells for 26 cents at Parma. At White Pigeon the market opened at 35, but unwashed went for 27 to 30 cents.

Tally one for the Midland girls! On Decoration day six of them walked two miles to strew flowers over the lonely grave of a soldier.

During the last 18 months about 50 people from Plymouth and thereabouts have gone to Dakota, and many of them have been glad to get back.

Nineteen bands have notified the managers of the Flint tournament of their intention to be present at that blow out, and more are expected.

A lumber railway has been built from Dodgeville, Lapeer county, three miles north. It connects with the Chicago & Grand Trunk railroad.

A certain Romeo doctor would like to prescribe for the brilliant young man who painted an undertaker's sign on said doctor's door a few nights ago.

The Jackson, Lansing & Saginaw railroad managers are feeling the public pulse at Cheboygan, with a view of selecting that place as a possible terminus for the northern extension of that road.

The new school building at Vassar is to be completed by October 15.

A new postoffice called Bonanza has been established in the Township of Odessa, Ionia county.

On Saturday N. G. Bruss, of Rutland, Barry county, fell from the roof of a barn he was shingling and hurt himself seriously.

The residence of Mrs. W. E. Whitcomb, three miles west of Constantine was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock on Tuesday morning, with nearly all its contents.

The dead body of a man was seen floating in the river at Mt. Pleasant on Monday. The boy who saw it went for help to secure it but when the men went with him it had floated out of sight.

Tuesday night, Wm. Sapmond, in driving across a railroad track at Battle Creek, was struck by an express train. His horse was killed and his carriage wrecked, but he escaped with some severe bruises.

The congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of East Saginaw, expect soon to have their church entirely free from debt.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

ASK the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Pain, Burn, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This universal Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

CENTAUR LINIMENT

KILL-PAIN

always Cures and never Disappoints. The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine

Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 alios, tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass; bell up; patent piston valves; warranted, for $150.

I also have Band Instruments for professional bands to select from, including Corm and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogues.

Address, O. F. BERDAN,
72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

PREPARED BY

R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

Sold by all Dealers in Medicine.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for Diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Seasickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malaria, and diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic influences. It purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public, for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 162 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and
GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,

55 Maiden Lane, New York.

ACENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian,
General Agent for Michigan.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY SALE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN—The Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, In Chancery.

Edward F. Muir, Complainant, against William A. Marshall, Sarah Marshall and Christopher Schmidt, Defendants.

Pursuant to a decree of this court in the above entitled cause, on the 5th day of March, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for the county of Lenawee, will on the 19th day of June, A.D. 1880, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, sell to the highest bidder at the front door of Dean's Opera House, so called, on Toledo street, in the city of Adrian, in said county, (that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county is holden) that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows: Being village lot number three (3) of Burnham's survey of the village of Clinton, aforesaid, according to the plat thereof, as surveyed by Hiram Burnham, Esq., in A.D. 1833, and now on record in the Register's office in and for the county of Lenawee, aforesaid.

Dated May 6th, 1880.

WILLIS MERRITT,
Circuit Court Commissioner,
for the County of Lenawee, Michigan.

E. B. Wood, Solicitor for Complainant. may6

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 11th day of March, A.D. 1869, Jonas Weaver and Caroline M. Weaver by an indenture of mortgage made and executed by them on said 11th day of March, to Henry H. Rawson certain lands owned by said Caroline M. Weaver, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 22 day of November, A.D. 1869, in liber 57 of mortgages on pages 675 and 676, and which mortgage was duly assigned by said Henry H. Rawson to Jonas Weaver on the 6th day of November, A.D. 1879, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1880, in liber 95 of mortgages on page 423. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-four and 22-100 dollars and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee, should any proceeding be taken to foreclose the said mortgage; no proceedings have been taken either in law or equity to recover the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Default having been made in the terms of payment of said mortgage by means of which the power of sale in said mortgage has become absolute; notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due together with all legal costs and charges and said attorney fee of twenty-five dollars; said sale will be to the highest bidder and will be made on the twenty-six day of July, 1880, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Dean's Opera House on Toledo street in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county.) The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold as aforesaid are described as situate in the township of Rollin in said county of Lenawee, and known as the west half of the south west quarter of section twenty-nine, except twenty acres off the north end thereof, in township six south of range one east.

Dated February 21st, 1880.

JONAS WEAVER, Assignee of Mortgage.
THOMAS J. HILLER, Att'y for Assignee. ap22

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit. In the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, in Chancery.

Mary F. E. Taylor Complainant,
vs.
Charles L. Taylor, Defendant.

Before Willis Merritt, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the village of Tecumseh, this 30th day of April, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file, that the defendant Charles L. Taylor is not a resident of this State and is a resident of Chicago, Ill. On motion of C. A. & J. A. Stacy, complainant's solicitors, it is ordered that said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complainant in this cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of this order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

WILLIS MERRITT,
Circuit Court Commissioner.
C. A. & J. A. STACY, Complainant's Solicitors. may20

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of William Taylor, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of William Taylor, late of Macon, in said county, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Wood & Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 26th day of June, 1880, and on the 10th day of November, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, and that six months from the 10th day of May, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated May 25th, 1880.

JOHN B. PATTISON,
GEORGE POCKLINGTON,
Commissioners.

May27

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

N. W. AYER & SON

ADVERTISING AGENTS

TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.

Receive Advertisements for this Paper, at Lowest Cash Rates.

ESTIMATES free for Newspaper Advertising.

Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

NORTHERN LENAWEE FARMERS' CLUB.

(This Club will hold its meetings regularly on each alternate Saturday of each month, at the Reform Club Hall in Tecumseh, at 2 o'clock P. M. until further notice. All are heartily welcomed and cordially invited to attend. Communications thankfully received. Correspondence solicited from other clubs, especially where co-operative action can accomplish desirable results. All letters should be addressed to E. D. BERRITT, Sec., Tecumseh, Mich.)

SATURDAY, June 5, 1880.

The club met to-day with a fair attendance, and some names were added to our list of membership.

The exercises opened with some good music.

There were a number of young people present, and those who assisted in the music are entitled to the thanks of the club, besides it is encouraging to see this class interesting themselves in matters pertaining to agriculture.

Among the guests present was Mr. Baxter, who favored us with a few very interesting and lively remarks.

The subject of mowing and pasturing wheat was brought up by Mr. Mather.

Mr. Wood, of Lodi Plains, had noticed the inquiries of the club in regard to the matter, and reported that he had tried both mowing and pasturing, and was convinced that he had injured his wheat materially, and that it winter-killed the most where it was mowed or pastured the closest. It seemed to be the opinion of a majority of the members present that it was only in very extreme cases and peculiar seasons where pasturing and mowing were not of more injury than benefit to wheat.

Mr. Baxter introduced the subject of how to kill mustard. Those who had had experience with it found that thorough and continuous pulling or cultivating resulted in its extermination.

The subject of cutting and curing hay was introduced by Mr. Lowe, by a few very interesting and appropriate remarks upon the importance of the hay crop, and the annual loss to farmers by the amount spoiled in cutting and curing of it; and by giving his experience and manner of curing, and manner of cutting, both timothy and clover for hay, and the comparative difference between good and poor hay.

There were a great diversity of opinions, both in regard to the proper time to cut hay and to the best mode of curing it. Two facts seemed pretty well established: one, that the proper time to cut grass of any sort for hay was at the time when it was the most nutritious; and the other, the best time for curing it was when the weather was dry and the sun shone. Some preferred, however, to cure it in the shade as much as possible, and thought that it was better hauled into the barn quite green. Others contended that a large amount of hay was rendered worthless by cutting while it was full of water and sap, and too much time occupied in curing it, and by housing it too green, as it either soured or molded, or both. Some claimed that it was the most nutritious when it was in a state for good pasture, or before it had blossomed or even the head formed, while others claimed that such hay was light food and good to produce a large flow of milk, but worthless for work teams or flesh forming purposes; that it was the most nutritious when the blossom had mostly fallen off and the seed had began to form, when the water had partially evaporated and the sap and sugar had began to thicken into a gummy substance, but before the stalk had become woody, and that it should be rapidly and thoroughly dried before putting up in any shape.

Mr. Goodrich could not add much to what had been said, but could endorse the most of it. He had never acquired great wealth at farming, but never had a poor load of hay in his barn.

Mr. Lowe:—You stack your poor hay?

Mr. Goodrich:—The hay that I stack is as good as that which I put in the barn.

Mr. Richards:—Prepare your strawberries and cream, for we will all come down and see you when you get to haying and learn how to make hay.'

Mr. Goodrich:—I shall be very glad to see you, and will treat you as well as I know how, but you can be sure that I will not be making hay unless the sun shines.

Gentlemen who had sown seed wheat procured from Missouri were requested to furnish small specimens of the head and stalk of the different varieties and report upon the same at the next meeting.

Program for the next meeting:

Music. Suggestions for the good of the club. Miscellaneous questions and answers. Subjects for discussion:—Butter and bread making, the different kinds, salt rising and hop yeast, and all matters pertaining to the subject, to be introduced by an essay by Mrs. Justus Lowe. Essay on bread making by Mrs. F. Rector. Essay on butter making by Mrs. Geo. Griswold.

On motion, the meeting adjourned for two weeks, or to Saturday, June 19, 1880.

An Irishman says he can see no earthly reason why women should not be allowed to become medical men.

CARE OF CORN.

Corn is king of all the grains; the most beautiful from the time it thrusts its green leaves through the soil, till it flaunts its tasseled head to the Summer breeze, and in the waning Autumn, gives its golden ears to the husker. No plant repays the care bestowed, or is more sensitive to neglect.

Experience has taught us that drilling corn and cultivation with a harrow, is a cheap but wasteful method. The young plant should not be disturbed; for if it is its growth will be retarded. Planting in hills is preferable, four feet each way, five kernels in a hill, thinning to four or better three at the first hoeing. Yes—we say hoeing; for no work on the farm pays better.

If you undertake to raise a crop, do the best for it you can, and leave as little to chance of weather and providence as possible. There will be risk enough at best. Experience has taught us that the best method is to give deep culture at first, using a two-horse wheeled cultivator. When the stalks are too high for the cultivator to pass, the roots already begin to fill the soil, and a light, one-horse cultivator should be used.

Unless it be the object to force a late crop to ripen, deep plowing as with a double-shovel, as is often done after harvest, is decidedly injurious, for the soil is filled with roots which are broken off, and the stalks are thus deprived of proper support.

Against drouth, level culture is far preferable to any method of ridging or hilling. In the West it is not profitable to grow corn on any land which requires artificial fertilizers. Clover should be relied on as the cheapest and best of all fertilizers.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

THE GARDEN.

The planting has been nearly all done for the season, with the beginning of this month, but there are a few vegetables yet to be transplanted.—The cabbage plot has yet to be made for the late crop. A more healthful vegetable, whether cooked or used as a salad, is not grown. When properly kept its tender crisp leaves in Winter, when fresh vegetables are difficult to obtain, are always grateful. It requires a rich soil and constant hoeing.

Where the worm is a pest, if the plants are dusted every few mornings with cayenne pepper, they will remain untouched. Do not wait till the worms appear and begin eating their way into the head. Then the pepper will not reach them, and will be useless.

UNQUESTIONABLE.

The Herald, Detroit, Mich., says of Warner's Safe Liver and Kidney Cure: "Its efficacy in kidney, liver and urinary diseases is so fully acknowledged that it is not worth the questioning. Bona fide testimonials from well known citizens in public and private life are evidences strong enough to convince the most stubborn doubter."

CLOVER.

By the last of June the clover meadows will be ready for the mower.—When properly cured no hay will compare with clover, and when badly cured none can be worst. Owing to the succulence of the stems it is difficult to dry, and if not dry it will heat and mold. Consult the weather reports and your own skill as a weather prophet, and cut when there is assurance of fair weather. Before night fork together in small piles. Next morning open and expose to the air.—When properly dried take to the barn and press well into the mow. Secured in this manner, it retains its color and aroma, and stock forget the summer pasture.

The total through passengers carried by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway company during the year 1879 was 60,455, or 4,324 more than were transported during the year 1878. The total earnings for the carrying of these passengers were $3,138,003,59.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Alexander Dumas's fortune is estimated at $500,000 outside of his art collection, worth nearly as much. Every penny of it he has derived from his literary labors.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact everything kept in a first-class store, and we propose to sell at the lowest figures.

Chicago Street. HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT

SLAYTON & SON

Beg leave to inform the public that they are handling a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Among which may be found

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled. Garden City Clipper (steel.)

Scotch Harrows, the Buckeye & Elwood Cultivators,

Johnston Reapers and Mowers,

Buckeye and Champion Grain Drills, Corn Drills & Planters, The Seymour Plaster Sower,

HAY RAKES, {The Thomas Hand Dump. The Tiger Self Dump.

THRESHERS, {The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines, the Carter Tongueless Cultivators,

Double Shovels and Shovel Plows, points for all kinds of Plows, Sections for all Mowers & Reapers

We also sell

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Scales, and the Boss Stone Boat.

☞ Just call and see if we can't furnish you anything you want.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

☞ Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for EQUALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN.

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills,

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY" CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. GRAY, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1875, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk-Cure and Arabian Tonic: their beneficial effect at once became manifest; the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle. Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor, 122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

☞ Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

☞ For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

☞ For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

☞ Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF

CALLING CARDS,

At the Herald Office.

New Twine Binder.

WALTER A. WOOD'S

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

The new Twine Binder has been well tested in different kinds and conditions of grain and in different localities and has proved most efficient and durable.

THE WOOD MACHINES

Are Superior to all others in every respect, which the manufacturers and Agents stand ready to prove both by actual test and by the fact that more than ten times the number of this make of Machines are in use now in the County than of all others put together. Although they are put up in the most durable and satisfactory manner, yet they are sold at Prices to compete with second-class Machines. All we ask is for farmers to examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent.

ALL MACHINES WARRANTED.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF EXTRAS ON HAND

At Slayton & Son's.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

Farming Implements!

THE ROYCE REPEAPER.

Weight 600 lbs. Draws easy as a farm wagon.

GALE Chilled PLOW,

The KING of the Field.

A. A. KENNEDY. A. S. HAYDEN.

TERRIBLE THREAT!

BRIDGET:—"Sure, if you don't get out o' this and shtop yer botherin' I'll be afther makin' a clothes-pin of yees."

IT WAS LOADED.

Adrian Times: A daughter of C. W. Sheffield, was accidentally shot and seriously injured early on the morning of June 4th. The young lady in question, aged about sixteen, with a sister is stopping at the corner of Budlong and Railroad streets. The young ladies are boarding themselves, and attending school here, their parents having removed to Adrian township. They felt somewhat timid about staying alone during the races, and invited a neighbor, Mrs. McKay, to come and sleep in their rooms last evening. To further insure safety a pistol, which has not been used for many years, was brought out and placed under the pillow of one of the young ladies. None of them knew whether the pistol was loaded, but of course it was; pistols always are loaded when there is any doubt on the subject. This morning when the young ladies awoke, one of them (named Ora, we believe,) took the pistol from its convenient hiding place and began to examine it. The pistol was rusty, and needed brightening up. Miss Ora conducted the examination while reclining in bed on her right side. She held the pistol in her right hand, raised the hammer and turned the cylinder with the left hand. While turning the cylinder, the hammer dropped while the barrel was pointing toward the young lady. The ball passed through the palm of the left hand, coming out at the wrist, and entered the breast to a depth of probably two inches and a half. Dr. Allen, who was called, probed for the ball, but was unable to find it. The doctor does not think, however, that the wound will prove fatal, but that the ball can perhaps be removed, and that the young lady will recover.

HIGHWAY TAX.

Every male inhabitant in each road district of Michigan, being above the age of 21 and under the age of 50, is assessed one day's labor, which he can commute for $1 for each day that he is assessed. It is the duty of overseers of highways to give at least twenty-four hours notice to all persons assessed, and of the time and place when and where they are to appear for that purpose. A person may procure a substitute if he wishes, but the person so appearing must actually work eight hours each day. Every person assessed and duly notified who refuses to commute or appear as provided is obliged to pay the sum of $1 for every day's refusal. An amendment to section twenty-three of act 168 of the session laws of 1857, passed at the session of 1879, reads:

The President and trustees shall also have power to levy and cause to be collected in each year, a poll tax of one dollar upon every male inhabitant of such villages between the ages of 21 and 50, excepting such persons as are exempted by general law from the payment of such tax and proceeds of such tax shall be applied exclusively for the purposes named in the seventh subdivision of this section:

Provided, That every person liable to be assessed such tax may commute the same by performing one day's labor on the streets, highways, alleys, or lanes of such villages, under the direction of the proper officers.

Manchester's school board have engaged the following teachers for the ensuing year, at the salary as indicated: Superintendent—Prof. J. W. Robinson, $1,000; Principal High School—Prof. C. F. Field, $500; Grammar Department—Miss L. M. Hunt, $360; Intermediate Department—Miss Atta Colwell, $320; Secondary Department—Miss Alice Richmond, $320; Primary Department—Miss Anna E. Shekell, $320.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, June 7, 1880.

Regular session.
Present, the entire council.
Minutes of last session approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

On Finance:

Report in writing approving of and recommending the payment of the following bills:

James Moir	$5.64
W. E. Gray	1 20
W. Anderson	1 05

The special committee appointed at last meeting of council to take into consideration the petition presented by fifty-four of the residents and tax payers of this village, report in writing as follows:

To the Honorable, the Common Council:

Gentlemen—Your special committee to whom was referred the petition of citizens of this village asking that a team of horses be purchased for the use of the fire department would respectfully submit the following report:

While recognizing the need of a team to give increased efficiency to our fire department, and while in full sympathy with the petitioners in this respect; yet in view of the burdens of taxation which your honorable body has found necessary to impose for the liquidation of corporation indebtedness, it is not regarded as in the line of a wise economy to increase such burdens the present year for the object named in the petition. Your committee would therefore recommend that the petition be laid upon the table.

GEORGE HEESEN.
HENRY SMITH.
W. C. FITZSIMMONS.

On motion, the report was accepted and adopted and the committee discharged.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The Street Commissioner submitted his report in writing dating from May 1, 1880, to June 7, 1880, from which it appears that during that time there was performed on the streets, of team work 68½ days and of hand labor 90 and 8-10 days.

The report was accepted and placed on file.

The Village Marshall reported in writing to the council the names of those who were duly notified by a notice in writing to repair or rebuild their sidewalks. Also the names of those persons who complied with said notice and those who neglected or refused to repair or rebuild said walks as directed.

The report was accepted, and on motion, the Committee on Streets was instructed to prepare and present at next meeting of council the resolutions necessary to compel such parties to repair or rebuild their walks as directed by the council.

NEW BUSINESS.

The following bills against the corporation were presented and referred to Finance Committee:

Mt. Vernon Lantern Works, for 12 street lanterns	$91 20
Sean McConnell, services in cemetery	37 91
W. C. Jordan, 45⅝ days as Street Com.	91 60
John Hastings, furnishing and planting trees	4 00

On motion, the amount of the Marshal's bond for the present year was fixed at the penal sum of $3,500.

On motion, so much of the resolution passed September 15, 1876, as relates to the location of additional street lamps to be erected in the village was reconsidered, and the distribution and location of street lamps was referred to the Committee on Streets.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

The Circuit Court convened on the morning of June 8th, Judge Pratt presiding. Bevilhammer, charged with assault to ravish a crippled girl in Blissfield, withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to assault. He was sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment in jail, where he has already been incarcerated for seven months. In the case of the people vs. Philo G. Taylor and Martha Baxter, charged with lewd and lascivious cohabitation, the defendants withdrew their plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. The man Taylor, who is a helpless cripple, was allowed to go free, and the woman was sentenced to the house of correction at Detroit for six months. The jury was discharged for the term, and the court adjourned till June 22, at 9 o'clock A. M.

THE third term is dead.

WOOL CIRCULAR

Of W. C. Houston, Jr., & Co., Wool Commission Merchants, Philadelphia.

The past month has been the dullest experienced in the wool trade since the Spring of 1878, when buyers were reluctant to take hold of the new clip, although opening prices were very low. Then, as now, there had been such a sharp decline before the beginning of the season that operators were uncertain what prices would be safe, and the result was that through the general timidity, wool was depressed below its intrinsic value. At length however, the low range of prices tempted buyers, and confidence being gradually restored, a healthy business began and wool advanced steadily to a point in keeping with its real value. To be sure, the opening prices of 1876 were about ten cents lower than those talked of now, but we think this difference is fully warranted by the improved condition of the country.

It seems to us that the present season and that of 1876 are fairly comparable. There is a general want of confidence now, as then, which bids fair to press wool down unwarrantably. Prices were undoubtedly advanced too far, and we cannot expect to see them as high as they were three months ago, but the reaction seems to be carrying values to the other extreme. To eastern dealers who want to buy wool as low as possible, the present state of affairs is very favorable, but we think that if Western holders display confidence and courage enough to hold their wools for fair prices, this downward tendency will be checked and the clip will be moved at figures satisfactory and profitable to all interested. There is no reason that wool should be given away, especially as the further the decline, the more certain will be the reaction.

The course of the market in 1876 proved that twenty cents for good unwashed, and thirty cents for good washed, was abnormally low, and we think that thirty cents for unwashed and forty cents for washed, will show just as fair margins as if prices in the interior are forced down still further. We do not mean to say that prices are now to low, or that there will be any advance; nor are we trying to "bull" the market; but we do think that we have touched bottom and that there is no necessity for a further decline.

The market here is very dull and unsettled, and we have to reduce our quotations of May 1st from 10 to 15 per cent. Consumers generally have fair stocks of wool, which are really ample when we consider the stagnant condition of the dry goods trade. Nevertheless, a large amount of machinery is running, and the consumption of the raw material is enormous. As soon as manufacturers become convinced that wool will go no lower, we think they will be free purchasers: but as long as they see that the prices asked one week are two or three cents below those of the week before, they will feel that it is their interest to remain out of the market.

The condition of the country has greatly improved since the last clip, and the only factor now needed for a return of healthy business is confidence. It should be remembered that activity in raw materials always stimulates the manufactured article. There is no reason that wool should be stagnant because dry goods don't move. If wool once starts, goods will take care of themselves.

We would notice that there is but little difference in price between the corresponding grades of combing and clothing, and the only reason for taking out the staple is because the grade of the clothing is thereby improved.

More particular information will be gladly given, either by mail or telegraph, as desired.

The Sweet Girl Graduate.

Read what the Burlington Hawkeye man has to say to the coming "sweet girl graduate:" In only a few weeks the class of '80 will "cross the threshold," and "enter the arena" and begin the "battle of life." Once more "night" will perform its grand annual spectacular feat, and will successfully "bring out the stars." It will also bring out the cats, and likewise the bugs, but she—bless her pretty innocent face—will not say anything about that in her essay. "The mill will never grind with the water that has passed" again, just as it refused to grind with the same water last year. "Man" will again "be the arbiter of his own destiny," and impersonal people will be generally warned to "beware" of desperate steps, on the assurance that "the darkest day" never lasts through day after to-morrow, a great consolation for the man who lost his lantern. Mankind will be cheerfully told to "He pon, ho pever," although what they are to hope for, beyond the death of a rich and childless relative, is never very definitely set forth.

Wooster Blodgett, a rich farmer of Webster township, Washtenaw county, while on his way to the Ann Arbor temperance meeting Friday, was thrown from his wagon and severely and possibly fatally injured.

SCIENTIFIC gentlemen have recently announced that too much rope jumping causes necrosis or death of the bone of the lower limbs. This item is for the benefit of those boys and girls who frequently boast that they 'have jumped the rope 200 times.'

IF the farmer knows when his brains are well balanced, he will accept of 40 cents per pound for his wool the very first time that it is offered him; and not hold it as many farmers have their wheat, and finally lose 25 per cent. through the operation.

IT is said that a small black insect is getting in his work on the buds of the grape vine. It eats directly into the head of the bud the moment it begins to swell, and that the vines should be gone over at least once a day. After the bud opens out well all danger is past.

American Ball-Blue is a product of science applied to the housekeeper's wants. Pure, harmless, and of beautiful effect. Try it!

OUR Ridgeway correspondent furnishes us an excellent report of the meeting held there this week.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, June 9, 1880:

Cassel, Will	Mills, L. L.
Hancock, Miss Mollie	Maguire, Thomas

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARRIED.

McCLURE—JUSTICE—In Green Oak, at the Baptist Parsonage, June 1, 1880, by Rev. George T. Ellis, Mr. Henry McClure, of Tecumseh, Mich. and Miss Elizabeth M. Justice, of Toronto, Canada.

SCHNAUBEL—FRIDT—June 6, 1880, at the residence of Mrs. W. C. Fisher, by Rev. C. E. Conley, Mr. George Schnaubel, of Saline, and Miss Mattie Fridt.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, June 10, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending June 3, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 268 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

47 steers	1328	4.42½	14 steers	1247	$4.50
19 steers	1231	4.55	19 steers	1209	4.55
17 steers	1348	4.45	6 steers	1208	4.00

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 400 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

249 Ohio sheep	74	4.00
210 do do	89	4.35
211 do do	90	4.45

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show a decrease of 6,745 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

66	195	4.55	63	175	4.60
37	187	4.60	62	195	4.60
102	232	4.60	81	217	4.55

DETROIT MARKET.

Tuesday, June 8, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 52,000 bu at $1.13¼@1.13½; do July, 5,000 bu at $1.11¾.

Beans—City picked, $1.35@1.37; unpicked, 60c@95c per bu.

Butter—11@12c per lb.

Cheese—10¼@11¼c per lb.

Eggs—Fresh, 10½@11c per doz.

Vegetables—Pie plant, per dozen bunches, 25c; onions, 40@45c; radishes, 25c; asparagus, 49@45c; lettuce, per bu, 35@40c.

Provisions—Hams, 10@10¼c. Shoulders, 6c. Breakfast bacon, 8¾c. Dried beef, 11@12c per lb.

Corn—43c per bu.

Oats—36½@38½c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 2176 bbls.
EGGS—Shipped 238 bbls; 56 crates.
BUTTER—Shipped 3866 lbs.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 22,000 lbs.
GRAIN—Shipped 3 cars.
STAVES—Shipped 1 car.
MANUFACTURES—Shipped 2 Brick and Tile Machines.
MILL FEED—Shipped 1 car.

—o—

Apples, ₩ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ₩ lb	5@	7
Butter, ₩ lb	10@	12
Barley, ₩ bushel	50@	60
Beans, ₩ bushel	1,00@	1.30
Buckwheat, ₩ bushel	50@	.60
Buckwheat Flour, ₩ hundred	3,25@	3,50
Beef—dressed, ₩ hundred	@	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ₩ lb	@	10
Corn in ear	25@	30
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	45@	48
Clover Seed	3.50 @	4,00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₩ dozen	@	8
Flour, ₩ barrel	6,00 @	7,00
Hogs Dressed, ₩ cwt	@	5.00
Hogs Live ₩ lb	3 80@	3 85
Hay ₩ ton	10,00@	12,00
Hides, ₩ lb	@	6½
Honey, ₩ lb	@	15
Ham, ₩ lb	@	9
Lard, ₩ lb	@	8
Oats, ₩ bushel	30 @	33
Onions, ₩ bushel	1.50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	25 @	30
Salt, ₩ barrel	@	1,60
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1,25
Timothy Seed, ₩ bushel	@	3,00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ₩ cord	4 00 @	4 00
Wheat, White, ₩ bushel	95@	1 00
Wheat, Red, ₩ bushel	1,00@	1 05

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER,
ATTORNEYS AT-LAW.
Office over Heesen's clothing store.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry,
Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.
N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:

I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $3 and an enemy.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 5 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $3.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Aesop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. Tribune Building, New York.
Orders for any of these books may be forwarded through the HERALD OFFICE.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,
SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,
GO TO THE
LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
J. R. HIALEY.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN!

Carriage Factory!
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.
T. CUMMINS.
Builder of Fancy and Staple
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,
SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &C.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.—NO 4. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 17, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1541.

Tupper's Shoes.

Babies Cry for them,

Misses Ask for them,

Young Ladies look at them,

Mothers Buy them,

AND

Fathers Pay for them.

Tupper's Shoes.

Tupper's Shoes.

Tupper's Shoes.

JEWELRY AT BARGAINS!

All who may be in want of Jewelry, Silverware, Clocks or Watches, will find at my store the largest and finest assortment in the city and at prices which none can undersell.

ALL GOODS AT OLD PRICES,

Notwithstanding the large advances.

Engraving Free of Charge on all goods sold by me.

O. B. DeWOLF.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

LADIES'

READY-MADE GARMENTS,

—FOR—

SPRING & SUMMER.

Circles, English Jackets, Dusters and Ulsters.

ALL NEW AND NOVEL.

A. B. COTTON.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

RAISIN VALLEY.

Crops never looked better around the Valley then they do this season. It has been none too wet for this sand.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chandler leave this week to spend the summer as usual in Cheboygan. They were intending to go last week but were detained by the illness of Mrs. Chandler.

The spring term of school in district No. 6 taught by Miss Libbie Satterthwaite closes this week Friday with a picnic in Mr. Sutton's woods in the afternoon.

This seems to be the season for mutual exchange of photographs among valley students. It is the intention of the class to leave a cabinet groop of its members on the wall in "10."

Lynn Brown, a member of the class, fills out the diplomas this year. Lynn is a skilled penman and fully equal to the task.

Frank Rogers and Cyrus Crandall are back at the agricultural college, the latter finishing his course this term. We learn that David Howell, formerly of Macon is spending a portion of his vacation at the college.

A social gathering of the ladies society of the M. E. church is announced for Friday afternoon of this week at Mrs. A. Galloway's. It is hoped a goodly number will be present as this will be the first anniversary of the society. New officers will be elected.

This week is the closing one at the Valley. Tuesday and Wednesday will be spent in examination, Thursday in decorating the room with evergreens, flowers, mottoes, etc., preparatory to the class, exercises on Friday A. M., commencing at 10 o'clock. Thursday evening a strawberry supper and social will be indulged in by the students.

SPRINGVILLE.

A new fence adorns the front yard of Henry Smith's.

Thomas Mosher is at home attend- to business.

Why can't Springville have a fourth of July celebration?

The R. R. surveyors were here at work around Wooden's hill last week.

Eugene Groger has purchased a new organ of George P. Wright of Tecumseh. Lots of music at Eugene's now.

The Sunday School Centennial services were observed by a large school at the M. E. church last Sunday. The church was very neatly trimmed for the occasion.

W. H. Smith has opened his new hotel in the village, having newly furnished his house thro'out, he is ready to accommodate all who wish to give him a call, with first class accommodations.

Pres. J. A. Latcha, of the T. and M. R. R., and Owen Bowen of Addison, were in town Friday. Mr. Latcha agrees to locate the road through the Township, from the west (to where the angle would commence, should they build the road to Adrian,) just as soon as our aid and right of way is ready for him.

Wednesday of last week the relatives of Henry Smith assembled at his residence as a surprise party to celebrate his 82d birth day. When they arrived Uncle Henry was in the woods chopping wood, a messenger was sent for him informing him that he had company at home. Upon his arrival, he was greatly surprised to find his relatives all there. Among those present was a brother-in-law, Charles Rowley 76 years old, whom he had not seen in 30 years.

Thursday evening a strawberry and ice cream festival was given by the Springville band at Ayers Bros', hall to a large attendance. At eight o'clock the band played in the street and then retired to the hall. When the tables were in readiness, spread with the beautiful berries and ice cream, order being called, Thomas H. Mosher made a few brief remarks in behalf of the band, and informed all present that the tables were ready for those who wished to partake of their hospitalities, the fare being five cents per dish. Something over 500 dishes were sold. After supper the band played in the hall and all seemed well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

THE Kalamazoo Telegraph truthfully says: "It is always sure to happen that if you dispense with your newspaper as a matter of economy something will surely happen, the very next day to make you regret doing so. To avoid this, never think of putting your newspaper on your list of expenses to be curtailed."

HUDSON ratified the Republican nominations last Saturday evening.

RIDGEWAY.

Mrs. J. Hall is accompanied by her daughter Ella on a visit to Illinois.

Robt. Houseman and wife have been putting in a week at Elkhart and Constantine.

Mrs. Robert McCully nee Alice Thompson is mother of a fine boy.

Geo. Chapel, of Detroit, is to be seen on sunny days flitting around Snedicor's agricultural hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pilbeam buried one of their twin babies on last Sunday.

Our town board have fixed $5,000 as the amount of bond necessary for the privilege of retailing the ardent in this township.

The Reform Club will meet to-morrow Friday evening for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State convention and transacting such other business as may regularly come before it.

Uncle Sol Smith has the same corner planted to potatoes that has raised that crop for twenty-six consecutive years.

A. J. Sutton signifies his intention of putting in a sorghum mill this fall.

Farmers report the wheat struck with rust in places.

The Hawxhurst exhibitions were well attended, and the S. S. netted a nice sum from the same.

On Saturday afternoon the B. B. association will divide on 150 lbs. and play a match. Monday night is set for a meeting of the association, and every member is expected to be on his base at 8 o'clock. If that institution don't get some cordial soon we shall expect to see him turn up his toes.

Rev. Mr. De Spelder will preach at the M. E. church next Sabbath evening.

Hudson Post: Mr. C. H. Ames, of this village, has received the sad intelligence that Willie Sones, a nephew of Mrs. Ames, accidentally shot himself at Menominee Falls, Wis., on Thursday, June 3d, and had died from the effects of the wound. Willie will be remembered by many of the people of this village, as he lived for a time with his grandmother, Mrs. Eveline Bush, a short distance north from town. About four years ago he went to Kansas, where he has since been living with his parents. The family were visiting in Wisconsin at the time of the accident, and Willie and a sister younger were going on the river near by to fish. Seeing a gun in the boat, the girl refused to get in until it was removed, and while the boy was removing it the gun was accidentally discharged, the contents entering his leg somewhere above the knee, severing the arteries and shattering the bone. The poor boy only lived three hours after the accident. He was between 14 and 15 years of age.

THE following clipped from the Chicago Inter Ocean tells its own story: "Japheth Cross, of Adrian, was waiting at the north end of Clark st. bridge, at 10 o'clock Sunday night, prior to taking the Paxton for South Haven, when he left his trunk containing $2,000 worth of jewelry standing at the head of the stairway leading to the wharf, and went across the road to write a letter. He says that two minutes later his trunk had disappeared. The police were notified and later found it under the sidewalk on Kinzie street, a little west of Clark. The lock had been tampered with, but nothing taken.

JACKSON has an amateur balloonist by the name of Ed. Hogan. He journeyed north-east from Jackson and landed on the farm of Mr. Gifford, two miles south of Dansville, in the afternoon. He describes his journey as a pleasant one. The balloon when inflated is 50 feet high by 30 feet wide at the bulge, containing 500 yards of Lonsdale muslin. It has a capacity of 15,000 cubic feet of gas. Mr. Hogan thinks he attained an altitude of about three miles.

IT matters not how many papers a man may take, his list is incomplete without his home paper. If it is not as good as he would wish it, he should feel that himself and his neighbors are responsible in a measure, for its shortcomings. Give a paper a liberal support, an active sympathy, and it will respond to such manifestations.

Clinton News: Charles Limpricht, a saddler and harness maker in the employ of W. C. Rogers, got on a high old "toot" last Tuesday evening, went home, and undertook to satisfy his drunken passions by beating his wife in a shameful manner. This is the first time we have been called upon to chronicle such a case of brutality, and trust that it shall never occur again.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

A Large and Successful Celebration Assured—Progress of the Arrangements.

The arrangements for our coming celebration are progressing finely and there is no doubt whatever but what we shall have a grand success. Gov. Croswell has been secured as Orator of the Day; the Manchester band has accepted; four military companies of the 1st Reg. M. S. T. have already accepted, and others are confidently expected.

A meeting of the Ex. Committee was held at the parlors of Sink's Hotel last Monday evening. Dr. E. Hause was chosen secretary pro tem. and the following business was transacted:

TECUMSEH, June 14, 1880.

Committee meeting at Sink's Hotel parlors. A. B. Cotton in the chair.

S. C. Stacy, chairman of committee on invitations, reported progress in the work; that the Monroe Military Co. will come, providing a way to return home at night be provided. Invitations have been sent to Jackson, Ann Arbor and Manchester; the Manchester band will come.

On motion, N. Satterthwaite was appointed chairman of the transportation committee, with power to appoint two assistants. He therefore appointed A. D. Lawrence and B. P. Anderson. Satterthwaite reported that the R. R. Co. would run a special to Monroe, Adrian and Manchester at half fare rates.

A. Hanford, chairman of committee on grounds, reported that he would donate the use of his grove providing that no teams be allowed on the grounds, only such as shall be necessary to carry articles there.

On motion, a proposition was sent to the Base Ball Club, as follows:—That the Ex. Committee have use of the grounds for the day, and allow the Base Ball Club one-third of the gate money, and that said committee offer a price of $60 to the winners of the first game of ball, and $25 to the second; provided three or more clubs are present, otherwise only the one (first) prize will be offered.

Moved and carried that one-third of the net proceeds of the day be given to the Clinton band, and the balance be turned over to the Soldiers' Monumental fund of Tecumseh and surrounding towns.

On motion, J. Davidson was empowered to appoint assistants to fill any vacancies in the committee on fire works; he therefore appointed A. James and C. M. Burlingame.

The committee decided to have a military drill and parade on the base ball grounds in the afternoon.

The following committees were appointed in addition to those printed last week:

East Tecumseh—Minor Davidson and wife, Albert Waring and wife, F. Davidson and wife, J. W. Benedict and wife, B. F. DePuy and wife, R.R. Hall and wife.

On Transportation—N. S. Satterthwaite, A. D. Lawrence, B. P. Anderson.

Adjourned to meet on Wednesday evening next, at 7:30.

E. HAUSE, Secretary.

LATER.

Another committee meeting was held at the parlors of Sink's Hotel last evening. Dr. Hause was chosen secretary pro tem., and the following business was transacted:

Moved and carried that J. Davidson be instructed to purchase the fire works for the 4th.

Report from the Base Ball club to the effect that they accept the proposition sent them by the Ex. Committee last Monday evening.

The chair appointed H. E. Stout and Willis Merritt a committee to take charge of the base ball grounds on the 4th.

On motion, Dr. C. M. Woodward and H. W. Stevens were appointed as committee to rent the ice-cream stands.

Adjourned to meet on Friday evening next at 8 o'clock sharp.

E. HAUSE, Secretary.

We are already certain of the following attractions:

Gov. Croswell will deliver the oration.

Four military companies have accepted—Adrian, Monroe, Jackson and Tecumseh, and others undoubtedly will do so.

We shall have two cornet bands and possibly four.

Two good base ball clubs have already agreed to be here.

There will be the most brilliant display of fire works ever seen in Tecumseh.

During the next week we shall have many more attractions to add to the list.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Miss Ida Beagle, of Blissfield, was one of the graduates of Oberlin college last Thursday.

At the commencement of the high school of Deerfield, last week, six pupils received diplomas.

The census of Morenci has been completed, and it is found that the population of the village is 1,185.

Hudson is to have a celebration on July 3d. Prosecuting Attorney Underwood, of Adrian, delivers the oration.

Blinn & Weidmann have purchased Fowler's saw-mill, located six miles northwest of Deerfield, and will put in machinery for the manufacture of staves, hoops and heading.

Blissfield Advance: The post office and store of P. DeGraf, at Palmyra, was burglarized Monday night, and about $75 in postage stamps and $15 in money taken. The safe was blown open and completely wrecked.

Morenci Observer: The Free Methodists "went into camp," to use the military phrase, last Wednesday, in Furman's woods in North Seneca.—Next and the following Sunday there will probably be the usual hegira of people from hereabouts to the camp meetin'.

Hudson Post: A barn belonging to Anthony Bordeaux, near Ottawa Lake was destroyed by fire June 2d, and Mrs. Bordeaux, a woman about fifty years old, was consumed in the flames. It is supposed she went into the barn to smoke, and the fire caught from her pipe.

Morenci Observer: The Lenawee Baptist association at its recent session in Rollin voted unanimously to recommend to the churches composing the body to use unfermented wine at the communion. Also commending the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to their sympathy and aid.

Blissfield Advance: We are to have the new school building. The number voting against, at the meeting held Saturday evening, was 11; the number in favor of building the new school house was 75. There were ten ladies present at the meeting, all of whom of course voted for the new building.

Adrian Times: George Allen now in jail here, awaiting examination for outrage upon Hattie Aiken, is the step-father of the alleged victim. Hattie is a daughter of Doremus Aiken, held for trial for the murder of policeman Lyon. Her father and mother were divorced some years since, and the mother afterwards married the aforesaid Allen.

Adrian Times: The Clinton News is getting somewhat personal during the absence of the editor-in-chief. A man who indulged in the pastime of beating his wife, is given "particular fits," and warned never to do so more by the News scribe. When the wife beater recognizes his name in print, the young scribbler will think that the big snake has wound his coils around that printing office.

Adrian Press: Emery Watts, a young medical student of this city, is now in jail on a charge of getting money under false pretenses. He presented to Geo. A. Wilcox an alleged telegraph dispatch from his father T. F. Watts, directing him to draw upon Wilcox for money and obtained $30. The telegram was ascertained to be a forgery, and the young man was taken before Justice Robbins, who fixed his examination for Friday.

Adrian Journal: While Mrs. Daniels, of Cambridge, was picking strawberries the other day, she was heard to scream for help, when some of the family ran to her assistance, it was found that a large snake had coiled itself around her ankle, but soon uncoiled itself and got away, leaving the lady exhausted from fright. From the appearance of the ankle it is supposed to have been of the blue racer species.

Adrian Press: Dr. Vaughan, of Springville, while driving home from a visit to a patient the other evening, was thrown from his buggy and severely injured. Road workers had dumped the center of the road full of new earth, and then to compel travel upon it, thrown logs, rails and other obstructions by the side of the track. These the horse went upon and with the above result. The persons putting the obstructions there are clearly liable at law for all damages occasioned by it, and we hope to see them prosecuted. A man has the right to the whole of the highway for the purpose of travel, (except where trees are planted) and this practice of blocking up the roads should be stopped.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

GROWING OLD.

My days pass pleasantly away,
My nights are blessed with sweetest sleep,
I feel no symptoms of decay,
I have no cause to mourn or weep;
My locs are impotent and shy,
My friends are neither false nor cold,
And yet of late I often sigh—
I'm growing old.

My growing talk of olden times,
My growing thirst for early news,
My growing apathy to rimes,
My growing hate of crowds and noise,
My growing fear of catching cold,
All tell me in the plainest voice—
I'm growing old.

THE DEACON'S WOOING.

BY E. H. DEMERITT.

The sun had disappeared behind the hills of New Bethany, and the lingering light on the mountain tops was changing from rose to purple, when Deacon Pinch stopped his melancholy old mare in front of the village post-office. It was Saturday night, the only time when New Bethany roused itself from its lethargy and showed any signs of life and energy. The rest of the week it drowsed and languished after the fashion of small country towns remote from railway and manufacturing centers.

"Whoa, Mary Jane!" said the deacon with unnecessary emphasis, throwing the reins on the mares broad back and springing to the ground.

But the despondent Mary Jane had already ceased her shambling gait from sheer force of habit. A ten year's service with the deacon had made her perfectly familiar with the accustomed round of stopping places. Wednesday night it was prayer-meeting; Sunday, the church service; and Saturday night, invariably the post-office, and, as a late variation, an after pause at the house of Mrs. Betsey Hill, the milliner, who for a quarter of a century had supplied the women of New Bethany with head gear fearfully and wonderfully made.

The moment the deacon stepped inside the office he knew, from the unusual buzz of conversation, that something extraordinary had happened.

"Heard the news—eh, deacon?" asked one of the village loungers.

The deacon looked up inquiringly.

"Miss Keziah's had an amazin' streak of luck."

"It's been nothing but an amazin' streak of luck ever since she was born," returned the deacon. "If ownin' the best farm in town and hevin' money at interest isn't luck, I'd like to know what it is.

"Yes; but this is some thing out of common. You used to know her brother, who died years ago and left his only child for Miss Keziah to bring up? Wa'al, when old man Mead died Miss Keziah took the farm as her share of the property, and her brother, bein' of a rovin turn of mind, took the few thousand of personal property as his'n and invested 'em in western lands, which turned out wuthless, and he lost every cent he put in. Folks always blamed him for bein' so foolish and hasty, and they say grief and mortification like hastened his death. Wa'al, it turnes out they have put a railroad square through the lands, and it's sent real estate way up, nobody knows where. Miss Keziah's been offered nigh onto $8,000 for the lands, and they say she will get more if she only holds on."

"You don't mean it?"

"I dew: Its as true as scripture."

"She'll hold out, never fear," said the deacon; "and I hold it to be our bounden duty as neighbors to advise her to that end."

Instead of lingering as usual for the village gossip—for New Bethany post-office on Saturday night answered the purpose of a weekly newspaper—the deacon seemed in a great hurry to get home.

It was the night of the choir rehearsal, and in driving by the church he saw Mary Mead, Miss Keziah's niece, going up the steps. He suddenly whipped up his sleepy old mare and drove home at a breakneck rate of speed.

"Now's your time, Solomon Pinch," he muttered to himself. "It's mebbe a long while afore ye'll hev such a good chance ag'in. She'll be sure to be alone for a couple of hours or so—Hi, old lady! no stoppin' here to-night," he added, giving the lines a sudden twist as Mary Jane showed an inclination to stop before Mrs. Betsey Hill's house; "we've other fish to fry now, old girl."

When he reached home he drove the mare under the horse-shed and tied her there, instead of unharnessing her as usual. Then he entered the house and hastily swallowing the scanty supper which the hired woman placed before him, donned his best clothes and drove off again at a rapid pace.

"Law sakes alive!" exclaimed the woman, amazed. "The deacon's got sumthin' on his mind sure! It's the first time I ever knew him to disremember to ask a blessing.

Ever since the death of his wife Deacon Pinch had looked on Miss Keziah as her probable successor, for years he had gazed with covetous eyes the fine Mead farm with its substantial buildings, but he never could screw his courage up to the point of facing the snapping black eyes of its owner. Of late he had been seen several times knocking at the door of Mrs. Betsey Hill's little brown house, and the worthy milliner was overjoyed at the opening of the brilliant prospect before her. But the news of the sudden rise in western lands caused Mrs. Hill, with her small possessions, to sink into insignificance by the side of the rich woman with her well tilled acres, her overflowing barns, and her prospective thousands of dollars.

The idea of failure in his matrimonial venture never for an instant entered the deacon's head. "The way afore ye is as plain and straight as a pipe stem, Solomon Pinch," he murmered, rubbing the palms of his hands together, as he walked towards Miss Keziah's side door. "Women is mostly alike—eager an' willin' to embrace matrimonial opportunities. They'll snap at any offer like a hungry trout at a worm. She has got the money, and I hev' got the prominence and influence; that's a p'int not to be overlooked; and deacons isn't to be had every day. Put her money and my influence together, and I rather guess we'll stand about top o' the heap in New Bethany."

Miss Keziah was sitting by the table knitting as usual. She had just begun to narrow for the toe of the stocking, when a step sounded on the walk. She threw down the stocking and opened the door, and holding the lamp high above her head, her eyes rested on the amazing spectacle of the deacon in all the Sunday magnificence of white shirt and shiny black broadcloth. "Well, I never!" she ejaculated, and then seeing that her reception had been hardly hospitable, she lowered the lamp and said kindly: "Come in, deacon—come in."

"Thank ye, thank ye; I don't mind if I dew."

"Take a seat, deacon."

"Thank ye; I don't mind if I dew."

The deacon surveyed the attractive room, which, with its cheery fire and comfortably cushioned chairs, seemed a veritable paradise in comparison with his untidy, ill-kept home. He placed his hat on the floor beside his chair, displaying his scanty gray locks ingeniously plastered over the top of his head so as to cover as much of the bald surface as possible. There was a long pause.

"Anything going on, deacon?" asked Miss Keziah, resuming her knitting. She was greatly puzzled to account for those Sunday clothes.

"Nothin' within the range of my observation. There won't be much agoin' on now till 'lection time; thing's 'll be pretty lively then."

"Want to buy any hay this year?" chirped Miss Keziah. "Mine is extra good this season, my hired man says it's the best haryest yield in town.

"I rayther guess I'll hev' enough to carry me thro' the winter. If I don't I shall know where to come fur hay as is hay. I declare your farm does beat all! I feel kind o' rigged like when I think the best farm in town is managed by a woman."

Miss Keziah smiled graciously, and the deacon drew his chair a little nearer his hostess. "It must be a great load for ye to carry alone. Such a large farm is a tremen-jous responsibility for a lone woman."

"Oh, I don't mind it; it keeps me proper busy."

The deacon hitched his chair along a few inches farther. "Ye'd oughter hev' a brother or cousin, or some relative like, to share the burden with ye."

"My shoulders are plenty strong," returned Miss Keziah, good naturedly. "I'm glad to show folks that there are woman who are good for something besides giddy-gaddying and tattling."

"Yis, yis;" answered the deacon, "we can all testify to your valley and worth. You're a real honor to your sex. You're—you're a bright and shinin' beacon light to the triflin' and vain-minded women of the world; and the speaker waved his hand at the conclusion of this little oratorical flourish.

Then hitch, hitch, hitch, went the chair Miss Keziah ward. "Don't you feel sort o' lonely at spells," he asked insinuatingly.

Miss Keziah glanced suspiciously at the rapidly advancing chair. She dropped her knitting and went to the fire and piled up the blazing sticks of wood. Then she came back to the table and set her chair on the farther side of it, thus putting a barrier between her and her visitor. "I'm never lonely deacon; plenty to do is the best medicine for loneliness."

"But woman's a tender, dependent creatur'. Woman's a vine," here the deacon took up his weekly prayer meeting drawl, "and needs suthin' to cling to when the troublous, desolatin' waves and winds o' affliction and sorrer roll over her.

"Stuff and nonsense!" exclaimed Miss Keziah, with a contemptous sniff "I shouldn't have expected that a man of your sense, deacon, would repeat such silly trash. I have no patience with the people who are always talking as if women couldn't stand alone, and needed propping up like a rag doll that hadn't any backbone. I'm no vine—or such creeping, helpless thing I can tell you. I can stand alone as well as anybody, if the Lord so wills it, altho' I admit, deacon, that it's pleasanter to have some one to keep you company."

"That's just it; ye hev' hit the nail squar' on the head! It's pleasanter to hev' company in our sojourn on this mortal earth."

The deacon seized his chair with both hands, and by a circuitous line of hitching placed it within three feet of Miss Keziah's table. "You're a forehanded woman, Miss Keziah; I'm a man of prominence and influence in the community; it seems to me that it would be a good thing if we could walk hand-in-hand thro' this vale of tears. Providence seems to p'int its finger that way." The deacon was thinking at that very moment of the money he would save by a thrifty manager like Miss Keziah in the place of his inefficient, wasteful hired woman.

Miss Keziah was dumbfounded. She dropped her knitting, and the ball of yarn rolled across the floor. "Mercy!" she finally gasped.

"I'll make ye a first-rate husband, and ye'll make me a good wife. We've been members of the same church for 30 year or more, and we've been members of the same spiritooal family, we'll now be members of the same human family."

Miss Keziah straightened herself up in her high-backed chair, and drew in her chin, while her voice rang out shrill and clear: "I rather guess it'll take two to make that bargain."

A second look at her aged admirer, who was edging up to her with a sheepish simper, exasperated the old woman beyond control.

"The old fool!" she said wrathfully."

The color came into the deacon's thin cheeks, and he started to his feet, looking anxiously toward the door, as if meditating a hasty retreat. But the yarn was wound around his boots and he was forced to remain.

Miss Keziah likewise rose, and folding her hands primly in front of her, remarked grimly: "When you first began your talking I hadn't the least idea what you were driving at. I thought you were hinting about Betsy Hill, and wanted to take me into your confidence. I never dreamed that you meant me. Why, I supposed that every one in town knew that I would not give up my freedom for the best man living. Betsy Hill is a pious, likely woman; she'll make a good home for you and she needs a home herself."

The deacon was completely withered, and Miss Keziah continued: If you'll step around a little livelier, deacon, and pick up the stones on your lots and put them into good fences, and mow down those pesky weeds, there's no earthly reason why your farm shouldn't look as well as mine. If I've said anything to hurt your feelings, deacon, I hope you'll overlook it. Why, you are all tangled up in that yarn; I'll untangle it."

The delay of unwinding the yarn from the deacon's feet gave Miss Keziah chance for further remark: "One word more, deacon; have you heard about the western lands?"

The deacon wished he was anywhere out of range of those merciless black eyes.

"I—think I've hearn tell suthin' about 'em," he replied meekly.

"I thought so! I thought so!" exclaimed Miss Keziah, savagely. "Well, deacon, those lands rightfully belong to my niece, Mary; I only hold them as her guardian."

The deacon began to look upon his rejection as a blessing in disguise, for without the western lands Miss Keziah's attractions seemed tame compared with those of mild, blue-eyed, buxom Widow Hill. "I can trust ye never to mention this?" he asked timidly.

"I shall not mention it. Now, follow my advice, deacon; make sure of Betsey Hill before another week goes by. You have my good wishes. See to this at once."

"Thank ye, thank ye; I don't mind if I dew."

The good woman followed her crestfallen visitor to the door. As a sudden gust of cold night air put out the light, she said: "The air is snapping to-night; have a frost, eh, deacon?"

And the discomfited deacon felt that he had been nipped by something sharper than a frost.—Lippincott's Magazine.

Suffering Woman.

There is but very small proportion of the women of this nation that do not suffer from some of the diseases for which Kidney-Wort is a specific. When the bowels have become costive, headache torments, Kidneys out of fix, or piles distress, take a package, and its wonderful tonic and renovating power will cure you and give new life.

In many cases of Kidney Complaint, where all other remedies have failed, Hill's Buchu has made permanent cures.

There are now 97,000 miles of submarine telegraph in working order.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

SIGNS OF SANITARY PROGRESS.

The appreciation of the necessity of prophylaxis is not by any means the result of modern scientific investigations. The views of Hippocrates on this subject, as well as other classic writers, can be studied at the present day with profit. With regard to the many questions of practicable hygiene, the ancients, reached results which for correctness puts to shame the ignorance of later times. Ancient cities, it has been discovered, were supplied with judiciously executed works for sanitary purposes. The Cloaca Maxima for example, and the aquaducts for conveying water from the hillsides some thirty miles from Rome to the city, were works of such stupendous magnitude that they have not been equalled or surpassed in this day. "It is worthy of note," says Dr. Spear, whose memories were published in the Lancet, "that at this period of history, pestilence and epidemic were not of common occurrence and when they appeared they were usually nearly always traced to famine or war. But to this enlightened and golden age succeeded one of intellectual torpor. Sanitary measures were forgotten or ignored, filth accumulated in crowded towns, the air, soil and water, we read, were impregnated with decomposing vegetable matter. As a result, we have recorded those most destructive pestilences of the middle ages: the plague, the black death and small pox, swept o'er the land." Rulers took advantage of the ignorance and superstitions of the middle ages by selling at fabulous prices the Abracadabra, a meaningless word, supposed to have some magical power of preventing certain diseases. The word was written on a piece of paper and folded in the form of a cross, suspended from the neck and rested on the pit of the stomach. As late as the seventeenth century, it was customary to enclose a spider in a goose quill and carry upon the person to prevent fever and ague. We still see a faint halo of the supernatural that breaks out in full effulgence when the charlatan talks of magnetism.

But there is a hopeful sign of progress. The teaching of physiology and laws of health which are being gradually introduced in our public schools, will doubtless be productive of much good to the rising generation; while the large share of attention which the discussion of sanitary questions which is already receiving in the press is the best evidence of the steady growth of intellectual conviction, as regard all matters effecting the preservation of health and the prevention of disease.

The time, however, has gone by when the people can be forced into cleanliness by police regulations, and hence it is, that the most thoughtful among practical reformers of the present day base their hopes of sanitary progress on the education of the masses as a general groundwork of national health. The people must be taught the principles of hygiene. Unless a knowledge of these fundamental theories be widely disseminated among them, it is in vain to expect that legislative enactments, however well devised, will succeed in raising the standard of public health to any considerable extent.

HEAT AND LIGHT IN SICK ROOMS.

Very few people are thoroughly impressed with the importance of light, of pure air, and proper temperature in a sick-room. Each person in a room should be supplied with three thousand cubic feet of air per hour; and this should be done, where possible, without creating a perceptible draught, for the nervous irritation induced by draughts is liable to produce internal inflammations.

The temperature of a sick-room should be kept uniform, the best average being from sixty-five to seventy degrees, except for infants or very old people, who require a temperature of seventy-five to eighty degrees; and for these it is especially important to guard against changes, and to keep it as uniform as possible.

All cases of fever require a temperature lower than the average, as from fifty to sixty degrees, to assist in reducing the high temperature of the body; but when the fever subsides, and there is much debility remaining, the temperature should be raised somewhat above the average. As a patient can bear a greater degree of cold when in bed than out of it, convalescents from severe disease, fevers especially, should have the temperature of their rooms higher than that maintained during the hight of the attack. Diseases of the air passages, as croup and diphtheria, require a high temperature (eighty to eighty-five degrees) and a moist atmosphere. The best mode of heating the sick-room is by the open-grate fire.

The sick-room should not be darkened by blinds, except where there is a disease of the eyes, with photophobia, or when the patient is very restless and can not sleep; then strong light must be excluded.

SILVERS'
7th ANNUAL Spring Announcement!!
On Saturday, April 10th, 1880,

We shall place on Exhibition for Public Inspection the largest and best assortment of Clothing!

Hats & Caps, Boots & Shoes,
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS,

Ever offered in this market. We wish to call the special attention of our many Tecumseh and Franklin customers to the fact that

OUR STOCK OF SUITINGS,
For Men, Youths, Boys and Children,

Was never so complete in all its appointments as now.

REMEMBER, We don't ask you to pay any Advance on our Goods, as small concerns are doing, as our goods were all bought in the early Season and at last year's prices.

D. H. SILVERS.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!
READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!

Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.

Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.

Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnish-Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the

Old, Reliable, ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,

71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JOE. WILSON,'
This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

FINE FURNITURE!
Buyers of Furniture can save 15 to 20 per cent. by purchasing at the shop of

RICHARD CALDWELL.

He makes a Specialty of Extension Tables. Furniture of all kinds made to order and repaired promptly at Reasonable Rates.

ALL WORK WARRANTED.

Shop and Sale Room at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Pearl St.

Highest Market Price Paid for all kinds of Furniture Lumber.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,
EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S
GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 1, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. BASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Usborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved, Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

3 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Post-office. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't.

CONSIGNMENTS OF BOOTS & SHOES, at Wholesale, for Cash.
Sold on Manufacturers' account, WITHOUT LIMITED PRICE, to cover money advances.
PRIVATE SALES daily. Special attention to orders.
AUCTION Tuesdays at 10 o'clock A. M.
W. D. ROBINSON & CO.,
Consignees and Wholesale Auctioneers,
182 Jefferson Avenue, Detroit.

REAL ESTATE.
Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Never lend a volume to a book-keeper.

The backers of Courtney had their wallets sawed.

Colonel Ingersoll deals in theological oleomargarine.

The wasp thinks it smart to stand on his hind leg.

Kick your corn through a window glass, and the pane is gone forever.

Quiet like in Scotland. The first river you come to they tell you is the Forth.

They talk about a man in New York who discounts the truth at about 100 per cent.

The saints who are bound for heaven by way of the gallows are all on the home stretch.

A western woman says her baby will enjoy three hundred and sixty-five holler days this year.

Eli Perkins, says the Boston Post, generally keeps his word, as he can't find anybody to take it.

Mr. Sankey's new hymn, "Is your lamp still burning, my brother?" is to be dedicated to Mr. Edison.

Well, now the question is, will a West Point cadet lie or won't he? It is greatly feared that he w——.

Have your bathing dress made out of oil silk this summer. This material is found to keep out the water admirably.

The difference between horse-radish and a reddish horse is this: One is not a horse at all, and the other is a horse of another color.

Patrick on the Zebra—"Phat kind of a baste is that—the mule wid his ribs on the outside of his shkin entoirly?"

"How greedy you are!" said one little girl to another, who had taken the best apple in the dish; "I was going to take that."

Somebody has discovered that cats can't live at a greater elevation than 13,000 feet, therefore back sheds sho'd be built 13,500 feet high.

An Illinois paper, in describing the late tornado, says: "A white dog while attempting to weather the gale, was caught with his mouth open and turned completely inside out."

If Gabriel reads all the obituaries on tombstones he will think many bodies got into the wrong grave, when he sees the owner answering the summons of his bugle.

"How do you pronounce s-t-i-n-g-y" Professor Stearns asked the young gentleman nearest the foot of the class. And the smart bad boy stood up and said it depended whether the word applied to a man or a bee.

"It is said that the male wasp does not sting." But as a male and female wasp wear the same kind of polonaise and look as much alike as twins, the only way to distinguish their sex is to catch one and examine its arsenal. If it stings you, it is a female; if not it is a gentleman wasp.

The Truckee, Cal., Republican, in speaking of the late storm on the Pacific railroad, says: A hand car, with four men, started for the snow-sheds to repair an old snow-plow which was damaged by the storm. On returning the wind was so strong that they had to get off the hand-car and push it down hill."

As an innocent looking old man was going up Washington street, New York, a truckman nodded at him and asked, "Want a truck, mister?" "No, I guess not," replied the old man; "I'm too fur from home and can't pay freight on it. Much oblegeed though. New York is a powerful nice town.—A fellow back there asked me if I did not want a coat; another inquired if I wanted a hack, and now you offer me a truck. I wish I lived here."

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

SENSIBLE ALMOST TO THE LAST.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mulcahy lived on a farm. They were shrewd and thrifty, and had the reputation of being "close." Finally, Mrs. Mulcahy sickened and was about to die. Finding herself nearly the end, she expressed a desire to put things in order before that event occurred, and old Tom prepared to listen.

"Tom," said Mrs. Mulcahy, "there's Mrs. Smith, up at the crossing, she owes me $1,80 for butter; see ye get it."

"Sinsible to the last, my dear, sinsible to the last," said Tom. "I'll get it."

"Then there's Mrs. Jones, up at the creek; she owes me $1,50 for chickens."

"Ah! look at that, now, for a mind; she forgets nothing."

"And Mrs. Brown, in the village, she owes me $2,30 for milk."

"D'ye hear that? Sinsible to the last; sinsible to the last! Go on, my dear."

"And—and——"

"Yis?"

"And Mrs. Roberts, at the toll-gate, I owe her——"

"Ah! poor dear! poor dear!" broke in old Tom, hastily; "how her mind does be wandering! Sure we've allowed her to talk too much entirely, so we have!"

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

"Suppose," asked a lady of the elevator boy, "suppose the wire should break?" "Then we'd all go down smash," was the unpleasant reply.—"What!" exclaimed the lady, horror-stricken, "and break my neck!" "Not necessarily," was the quiet rejoinder; "you might get killed without your neck being broken."

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

A succession of direful shrieks is heard on the first floor. Fond mother—"What's the matter with Billy?"—Colored servant—"Please, mam, he is crying about de jewberries." "He has had four saucerfuls already," "Dem is de bery ones he is whoopin' about. He's all swolled up."

UNQUESTIONABLE.

The Herald, Detroit, Mich., says of Warner's Safe Liver and Kidney Cure: "Its efficacy in kidney, liver and urinary diseases is so fully acknowledged that it is not worth the questioning. Bona fide testimonials from well known citizens in public and private life are evidences strong enough to convince the most stubborn doubter."

A certain Boston man upon getting his pension papers entitling him to $1,600 arrears, remarked as he left the City Hall, "By George, if I could meet the dastardly rebel that shot me I would treat him."

ALL ENDORSE IT.

The Recorder, Americus, Ga., says: "Clerks, Senators, Representatives, Doctors, Lawyers, Citizens, in public or private life, are testifying by the thousands, and over their own signatures, that a remedy has been found for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys and for Diabetes; these are respectively known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure and Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure."

"Shall the husband keep a wife informed of his business affairs?" asks an innocent. There is no necessity.—She will find out five times as much as he knows himself without the least trouble.

A HOUSEHOLD NEED.

A book on the Liver, its diseases and their treatment sent free. Including treatises upon Liver Complaints, Torpid Liver, Jaundice, Billiousness, Headache, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Malaria, etc. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

American Ball-Blue is a product of science applied to the housekeeper's wants. Pure, harmless, and of beautiful effect. Try it!

BEST & CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any other powder, it has been said.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE. It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO.
PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.
REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. R. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "It is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABON, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?

BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., 161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

I AM THE EXCLUSIVE AGENT FOR THE

Hammock RECLINING CHAIR!

ALL KINDS OF

FURNITURE

VERY CHEAP.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

A. W. SLAYTON, Furniture Dealer, Tecumseh.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO. Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848.

ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Proportion of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Finished Finish, and

MARVELOUS for easily superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully compact, using less power than any other machine of equal grain capacity. PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Stone-Power Cribbs and Horse-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 15 horse-power; also 2 styles improved Mounted Horse-Powers. 38 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot, Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. · · Michigan.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Evening.

BY S. C. STACY,

Office in the New Herald Building, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One year, cash in advance, ... $1.50
Six Months, " 75
Four Months, " 50

Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births and Death Notices free.

Rates on General Advertising, or term contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondence is invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JUNE 17, 1880.

THE PROBLEM AT CINCINNATI.

The great national campaign of 1880 is rapidly assuming shape. The Republican convention at Chicago has met, gone through with a week's contest of unprecedented bitterness and placed its ticket before the people.—The Greenbackers have held their national convention, and they have also nominated a ticket.

Next week the Democracy will assemble at Cincinnati and name their candidates for the suffrages of the people; and the eyes of the whole country are now turned towards the metropolis of Ohio anxiously awaiting their action. Not in twenty years has the Democratic party had a better chance for success than now. Who will the candidate be?

It is more difficult even to forcast the result than it was before the Chicago Convention. Seven candidates have been prominently named, all of whom will go into the convention with more or less positive strength, viz: Tilden, Bayard, Hancock, Thurman, Field, Seymour and Hendricks. Besides these there are several more who have been favorably mentioned. Judge Davis, Wm. R. Morrison, and John M. Palmer, of Illinois; Henry B. Payne, of Ohio; Hugh J. Jewett, of N. Y.; Senator Randolph, of New Jersey; Gov. English, of Connecticut; Gen. McClellan, of New Jersey; Samuel J. Randall, of Pennsylvania, and others. Consequently it will be seen that there is an abundance of material from which to select a candidate.—The situation seems to be very similar to that at Chicago. Tilden will go into the convention leading all the other candidates, but with not enough delegates to secure the nomination.—He will be vigorously opposed by a faction in his own state, and he will have but very little support from the South. Bayard would be a model candidate personally, but the fact that he hails from the South is considered a strong objection to him at this time. If it should be thought best to take up a military man, Hancock or McClellan would head the ticket most acceptably. If an Ohio man is preferable, Thurman or Payne would be available. Field, Hendricks, Randall and Jewett are all men of high character and great ability, and nothing could be urged personally against any one of them. But the real problem to be solved at Cincinnati is not one of personal preferences, but one of practical politics.

The Chicago ticket will close up the Republican ranks, and carry every state that is naturally Republican to-day. Ohio is legitimately a Republican state. Hence it would be folly for the Democracy to stake all on carrying that State. On a full vote, the Southern States, Indiana, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut are with the Democrats to-day. Any good ticket will carry the Southern States, as the Chicago nominees are particularly weak in the South. The Cincinnati ticket then should be framed with especial reference to New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana. A ticket of high personal character and ability, and political availability, which will unite and bring out the full party strength in these four states will render them certainly Democratic and thus carry the country at large. This is the practical problem to be solved at Cincinnati. Will the delegates, after assembling together and carefully surveying the entire field, be found equal to the occasion?

WHEAT goes on from week to week in pretty much the same round of figures with very little change in either the home or the foreign markets.—Our crop for 1880 promises to be early. The large growth in the fall, the mild weather during the winter, the warm rains and hot weather in May seems altogether to have had the effect of forcing the plant to an early maturity that will make an early harvest on this side of the Atlantic. It is the general opinion in this State, however, that the crop will not be as heavy as that of 1878 or 1879, and yield per acre will be less. The increased acreage, however, will unquestionably make up somewhat in their prospective deficiency.

COLDWATER has adopted the Ann Arbor plan of open cisterns as traps for children. It catches them every time.

COL. SANFORD FOR GOVERNOR.

We see that Col. Geo. P. Sanford of the Lansing Journal has been quite favorably mentioned of late as a candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket. We have had the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Col. Sanford for many years and we can think of no man in the state who would better grace the head of the ticket this fall. His career as a student in the State University, as an officer in the army and as a public journalist, has been an honorable and successful one, and there is probably no man in Michigan who could so well harmonize and unite the fragments of the opposition party at the present time. If the Democracy of Michigan are wise, they will head their state ticket in the ensuing campaign with the name of Col. George P. Sanford.

The Saginaw Courier of June 8th says:

Geo. P. Sanford, a gentleman endorsed by the Adrian Press, Saginawian, Bay County Examiner, and several other newspapers as a candidate for Governor, is in the city a delegate to the State Convention. Mr. Sanford is a pleasant spoken, intelligent gentleman, in the prime of life, his cast of countenance in some respects resembling that of Judge Marston of the Supreme Court. Mr. Sanford as a journalist strikes out from the shoulder, and while he has favored the financial ideas of Hendricks and Thurman, yet has never compromised his Democratic convictions. He stated to the Courier that he was not a candidate for the nomination, yet if the party calls upon him he would doubtless feel it his duty to serve as a standard-bearer. He believes in uniting the entire opposition to the Republican party in the coming canvass.

THE T. & M. RAILROAD.

The new Toledo & Milwaukee railroad project seems to have been taking a rest for the past few weeks, but now the enterprise is being stirred up again. A canvasser was at work in Franklin last week and week before last, and this week he is engaged in the town of Tecumseh; and if the Tecumseh line is to secure this road, it is high time that the canvass here should be closed out at once. The Adrian people have preserved an ominous silence on this subject for the past few weeks, but we learn from parties in Cambridge that negotiations have been going on for some time between Adrian and Wolf Creek, and that a movement has been started to secure the divergence of this line to Adrian. The Adrian Times of Monday has this item which corroborates fully the reports we have recently received from Cambridge:

A number of residents of the town of Adrian were here Saturday evening, to endeavor to get some light as to the prospects of the Toledo & Milwaukee railroad. Mr. Latcha has been thro' the town, and has excited considerable railroad enthusiasm. But the Adrian people do not like the proposal to pay five per cent. on any subscriptions they might make, for engineering expenses, as soon as the line is located through their town.

We understand that on some portions of the line the five per cent has been demanded and paid. In Rollin some parties have paid this first installment on their subscriptions.

Mr. Latcha expresses a desire to come here. He says that Franklin, Tecumseh and Ridgeway have not responded as they should, and he thinks there is little prospect of the line being built through those towns. Our citizens are carefully looking the ground over, and getting what light they can on the project.

Adrian is now assured of the Butler road. There is no reasonable doubt about that. The next thing they want is the Toledo & Milwaukee, and if Adrian should secure the latter road in connection with the Butler line, it will be a fatal blow to the business interests of Tecumseh. Then let us wake up, let us lay off our coats and go to work, let us make one final vigorous effort and close out the canvass forthwith.

THE BUTLER ROAD.

The indications now all point to the early completion of the Butler road. A public meeting was held in Detroit last Thursday evening, at which $25,000 was added to Detroit's bonus, leaving only $5,000 yet to be raised, and this amount has since been made up. Detroit has therefore raised her full bonus, and Mr. James F. Joy has stated that the road would be put through at once. The Evening News in commenting on the result of the meeting last week, indulges in a few pertinent remarks which are applicable to other latitudes as well as Detroit:

The gentlemen whose generosity last night raised the Butler bonus to the actual sum required are the same whose pockets furnished the portion raised before. The ancient fossils who have accumulated millions here, and who showed so tenacious a grip upon their money all through this gallant effort, were conspicuous by their absence from the meeting last night. This circumstance, however, should give rise to no despair. All things sooner or later reach their end. In a few years the flowers of Elmwood, Woodmere and Mt. Elliott will sweetly blossom over the rosewood coffins of even the wealthiest paleontological specimens in Detroit society, and the process of natural selection will have left a breed of men with a less vice-like grip upon their millions. Their fortunes will be scattered as readily as they have been painfully accumulated, and the ghosts of certain gentlemen will regret that they left all the scattering for their spendthrift heirs.

THE CHICAGO TICKET.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS THEREON—HOW THE TICKET IS RECEIVED BY FRIENDS AND FOES.

Will Command a Full Vote.

Worcester Spy—rep.—General Garfield will command the entire vote of the party, and will be the next President of the United States.

A New Deal at Cincinnati.

Reading Times and Dispatch—rep.—The nomination of Garfield makes it probable that there will be an entirely new deal at Cincinnati.

Mock Congratulation.

Harrisburg Patriot—dem.—The Republican party is to be congratulated on the nomination of a candidate whose defeat will not be taken to heart by many of its adherents.

A Democratic Admission.

Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening.—Garfield is a strong candidate, and if the democratic party does not put the strongest man it can name against him it will stand a chance for a very decided defeat.

Well Matched.

Troy Times—rep.—It would not be easy to mention two candidates likely to pull better together in the political harness than Garfield and Arthur. These two will prove invincible, let the democrats nominate whom they will.

Deserving Well of the Republic.

New Haven Journal—rep.—In General Garfield we have a "strong man," who deserves well of the Republic he fought for. He is also a statesman, and excellently fitted to help shape and carry out the policy of the Republican party. His nomination for President is a strong one, and as the canvass proceeds the wisdom of it will become more and more apparent.

Do Your Own Courting.

Kansas City Times.—John Sherman ought to have known from the fate of Miles Standish that it wasn't safe to let another fellow do his courting. When Garfield asked the hand of Miss Hall Columbia for his friend Sherman, she said: "You're an Ohio man—speak for yourself, Jim." And so John got the mitten and Jim is trying to elope with the gal. That's the kind of an Ohio man Jim Garfield is.

Can Make a Better Ticket.

Memphis Avalanche.—The heartiness of the Republican response to the nomination of Garfield is proof that he will receive the solid Republican vote. It will depend on the sagacity of the delegates to Cincinnati whether he will receive anything more than the Republican vote. There is a large independent vote in both political parties which will be cast for the best men. The democrats can make a better ticket than Garfield and Arthur.

Too Early to Judge.

Washington Star—rep.—Whether its choice is the best and strongest that could be made is yet too early to judge, and much will also depend upon the temper and spirit of the Convention at the time, and of this we know nothing at the present writing. We believe, however, that General Garfield will come as near bringing together the discordant elements of his party as any man likely to be chosen, and that in the end the nomination will prove to be a strong and popular one.

He Can Be Well Defended.

Springfield Republican—ind. rep.—The republican party, after its manner, has rescued itself from defeat by a close shave. It has nominated for President James A. Garfield, the best man of all the list of candidates next to Edmunds—a patriot scholar, an experienced statesman, a man devoted to the public service and of good repute. He is not of the stainless and irreproachable integrity of Edmunds, nor of his searching mental insight, but of broader sympathies.

Garfield's Weakness.

Philadelphia Times—ind.—The nomination makes every Southern State democratic, Ohio doubtful, makes New York and New Jersey hardly debatable for the Republicans and Indiana, California, Oregon and even Pennsylvania depend upon the verdict of Ohio in October. If Garfield's own State shall be lost in the preliminary October the ensuing contest will be ended and his defeat overwhelming; while if he shall carry it by a reduced majority, as is inevitable against a strong democratic ticket, his election will then be no more than possible.

The Peril Past.

Philadelphia Inquirer—rep.—The peril is passed. Country and party are relieved of it. Third termism, Grantism, unit rules, the law of gag and instruction all died yesterday at Chicago. They died hard along with their inventors, those boss machinists, Cameron, Conkling, Logan and their victim, Grant, but they are dead and buried beyond the hope of resurrection. So should such men and schemes die in utter defeat and humiliation. The Republican party has in James A. Garfield a candidate for whom it can, in good conscience, wage its contention against its democratic opponents valiantly and vigorously.

THE CORNER GROCERY

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D. C.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $95.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

MALT

UNFERMENTED

MALT BITTERS

TRADE MARK

Malt Bitters Company

MALT AND HOPS

BITTERS

THIS INCOMPARABLE NUTRIENT is richer in Bone and Muscle producing Materials than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors. For difficult digestion, Sick Headache, Consumption, Emaciation, Mental and Physical Exhaustion, Nervousness, Want of Sleep, Ulcerative Weaknesses of Females, Exhaustion of Nursing Mothers, of the Aged, and of Delicate Children, MALT BITTERS are the purest, best, and most economical medicine ever compounded. Sold everywhere.

MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,

Reapers and Mowers,

Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

Ho! For Fourth of July.

Tecumseh Will Celebrate!

LEE

Is going to build a new block and will slaughter his large stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES

For the next 30 days.

READ PRICES:

		FORMER PRICE.
Men's Double Sole and Tap Boots,	$2.50	$3.50
" Sewed Boots,	2.75	3.75
" Low Shoes,	1.25	1.75
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Kelley's Rochester),	2.75	3.50
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Rochester make),	2.25	3.00
Ladies Curso Kid Button,	1.35	1.75

Remember this is a genuine clearing out sale before removal, and goods will be sold only for cash. Come and examine before purchasing.

Don't forget the place. LEE'S.

Garfield and Arthur

Are the next Republican candidates for President and Vice-President, and after the 36th ballot, they immediately telegraphed to

W. J. KIES

for one of those

CLINTON SUITS of CLOTHES.

Special Bargains in all kinds of

SUMMER GOODS,

FOR

Men's, Youths', Boy's and Children's Wear.

We invite your attention to the following Goods, which are of excellent value:

Large line of light colored all wool suits, worth $15, fine quality, trimmed, and made in the latest style, at $12.

Bargains in Dusters, Thin Coats, Cassimere Pants, White Vests, Straw Hats, Gent's Furnishing Goods. Bargains in Everything.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

LOST.

In this village on Monday or Tuesday last a gold ring with amethyst sett. The finder will be rewarded by leaving the same at the HERALD office.

DENTISTRY.

You can get both celluloid and rubber plates at my office, and at the lowest cash prices. Leave your orders soon as I shall be away from home in July. B. F. STEINHOFF

PLANTS.

Jersey Sweet Potato and best varieties of late Cabbages, for sale by A. Anderson & Son, or at my garden. E. J. HOLLISTER

CHOICE HOUSE PLANTS.

All the new varieties at the Green House, two doors north of Episcopal Church.

MRS. SPAULDING.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

I have worn this Corset three days and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets,

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

BASE BALL.

Yesterday afternoon a game of base ball was played here between the Wolverine club of Otsego and the Tecumseh club. The day was pleasant and quite a large audience assembled to witness the game.

The Otsego boys won the choice and sent Tecumseh to bat. Bostwick went to bat and got out at 1st, Shaugnessy same, and Tray out on a fly to Rowe. Stuart, for Otsego got out at 2d, Rowe on a fly to Anderson and Thayer at home base. Green making a run.

In the second innings DeMyer and Burton were out at 1st, and Chapman at 2d, leaving Anderson on base. Vad, for Otsego, took the bat and fouled out, Kelley struck out and Blackburn out at 1st, the score standing 1 to 0.

In the third innings four runs were made for Tecumseh by Bostwick, Shaughnessy, Tray and McKinney. DeMyer out at 3d, Freeman at 2d and Anderson struck out, leaving Chapman on base. Three runs were made for Otsego by Stuart, Green and Rowe. Simmons out at 1st, and Thayer and Weiss struck out, the game being even.

The fourth innings was a goose-egg for both nines. Burton for Tecumseh out on a fly to Stuart, Freeman at 2d, and Bestwick struck out. Otsego—Vad struck out, Kelley at 1st and Blackburn at 2d. Simmons on base.

In the fifth innings no run was made for Tecumseh. Shaughnessy was left by a fly to 2d, Tray out at 2d and DeMyer at 1st. Stuart and Green made each a run. Thayer struck out, Rowe out at 3d and Weiss at 2d. Vad on base.

No runs were made in the sixth innings. Chapman Anderson and Burton got left at bases. Blackburn struck out, and Kelley and Green out at bases.

In the seventh innings Freeman and Bostwick made runs; McKinney and DeMyer struck out and Shaughnessy out at 1st, leaving Tray on base. The Otsegos made no runs. Rowe and Thayer out at 1st, and Vad on a fly to Bostwick. The game at this time being 6 to 6.

In the eighth innings no runs were made. Chapman, Anderson and Burton were out on fly balls to Thayer, Simmons and Stuart. Kelley, Green and Simmons were out at bases.

Bostwick made a run in the ninth innings; Freeman, McKinney and Shaughnessy out. The Otsegos failed to get a run in this innings. Rowe out at 1st, Thayer struck out and Vad out on a fly to Bostwick. This finished the game, with a score of 7 for Tecumseh and 6 for Otsego.

The game was finely played, and hard work for both nines seemed to be the order of the day. Following is the score:

TECUMSEH.	O.	R.	OTSEGO.	O.	R.
Bostwick, 2 b	2	3	Stuart, c f	1	2
Shaughnessy, p	4	1	Green, s s	2	3
Tray, c	2	1	Rowe, 1 f	4	1
DeMyer, 3 b	4	0	Thayer, p	5	0
Chapman, 1 b	3	0	Weiss, c	2	0
Anderson, c f	3	0	Vad, 2 b	4	0
Burton, s s	4	0	Kelley, 3 b	4	0
Freeman, r f	3	1	Blackburn, r f	3	0
McKinney, 1 f	2	1	Simmons, 1 b	2	0
	27	7		27	6

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Tecumseh	0	0	4	0	0	0	2	0	1	7
Otsego	1	0	3	0	2	0	0	0	0	6

W. W. Frazer, Umpire.

Last Thursday a game was played between the East Raisin club and the Tecumseh club, resulting in a victory for Tecumseh in a score of 4 to 16.

Rev. Wm. Grandy will occupy the pulpit in the Raisin Valley M. E. church next Sunday afternoon.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JUNE 17, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

HARRY LEE is out with a new card this week.

WILSON MCCLURE puts a new "ad" in the HERALD this issue.

THE Tecumseh Fourth of July celebration is panning out splendidly.

LOOK out for the walking match at the Opera House next Tuesday evening.

THE prospects for a grand celebration here on the 3d are very encouraging.

THE graduating exercises of the Raisin Valley Seminary will take place to-morrow.

ON Monday we received a call from Frank W. Robbins, of the Jamestown (N. Y.) Standard.

LEW OLMSTED, of Bay City, is in Tecumseh on a short visit. He will return next Monday.

GOV. CROSWELL, of Adrian, will be the Orator of the Day at our celebration on the 3d of July.

THE HERALD boys extend their thanks to the Reform Club. They know the reason why.

MORENCI will celebrate on the 3d of July. The Adrian Light Guard Band will furnish the music.

T. M. HUNTER of the Adrian Times came over yesterday afternoon to witness the base ball game.

THERE will be a base ball prize contest at Tecumseh on the 3d in connection with our celebration.

A NORMAL department has been established at Olivet College with Prof. Jos. Estabrook as Principal.

THE enterprising citizens of ambitious western villages will soon be swearing at the census takers.

THE Manchester Band, with their splendid new uniform, will help on the music at our Fourth of July celebration.

A HEAVY shower passed over Tecumseh last Tuesday evening, which came from the East. An unusual occurrence.

B. J. BIDWELL has put up a new wind mill on his village residence lot, and will soon have a fountain on the lawn in front of his house.

P. B. SWICK has a corn stalk taken from his garden which measures 5 feet 3 inches in length. It is not a last year's corn stalk either.

E. PRIEST has moved his shoe shop to his residence on the Globe Mill hill, where he is now prepared to attend to anything in his line of trade.

THE reunion of the old Fourth Michigan Infantry will be held tomorrow at Blissfield. We presume that some Tecumseh veterans will attend.

WE have seen several Clinton men during the past week and many of them say they propose to follow their band and attend the Tecumseh celebration.

THE regular meeting of the Royal Templars of Temperance will take place on the 24th inst. A full attendance is desired, as officers will be elected at that time.

THE base ball game yesterday between the Tecumseh and Otsego clubs was a splendid one. It was considered by many the best game ever played on our grounds.

A SUPERABUNDANCE of small boys, is an evil that may be somewhat mitigated by supplying them liberally with "toy pistols," as some parents have learned by experience.

HENRY HAINES has left at our office a few heads of wheat taken from his field. They are fully grown and very large and plump. His wheat will be ready for the reaper in a very few days.

LEVI HAYDEN Esq., of New York City, a brother of Wm. Hayden of this village is visiting relatives here this week. He will probably remain here and at Jackson for several weeks.

HEESEN BROS. & Co., have recently shipped a large order of Hog Ringers to London, England. Their trade is steadily increasing and has already grown to be quite a large and profitable business.

WORMS may be driven out of flower pots by simply applying ammonia water to the plants once a week. A weak solution may be made by putting an ounce of ammonia in a gallon of warm water.

WM. HAYDEN and John Heck represented the milling business of Lenawee Co. at the Cincinnati Miller's Convention. They have both visited the convention, remaining several days. Jerry Root intends to go down next week, so as to take in the Democratic convention also during his trip.

A POUND Social for the benefit of the Reform Club was advertised to take place last Monday evening. The heavy rain compelled a postponement and it was held on Tuesday evening. The attendance was good, much better than was anticipated, a very pleasant evening was passed by all in attendance, and a good sum was added to the Reform Club treasury.

SOME kind friend has sent us a batch of Texas papers. Among them is a copy of the Greenville Herald, which contains a column advertisement of J. W. Patterson. The J. W. Patterson of Greenville is engaged in the Dry Goods business.

WOULD it not be a good plan for some of our societies to get up an excursion to some pleasure resort? It has been some time since Tecumseh has had an excursion of her own inaugurating, and we think one would be well patronized.

A LARGE party from Brownville went up to the lakes last Saturday.—It was hot enough here in Tecumseh to roast eggs, but there was a good breeze on Sand Lake and the party passed a very enjoyable day. They say they are going again in September.

THE Clinton Band have transferred their invitations for the Fourth of July celebration to Tecumseh, and will unite with us in our "blow out." All the adjoining towns are coming to the front, and they will all send large delegations to the Tecumseh celebration.

DURING the game of ball yesterday, a large number paid to witness the game, and about as many more stood on the outside "peeking" over the fence, many of them in good circumstances, and a number living on the interest of their money, and all to save ten cents.

MR. J. L. REMINGTON of Macon presented us with a basket of Sharpless strawberries yesterday, which we have since placed where they would do the most good. They were the finest strawberries we have seen this season. The Sharpless is a new variety which has but recently been introduced.

S. A. JONES and J. C. French, who are connected with the firm of H. E. Bucklin & Co., called at the HERALD office on Monday last. This firm has grown to be one of the largest patent medicine companies in the west. They sell those well known remedies, Dr. King's cure for consumption and Bucklin's Arnica Salve.

DR. B. F. STEINHOFF is making his arrangements to take a trip up north about the first of July, and he will be gone for a month or so. Persons desiring work in his line should procure the same or give orders before that time. The doctor makes both celluloid and rubber plates, and his prices are as low as the lowest.

Indications favor the nomination of that capable Republican farmer, J. Webster Childs, for Congress in his district. Such action by the convention would be a fitting recognition of his manly worth and great services to the party, and would insure to the district a conscientious, intelligent, and honest representative.—Allegan Journal.

THE Union Temperance service at the Baptist church last Sunday evening was a very interesting one. The meeting was opened with a few remarks by Rev. Wm. Grandy, and he was followed by John R. Clark who gave the audience a powerful temperance address. The church was crowded, and every one present was highly pleased with the meeting.

No more remarkable cures have ever been performed than are now daily, by that wonderful remedy, Electric Bitters. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, Billiousness and General Debility yield to their power with remarkable rapidity. They are pleasant to the taste, and the price (fifty cents) brings them within the reach of all. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

Rose Sunday was celebrated at the Universalist Church last Sabbath. The church was tastefully trimmed with evergreens and roses. At the morning service the children conducted the singing, and at the close six children received the rite of baptism and were dedicated to the Savior. A concert was given in the evening to a crowded house, and many people were turned away, unable to gain admission.

HEADQUARTERS CO. C.,
1ST REG'T M. S. T.
TECUMSEH, June 16th, 1880.

General Order No. 2.

There will be a drill in the Armory on the 23d, 25th, 28th and 30th of June at 8 o'clock P. M., at which times all members of the company are requested to be present. By order of

A. D. LAWRENCE,
1st Lieut. Command'g.

A Card.

Rev. J. H. Kershow and wife return their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors of South Macon for the very pleasant reception and cordial greeting given to them on the occasion of their moving into the parsonage at that place, on Thursday last. Although in most respects a complete surprise, yet from the remembrance of their kindness and generosity in days gone by, it was indeed "just like them," and might have been expected. May God reward them for their kindness to us, and send upon them his richest blessings is the prayer of

J. H. KERSHOW,
M. M. KERSHOW.

GREAT PEDESTRIAN CONTEST.

At the Opera House, Commencing Next Tuesday Evening.

Next week Tuesday evening, commences the great contest at the Opera House between Miss Elsa Von Blumen, the great lady pedestriene, of Rochester, N. Y., and our popular townsman, Mr. James Moir. Miss Von Blumen will walk 100 miles in 27 hours and Mr. James Moir will attempt to accomplish 120 miles in the same length of time. Miss Von B. has given her entertainments in all the principal cities throughout the United States, the best class of society attending, among whom were the Governor and family, of Ohio, with his staff and their families. She comes here endorsed by the best citizens of Columbus, Springfield and Dayton, Ohio, and several cities in Michigan. We copy the following from the Delaware O., Herald: "Miss Elsa Von Blumen, the wonderful little lady who has been creating so much excitement in our neighboring cities, and in fact all over the United States, is to give an exhibition in our city next week. She comes here highly recommended by both press and public. Her agent bears with him letters from Governors, mayors, judges and clergymen, as to the good character of the entertainment. The following from the Albany, N. Y., Argus: "Those of our citizens who were lucky enough to visit Martin's Opera House during the great walk were very favorably impressed with Miss Elsa Von Blumen's modest and graceful appearance. She is possessed of remarkable courage and endurance, and if she remains on the track any length of time will not only be the daisy of the course, but the champion of them all. Speaking of the attendance, the main floor, which seats eighteen hundred, was one mass of humanity, the galleries were also packed to suffocation, on the last mile the dense crowd arose to their feet, they climed on the backs of their chairs and upon each others shoulders, cheer after cheer rent the air, and clapping of hands was executed with hearty enthusiasm, so great was the excitement. Miss Elsa you have the best wishes of the citizens of Albany, in your work, and especially of the writer, who has taken sufficient pains to satisfy himself that everything is conducted honorably in your pedestrian undertaking."

We earnestly recommend the citizens of Tecumseh to avail themselves of the opportunity of witnessing an entertainment that will not only please them but advance to them the thought of the one great thing needed, physical culture, and help our military company, under whose auspices the entertainment is given.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

The exercises of the graduating class of the Tecumseh High School and of the Alumni Society will take place next week. The Class Day exercises will not take place this year as heretofore, and the entire program will consist of the commencement exercises proper which will be held at the Opera House on Thursday evening. The following program will be presented at that time.

Music.
Prayer.
Music.
Willing or Unwilling—Luella M. Waring.
Whither?—Julia A. Snell.
Music.
The Future of America—Albert L. Arner.
Vita—Minnie E. Jones.
Music.
Principles—John B. Whelan.
Grasping for Sunbeams—Clara N. Campbell.
Music.
Conferring Diplomas.
Music.
Benediction.

THE ALUMNI.

The Alumni will hold their regular annual reunion on Friday at the Opera House, but whether the exercises will be held in the afternoon or evening has not yet been determined.

The program will consist of the following literary exercises sandwiched with vocal or instrumental music:

Oration—Fred B. Wood.
Poem—Miss Clara Waldron.
Essay—Miss Jennie Frazer.
History—G. P. Waring.

It is quite likely that there will be supper, although the executive committee have not as yet made their arrangements definitely on this point.—The commencement exercises and reunion as a whole will be fully up to their usual standard.

Since writing the above, the chairman of the Ex. com., Mr. C. S. Fitzsimmons, informs us that the Alumni program next week will be an excellent one throughout. The literary exercises will be good and there will also be a social and supper. So the members of the alumni may as well prepare themselves for a good time.

WE understand that Mr. T. M. Hunter of the Adrian Times is quite prominently mentioned as a candidate for county clerk on the Republican ticket this fall. Mr. Hunter has excellent qualifications for that position, both natural and acquired, and if the choice should fall upon him, our democratic friends would find him a very hard man to beat.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & Co., of Battle Creek, are now shipping daily, on an average, ten portable engines and twenty machines.

A FAST train will be put on the Lake Shore railway to compete with those on the Baltimore & Ohio, and Pittsburg & Fort Wayne roads, from Chicago to New York city.

In 1872 the population of Clam Lake (now Cadillac), was 400 persons all told, but small as it was the town supported 17 saloons. Now the city of Cadillac has 2,000 inhabitants and only six saloons.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Down wheat no hinderance to our six foot cut Standard Reaper at Kennedy & Hayden's.

THRESHING MACHINES.

L. A. Mudgett would respectfully announce to the public that he is agent for, and is now selling the Minnesota Chief Separator and Watertown engine, and has them on exhibition in D. R. Raymond & Co's. sheds back of the foundry. It would be useless to state anything as to the quality of these machines as all know them and can see for themselves.

L. A. Mudgett.

—Tinted and black lace Mitts at Eaton's.

—Best Lawns, 8 and 10 cents, at Eaton's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—Farmers, if you get "stuck" in your down wheat, you can find a Reaper that will cut it all at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Newport Ties for Ladies. A. H. Tupper.

—Linen Dusters at W. J. Kies'.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Street Boots, nice, at Tupper's.

—If you want a business or dress suit go to Davi Jones's who will give you bottom prices.

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at W. J. Kies'.

—Ask W. J. Kies to show you the Eighme Shirt.

—Sailors Ties for Gentlemen at Tupper's.

—Walking Shoes at A. H. Tupper's.

—It has been pronounced by all that W. J. Kies has sold more clothing during the month of May than all the other concerns in Tecumseh.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—E. V. DePuy sells Perry's Hay Tedder. Call and see them.

—Nobby Suits for Young Men at W. J. Kies'.

—David Jones now sells Base Ball Gloves.

—All the best makes of Corsets at Eaton's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Go to Tupper's for Walking Shoes.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—A nice line of Mohair Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—D. Jones has one of the latest and best line of neck wear in the market.

Walking Shoes for Ladies at Tupper's.

—100 Macinaw hats at W. J. Kies'.

—Toilet Slippers at A. H. Tupper's.

—Fresh Fish at the South Side Meat Market. Kilburn & Co.

—Go to Tupper's for shoes.

—Nobby White Vests at W. J. Kies'.

—Orr's Pantaloon Overalls at W. J. Kies'.

—French Tie for Gents at Tupper's.

—Have you heard what Orr's Overalls are selling for at W. J. Kies'?

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at Will. J. Kies'.

—Lady Washington's at Tupper's.

—Everything in the shoe line at Tupper's.

—See the Triumph Single Reaper No. 2, sold by E. V. DePuy, before you purchase elsewhere. You will be well pleased with the way the lever works, dropping both ends of the table at once.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids. A. B. Cotton.

—Carpet warp at Eaton's.

—David Jones has just received an elegant line of Kid, Buck and Dog Skin Gloves.

—Babies Walking Shoes at Tupper's.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The Three Rivers Vibrator can be seen at N. Bailey's.

—Buntings cheap at Eaton's.

—For No. 1 carpet warp call at Eaton's.

—David Jones has a splendid assortment of light pants patterns. Call and see them.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new, A. B. Cotton.

—Grain Bags at Eatons.

—Ladies Street Boots, Spanish Arch Instep, very fine, at Tupper's.

—No. 2 Triumphs are going off fast. Sold by E. V. DePuy.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over. A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Gents Fine Oxford Button at Tupper's.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.

Brown, the Photographer.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Sandals, very nice, at Tupper's.

DIED.

DAVIS—In Clinton, on Tuesday, the 8th inst., John M. Davis, aged 63 years and 6 months.

The deceased was born on the 5th of Nov., 1816, three miles from Port Byron in the State of New York. At the age of nine years, in June, 1826, he came with his father to Ann Arbor, Michigan, and his early years were passed in that city. On the 15th day of September, 1838, he took up his residence in Clinton, and that village has since been his home. He was a silver-smith and watch-maker by trade, and before his eye sight began to fail he was considered a very superior workman. In the spring of 1857 he received the agency of the U. S. Express Company in Clinton, which position of trust he filled acceptably for over twenty years. He also acted as express messenger on the Jackson Branch for a period of three years. For the last three years he has been an invalid in care of his daughter Ida, who has been the guardian angel to guide his footsteps while tottering to the tomb. He was a man of generous impulses, a genial companion, a kind father, an upright citizen. The light of another old pioneer has gone out. The funeral services were held on the 9th inst. and were conducted by Rev. W. P. Wastell, an old friend of the deceased, and many of the oldest settlers of Clinton and Tecumseh were present at the burial.

BOUGHTON—At the old homestead, in this village, on the 30th day of May, 1880, Roana Boughton, relict of Selleck C. Boughton, aged nearly eighty years.

The deceased was born June 8, 1800, at Sidney Plains, Delaware County, New York. She was the daughter of John Avery. On the 4th of January, 1824 she was united in marriage with Selleck C. Boughton at Sidney Plains, and in 1831 she moved with her husband to Tecumseh, in company with Olmstead Hough, Levi Baxter and their families, arriving here on the 4th of July, and took up her abode in a dwelling just opposite the old homestead where she died. Two years after, in the spring of 1833 she moved into the dwelling, where she lived until the day of her death, during a period of more than forty-seven years.

During nearly all her residence in Tecumseh, she was an active member of St. Peter's Episcopal church of this village.

Those who knew her in the early days of her residence among us, remember her many deeds of kindness to the new settlers, her acts of charity to the sick and afflicted, her noble work among the poor and needy, always energetic, always faithful in word and deed. Her alloted part in the church, the performance of christian duty, was always cheerfully and promptly done. Twenty-four years a widow, during seventeen of which she has been bereft of both husband and of her only son and child, she has devotedly performed every duty, and has passed from earth, full of years and precious memories to all the friends and relatives who survive her. And notwithstanding her lonely life, she has been peacefully waiting for the coming of that day when she should meet the husband and son who have gone before.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

J. F. JENKINS, N. G.

L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB, NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings at seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, President.

H. C. FOYES, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 52 Mail.	No. 56 Express.	No. 38 Accom.
Jackson	6 50 a m	2 30 p m	1 50 p m
Napoleon	7 16 "	2 55 "	2 35 "
Norvell	7 26 "	3 05 "	2 55 "
Manchester	7 30 "	3 20 "	3 35 "
Clinton	7 45 "	3 40 "	4 15 "
Tecumseh	7 55 "	3 50 "	4 40 "
Adrian	8 30 "	4 23 "	6 00 "
Detroit	10 30 "	6 15 "	—
Toledo	9 30 "	5 25 "	—

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 16 Mail.	No. 18 Express.	No. 48 Accom.
Detroit	7 50 a m	6 40 p m	—
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "	—
Adrian	12 01 p m	9 20 "	5 10 a m
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 15 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 55 "	11 25 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't

P. S. BLODGETT, Sup't Mich. Div.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the west.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A. M
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit ..... 3 30 P. M

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Raige, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A. M
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A TRIBOU, P. M

STEW ARTS DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,

Reapers and Mowers,

Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

GARFIELD IN WASHINGTON.

How the Nomination was Received—The Census Taker—Last Days of Congress.

Washington, June 17, 1880.

The days of suspense and waiting for the result at Chicago certainly were nowhere more anxious ones than here at the Capital. Politics have a decidedly practical side for the people of Washington. They live by it very largely. Several thousands of government employes were in a demoralized state during the long session of the convention, and while the balloting was in progress business in the various departments was almost wholly suspended. All of these clerks and office holders were intense partisans of some one candidate or another, and it seemed to be, with them, not alone a question of whether their favorite would triumph, but whether by an unfortunate result of the convention's deliberations they might not a few months hence be scattered to the uttermost parts of the country. The great majority, I think, were for Grant, though both Blaine and Sherman had many advocates, the latter, as head of the Treasury Department, having apparently more friends than Blaine. And where there was so much enthusiastic championing of certain candidates, there can not fail to be some disappointment at failure to realize the high hopes entertained. Yet I think the result is as satisfactory and as promising of harmony as any that could have been reached. While General Garfield had no warm partisans advocating his nomination, he at the same time had no antagonisms, and there are no reasons why the friends of all the other candidates may not rally to his support. There has been no noise and no great demonstrations of joy here over the nomination, yet I think it will, after all the disappointments pass away, unite the party as well as any that could have been made. It is too early to say more than this at present.

The inquisitive census-taker is now on his rounds all over the country. Ladies are not obliged to disclose their actual age, or to furnish any more information than they deem advisable. The enumerators get two cents a head for each person on their list; and at that high rate of compensation they are expected to have imaginations vivid enough to supply all omissions in the blanks. The body of a census-taker is no more sacred in the eye of the law than the bodies of those for whom he is paid two cents a piece for interviewing; so, if a man chooses to kick a census-taker over the back fence, or set his dog upon him, he can do it without fear of extraordinary punishment. Babies born this side of the first of June will not be enrolled in the population of this great republic for ten years to come. The happy babies born on the night of May 31 just saved themselves. The census-taker may be known by the bottle of standard ink which he carries slung about his neck with a strap, his big portfolio, limp collar, and air of importance, as though he was fully aware of the dignity of the office. If you want to make him communicative invite him to drink. If you desire to depress his spirits, direct him to a house where there are three old maids and all of them deaf. The census-taker encourages matrimony, and takes kindly to men of family; for a family represents a profit to him of from six to thirty cents, according to its size; while from an interview with a single man he realizes only two cents. The census-taker, in the abstract, is a harmless individual, wearing a weather-beaten straw hat, a pair of eye-glasses perched far down on his nose, and looking as though, in the battle of life, he had got much the worst of it, until he obtained employment as a census-taker. He has a propensity for soiling his fingers with ink, and loves gossip. If a person is in doubt upon any point he is ready to suggest, and is supplied with a remarkable fund of information on small subjects.

Notwithstanding the absence of a great many Senators and Representatives, both houses of Congress have continued to transact business. Work on the remaining appropriations has progressed somewhat and a little has been done with some other matters. Another effort has been made to fix a time for final adjournment, but without success. There is no likelihood that the session can be wound up before the Cincinnati convention, and probably not for some time after. It will run till July at least. In the Senate they have had some more talk about the Kellogg case but it no longer attracts any interest. A bill passed the latter body on Monday to specify and fix the salaries of persons in the railway mail service. It is a creditable measure and aims to do away with the injustice and inequality which now governs in this branch of the railway mail service. The salaries are now paid out of different appropriations, and it frequently happens that the men in the same car, doing the same service, receive a different salary. This bill puts them upon the same footing, but in classes, commencing with $800 up to $1,400.

DOM PEDRO.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

The heavy rains have injured the Oakland county wheat prospects.

Prof. May, principal of the Lowell schools, is to give up teaching and study medicine.

William Ames, of near Harrison, Clare county, was killed by a falling tree during the storm of the 10th.

The Hillsdale boat club's crew are to row in the big regatta at Moline, Ill. The Shos are not entered there.

Some Grand Rapids people are getting up an entertainment to raise funds to bring Inez Sexton home.

Thirty persons were found living in a barn in one of the wards in the city of Bay City by a census enumerator.

Kalamazoo is urging its claims for the brigade encampment, modestly asserting that it is the best place in the State.

Within the past week storms in various parts of the State have been so violent as almost to assume the proportions of tornadoes.

John Allen, of Port Huron fired at a rabbit and killed a valuable cow.—He got more fresh meat than he bargained for.

The Michigan baptist preachers will hold a convention at Eaton Rapids beginning June 21 and lasting until the evening of the 25th.

The state Sunday school convention at Lansing resolved that it was the duty of Sunday school teachers to abstain from the use of tobacco.

Marcellus farmers are reaping their wool crop and hauling home the wealth derived therefrom at the rate of from 35 to 40 cents per pound.

Orville D. Wilcox, who was wounded Tuesday evening of last week at Kalamazoo by the premature discharge of a cannon while firing a salute, died Thursday evening.

The First Congregational Society, of Jackson, are raising a fund of $1,200, to be used in frescoing and otherwise improving the audience room of their church.

In Jackson county it is charged that some of the census takers are abusing their official positions by asking the politics of voters as though that was a portion of their duty.

Capt. Daniel Holway, of Coldwater, died very suddenly of heart disease on the 10th. The larger part of his life was spent upon the ocean, where he earned his title.

The Grand Rapids & Indiana company has voted to increase its capital stock from $2,800,000 to $5,000,000 for the purpose of extending its road to the straits of Mackinac.

Peter Clark, of Lakefield township, Saginaw county, is under arrest on suspicion of having murdered his brother and the latter's wife, and then firing their house.

Public spirited people at Corunna and Owosso propose to make the road between those two places a first-class thoroughfare. This is proper. Good roads make prosperity; bad ones make bankruptcy.

The time weight of the clock in the episcopal church tower at Ypsilanti broke loose and fell to the basement, smashing through the adjoining floors. The clock weights for repairs.

A few days ago Emmet Morehouse was arrested at Flint on a charge of some sort of crookedness, and Saturday a Roscommon county officer gathered him up again on a number of charges of swindling, etc.

Mrs. Floyd Smith, of near Decatur, whose husband was "strung up" last winter in order to extort from him if possible a confession of complicity in the Morris double murder, died a few days ago. Those who knew her best assert that the consequent excitement affected her so that under it she gradually failed and wasted away until death ensued.

When a Brighton girl wishes to bid a friend adieu at the depot she waits until he is in the car and at the window, when she springs from the depot platform, catches hold of the window sill, shins up the side of the car, and either kisses or bites him—strangers cannot tell which.

Hon. Freeman C. Watkins was killed near Watkins' Station, on the Detroit & Hillsdale Railroad, in Norvell Township, last Thursday morning.—Mr. Watkins was driving a spirited team, and when near the station the animal became frightened and ran away. He was thrown from the wagon and struck on his head. He was picked up insensible and died a few moments after.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

ASK the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient, how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Burn, &c.,

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This universally Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of MERCURY, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel dreary, dispirited, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator,

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured if when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. O. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine

Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 altos, tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass; bell up; patent piston valves; warranted, for $180.

I also have Band Instruments for professional bands to select from, including Corm and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogues.

Address, O. F. BERDAN,

72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter, and powerful tonic, and is intended as a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is a Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Sassickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It Purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public, for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 162 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!

HELPS BLEACHING and GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,

55 Maiden Lane, New York.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY SALE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN—The Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, In Chancery.

Edward F. Muir, Complainant, against William A. Marshall, Sarah Marshall and Christopher Schmidt, Defendants.

Pursuant to a decree of this court in the above entitled cause, on the 6th day of March, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for the county of Lenawee, will on the 10th day of June, A.D. 1880, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, sell to the highest bidder at the front door of Dean's Opera House, so called, on Toledo street, in the city of Adrian, in said county, (that being the place where the Circuit Court for said county is held,) the certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Clinton, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows: Being village lot number three (3) of Burnham's survey of the village of Clinton aforesaid, according to the plat thereof, as surveyed by Hiram Burnham, Esq., in A.D. 1833, and now on record in the Register's office in and for the county of Lenawee aforesaid.

Dated May 6th, 1880.

WILLIS MERRITT,

Circuit Court Commissioner,

Lenawee County of Lenawee, Michigan.

E. B. WOOD, Solicitor for Complainant. may6

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 11th day of March, A.D. 1860, Jonas Weaver and Caroline M. Weaver by an indenture of mortgage made and executed by them on said 11th day of March, to Henry H. Rawson certain lands owned by said Caroline M. Weaver, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 2d day of November, A.D. 1869, in liber 57 of mortgages on pages 675 and 676, and which mortgage was duly assigned by said Henry H. Rawson to Jonas Weaver on the 8th day of November, A.D. 1879, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1880, in liber 65 of mortgages on page 423. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-four and 22-100 dollars and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee which sums are hereby made and constitute a lien on said premises, and no proceeding at law or otherwise has been taken to recover the amount now remaining secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Default having been made in the terms of payment of said mortgage by means of which the power of sale in said mortgage has become absolute; notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due together with all legal costs and charges and said attorney fee of twenty-five dollars; said sale will be to the highest bidder and will be made on the twenty-six day of July, 1880, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Dean's Opera House on Toledo street in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county,) The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold as aforesaid are described as situate in the township of Rollin in said county of Lenawee, and known as the west half of the south west quarter of section twenty-nine, except twenty acres off the north end thereof, in township six south of range one east.

Dated February 21st, 1880.

JONAS WEAVER, Assignee of Mortgage.

THOMAS J. HILLEE, Att'y for Assignee. apl22

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit. In the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, in Chancery.

Mary F. E. Taylor, Complainant,

vs.

Charles L. Taylor, Defendant.

Before Willis Merritt, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the village of Tecumseh, this 30th day of April, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file, that the defendant Charles L. Taylor is not a resident of this State and is a resident of Chicago, Ill. On motion of C. A. & J. A. Stacy, complainant's solicitors, it is ordered that said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complainant in this cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of this order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

WILLIS MERRITT,

Circuit Court Commissioner.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Complainant's Solicitors. may20

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of William Taylor, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of William Taylor, late of Macon, in said county, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Wood & Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 26th day of June, 1880, and on the 10th day of November, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, and that six months from the 10th day of May, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated May 25th, 1880.

JOHN B. PATTISON,

GEORGE POCKLINGTON,

May27 Commissioners.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

N. W. AYER & SON

ADVERTISING AGENTS

TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.

Receive Advertisements for this Paper.

ESTIMATES at Lowest Cash Rates free for Newspaper Advertising.

Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

THE WOOL MARKET.

The state of the wool market can not be regarded as wholly satisfactory to either buyers or sellers, and has given the lie to most of the prophesies made respecting it. Dealers claim a decline in prices present and future and wool growers set the claim down as a "bear" movement. Neither party is disposed to hasten matters, and the unusually cold weather has favored delay in shearing. Numerous sales of small lots are reported in different parts of the State, at prices about the same as reported last week. The Vassar woolen factory has bought something over 7,000 pounds, at an average of 35c for washed and 25c for unwashed. At Ovid up to Saturday last 38,000 pounds of wool has been marketed at prices ranging from 35 to 40 cents. At Ann Arbor the highest price yet paid was 37½ cents. At Lansing buyers are taking what clips are offered at 35 to 38 cents.

The Boston Advertiser of Saturday says in its weekly review: "There is no improvement whatever to note in the market for wool, and if possible the condition is less satisfactory to manufacturers than it was a week ago. A Philadelphia manufacturer has purchased some 400 bales of Australian wool at a low figure, but aside from this and a few sales of wool to arrive there has been nothing done worth mentioning. There is no inquiry for California wool, and the entire sales for the past few weeks are less than 100,000 lbs., while for the same period last year the sales amounted to 4,644,000 lbs. The manufacturers were eager for wool, now no one inquires for it, or scarcely asks the price. We have never reported so small a number of sales at this season of the year, and while there has been some Texas and Missouri wools sold subject to approval on their arrival, which we have not included in the transactions, there is still less business than we ever knew at this stage of the season. In spring California there is no market price established, and the few sales we report this week have been at 28@32c. Georgia wools are taken to some extent at 34@35c. Missouri wools sell in a small way at the same figures. Kentucky is held at 37c, but the party who bought last week is offering only 35@36c now. From Ohio we hear that farmers in some sections are selling in a small way at 38@40c, and are willing to accept 40c, but the bulk of the clip could not probably be moved at present at this price, as shearing has not been finished in the northern sections. We think manufacturers are undecided what to do, and they will probably work up present stock closely before making heavy purchases, as the large supply of foreign wool and the low price at which it can be bought causes them to hesitate in their purchases of domestic fleece. Pulled wools are dull and inactive, and the market is in marked contrast to what it was a year ago."

The wool circular of Walter Brown & Co. for June 1, is in the same vein. It says: "One feature of the trade which should be borne in mind by wool operators this season is the change that is taking place in the demand for woolen goods, this tending toward a finer quality instead of being cheviots and fabrics of a similar low character. Such a change will materially affect the consumption of low, medium and coarse wools of the coming clip, and it is probable that they will, in a measure, have to resume the relative position held some years ago, when they were used mostly for carpet and blanket stock. For good medium or half-blood wools, however, we anticipate a steady demand, although they may not be relatively so high as for the past two years. Of the new clip which has thus far come into market, the bulk has been of the above qualities, medium and coarse. The first purchases in the country were made under the influence of the extreme prices ruling two months ago, but as soon as it became evident that previous rates could not be obtained, buyers held back, and prices in the interior have gradually declined until they are now about 20 per cent lower than six weeks ago. These wools have a large proportion of low grades and the effect of the change in the character of the demand for woolens is noticeable in this decline."—Michigan Homestead.

COST OF FENCES.

The heaviest tax on the farmer is the cost of making and supporting fences. This tax has been placed by good authority at about one dollar an acre annually, on farms where good and tidy fences are kept, making the small lots which are usually thought desirable. A farm cut into five and ten acre lots with a rail fence—no matter how well kept—looks rough and unsightly; and to keep the corners free from weeds and briers requires a great deal of labor. Necessity will teach farmers to dispense with nine-tenths of the inside fencing, they now think so indispensable; and what will remain will be of a movable form.

SPOILING BUTTER IN THE MILK.

The report of the Hampshire Franklin, and Hampden Agricultural Society's committee on butter and cheese, has this pertinent re-statement of facts that can never be left unsaid while we have so much spoiled milk and butter:

Between the cow and the butter maker there is a point which cannot be too carefully guarded—the way in which the milk is drawn from the cow and handled before it reaches the milk room. A very large part of the poor butter made, results from the milk being spoiled before it is even strained. One lot of butter examined at the fair showed this at once; it was not fit for any use as food. Some on tasting it, would have said "animal odor." Perhaps so, but not from the cow. If the cow is healthy, and has good food and pure water, there can be no odor or taste to the milk in the udder at all objectionable. Nor will there be if the milk is then drawn from a well-cleaned udder by a clean milker, in pure air, and kept from all sources of taint. Others would have said this butter was "cowy." Don't lay such a charge to the poor cow; she did her part faithfully. The butter we complain of is not cowy; it is horsey, or piggy, or worse yet, filthy. The cow-keeper and the milker are the persons to blame.

Let every butter maker who has any regard for the reputation of his or her product, insist upon every possible precaution being taken by the milker to keep the milk pure and clean. No really good butter can be expected if the milk is taken from an unclean bag, or by a milker with dirty hands or clothing, or if the milking is done in a filthy or ill-ventilated stable, or the milk allowed to stand, even a short time, surrounded by impure air. It is the greatest mistake to suppose that if dirty or foreign matter gets into the milk, careful straining will remedy the evil; the objects may be removed, but the taint remains. It must also be remembered that there are invisible things as sure to spoil milk as those we can see. There are now improved implements which greatly protect the milk, guarding against carelessness and accidents, but nothing will take the place of careful, cleanly milking.

WEEDS.

This is decidedly the month for weeds. They grow everywhere and with astonishing rapidity. They have tough constitutions, and neglect is the kind of culture they want, and a good crop will come by simply letting them alone. It is all right. If they did not grow in this way the race would run out. The farmers' motto is "not to let them alone." His success depends on their defeat. As two bodies can not occupy the same space, so two plants can not grow in the same hill. Big rag-weeds and a tuft of smartweed or pigeon-grass, rooted round a hill of corn, will make "nubbins" too small to husk. To be successful the farmer must never let the weeds get the start. If they do they will win. While they are young the drag will finish them; when they get rooted, if you cut them off, they will sprout, and if you dig them up they will take root again. The rule should be: Cultivate and hoe before the ground is weedy.

For the benefit of all sufferers, be good enough to bring the wonderful effect of St. Jacobs Oil before the public. For twelve long years my wife suffered with Neuralgia in the head, and often had the most terrible pains. A few weeks ago I bought a bottle of that wonderful remedy—St. Jacobs Oil—and am perfectly astonished at its marvelous effect; half a bottle thoroughly cured my wife. I gladly would have paid my physician fifty dollars if he could have done the same; therefore I wish that everybody may learn to value this true medicine.

CHRISTIAN HANNI,
Youngstown, Ohio.

Color Your Butter.

Farmers that try to sell white butter are all of the opinion that dairying does not pay. If they would use Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color and market their butter in perfect condition, they would still get good prices, but it will not pay to make any but the best in color and quality. This color is used by all the leading creameries and dairymen, and is sold by Druggists and merchants.

VINES.

There is a swarm of pests ready to devour the squash and melon vines, and nip the cucumbers in the bud Mix an ounce of cayenne in a pint of flour, and when the dew is on dust the vines. The whole bug-tribe will make an "exodus."

Listen to This.

The unbiased opinion of some of the most intelligent medical men in this country and Europe, support the statement that Kidney-Wort is the greatest discovery yet, for curing Kidney and liver troubles, piles and constipation. It acts on both Kidneys and bowels at the same time and thus cleanses the whole system.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought fowest figures.

Chicago Street — HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT

SLAYTON & SON

Beg leave to inform the public that they are handling a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Among which may be found

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled, Garden City Clipper (steel.)

Scotch Harrows, the Buckeye & Elwood Cultivators,

Johnston Reapers and Mowers,

Buckeye and Champion Grain Drills, Corn Drills & Planters, The Seymour Plaster Sower,

HAY RAKES, The Thomas Hand Dump, The Tiger Self Dump.

THRESHERS, The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines, the Carter Tongueless Cultivators,

Double Shovels and Shovel Plows, points for all kinds of Plows, Sections for all Mowers & Reapers

We also sell

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Scales, and the Boss Stone Boat.

☞ Just call and see if we can't furnish you anything you want.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for EQUALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN.

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Buchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN TONIC BLOOD PURIFIER

DIFFERS from all other preparations in its IMMEDIATE ACTION upon the Liver, Kidneys and Blood.

Composed of the choicest Herbs, Roots and Extracts. Cures Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Cancers, Cancerous Humors, Pimples on the Face, Scurvey, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, Malarial Fevers, etc.

For "Nervous Debility," "Lost Vitality," "Urinary Diseases," and "Broken Down Constitutions." "I challenge the 19th century" to produce its equal.

Every Bottle is Worth its Weight in Gold

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN MILK CURE,

The only Medicine of the kind in the World.

A Substitute for Cod Liver Oil.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Bleeding Lungs, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, leading to Consumption. Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Cures Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Malarial Fevers, Sick Head-Aches, Chills and Fever, Constipation, &c. Price 25 cents per box.

SMOKE DR. S. D. HOWE'S

CATARRH AND ASTHMA CURE.

An infalable cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and Asthma. Sweetens the breath and produces the most delightful sensation while, and after smoking it. Try it. Price 50 cents per box.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty St., New York.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

☞ Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

☞ For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

☞ For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

☞ Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. B. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF CALLING CARDS. At the Herald Office.

New Twine Binder.

WALTER A. WOOD.

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

The new Twine Binder has been well tested in different kinds and conditions of grain and in different localities and has proved most efficient and durable.

THE WOOD MACHINES

Are Superior to all others in every respect, which the manufacturers and Agents stand ready to prove both by actual test and by the fact that more than ten times the number of this make of Machines are in use now in the County than of all others put together. Although they are put up in the most durable and satisfactory manner, yet they are sold at Prices to compete with second-class Machines. All we ask is for farmers to examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent.

ALL MACHINES WARRANTED.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF EXTRAS ON HAND

At Slayton & Son's.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

Farming Implements!

Weight 600 lbs. Draws easy as a farm wagon.

THE ROYCE REAPER.

GALE Chilled PLOW,

The KING of the Field.

A. A. KENNEDY. A. S. HAYDEN.

As Brown confidently expected to appear when he met the Misses Jones.

As an unfortunate gust of wind made him appear at that particular moment.

THE RUSH TO COLORADO.

Hints to Emigrants Who Have Visions of Sudden Wealth and Improved Health.

DENVER, Col., May 28.—This city, located on the South Platte, about 70 miles east of the mountains, with a population of 40,000, has all the push and bustle of a frontier town about its appearence and most of the conveniences of an eastern one. Almost nine-tenths of the men one meets in the street are just from the east. All the eastern improvements are made with eastern capital or under the direction of eastern men. The place seems to have waked up about eighteen months ago. Since that time everything has been booming. Grand hotels, fine business blocks, and beautiful residences have sprung up like mushrooms. The fact that a few men have become millionaires in a day and a great many have become wealthy, will cause men from the east to pour in here like a mighty flood. Thousands are coming here every week. All trains from the east come in late on account of the immense loads of passengers they bring. Many have gone to the mountains, and finding it impossible to work, on account of the snow, have turned their faces eastward. The great majority come with just money enough to bring them out and take them home. Many come with the latter armament and must find work immediately. To suppose that a city of this size can give employment to any considerable part of the four or five thousand persons who pour in every week is absurd. The streets are full of men, and the place takes on the appearance of a gala day; but in a short time the crowds will have departed for the mines, and those who remain will have plenty of work, at good prices. Good mechanics get from $2.25 to $3 per day only, while board is from $5.50 to $6 a week. A moderate-sized room rents for $20 a month. Of the great multitude who come here this season, the vast majority will go back in the fall poorer in purse and in health; for no man can expect to retain his health in the mountains, where the air, though pure, is very light, where he will have to lie on the ground, perhaps, or under a snow-bank, where there is frost the year round, and he will have to work in the burning rays of the sun all day and sleep in a freezing atmosphere at night.

The city of Denver is quite a beautiful one. Its streets are broad, level, and well shaded with cottonwood trees, and, though made of the native soil, are as durable and almost as hard as the best paved streets of eastern cities. Flowing streams of water run on all the streets during the summer time, as all vegetation must be kept alive by irrigation, for very little rain falls here, a slight shower a month ago being the first for about ten months. Considerable snow fell during the winter, some only a few days ago. The mountains, from sixty to eighty miles away, with their snow-crowned peaks, form a silver rimmed horizon from the south round to the northwest, making a beautiful background for the black, dull foothills, fifteen or twenty miles distant. Looking from the east end of a street westward, it seems as though the city ran right up to the hills. On a clear day Long's Peak, sixty miles to the northwest, seems so near that one can scarcely realize that it would be a very long walk to it. Pike's Peak, to the south, has always had the appearance of being far off, although only fifteen miles further away than Long's Peak. Although usually healthy, it has been quite sickly here this winter and spring, but the great majority of the corpses of which several go back on almost every eastward-bound train come from Leadville and the mining camps. Almost every one on coming here is sick for a while. None but strong, healthy persons should come here to stay, or at least not during the time of the year. And to all eastern men who have steady, honest employment, but are thinking of coming to Colorado in hopes of getting rich faster, I say, remain where you are.—N. Y. Sun.

THE Wolverines of Chagoi will be here on the 3d of July and contest for the prize.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

The July Number, commencing Volume VIII., is one of the most interesting yet issued of this excellent publication. The opening article, by Rev. Edward Hale, "A Quarter Millennium," describes the landing of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, the [illegible], and the establishment of the first Christian churches in Boston, Salem and Dorchester. There are sketches of the prominent men connected with the Massachusetts Company including Governor Winthrop, Rev. John Cotten, Rev. John White, Roger Clapp and others. One illustration shows a view of the site of Boston before the first house was built; another is a quaint old map of the neighborhood around Boston; another is a drawing of the first church in Boston from 1630 to 1640. The article will doubtless attract considerable attention. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

Appleton's Journal

For July gives the second and final part of Cherbulier's brilliant novelette, "Herr Dromimel's Inconsistencies," and the conclusion of Appleton Morgan's Shakespearean Myth," in which there is an examination of the several theories current as to the authorship of the Shakespearean plays, and some eminently graphic pictures of the period and the life therein.—There are a reply by Mr. C. H. Rockwell to Judge Morgan's recent assault on the Suez Canal Company; an article by Dean Stanley on "The Variations of the Roman Church"; a paper by James Jackson Jarves on "Modern Italian Picturesque Sculpture"; and a plea in behalf of women by Mrs. Oliphant. The contents of the number are varied and valuable. Appleton's Journal is published monthly, at 25 cents per number, or $3.00 per annum. D. Appleton & Co., Publishers, 1, 3 & 5 Bond Street, New York.

Summer Necessaries.

The summer number of Ehrichs Fashion Quarterly presents its readers with a magnificent chromo-lithograph picture, illustrative of the fashions of the season, and executed in the finest style. The special merit claimed for this picture, by the publishers, is that it is an exact reproduction of actual costumes, and not a fancy picture whose original existed only in the brain of a Parisian artist or designer. A full description of the costumes is given in the pages of the magazine. Published by Ehrich Brothers, 287 to 295 Eighth Avenue, New York, at 50 cents per year, or 15 cents per copy.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for July is on our table ahead, as usual. Every number of this magazine has some special feature, and the one this month is an illustrated article on "Royal Beauties of This Century." Among other portraits given is Louise, Queen of Prussia, mother of the present German Emperor, one of the most beautiful women that ever lived, if we may judge from this engraving. There is a colored fashion plate; a colored pattern; numerous spirited wood engravings; designs in embroidery, and a score or more of the newest fashions in dresses, hats, bonnets, &c. The stories are even better than usual, and that is saying a great deal. Address Chas. J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A dreadful epidemic has broken out at Princeton College, New Jersey, from disregard of the plainest hygienic laws. With a fund of over $1,000,000, well invested, and a large corps of the best intellectual and moral instructors in our land, there is ignorance of the effect of cesspools and bad drainage, which would disgrace the most obscure country village. The malarial fever at Princeton has taken on a typhoid form, and the chairman of the State board of health attributes it to negligence of sanitary laws. What does it profit men to know almost everything in the world, and yet lose their own lives from the lack of a little common sense?

THE plentiful rains have so cooled the waters of the rivers and ponds that it makes the boys' teeth chatter to go in bathing.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Below is a list of transfers of Real Estate in Northern Lenawee for the week ending June 14, 1880, prepared at the office of Register of Deeds for the Tecumseh HERALD, by M. P. Long, Register.

ADRIAN.

Belinda R. Mansfield to Frances M. Pomeroy; land in town of Adrian.—$1100.

Chas. W. Selleck to J. A. Howell and wife; land on sec. 27. $2,500.

O. Swartbout to C. A. Kuowles; land on sec. 29. $1,550.

TECUMSEH.

B. Gilbert to B. B. Morley; land on sec. 34. $400.

Augusta P. Lee to F. J. Landgraf; part of lot 57. $800.

DEERFIELD.

H. E. Cowles to C. Gilson; land on sec. 10. $2000.

Roana Boughton to W. J. Baxter; land in village. $500.

ROME.

Alma J. Dudley to H. C. Dudley; land on sec. 30. $400.

J. K. Wheeler to J. Grover; land on sec. 20. $1400.

MACON.

Isaac Pennington to W. Pennington; land on sec. 9. $600.

PALMYRA.

H. Cassady to H. B. & Stella L. Cassady; land in township. $1000

Wide Awake for June, 1880.

The June Wide Awake opens with a delightful story by Sarah O. Jewett of "Deephaven" fame, entitled "Cake Crumbs." Following is an exquisite poem by Mrs. Margaret J. Preston, "Maid Cicely's Steeple Cap." A. D., 1480. It has a very lovely picture by G. F. Barnes. "Choosing Abe Captain," by James Clement Ambrose, is an interesting reminiscence of President Lincoln. "At Plymouth Oak Farm" is an interesting and exciting story of pioneer life, by Mrs. Abigeline Teal, accompanied by a half dozen spirited illustrations. Another first rate story is "How Patty Curtis Learned to Sweep," by Mrs. M. L. Evans. "Daisy's Bust," by Mabel Elwell, is as good a story, although an account in detail of how a bust is made. Only $2 a year; 20 cents a number. Ella Farman, Editor. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

A Law That Should Be Enforced.

The legislature of '79 passed a law making it the duty of the overseer of highways in each district, to give notice to every man on whose land Canada thistles are growing, and in danger of going to seed, to cut them down. In case the owner does not do this inside of five days after the notice is served, it becomes the duty of said overseer to enter upon the land and cut the thistles. The expense is audited and paid by the town board, and the supervisor assesses it to the owner of the land, and it is collected in the same manner as delinquent highway taxes. Overseers of highways who shall neglect or refuse to carry out the provisions of the statute, are liable to a fine of $25. Canada thistles are spreading in this vicinity, and it will be well for the proper officers to look to the enforcement of the statute.

A CIRCULAR from the Secretary of State says the crop and stock reports received at that office from 815 townships show that there were 1,580,926 sheep sheared in 1879, yielding 8,218,554 pounds of wool. This is an average of 5 1-5 pounds per head. The reports also show that the number of sheep in the same townships in 1880 was 1,682,825, which is 5.27 per cent more than the number sheared in 1879. If there has been any corresponding increase in the remaining 282 townships, there will be 1,588,298 sheep sheared in the State the present year, and the total clip at the above average per head will be 8,517,885 pounds.

Are you suffering with Stomach, Liver and Kidney complaint, a weak and debilitated constitution, loss of energy, inactivity and dyspepsia? If so, go at once to your druggist and procure a bottle of that great life-giving principle, Electric Bitters. You will be surprised at the change that follows. New life will take place, inactivity cease, drowsiness disappear, strength, energy, and ambition return; in fact, you will be like a new being, and all for fifty cents. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

Ypsilanti Sentinel: Some general understanding ought to be had when a holiday falls on Sunday. Why not celebrate on that day, in an appropriate manner, and let it go at that?—Here is coming the 4th of July, for instance, on Sunday. Why not for once attend to business Saturday and Monday as usual, and decorate the churches with patriotic emblems, omitting the noise and assault of drums and fire-works? We don't expect anything so sensible will ever occur.

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

THE storm last Monday through Ohio did an immense amount of damage

Let Us Take a Rest

If you will start on a very cheap and enjoyable trip in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and "no extras," write to,

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Ag't.
Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, June 16, 1880.

Augusta Miss Lyle, Oswald H. N., Tierney, Robert S.

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD,
Thursday, June 17, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending June 10, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 2,670 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

18 steers	1164	4.50	19 mixed	1154	$4.35
32 steers	1164	4.45	17 steers	1185	4.55
18 steers	1164	4.45	13 steers	1010	4.25

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 1,300 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

97 Mich. sheep (choice)	119	4.62½
27 Ohio do (extra)	116	5.25
158 do do	114	5.25

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show an increase of 9,070 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

12	302	4.75	121	246	4.55
78	283	4.65	65	236	4.35
111	219	4.50	105	199	4.30

DETROIT MARKET.

Tuesday, June 15, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 3 cars at $1.12@1.12½; do July, 2,000 bu at $1.08½.

Beans—City picked, $1.35@1.37; unpicked, 60@65c per bu.

Butter—11@12c per lb.

Cheese—10@11c per lb.

Eggs—Fresh, 13@13½c per doz.

Vegetables—Pie plant, per dozen bunches, 25c; onions, 35@40c; radishes, 25@30c; asparagus, 30@40c; lettuce, per bu, 25c.

Provisions—Hams, 10@10½c. Shoulders, 6c. Breakfast bacon, 8½c. Dried beef, 11@12c per lb.

Corn—43c per bu.

Oats—35@37½c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET,

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 740 bbls.
FEED—Shipped 242 bbls; 75 crates.
BUTTER—Shipped 4184 lbs.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 900 lbs.
GRAIN—Shipped 4 cars.
LUMBER—Shipped 1 car.
MILL FEED—Shipped 2 cars.

Apples, ₩ Barrel	1.75@	2.00
Apples, dried, ₩ lb	3@	4
Bacon, ₩ lb	10@	12
Barley, ₩ bushel	50@	60
Beans, ₩ bushel	1.00@	1.30
Beeswax, ₩ pound	30@	60
Blackberries, ₩ hundred	1.25@	1.50
Beef—dressed, ₩ hundred	6.50@	7.00
Beef, Hides	@	5
Calf Skins, ₩ lb	@	12
Chickens, ₩ pair	25@	30
Cider—sealed, ₩ barrel	4.00@	5.00
Clover Seed	5.50@	6.00
Cheese—factory, ₩ lb	@	5
Corn, ₩ bushel	@	45
Flour, ₩ barrel	6.00@	7.00
Hogs, Dressed, ₩ cwt	@	5.00
Hogs, Live, ₩ lb	4.00@	4.85
Hay, ₩ ton	8.00@	9.00
Hides, ₩ lb	@	6½
Honey, ₩ lb	@	18
Hops, ₩ lb	@	9
Lard, ₩ lb	@	9
Oats, ₩ bushel	35@	37
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	1.00@	1.50
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	35@	40
Salt, ₩ barrel	@	1.50
Sheep Pelts	50@	1.10
Timothy Seed, ₩ bushel	@	2.00
Turkeys, dressed	@	12
Wood, ₩ cord	4.00@	6.00
Wheat, White, ₩ bushel	90@	1.00
Wheat, Red, ₩ bushel	1.00@	1.05

ESTATE OF ABBIE GRISWOLD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 30th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of George C. Griswold, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters testamentary thereon be granted to petitioner, executor in said will named, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. A true copy.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. Brown, Probate Register.

ESTATE OF JOSIAH WOODARD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Josiah Woodard, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Chloe Woodard, widow of deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters testamentary may be granted thereon to petitioner and Philip Tolan, nominated executors in said instrument, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. A true copy.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. Brown, Probate Register.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS.

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry,

Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination, with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars, with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:

I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavy-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 3 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $5.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $5.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 5 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Cruden's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (splendid), $1.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 56 cents.
Book of Fables, Aesop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 50 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 50 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by T. B. Aldrich, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Spare Hours Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Smith's Ancient History, $1.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $5.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $3.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 50 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in five editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter or Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.

JOHN R. ALDEN, Manager.

Orders for any of these books may be forwarded through the HERALD OFFICE.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HALEY.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN!

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS.

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.—NO 5. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 24, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1542.

JEWELRY AT BARGAINS!

All who may be in want of Jewelry, Silverware, Clocks, or Watches, will find at my store the largest and finest assortment in the city and at prices which none can undersell.

ALL GOODS AT OLD PRICES,

Notwithstanding the large advances.

Engraving Free of Charge on all goods sold by me.

O. B. DeWOLF.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

LADIES'

READY-MADE GARMENTS,

—FOR—

SPRING & SUMMER.

Circles, English Jackets, Dusters and Ulsters.

ALL NEW AND NOVEL.

A. B. COTTON.

Tupper's Shoes.

Babies Cry for them,

Misses Ask for them,

Young Ladies look at them,

Mothers Buy them,

AND

Fathers Pay for them.

Tupper's Shoes. Tupper's Shoes. Tupper's Shoes.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

CAMBRIDGE.

The large productive fields of corn, oats, barley and wheat never showed a better promise of an abundant yield in the month of June than now.

Our schools are progressing, most of them with excellent teachers.

The R. R. is indefinitely postponed from week to week.

The Episcopal Church, at the Junction, has new seats, which makes it much of an admired improvement.

We have to record the death of Mrs. Derby, at the advanced age of 80 years. She had lived in this neighborhood about 40 years. Five grown up children and her husband had left her for the silent tomb. It is a rare occurrence of a woman at her age without a single relative to convey her to the last resting place.

On Saturday last the young ladies here improved the benefits of a leap year party. About a dozen girls got the best horses and carriages that were ever placed together in this town and took the young beaux to the fashionable watering places of Jackson county. They did not omit the requirements of genteel society and paid the bills, returning home all safe about nine o'clock in the evening. For beauty, style and finish seldom if ever excelled; not one of the company used tobacco or whiskey.

There is a most excellent Sunday School at the Episcopal church every Sunday afternoon, numbering sixty scholars. Mrs. J. B. Keeney, Superintendent, one of the best sunday school managers of the county.

BROOKLYN.

Our talked of railroad has culminated in sidewalks, and a better state of mind prevails among those partial to free tickets and train dresses. It is a public benefit that Uncle Calvin Edwards has labored for for more than four years, and he sits serenely on the front piazza and contemplates the result of perseverence from behind a cloud of smoke.

The new telegraph line does not enlighten us yet. We depend mostly on gossip; that gives a greater variety and more of it to the square, besides being cheaper than obituary poetry at five cents a line.

There was a lawn concert, with ice cream interlude, at Mr. G. P. Cook's last Thursday night. Mrs. Knox sang songs.

Mrs. Desha crossed to the other shore last Sunday. She was the last of her family, and for several years has been cared for by Mrs. Laura Mathias.

Harry T. Perry & Co. have returned from a protracted bridal tour and resumed their every day cotumes.

The moral, that Brooklyn widows substract from love fables at present reads thusly, Don't.

PEARLIE.

FRANKLIN.

We failed to connect with our correspondence last week, owing to the rush of work preparatory to harvesting, being compelled to work almost night and day; but hardly know whether to apologise or congratulate the public on being afforded "a rest" thereby.

Haying is now fairly under way in this vicinity and is being secured in fine condition.

Rev. James Vincent returned last Thursday from a western trip that he enjoyed very much, and entered upon his labors last Sabbath with renewed energy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cook also returned from their visit to Seneca Co., N. Y., well pleased with their visit, but think that part of the country too far from Franklin to ever amount to very much.

The Sabbath school at what is known as the German school district, held a concert last Sunday in charge of the Asst. Supt., Miss Charlotte Hendryx, consisting in part of essays by Mrs. Will Perkins and Mrs. German; music by the school, recitations, etc., was largely attended and enjoyed by all.

Mr. Decker has his wind-mill erected and will have the tank in position in a day or two for the accommodation of the public, which will certainly be a great convenience. The mill is a beauty and indicates that he means business.

Mrs. Pitcher is building an addition to her hotel, and when both houses are in running order we shall be well supplied in that line. Who will be the next to engage in business here where almost any branch of trade might be made remunerative with proper management.

CLINTON.

New drug and fancy store. Dr. Leonard, of New York, has opened a drug and fancy store in the P. O. building.

The town is filling up again with "marsh harvesters" from Deerfield, Riga, etc.

The very next time you give that court the lie, old fellow, you'll pay a fine or lie in the cooler a few days. Remember!

The recent wrangling about saloon-keepers' bonds, garnishees, etc., has brought about twenty lawyers to the front in our midst. We never supposed we had so much legal talent here before.

RIDGEWAY.

Shearing nearly done.

Farmers all busy in hay.

"New Britton" is 1¼ miles east of Ridgeway.

C. A. Sharp now occupies the Santus premises.

Frank Pocklington is laying the foundation of the new Christian church.

Wm. Wilson has added two new barns to his farm buildings.

Rile Miller while shearing sheep at A. Montgomery's Tuesday, accidentally jabbed the shears into his leg below the knee, making a painful wound.

The Ridgeway B. B. C. play at Vancelius' social on Friday afternoon against a nine picked from Milan, Mooreville and Lake Ridge.

Noticeable among the improvments that have been made in the cemetery lately, are those made upon the lot containing the graves of Della and Millard Wright; besides the beautiful monuments the lot has been neatly curbed and tufted. A large white vase has also been set in the lot and filled with growing plants. If the example could be followed the cemetery would soon come out of the weeds and present a beautiful appearance.

The Detroit and Butler, as we call it, is booming, the right of way is being paid for this week, and buildings on the line are being moved out of the way. Ridgeway will be put in R. R. communication with Detroit and Adrian before Christmas, and unless we get the T. & M. one of the things to be taught to the rising generation will be the geographical location of Tecumseh. Don't you forget it.

Put Him Out.

Professor Henry G. Venner, of Montreal, has, during the past year, gone into the business of fortelling the weather, and has made some pretty good hits so that one is rather inclined to attend to his prophesies. Some weeks ago he informed the public that June, taken as a whole, will be an intensely hot month, but that the latter part of May and the first of June will be decidedly winterish. July is going to be a terrible month for storms, with periods of intense heat, with a fall-like relapse, attended by frosts about the 20th. Storms of thunder and hail will be unusually severe during the month of July.

If the Professor cannot do any better than this, even though it be true, we move to have him "abolished," for if the elements are bound to kick up this kind of a disturbance, we shall suffer enough from it when it takes place, without having to bear the torture of anticipation; hence, this is why we say, "put him out."

Cleanliness is one of the highest duties of man. Yet to obey that duty by bathing in anything larger than a wash tub a person has to go outside the city limits. Most of those who indulge in the luxury of a river bath are compelled to walk a distance of upwards of two miles, and often upon reaching the bathing places are in a conditiou unfitted to enter the water caused by their journey thereto. Numerous other cities provide bathing places within their limits and easy of access to their inhabitants.

A NEW train called Special Mighigan Express, has been put on the L. S. & M. S. road. Leaving Toledo at 7:30 A. M., stopping at all stations, arriving at Chicago at 4:40 P. M. The morning train south on the Jackson branch connects with this train at Lenawee Junction. This will give the people a better route to Chicago, as under the old arrangements they were obliged to "lay over" at Adrian for several hours, and they now arrive in Chicago two hours earlier than before.

ROBERT SANDS, of Adrian, aged 23 years, came to his death in a sudden and fearful manner, in that city, on Friday night of last week. It is supposed he was intoxicated, and was resting on the track, when a passing freight ran over him, crushing his body in a frightful manner.

RAISIN VALLEY SEMINARY.

Exercises of the Graduating Class held last Friday.

The regular annual commencement exercises of the Raisin Valley Seminary, were held on Friday forenoon of last week. The weather was delightful and hence visitors were present in large numbers from all the surrounding towns. The large chapel room in which the exercises were held was beautifully trimmed with evergreen festoons and mottoes. The mottoes were placed over the platform and at the end thereof in these words, No Trace Backward; No Returning Footsteps; The End is the Beginning.—The photographs of the graduating class were hung on the wall. Altho' this room is much larger than they need on ordinary occasions, it proved to be too small last Friday. The room was literally packed with students, graduates and visitors and the crowd overflowed into an adjoining recitation room at one end of the stage and out of doors. There was a great profusion of boquets, and each graduate received from three to a dozen of those flowery tokens.

THE PROGRAM

of exercises began at 10 A. M. and was presented in the following order:

Prayer.
Music.
Sanitary Science—Ralph D. Webb, of Adrian.
Sweet Wine Makes Sharp Vinegar Lottie L. Simmons, Tipton.
Song—Clement Lester.
Sixteen Hundred and Twenty—Thomas S. Boyd, Ridgeway.
Mountaineers Are Always Freemen—Emma M. Palmer, Adrian.
Music, Instrumental—B. J. Collar.
Love of Applause—Norris J. Morey, Springville.
Imagination in the Historian—Laura B. Strong, Elkhart, Ind.
Song—Josie Colvin.
Ancient and Modern Commerce—Lynn S. Brown, Adrian.
Respice Finem—Sarah B. Stanley, Adrian.
Giving Diplomas.
Class Song.
Address to the Class—Prof. O. G. Owen, of Lapeer.

The program was highly creditable from first to last, and the address by Prof. Owen, although quite lengthy, was well received. We present below a brief synopsis of the essays which will sufficiently show their character:

SANITARY SCIENCE.

The progress of mankind toward a knowledge and use of sanitary science was described. This science has taught us that it is cheaper to prevent disease than to cure it; that we can make our dwelling house comfortable and healthful at the same time; it has taught us the food to eat and the clothes to wear. In a century it has added five years to the average life of man, and its triumphs have but just begun.

SWEET WINE MAKES SHARP VINEGAR.

The pleasures and excesses of youth often change into the sharp and bitter experiences of old age. Let the wine of life be not too much sweetened.—But let it be kept and cared for so that in the later days it may be said of us as it was said of old, "Thou has kept the good wine till now."

SIXTEEN HUNDRED AND TWENTY.

The result of two events, in 1620, the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers and the bringing of the first cargo of slaves to this country, was traced. The self-denying character impressed upon the people of the north by the former event, and the opposite influence produced on the south, was referred to.—The conflict of these two diverse influences was inevitable, and resulted in the civil war of '61.

MOUNTAINEERS ARE ALWAYS FREEMEN.

The stalwart characteristics of mountaineers, as shown by history of every era, were graphically described. One cause of the bravery of this class of men is their isolation from the world, and their refusal to bow to any ruler save Him who placed the mountains in their majestic grandeur. On the mountain one is above the petty thoughts and influences of the lower world.

THE LOVE OF APPLAUSE.

The actions of man are the result of the motives of his mind. The various motives which have led to great victories, great results in science and statesmanship were described in detail—prominent among the motives of action is the love of applause, from which result foolhardy deeds and unworthy actions in every profession. A motive not of the purest nature will never lead to the best results. We should have a proper respect for public applause, and be governed to a certain extent by it.

IMAGINATION IN THE HISTORIAN.

The duty of the historian is not simply to record events in their sequence but to mirror the thought of the nation. As the geologist finding a fossil bone restores the form of the extinct animal, so the true historian gives back to us the life of the nation. Poets, under the names of bards and chroniclers were the first historians. By successive gradations the ideas of history advanced until to-day the historian fills out his store of facts with the resources of his imagination. But the imagination should be carefully guarded, and held in check as a servant, never allowed to become the master, or to excuse the historian from the laborious gathering of facts.

ANCIENT AND MODERN COMMERCE.

According to most authentic sources commerce must have been known fifteen centuries before profane history. Commerce and civilization have always gone hand in hand, and to-day they are more so each other than ever before. The sub-division of labor has as yet found no limit. Commerce gave rise to the medium of exchange money. The young gentleman gave a definition of money, and showed that he had some very sound and correct notions on this subject.

RESPICE FINIM.

("Looking Toward the End.") The value of any pursuit, or of life itself, can only be determined by the end.—We count him happy whose vision is clearest to see the end from the beginning. Life is a bundle of facts, each complete in itself and having a place in the final result. Fortunate, indeed, are we if we are able to appreciate the [illegible] ing on the threshold of life can appreciate as he could not before, the result of honest work. His education has merely given him a starting point to begin work. Classmates, to-day we pass a milestone in the journey of our life. Together we have striven, together we have reached the end of our sojourn here. The essayist closed with a few well-chosen words in regard to the kind treatment which the class had received at the institution, and the joy with which they should meet each other at the annual reunions.

THE CONTRACT LET.

Detroit Post & Tribune, June 22d:—The contract for the building of the Detroit and Butler road was let yesterday to Gen. J. S. and D. T. Casement, of Painesville, Ohio. The contract covers the entire work, including grading, furnishing ties, laying track, bridging, ballasting, fencing, etc. By the terms of the contract the work is to be wholly completed by the 15th of December next.

Gen. Casement has a reputation as a railroad builder. He constructed the Union Pacific at the rate of speed which attracted the attention of the whole country. He built the Canada Southern and has had experience upon other roads. His name is sufficient guarantee that the work will be not only put through on the double-quick, but that it will be well and thoroughly done. The intention is to put as many men at work as can be possibly employed. They will operate from each end and at various points along the whole line simultaneously. About three-fourths of the right of way has been already secured, and negotiations are in active progress for the remainder. The road will start from Detroit junction and bear to the south-westward passing through Belleville, in this county, and thence direct to Adrian.

The men and material will be got on the ground at the earliest possible moment, and the dirt will fly in earnest. It is expected that the cars will be running between this city and Adrian by the 1st of September.

This announcement will be received with undisguised satisfaction by all those who have earnestly labored in behalf of this project. The building of the road is assured beyond all question, and the fact that it is to be put through at good speed and the road made available for the present year is one of the most satisfactory things about it.

School Picnic.

The school in District No. 1, of Raisin, held a picnic in Conkling's grove last Thursday afternoon, on the occasion of the close of the spring term of school. The grove is a very fine one for an entertainment of this kind, and a goodly number of people assembled to partake in the festivities. The Raisin band was present and furnished good music for the occasion. A short literary program was given about four o'clock in the afternoon, consisting of instrumental and vocal music and short speeches. It was expected that the township superintendents of Tecumseh, Ridgeway and Raisin would be present, but those of the two former towns were unable to attend. Mr. Albert L. Arner, of Raisin, made a brief but very appropriate address, and the closing remarks by Mr. John Conkling, the Director, were exceedingly good and right to the point. A bountiful picnic dinner was then served, to which the assembled crowd did ample justice. The school has been conducted for the past two terms by Miss Manie Monaghan, who has been very successful. She has had the valuable assistance, however, of the officers of the district, who have been untiring in their efforts to make their school one of the best in Lenawee county.

A soldiers' picnic will be held in Hillsdale some time about the first of next August. Why would it not be a good thing in this county, also?

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

For the Herald.

JUNE ON THE PRAIRIES.

The sun in robes of evening brightness,
Looks down with radiant, cheerless glance of splendor
Upon the sea of waving, dewy-enamled grasses,
And fragrance sweet has vanished.

The golden promise of approaching harvest,
Are brightly gleaming there the ethereal wave,
While interspersed in opulent, darkling verdure,
The sunflower, golden, shows her growing beauty.

Up through the flowers—queen royal, with fairer Bloomers.

A long, plaintive wood appearing,
Fantastic changing shape, now broke in twain,
A moment stay at its fast-waning towering
Then with the total mirage of the plain.

Beautiful land! for one brief troubled season,
I loved thee, but now farewell! farewell!
Shades of the mystic past and hovering o'er thee,
Joy, fame and wealth shall with thee henceforth Dwell.

MRS. W.

A WASTED LIFE

It was just after the conquest of Britain by William the Conqueror, when one morning a strange sight was to be seen upon the Thames at the point where now stands the Houses of Parliament.

A vast crowd was congregating on the northern bank—so vast that the Norman Guards on sentry on the spot where now stands Westminister Hall became doubtful of what was happening, and gave the alarm.

A company of Normans was at once marched to the palace.

They were but few men, yet quite capable of contending with a larger crowd of the Londoners, for the latter had been deprived of all arms, and had been forbidden, under pain of death, to assemble in numbers.

The Captain of the guard saw, however, that the greater portion of the crowd was composed of women and children, and at once was reassured.

"What is the cause of this crowding?" he asked of a loud-tongued woman, who was haranguing those standing about her.

"It is Albra, the wife of Vindor, who wishes to prove that she is an honest woman."

"How so?"

"By the test of the shield."

The Captain turned to his men.

"Disband," he said, "and go among the people. At the least sign of a rising come to me with the news. Again, if ye hear the Castle bell, at once fall back and join me in the court-yard. Methinks the excitement has little to do with us or the King."

Near the water stood a man and woman, both of whom were young—the man handsome, the woman very beautiful.

Between them they carry a shield upon which was stretched an infant, whose age could not have been many days.

The man was evidently troubled and gloomy, while the woman, though pale, was perfectly calm.

Where they stood, the river ran at a rapid pace.

Around them the people stood eager and excited, for they knew what was about to happen.

"Who is he?" asked one.

"He is Vindor," was the reply; "and once master of the men-at-arms to the Thane of Buckingham. Now he is a servant to his old master, who lives here in London. All he possesses of his old arms is the shield upon which the child lies."

"Whose child is it?"

"Ay, there is the point upon which Vindor is doubtful!"

"How so?"

"You see that he is fair, like most Saxons; while his wife is fairer still. Now look at the little child cooing in its strange cot, and you will remark that his hair is black, and that his skin is dark."

"That's so."

"Vindor, troubled in his mind by a suggestion of an old friend, doubts his wife, has told her so, and she is appealing to the old gods of Anglo-Saxonia to prove her innocence. But mark, they are speaking!"

Thereupon Vindor, growing still gloomier, approached his wife, and said to her, "Behold, the moment has arrived!"

"Thou wilt have it so?" asked Albra. "Is it still thy wish?"

"Yes," replied the gloomy man. "Let the old gods of the land decide whether or not this child is mine."

"Then let it be as thou wilt," said Albra, "and the shame and disgrace be with you."

The husband took the shield upon which lay the child—now dozing.

Vindor walked into the swift-flowing river, and up to his waist, raised the child and shield over his head for a moment, turned once again toward his wife, as though menacing her with the deed he was about to commit.

Meanwhile she, with head erect and an assured aspect, stood at the edge of the water, motionless as a statue, with arms closed upon her breast.

As he looked at her, she stretched out her hand toward her husband, and said, in a loud and haughty voice:

"Do not hesitate!"

And now the crowd began to heave and rock, while a low murmur was heard, like a threat, ascending from among the assembled people. For, as the woman spoke, the gloomy man lowered the strange cradle, placed it lightly on the running water, and let it and the child float away down the stream.

Scarcely, however, had the shield moved a yard away from the doubting man, when Vindor, as though nature had suddenly reproached him, raised his clasped and trembling hands, imploring heavenly help.

He followed the course of the shield with great eagerness, despite his evident desire to control his emotion, and bending anxiously forward in the direction it was taking.

The mother, on the contrary, remained quite calm; her arms crossed on her bosom, her eyes following the course of the shield with a firm and tranquil look, so quiet and unmoved that she appeared to fear nothing for her child's safety.

Twice were the shield and child nearly swallowed up in the waters.

The mother alone did not flinch among all who watched this test.

Twice then, again, the shield was seen tranquilly descending the current.

All present clapped their hands, and shouted, "The boat! the boat!"

Two men rushed forward, launched a bark into the river, and, rowing rapidly, soon reached the shield, and drew it from the water.

The motion of the water had soothed the child, and rocked it to sleep—a [illegible] things which, in all probability, was the cause of its safety, for had the child moved at all the frail craft must have been overturned.

Now, as the shield was taken from the water, Vindor, whose face had become as bright and hopeful as it had previously been gloomy and foreboding, ran toward his wife, his arms outstretched, calling, "Albra, Albra, thou art my faithful wife!"

But she showed no sign of responding to his welcome.

"Stand back," she said. "I have been suspected, and cannot forgive!"

It was a custom with the wives of the ancient Saxons thus to prove their innocence when suspected by their husbands.

If the shield did not sink, then the wife was innocent; while if it and the child went below the water, then she was considered guilty, and, as a rule, leaped into the water after her sacrificed child.

They were, indeed, strange and terrible times in which to live.

As we have said, the wife Albra showed neither signs of joy nor forgiveness.

At this moment, a handsome, dark man thrust himself forward, crying, "Fair Sister Albra, what dost thou here by the side of the river?"

Vindor, looking at the new-comer, trembled.

"Did I not tell thee," said Albra, "that many of my people were dark? See, here is my brother, who has been in Gaul these five years. Is not he dark? Our infant is like my father's people."

"Wife—dear wife!" cried Vindor.

"No longer wife of thine," she said. "A woman outraged is a woman lost. Good-by—good-by!"

And, before any one there had a complete knowledge of what she was about to do, she had leaped into the fast flowing river.

Twenty men rushed into the river after her, nor was she immersed during more than a score of seconds. But when they removed her from the stream she was dead.

In all probability her heart had broken. Certainly she had not been long enough in the water to account for her death by way of drowning.

Sad, indeed, did the sun set upon Vindor that night. They had bound him with cords, that he might not do himself injury, perhaps even to the taking away of his own life.

He neither spoke nor stirred. Again and again his friends addressed him, reminding the wretched man that he was a warrior, and that he must live for the sake of that vengeance, which it was hoped by the Saxons they would take against the Normans.

But he answered not, nor responded even by a look. His senses appeared to be completely dormant.

At last, his mother, an ageing and wise woman of her kind, took the infant and, placing the little hand upon the father's neck, whispered:

"Son, live for your child's sake."

Then he trembled, and the great down-pour of tears saved him from the stony, horrid death which had been slowly creeping over him.

He lived, but lost the love, as he lost the habit, of work, and what little wealth he possessed dwindled away.

Fortunately his two brothers were men, of steady industry, and, only one of them being married, the little child Roth was well cared for. Vindor lived only to be revenged.

No man yet who lived only for vengeance but punished himself far more than he did his enemy.

Therein lies the wisdom of forgiveness, which of course does not mean renewed trustfulness. By forgiving your enemy you clear the air for your [illegible]

I shall never cease to hate Sir Roland until I see him dead!"

This oath Vindor took over his wife's grave as they lowered her poor body to its last resting place.

Sir Roland, when riding past Vindor's house one day had seen him playing with his little child, and said that which had aroused the father's jealousy and had led him to accuse his wife of infidelity.

You know to what these few light words on the path of the Norman knight had led.

The sudden appearance of his wife's brother had more thoroughly convinced Vindor of the error of his mistrust than had even the test of the shield.

A month after the death of his wife he said to his mother Ulfaa:

"I am going away from London, mother."

"Why, my son?"

"I cannot rest here."

"Go you to the North?"

"Ay, mother."

"To Richmount?"

"Yes, mother."

"That is whither Sir Roland de Bois has gone."

He nodded.

"Take heed, fair son. They will wear away thy life with the thought of vengeance. Perhaps the Norman meant no harm when speaking as he did."

"But my fair young wife died, good mother."

"That is true. But remember she was a haughty woman. Had she been wiser, she would have laughed at thee, and so cleared away thy jealousy."

"But she is dead!"

"Work for thy child. Do not waste thy life in thoughts of vengeance."

"I must follow Sir Roland de Bois into the North."

"Thou art thine own master, but dost use thy mastership unwisely."

"And wilt thou care for my little Roth while I am away?"

"Most surely. Is he not, dear son, as my own? Is he not my son?"

Next morning Vindor was gone, and never through five years did they once hear from him.

Even his mother Ulfaa had grown to believe him dead.

Little Roth, then nearly six years old, had heard of his father, had been told of his life, and often declared that he would be a brave man, like his sire.

Ulfaa and her husband, loved the child, as indeed did Gurth and his wife Borsa, who had no children of their own.

Elsay, the youngest child of the old people, petted the boy, and her lover Edwy made his life happier.

One day, as the sun was setting on the other side of the river, Roth being at play near the house door of his former grandfather's house, saw a beggar approaching.

He looked old, and was bent. His long hair streamed over his shoulder, and his tunic was worn and tattered.

His bare legs were tanned by exposure to the sun, and his feet were cut and bruised.

"Will you have some bread and water?" asked the child.

"It is my son!" cried the beggar, falling upon his knees and embracing the little child.

"Grandam!—grandam!" called the boy. "Father has come home, and he does not move!"

The unhappy man had fainted.

When again he knew himself, he was lying on a soft sheep-skin, spread over a mattress. His cut feet had been bathed, and his family had made him as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

"Mother!—father!" he said, looking about him wildly. "Ha! I am home once more before I die!"

"Die, my son?" said his mother.

"Yes! of remorse!" he replied. "I cannot live, I thank Heaven, which has allowed me to return home before I made an end of life. Above all, I bless Heaven that I can read my son a lesson, and that he is old enough and intelligent enough to comprehend me."

They gathered about him, his brother Gurth playing lightly with the stick which had accompanied Vindor in his wanderings, while his father, his sister Elsay and his youngest brother Edwy drew near.

"Where is my son?" he asked.

His mother, Ulfaa, who had not the courage to look her dying and favorite son in the face, and who was standing behind the bed, made a sign, and Borsa, Gurth's wife, led the bright little fellow forward.

Then thus spoke Vindor:

"My son, never seek to be revenged upon your enemy. Leave him to himself. All bad men suffer, and by killing them you will relieve them from their suffering. But that is not the danger. The desire for revenge kills you yourself. I am dying, first, by reason of my hate toward Sir Roland de Bois; and, in the second place, because my remorse is so great in having killed a good man."

All started.

"What do I hear?" asked his mother. "You have, in your blind vengeance, killed a human being?"

"Ay, mother! Sir Roland had a cousin of the same name, and much like him in appearance—though unlike him in character—for he was a good man. I followed Sir Roland for years, wearing out my life, and, only a month since, in the twilight, I mistook one for the other, and killed one of the few Norman gentlemen who have been kind and just in their dealings with us Saxons."

"Heaven forgive thee!" said Vindor's father.

"And now, my son," continued the victim of his own desire for vengeance, "I am come home to die! Do not forget what I say. Forgive! Do not bear vengeance, and be a good man. Come to me," he added, stretching out his hand.

The child held out his left hand, and approached his father.

"Remember!" he said; and then quietly his head fell back.

He was dead.

A GIRL'S DIARY.

March 15.—I must buy to-day:
Some cologne.
Some hair pins.
Some ruche lace.
Some satin gloss for shoes.

March 16.—Dear me! I'm always out of something. To-day I must—
Look for material for spring dress.
Pair of—
Bottle of vaseline.
Teeth powder.
Face powder.
New tooth-brush.

In addition, I was tempted into buying two of those beautiful new bows and a penknife.

March 17.—I've nearly decided on the material for one dress. It's more expensive than I expected, but I must have it. Bought to-day:
Four yards of new ribbon.
Two pair four-button kids.
Pair house slippers.
Pair new corsets.
New celluloid comb for front hair.
Tortoise shell pin for back hair.
Two pair cuffs.
Three collars.
One paper dress pattern.
One paper pattern for jacket.
Leather belt and pocket.
Needles and thread.
Worsted for fancy work.
Two lace ties.

March 18.—I don't think I want anything to-day. I'm going out, though, to look at the goods in the shop windows. Bought, unexpectedly, March 18:
Material for three spring dresses.
Lining for ditto.
Persian trimming for ditto.
Pair of rubber overshoes.
Pair new scissors.
New feather for hat.
New hat.
New traveling bag.
New clasp for ulster.
Bottle of smelling salts.
Three pairs of cheap gloves
Two lace ties.
Spring parasol.

March 19.—It's time I ordered another pair of shoes. My best silk is really getting shabby. And I must go out to-day, for I'm out of pins!—New York Graphic.

From the Sturgis, Mich., Weekly: Mr. John Brast, living in Sherman township, informed us a few days ago that his feet had been so terribly frost-bitten that he could hardly stand the pains caused thereby. He happened to think of St. Jacobs Oil—which he always keeps handy—rubbed his feet twice with the remedy, and the pain disappeared entirely. He not only values St. Jacobs Oil as an unexcelled remedy for a great many other painful diseases, to which mankind is subject, but he also asserts that it is really invaluable for the many diseases horses and stock are subject to, and which so often play havoc with the prospects of the farmer and stock-raiser.

POLITE JOHNNY.

"Now, Johnny," said Mrs. Smith to her little boy, as she combed his hair to go to school for the first time, "when anybody asks your name, be sure and say Johnny Smith."

"I will," replied Johnny.

"And don't forget to say 'Yes, sir, and 'No, sir,' when anybody asks you a question."

"I'll remember," said Johnny, confidently.

On the way to school he met a lady.

"Good morning, little boy," she said; "what is your name?"

"Johnny Smith, yes, sir; no, sir."

At last our druggists are supplied with that wonderful new life-giving principle, Electric Bitters, that are producing such remarkable cures all over the land. They are an invariable cure for General Debility, Billiousness, Stomach and Liver complaints, depressed spirits, dull and languid feeling, producing new life and activity wherever they are used. Ask your druggist for Electric Bitters. Price fifty cents. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

The trouble with the ten cent chunk of ice this year is that it has been halved in size and doubled in price.

SILVERS'
7th ANNUAL Spring Announcement!!
On Saturday, April 10th, 1880,
We shall place on Exhibition for Public Inspection the largest and best assortment of Clothing!
Hats & Caps, Boots & Shoes,
AND GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS,
Ever offered in this market. We wish to call the special attention of our many Tecumseh and Franklin customers to the fact that
OUR STOCK OF SUITINGS,
For Men, Youths, Boys and Children,
Was never so complete in all its appointments as now.
REMEMBER, We don't ask you to pay any Advance on our Goods, as small concerns are doing, as our goods were all bought in the early Season and at last year's prices.
D. H. SILVERS.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!
READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!
Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.
Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up,
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.
Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnish-Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the
Old Reliable, ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,
71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JOE. WILSON,'
This is the Name to Remember
WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY
Boots & Shoes.
HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH
BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.
An Inspection is Solicited.
We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.
CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.
JOE. WILSON.

FINE FURNITURE!
Buyers of Furniture can save 15 to 20 per cent. by purchasing at the shop of
RICHARD CALDWELL.
He makes a Specialty of Extension Tables. Furniture of all kinds made to order and repaired promptly at Reasonable Rates.
ALL WORK WARRANTED.
Shop and Sale Room at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Pearl St.
Highest Market Price Paid for all kinds of Furniture Lumber.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,
EVERY DAY AT
JAMES LOWRY'S
GROCERY STORE.
ALSO ALL KINDS OF
Groceries and Provisions.
CALL AND SEE THE
CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. H. Wooden, Notary Public. Rooms over Postoffice.

WOODWORTH & WOODWORTH, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE, Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Horton Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. U. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Conveyancer. Collections a specialty. Office in Long Block, Brooklyn Block.

P. S. McINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

EMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel,) GEO. H. EMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY, A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing, Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS, H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machines, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent, District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET, J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET, JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Halton & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

8 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice, in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—One lot, twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. S. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building.

DETROIT, MICH.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Sets things right—the hen.

The jockey leans on a 2:40 gait.

Every tramp carries a roamin' nose.

Something to add mire—a street sprinkler.

When a slow eater calls for catchup he means business.

The school children are opposed to a third term this spring.

Speaking of reptiles, is "Lauderford air the flowing bowl," a treat ode?

The speculator may shape his course by the rise in cotton. The cotton will help the shape.

"What do you most like next to yourself?" asks an exchange. A gauze silk undershirt, if the weather is very hot.

"I don't mean to reflect on you," said one man to another. "No," was the reply, "you're not polished enough to reflect upon anybody."

A tourist in Virginia says he has been informed that wherever an old Virginian is buried a bed of mint springs up.

The men folks complain of climbing to the upper stories, but a woman can get up stares easily enough, if she is good looking.

"What is the worst thing about riches?" asked the Sunday school superintendent. And the new boy said: "Their scarcity."

The proprietor of a Louisville bone factory announces that persons leaving their bones with him can have them ground at short notice.

Philadelphia clergymen state that the commandment against swearing was gotten up before croquet was invented.

A wife should preserve the honor of her husband's name, for frequently that is all he has ever given her worth mentioning.

There are more watches worn in the United States than in any other country. Of course the people have a better time.

American Ball-Blue is a product of science applied to the housekeeper's wants. Pure, harmless, and of beautiful effect. Try it!

The puzzle blocks originated in Philadelphia, where the blocks of houses are so much alike that a man is puzzled to know when he gets home.

The Philadelphia North American tells of a man given up by the doctors. When a man is given up by the Philadelphia doctors it is strong evidence that his money is all gone.

Never be afraid of a man who challenges you to fight a duel. He will feel all that you can feel, and more too. The man who rushes at you with a spade is the chap to look out for.

Photographer—"Now, sir, if you'd look a little less as though you had a bill to meet, and a little more, as if you'd been left a legacy, you'll be a picture."

Because strawberries are small, it does not follow that there are more of them to the quart, for the quart is frequently made smaller to match the strawberries.

It is a mean farmer who, in order to get his hired man quickly from the house to the field, will start 'em on the run by sending his boy ahead to blow a dinner horn.

A Scotchman asked an Irishman, "Why were half farthings coined in England?" Pat's answer was: "To give Scotchmen an opportunity to subscribe to charitable institutions."

A HOUSEHOLD NEED.

A book on the Liver, its diseases and their treatment sent free. Including treatises upon Liver Complaints, Torpid Liver, Jaundice, Billiousness, Headache, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Malaria, etc. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

Chowder got a good dinner at home a few days ago by telling his wife that he was going to bring a judge home with him to that meal. When he arrived alone, and Mrs. Chowder asked him where the judge was, he triumphantly pointed to himself, remarking: "I'm a good judge of a dinner." He will be obliged to get a dinner in some other way hereafter.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

Free of Cost.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, etc., is given away in trial bottles free of cost to the afflicted. If you have a severe cough, cold, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness or any affection of the throat or lungs by all means give this wonderful remedy a trial. As you value your existence you cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. We cannot afford, and would not give the remedy away unless we knew it would accomplish what we claim for it. Thousands of hopeless cases have already been completely cured by it. There is no medicine in the world that will cure one-half the cases that Dr. King's New Discovery will cure. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

WHEN the catterpillars pitch their tent in the orchard, let the boys load the old shot-gun with powder only, and blow them out of the trees. It is a quick and easy way, and however hard on the "pillars" will be fun for the boys, and much better than having them kill the useful little birds.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

UNDER the new postal law parties have the privilege of writing upon both sides of postal cards, provided they do not exclude the name and address by writing over it. There must be space enough for the name, so that it can be intelligently read by postmasters.

ALL ENDORSE IT.

The Recorder, Americus, Ga., says: "Clerks, Senators, Representatives, Doctors, Lawyers, Citizens, in public or private life, are testifying by the thousands, and over their own signatures, that a remedy has been found for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys and for Diabetes; these are respectively known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure and Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure."

IT is proposed that the public schools of this state shall make exhibits at the coming state fair, and teachers and others desiring information on the matter will do well to write to C. A. Gower, state superintendent of public instruction, who will furnish said information.

UNQUESTIONABLE.

The Herald, Detroit, Mich., says of Warner's Safe Liver and Kidney Cure: "Its efficacy in kidney, liver and urinary diseases is so fully acknowledged that it is not worth the questioning. Bona fide testimonials from well known citizens in public and private life are evidences strong enough to convince the most stubborn doubter."

IF cut-worms attack the plants, the stems may be surrounded with paper, but the surest and most effectual way is to go through the garden early in the morning, and when you see a plant cut off look for the worm which will be found on or just under the surface, near the plant eaten.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

THE president's gavel, used at the Chicago convention, is of historic timber. The hammer is made of wood from the old home of Lincoln, at Springfield, and the handle from a tree that shadows the ashes of Washington, at Mt. Vernon.

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions, with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

THE balance of cash in the State treasury May 29th, 1880, was $1,189,822.52. Receipts for the week ending June 5th was $29,748.50.; payments for the same time, $11,601.67; leaving a balance June 5, 1880, of $1,207,969.38; increase for the week, $18,146.86.

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

THE NEW BY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.

Guaranteed.

SINGLY POWDERED. REGULY PREPARED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 15 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best results follow its use.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the annoyance, inconvenience, and waste of dipping from flying particles, as with other Lyes, which, being sold in tin cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents, with other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 98 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

G. T. Lewis & Menzies Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, Highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 335 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?

Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?

Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a package at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and One Package makes 12 quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, (Will send post paid.) Burlington, Vt.

USED ALL THE YEAR ROUND!

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA,

—FOR—

LIVER COMPLAINT

—AND—

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 22 years and has been proved to be the best preparation in the market for Sick Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Liver Complaint, Pimples on the Face, Dyspepsia, Piles, and all diseases that arise from a disordered Liver or an impure blood. Thousands of our best people take it and give it to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily. Those who use it once recommend it to others. It is the most delicate and cannot hurt one of the best constitution. It is for regulating the medicine in use by all responsible Bowels. It is sold druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers.

DETROIT, MICH. AMHERSTBURG, ONT.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

I AM THE EXCLUSIVE AGENT FOR THE

Hammock RECLINING CHAIR!

—ALL KINDS OF—

FURNITURE

—VERY CHEAP.—

CALL AND EXAMINE.

A. W. SLAYTON, Furniture Dealer, Tecumseh.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and

MARVELOUS for easily superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 4 to 12 horse power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

38 Years of Progressive and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our Vibrator Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and gain of inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED

by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh, - - Michigan.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Evening.

BY S. C. STACY.

Office in the New HERALD BUILDING, One door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One year (Cash in advance) $1 50
Six Months 75
Four Months 50

Twenty Cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES:

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births and Death Notices free.

Rates on General Advertising, or item contracts made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents' names are invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JUNE 24, 1880.

THE T. & M. RAILROAD.

The Adrian Times of last Tuesday has this significant item:

"J. A. Latcha, president of the Toledo & Milwaukee railroad company, desires to meet the citizens of Adrian, at the office of the Michigan State Insurance Co., at 7 o'clock to-night."

Now this means that Adrian is working for this road, just as we have been satisfied of for the past two months. A responsible business man of Tecumseh was at Adrian yesterday and he learned upon enquiry that a meeting was held on Tuesday evening, also that a committee was going to work at once in the city of Adrian to ascertain what could be raised there. Delegations from Rome and Adrian towns have visited the city lately and a movement is now on foot to run a line from Addison south of Devil's Lake, through Rome Center to Adrian. Whether this line will be adopted or not is uncertain, but it is absolutely certain that Adrian will get it unless Tecumseh and Franklin take vigorous steps forthwith to prevent it. And yet with this peril starring us in the face there are several wealthy men in Tecumseh and Franklin who still refuse to aid this enterprise one dollar. Not only that, but men who have heretofore promised the right of way, are now attempting to repudiate their promises. Two or three wealthy men in Tecumseh who will be benefited thousands of dollars by this road, are attempting to bleed the company on right of way, when they know that every dollar exacted by them for that purpose will come out of the pockets of their fellow citizens. How sensible, intelligent men can thus deliberately block the road to the business progress of our community is a mistery to us.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

The National Democratic Convention assembled at Cincinnati last Tuesday. Tuesday and Wednesday were consumed in organization, hearing the reports of committees, etc., and one ballot was reached yesterday evening just before adjournment. A positive declination from Seymour and a withdrawal from Tilden has placed both of them out of the race, although they both received a few votes on the first ballot. Below is the first ballot in detail as received by telegraph here last evening.

Field 65, Bayard 163½, Morrison 62, Hendricks 49½, Thurman 68, Hancock 171, Payne 81, McDonald 3, Loveland 5, Seymour 8, McClellan 2, Jewett 1, English 1, Randall 3, Lothrop 1, Tilden 38, Parker 1, Black 1.

This morning the roll of States was called on the second ballot and Hancock, who led the list last night, continued to gain. Several States changed to Hancock before the ballot was completed, and finally it was announced as Hancock, 705; Hendryx, 30; Bayard, 34, Tilden, 1. The nomination of Gen. Hancock was then made unanimous. At the time of going to press, no news has been received of the balloting for Vice-President.

THE ALUMNI RE-UNION.

The regular annual re-union of the High School Alumni will take place at the Opera House to-morrow evening. The business meeting will be held at 7 o'clock P. M. The literary exercises will commence at 7:45, and will consist of the following:

Solo—Mrs. L. I. Bidwell.
Prayer—Rev. Wm. Grandy.
President's Welcome—C. S. Fitzsimmons.
Response—Albert L. Arner.
Oration—Fred B. Wood.
Duet—Misses Anderson and McConnell.
Poem—Miss Clara Waldron.
Essay—Miss Jennie Frazer.
History—G. P. Waring.
Solo—Mrs. C. H. McConnell.

Supper at Sink's Hotel at 10 o'clock P. M., to be followed with toasts.

OUR farmer friends are marketing their wool now, and we hope that in doing so they will not fail to call and settle that little matter of subscription that they have been meaning to pay for a long time. New subscriptions are also always in order in wool time.

Billet Doux: "Why can't Adrian have a young men's christian association?" Well, principally for the lack of material; certainly not for want of young men.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

CONGRESS ASLEEP.

The Electoral Count Rule—Cincinnati Convention—Agricultural Appropriation.

Washington, June 18, 1880.

For several days an early dissolution of Congress has been indicated by everything about the Capitol. It has been entirely routine business in both houses, bearing a little filibustering over the electoral count joint rule. The few reporters in the galleries have lolled around in their seats with a listless sort of air, finding nothing for their hands to do. The committee rooms are deserted, the familiar faces of habitual visitors who come regularly on business, or to loaf around and write letters being seen no more, and the clerks have been busy packing documents, mailing speeches, packing up ready to leave for home, while Senators and Representatives have been frequently visiting the departments attending to business of their constituents. This has been the aspect of affairs about Washington during the past week.

The Democrats realize that they committed a great blunder in passing the resolution to adjourn while the electoral count rule was still pending, as it gave the Republicans power to defeat that measure by filibustering. Consideration of the subject has therefore been postponed until next December. At that time the result of the election will be known, and should it be involved in doubt, like the last election, there would be great difficulty in passing a measure satisfactory to both sides. The situation would then be the same as it was four years ago. This should have been provided against. I do not think the Republicans were any more wise in opposing the new joint rule than the Democrats were in getting caught in the trap. Their position, however, is that the matter should be determined by a law of Congress and not by a joint rule, the latter, they claim, not being binding upon any except members of the two houses. This position the Democrats dispute and contend that if Congress has power to count the vote at all it has power to determine the method of procedure, and they refer to the fact that just such a rule—the famous 22d joint rule—was used by the Republicans through several successive elections. Thus the matter stands at present, and it is to be hoped that the election will be so decisive as to render useless all technicalities and disagreements.

The interest of the Democrats now centers upon Cincinnati and to a disinterested spectator it looks as though things were a good deal mixed. There is quite an outcry for Seymour as a candidate and if he would accept I think he could have the nomination, but he persists in refusing and as the matter stands I don't see how anybody can tell who is to be the man. There are many names mentioned but none of them seem to have much of a following. Tilden is ahead, but there is so much opposition to him I don't think he can gain much. But "if it is not Tilden who in—is it," is what they all say around here. We will have to give it up and wait for the convention to answer that conundrum. One thing seems reasonably certain; if a good nomination is made we shall have a lively campaign.

The agricultural appropriation bill, as finally passed by both houses, contains a compromise appropriation of $7,500 for experiments in the manufacture of sugar from sorghum and corn-stalk, and makes provision for one additional chemist, instead of three, as proposed by the Senate. The requirement that an "equal proportion" of seeds be distributed among Senators, Representatives, and Delegates is amended so as to provide that "an equal proportion of three-fourths of all seeds, plants and cuttings shall, upon their request, be supplied to Senators, Representatives and Delegates in Congress for distribution among their agricultural constituents, or shall, by their direction, be sent to their constituents."

Secretary Evarts will deal promptly and decisively with the Spanish government in the matter of the firing by a Spanish man-of-war on two American schooners—the Ethel Merritt and Eunice Newcomb. He has already looked into the case of the Merritt and finds that there is no shadow of excuse for the outrage on her. The vessel was on her proper and natural course. She was precisely where she ought to have been, and even had she been much nearer the coast there would have been no excuse for the attack on her. The Spanish government is not at war, and it would hold it an extremely unfriendly act if this government were to grant beligerent rights to the Cuban insurgents. Yet such attacks as these on our ships have no excuse in time of peace, and if they were continued would make it necessary for our government in self-defence to take public notice of the state of war existing on the island of Cuba. Mr. Evarts, it is quite certain, means to act vigorously in the matter.

DOM PEDRO.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

The Biggest Festival.

New York Tribune.—The biggest Cincinnati musical festival of all will open Tuesday. It will easily be heard a hundred miles away.

A Possible Issue.

Philadelphia Times.—If Tilden should be nominated against Garfield, the campaign would resolve itself into a contest between the pocket dictionary and Oakes Ames' memorandum book.

Concession Wanted.

Cincinnati Enquirer.—Ohio and Indiana lead the column in October. They are both important in the matter of representation on the National ticket; but there are not enough places to go around, unless there is a spirit of concession from the regions of the rising and setting sun.

Reprints From Patent Medicine Cuts.

New Haven Register.—We have tried to detect if possible a resemblance between any two of the pictures of Mr. Garfield having the run of the newspapers. There has not been the slightest. We suspect that more than half of his portraits are reprints from patent medicine cuts.

A Fearful Reckoning in November.

Philadelphia Times.—The people will not pause to consider the garbled pamphlets of campaign committees or the heedless denials of irresponsible organs. What they want is to hear General Garfield speak for himself. If he shall do so he will be certain to have liberally just hearers; if he shall be silent the fearful reckoning will come in November.

Political Consistency.

Detroit Evening News.—Consistency is a jewel of which political parties seem to have no need. The Republican members of the House were fighting tooth and nail against the revised election law at the moment that their party in the national convention were selecting as their leader the man whose words were the foundation of the bill, and whose most conspicuous public act since the time of Oakes Ames was his advocacy of the revision.

Don't Run in the Oil Regions.

Philadelphia Times.—It has been found out that Henry B. Payne can not be nominated at Cincinnati because he has some money in the Standard Oil Company, and wouldn't run well in the oil regions of Pennsylvania. As a general thing Democratic candidates do not run well in that section, whether they own stock in oil companies or not. It is probable that the strength of the Democratic candidate, so far as this State is concerned, will not be much thought of this year.

The Pivotal State.

Mobile Register.—Such a man as Garfield can be beaten by Bayard, Seymour or Field. Leaving other questions out of view the pivotal State of New York, freed from the network of Grantism, will be allowed to cast her vote as of old, and that vote will not go for Garfield. Mr. Conkling will resort to no dragooning or other evil devices to save New York for the man who slaughtered Grant. It remains to be seen whether the second man on the ticket, Mr. Arthur, can use the Custom House to throttle or pervert the voice of the Democracy of the city of New York. We feel confident he will fail.

Thirteen Without Hewitt or Tilden.

New York Express.—Everybody will be satisfied if the Cincinnati convention nominates either of the following named gentlemen for President: Thomas F. Bayard, David Davis, Stephen J. Field, Winfield Scott Hancock, Thomas A. Hendricks, Hugh J. Jewett, William R. Morrison, J. M. Palmer, Joel Parker, Henry B. Payne, Clarkson N. Potter, Theodore F. Randolph, Allen G. Thurman. It ought not to be hard to select a candidate from such a list as this. Were the names put into a hat and well shaken up the first one drawn from it would be universally acceptable. It would be impossible to miss a good man in that list even blindfolded.

A Fact to be Deplored.

New York Sun.—This canvass for a President will be distinguished from all others in the history of the United States by one circumstance which every self-respecting citizen, Democrat or Republican, must sincerely deplore. For the first time since the foundation of the Government, there is question as to the personal integrity of a candidate for the nation's highest office.

Our people have not been accustomed to hear charges of personal dishonesty brought against the men presented for their suffrages.

That is because the candidates chosen by both great parties in all past campaigns have been men against whose private character there was not even suspicion. The selection by either party of a candidate not only suspected but proved to be guilty of corrupt practices, is absolutely without precedent.

One thing, and only one thing, could be more humiliating to our national pride—the election and inauguration of a President branded with personal dishonor!

THE CORNER GROCERY

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

☞ Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D. C.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $95.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—☞ Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

MALT

UNFERMENTED

MALT BITTERS

TRADE MARK

Malt Bitters Company

MALT AND HOPS

BITTERS

THIS INCOMPARABLE NUTRIENT is richer in Bone and Muscle producing Materials than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors. For difficult digestion, Sick Headache, Consumption, Emaciation, Mental and Physical Exhaustion, Nervousness, Want of Sleep, Ulcerative Weaknesses of Females, Exhaustion of Nursing Mothers, of the Aged, and of Delicate Children, MALT BITTERS are the purest, best, and most economical medicine ever compounded. Sold everywhere.

MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,

Reapers and Mowers,

Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

Ho! For Fourth of July.

Tecumseh Will Celebrate!

LEE

Is going to build a new block and will slaughter his large stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES

For the next 30 days.

READ PRICES:

		FORMER PRICE.
Men's Double Sole and Tap Boots,	$2.50	$3.50
" Sewed Boots,	2.75	3.75
" Low Shoes,	1.25	1.75
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Kelley's Rochester),	2.75	3.50
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Rochester make),	2.25	3.00
Ladies Curso Kid Button,	1.25	1.75

Remember this is a genuine clearing out sale before removal, and goods will be sold only for cash. Come and examine before purchasing.

Don't forget the place. LEE'S.

Garfield and Arthur

Are the next Republican candidates for President and Vice-President, and after the 36th ballot, they immediately telegraphed to

W. J. KIES

for one of those

CLINTON SUITS of CLOTHES.

Special Bargains in all kinds of

SUMMER GOODS,

FOR

Men's, Youths', Boy's and Children's Wear.

We invite your attention to the following Goods, which are of excellent value:

Large line of light colored all wool suits, worth $15, fine quality, trimmed, and made in the latest style, at $12.

Bargains in Dusters, Thin Coats, Cassimere Pants, White Vests, Straw Hats, Gent's Furnishing Goods. Bargains in Everything.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DENTISTRY.

You can get both celluloid and rubber plates at my office, and at the lowest cash prices. Leave your orders soon as I shall be away from home in July. B. F. STEINHOFF.

PLANTS.

Jersey Sweet Potato and best varieties of late Cabbages, for sale by A. Anderson & Son, or at my garden. E. J. HOLLISTER.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

CLASS SUPPER.

The Class Supper, Class of 1880, was held at the residence of Mr. H. J. Snell last evening. The exercises proper were held at this meeting instead of the usual public way of observing them. With the exception of the teachers of the High school and a few friends, only the members of the class were present. A class poem was read by Mr. Albert Arner, the history was prepared by Miss Minnie Jones, Miss Julia Snell prophesied what would become of all concerned, and the valedictory was produced by Miss Clara Campbell, and all sang a class song written by Luella M. Waring, and winding up with a splendid supper, together with appropriate toasts on the class of '80, Tecumseh High School, &c. Suffice it to say, it was a pleasant affair. The exercises were conducted in a business and parliamentary manner by Mr. Wheelan, class president. All were pleased with the hospitality of Mrs. Snell, and every one present will remember this meeting as one of the most pleasant and profitable of their experience.

THE HUNDRED MILE WALK.

The walking match which began on Tuesday evening at the Opera House, closed yesterday evening before the expiration of the allotted time. Elsa Von Blumen accomplished one hundred miles inside of twenty-seven hours, with a good margin to spare, and James Moir reached 105 miles during the same time. He could have made five miles more readily enough, but as he found it impossible to make 120 miles, he made no special effort during the last hours of Wednesday evening. The weather was excessively warm which made it very oppressive work during a greater part of the time. Several other parties tried their foot power at intervals during the match. Willis Merritt did some fine walking; also Web Frazer and J. C. Eccles. Several others walked some to keep up the interest. We understand that a ten mile match has been arranged for next Saturday evening, at which time several young men of Tecumseh will enter the lists.

MISS ELSA VON BLUMEN.

Fast Time at the Opera House, Saturday Evening.

This modest little lady pedestrian who has been amusing our people during the past two days in accomplishing her 100-mile walk, will again appear on Saturday evening in a 12-mile dash without rest. She will be accompanied by Willis Merritt, Ed. McKinney and Webb W. Frazier, who will each attempt to accomplish 12 miles to Miss Von Blumen's 10. After which there will be a two-mile dash for fat gentlemen for a handsome silver cup, to be presented to the winner by Miss Von Blumen.

Miss Von Blumen, coming to our city an entire stranger, has made many friends among our best citizens and has proven herself by her modest and lady-like manners, in every way worthy of liberal patronage. The entertainment on Saturday evening being a benefit for Miss Elsa, we predict for her a rousing house. Severance's orchestra will be in attendance. Price of admission, 25 cents; gallery, 15 cts.

R. C. VANANTWERP still buys ice cream pails, and his cream is simply immense. We took a little look and a little cream up in his parlors the other night, and we would say that Tecumseh now has an ice cream parlor that she can be proud of, and where you can get good cream.

MRS. WM. SEVERENCE will have a table for refreshments on the 3d of July, in the yard of Mrs. Snell's place, opposite Wooden's market on R. R. street.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JUNE 24, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

THE street sprinkler is kept busy these days.

TOY pistols are a nuisance which ought to be abated.

WE are bound to have a big celebration here on the 3d.

THE exodus from Adrian to Sand Lake has commenced.

AND now D. W. Clark has a new plate glass front in his store.

Two months without any school; that's what pleases the boys.

CONGRESSMAN WILLITS, of Monroe, arrived home last Monday.

ED ROWLAND is turning out lots of hay racks at his shop on Logan street.

SENECA farmers kick against the haphazard way the Butler road will cut their lands.

EDITOR Allen has completed the census of Seneca. The population of Morenci is 1,189.

THE HERALD boys extend their thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Lilley for favors received.

OUR citizens should show their interest in the high school by attending the exercises of the graduating class.

VERY good advice to young gentlemen is if you are too poor to take a paper, and desire all the news, just take a wife.

REV. H. SHEPARD will preach in the Ladd school house next Sunday, June 27, at 3:30 P. M. All are invited to be present.

WOOL has began to come into market, although but little has been sold here as yet. The average price paid is 35 cents per pound.

THE College nine of Adrian and the East Raisin club had a match game of base ball last Saturday. The game was a draw, the score being even on the ninth innings.

ELIJAH WILSON will commence work next week driving spiles for a bridge in Adrian and he expects to be busy at bridge building and repairing for several weeks now.

TALK about snobbery! See how like fools our people act when a sprig of royalty rides through the country.—Just as if the clay of which they are made is any better than that in your body or mine.

IF nothing happens to our fruit, and it is altogether probable there won't at this date, Michigan will be able to supply a goodly portion of the United States in all kinds. Not a failure in anything so far.

CYRUS W. WELLS and wife will start for the West to-morrow. May success attend them is the wish of their Tecumseh friends, and we presume many wish also that they may get homesick in a few months and conclude to return to Tecumseh.

WOOLSTON COMFORT and H. W. Stevens left Tecumseh on Monday for Cincinnati. Comfort goes to attend the Millers' Convention, and Hank undoubtedly to attend the Democratic convention, but some say it is for more Emerson, Fisher & Co's buggies for the boys to use the coming Fourth.

A CARD from Dr. R. B. House, dated at Geneva Lake, Wis., June 21st, says that he has been over a considerable portion of that State and finds the farming lands better than he had expected. Crops are looking finely, except from the bad effects of so much rain. Geneva Lake is a great summer resort for people from Chicago and vicinity. The Doctor expects to reach home next week.

Hudson Gazette: Moses Sawyer has about recovered from the injuries inflicted by the assassin who recently made an attempt upon his life while peacefully enjoying an afternoon nap. It is the opinion of experts—and of Mr. Sawyer himself, who is as expert as any of them—that he was struck with a heavy hay-fork. The nature of his wounds seem to sustain this theory.

THE Royce Reaper, sold by Kennedy & Hayden, is having a very large sale, not only here in Tecumseh, but also in many other localities. A late issue of the Livingston Democrat states the fact that 112 of these machines have been sold this season by the agent at Howell, and on June 5th he delivered 62 Royce Reapers on that one day alone. These Reapers give the best of satisfaction wherever introduced.

THE first graduating class of School District No. 5, will hold their class day exercises Friday afternoon, June 25, 1880, in Kinney's grove one mile west of town.

President—Walter S. Kinney.
Orator—John Tallman.
Music.
Historian—Alice J. Tilden.
Prophetess—Elvia Tallman.
Music.
Valedictorian—Maggie Boyd.
Music.
Remarks by S. C. Stacy and others.
Address to the class—P. W. Adams.

The program will be followed by a basket picnic. All are cordially invited.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

Marriage of Mr. Lester P. Tribou and Miss Lulu Lilley, of this Village.

The event of the season in the line of wedding receptions took place at the residence of Lucius Lilley, Esq., last Thursday evening, on the occasion of the marriage of his only daughter, Lulu, to Lester P. Tribou. The marriage ceremony was performed at four o'clock, by Rev. J. Phelps, in the beautiful Episcopalian service, in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends, and a reception followed which lasted until nine o'clock in the evening. This reception was the most elegant and complete society event that Tecumseh has witnessed of late years.

A double arch of evergreens from the top of which was suspended a marriage bell, was placed in one corner of the back parlor, where the bride and groom stood during the nuptial ceremony and to receive the assembled guests. The bride was beautifully attired in cream white satin made in princess skirt, trimmed with point lace and sprays of white flowers, and pompadore bodice waist with short sleeves; a tulle veil trimmed with point lace and draped with orange blossoms; pearl ornaments; and the whole toilet finished with a bouquet of natural flowers, a present from the groom. The groom was attired in a full dress suit of plain black.

The invited guests were elegantly entertained. Orchestra music was provided, and the cuisine was all that the most fastidious epicure could desire. Tecumseh society was well represented and many guests were present from Cleveland, East Saginaw, Toledo, Detroit, Adrian and many other places. The bridal gifts, of which there was an even fifty, would aggregate several hundred dollars in value and comprised a fine assortment of the useful and ornamental. No general description could do justice to the array and hence we append a list of them below.

The wedding party left on the late train to Jackson, thence they proceeded to Detroit, where they remained until Tuesday, and thence they started on a trip round the lakes. On Monday evening a reception was given for them by Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dey, of Detroit, which was elegant. The bride and groom have both lived here from their childhood and are universal favorites in Tecumseh society. That their life's journey may be as bright as their present prospects are is the heartfelt wish of all.

LIST OF PRESENTS.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Tribou, Tecumseh—Engraving and easel.
Mrs. Andrew J. Corey, Hancock, L. I.—Point Lace.
Miss Kitty Dwight, Detroit—Emb'd table scarf.
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wells, New York—Point lace fan.
Mrs. James E. Pittman, Detroit—Set pearl ear-rings.
James E. Pittman, Detroit—Portmonnie and check.
Miss Kate P. Hutchinson, Detroit—Gold chain.
Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Murray, Detroit—Silver and glass berry dish.
Miss Lizzie Raynor, New York—Gold lace pin.
A. M. Parker, Detroit—Fan.
Mrs. F. L. Marks, Cleveland—Pair vases.
The Misses Powers, Tecumseh—Pair porcelain slippers.
Mrs. Lucius Lilley—Diamond ear-rings, set silver table spoons, toilet set.
Mr. and Mrs. D. C. LeBaron, Toledo—Silver set brush, comb and glass, in case.
Tribou and Miss Inez LeBaron, Tecumseh—Ebony cabinet.
Kemp Pittman, Detroit—China tete-a-tete set.
Mr. and Mrs. Church and Mr. and Mrs. Saviers, St. Louis, Mich.—Silver napkin holders.
Mrs. Wetmore, Jackson — Hand-painted silk and lace tidy.
Katie, Julie and Lizzie Pittman, Detroit—Pictures.
The Misses Kittie and Lillie Roberts, Detroit—Plaque, decorated.
Mr. and Mrs. Mumford, Adrian—Book.
Mrs. F. Zabriskie, Detroit—Book.
Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Burgess, Cleveland—Case silver forks.
E. T. and F. R. Judd, East Saginaw—Silver ice-cream set.
F. G. Kneeland, St. Louis, Mich.—Silver preserve spoon.
Mrs. Harriet Webster, Tecumseh—Tidy.
Lansing and Miss Mary Pittman, Detroit—Silver butter knife.
James Raynor, New York—Silver berry dish and spoon.
Mr. Fred H. Seymour, Detroit—Silver card receiver.
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Pittman, Detroit—Case silver knives.
Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Strong, Tecumseh—Silver water set.
Mrs. E. T. Judd, East Saginaw—Pillow and sheet shams.
Miss Ella Webster, Tecumseh—Lamp mat.
Miss Jennie Rosacrans, Tecumseh—Silk apron.
Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wood and F. B. Wood, Tecumseh—Pair vases.
Mr. and Mrs. S. C. LeBaron, Tecumseh—Pair brackets.
Mrs. L. I. Bidwell, Tecumseh—Chair.
The Misses Jennie and Allie McCowen, Tecumseh—Chair.
Mrs. N. W. Taylor, Cleveland—Case silver spoons.
Miss Georgie Wood, Adrian—Decorated Holly-wood easel.
Mrs. Wm. H. Stone, Adrian—Oil painting and frame.
Mr. and Mrs. Opdyke—Pickle castor.
The Misses Root, DeWolf and Frazer, Tecumseh—Silver syrup cup.
Mrs. Kimball, Adrian—Pair pepper bottles.
Clarence Judd, East Saginaw—Silver card case.
Wm. A. Richards, Jackson—Sconce.
J. Herbert Tribou, Tecumseh—Fan.
J. Raynor Lilley, Cleveland—Gold bracelets.
Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bidwell, Tecumseh—Gold coin.
Lucius Lilley—U. S. bonds and gold coin.
L. P. Tribou—Pearl pendant.
Mr. and Mrs. Myron Conklin, Tecumseh—Silver and glass boquet holder.

THE BIG CELEBRATION.

It is now a fixed fact beyond all controversy that Tecumseh is bound to have a rousing celebration on the coming Third of July.

The fact that Gov. Croswell will deliver the oration is sufficient of itself to attract a large crowd. Then the procession will be one of the finest ever seen in this vicinity. At least five military companies will participate, and probably five bands will be in the parade. The literary exercises will consist of vocal music in addition to the oration, and will be held in Hanford's grove. The military drill, for prizes, and the base ball contest will take place in the afternoon on the base ball grounds. The picnic dinner will be held in Hanford's grove, immediately after the literary exercises.

The display of fire works will be the grandest ever seen in Tecumseh, as $500 will be expended for that item alone. The business blocks of the village will be decorated with flags and other emblems, and a large amount of labor will be laid out in this direction. We give below the entire list of committees as appointed up to this date. The assistant marshal's have not yet been appointed, nor the route of the procession fixed upon, but these will appear next week.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

A. B. Cotton, N. M. Sutton, L. Lilley, Dr. E. Hause, P. W. Adams, J. S. Strong, H. W. Stevens, H. E. Stout, Wm. C. Rogers, of Clinton; David Woodward, of Clinton; B. P. Anderson, T. D. McKinney, Dr. C. M. Woodward, Willis Merritt, W. C. Fitzsimmons.

THE OFFICERS.

The following named persons were chosen Officers of the day:

Marshal—Lucius Lilley.
President—Perley Bills.
Vice Presidents—Jno. J. Adam, E. F. Blood, S. G. Conkling, J. S. Hendryx, P. R. Adams, Wm. Richard, J. G. Roberts, Dr. A. F. Tuttle, J. S. Schreder, C. A. Stacy, A. K. Waldron, H. Brewer, Dr. I. S. Hamilton.

SUB COMMITTEES.

On Invitations—S. C. Stacy, W. C. Fitzsimmons.

On Program—L. Lilley, J. S. Strong, Willis Merritt, N. M. Sutton, D. Woodward.

ON GROUNDS.

A. Hanford, P. W. Adams, C. A. Slayton, G. P. Sparks, John Usborne, A. A. Kennedy.

ON FINANCE.

Henry Keyser, N. M. Sutton, W. C. Rogers, W. C. Fitzsimmons.

ON PRINTING.

G. N. Stacy, Willis Merritt, P. W. Adams, H. W. Stevens.

ON VOCAL MUSIC.

J. S. Strong, B. F. Steinhoff, J. H. Tribou, Dr. E. Hause.

ON DANCING.

T. C. Cummins, P. J. VanVleet, E. R. Smith, Will T. Eccles, H. U. Matthews, T. D. McKinney.

ON INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.

G. W. Zeigler.

ON DECORATIONS.

S. W. Anderson, D. L. Whitenack, T. Adamson, A. W. Mills, Albert Hayden, H. S. Lee, J. Davidson, J. H. Tribou, J. L. Waldo, C. A. Wright, J. W. Patterson, A. W. Slayton, W. J. Kies, C. J. Brewer, James Lowry, H. McClure, George Heesen, Frank Buman.

TABLE COMMITTEES.

Tecumseh—Dr. C. M. Woodward, H. Keyser, B. P. Anderson, Mrs. N. M. Sutton, Mr. & Mrs. H. E. Stout, Mr. & Mrs. H. W. Stevens, Mrs. Hudson Conkling, Mrs. N. R. Merritt, Mr. & Mrs. J. D. Sholes, Mrs. Dr. Peters, Mrs. Jehiel Davidson, Mrs. J. H. Osborn, Mrs. Wm. McCowen, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Patterson, Mr. & Mrs. Alva Waring, Mrs. F. A. Scifert, Mr. & Mrs. W. F. Baxter.

Macon—J. W. Baker and wife, W. H. Osborn and wife, D. C. Pennington and wife, John C. Mills and wife, A. Easlick and wife, Alfred Lewis and wife.

Ridgeway—John Britton and wife, G. P. Waring and wife, Dr. D. W. Loree, Chas. Underwood and wife, C. L. Lowe and wife, Wm. Wilson and wife.

Cambridge—F. A. Dewey and wife, C. Cooper and wife, Geo. Stafford and wife, Robert Wooden and wife, C. A. Blackmar and wife.

Raisin—James Cook and wife, J. H. Green and wife, Alex. Richard and wife, D. P. Anthony and wife.

Franklin—B. C. Knapp and wife, B. F. Reynolds and wife, James Hunter and wife, C. Roberts and wife, Frank Osborne and wife.

Clinton—D. Silvers and wife, H. B. Roberts and wife, John Fisher and wife, I. H. Schreder and wife, Philip Kehoe and wife, C. W. Culbertson and wife.

Adrian—Ira Ladd and wife, A. H. Briggs and wife, W. H. Wiggins and wife, James Osborn and wife.

East Tecumseh—Minor Davidson and wife, Albert Waring and wife, F. Davidson and wife, J. W. Denedict and wife, B. F. DePuy and wife, R. R. Hall and wife.

On Transportation—N. S. Satterthwaite, A. D. Lawrence, B. P. Anderson.

H. E. Stout, Willis Merritt, committee to take charge of the base ball grounds.

Dr. C. M. Woodward and H. W. Stevens were appointed as a committee to rent the ice-cream stands.

W. C. Fitzsimmons is regular secretary of the Ex. Com.

D. Woodward declined to act on the committee on which he was placed.

S. W. Anderson declined to act as chairman of the Decoration Committee, and A. W. Mills was chosen in his place.

The Table Committee for the 4th of July met at the Armory of Co. C, M. S. T., pursuant to call, on Tuesday evening last, with a very good attendance, there being representatives from nearly all the surrounding towns as well as from the village. Plans of action were decided upon. The members of the committee are expected to solicit donations of provisions in variety from their friends and neighbors to fill the tables, not forgetting the milk and butter from the country. It is hoped that our country friends can furnish the meats, as boiled ham, chicken, eggs, etc., together with milk cream and butter. Our friends in the village could furnish perhaps with greater ease bread, biscuit, cake, etc., and thereby make a division of labor. The following named persons are added to the table committee:

P. J. Van Vleet, Miss Jennie Frazer, Miss Ella Sholes, Miss Anna Frazer, Miss Gussie Burlingame, Miss Anna Sutton, Miss Lizzie Hicks, Miss Minnie Sutton, Mrs. C. T. Cummins, Mrs. A. B. Cotton, Miss Lizzie Hayden, Miss Elida James. Other active members will be appointed in the surrounding townships by members of the committee already appointed from those towns. Those present at the meeting of the table committee on Tuesday evening manifested a willing spirit and also a determination to work with a will. Do not fear that you will "go over the hill to the poor house" on the 3d, for we will surely have enough to eat.

There will be another meeting of this committee held on Tuesday evening of next week, at Sink's Hotel parlor, and every member is desired to be present.

Table Construction Committee—H. W. Stevens, H. Keyser, H. E. Stout, Dr. C. M. Woodward.

HEADQUARTERS CO. C, 1ST REG'T M. S. T. TECUMSEH, June 23, 1880.

General Order No. 3.

All persons wearing the uniform of the State must be elected a member and mustered in as such. Any member of this company who shall become intoxicated while in uniform shall be suspended for three months.

By order of
A. D. LAWRENCE,
1st Lieut. Command'g.

HEADQUARTERS CO. C, 1ST REG'T M. S. T. TECUMSEH, June 23, 1880.

General Order No. 4.

In view of the approaching encampment, commencing August 2d, there will be two drills every week, at which time all members are requested to be present, Wednesday and Friday evenings of every week. New members will be admitted for thirty days prior to going into camp. By order of

A. D. LAWRENCE,
1st Lieut. Command'g.

CENTENNARY SERVICE.

Most evangelical churches this summer celebrate the memory of the first century of the Sunday School, and in compliance with a recommendation that the Baptist churches of this country observe Sunday, June 27th for such celebration, the Baptist church and Sunday School, of this village, will hold two celebration services on that day, viz: A special preaching service at 10:30 A. M. and a Sunday School centennary service in the evening at the usual hour for service.—The church will be suitably trimmed for the occasion. All are invited.

JOHN F. HICKS was at home over last Sunday for the first time in several weeks. He is still at work in the western part of Michigan selling the Howe scales.

FRANK KNEELAND takes the position of L. P. Tribou in Bills, Lilley & Co's bank during his absence from home on his wedding trip.

—FIRE WORKS, FIRE WORKS,
At Davidson's.

—A Good Combined Reaper and Mower for sale cheap at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Decorating goods of all kinds,
At Davidson's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Down wheat no hinderance to our six foot cut Standard Reaper at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Japanese Lanterns at Davidson's.

—Tinted and black lace Mitts at Eaton's.

—Fourth of July, at Davidson's.

—Best Lawns, 8 and 10 cents, at Eaton's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—FLAGS, FLAGS,
At Davidson's.

—Farmers, if you get "stuck" in your down wheat, you can find a Reaper that will cut it all at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Newport Ties for Ladies.
A. H. Tupper.

—Linen Dusters at W. J. Kies'.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at
Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Street Boots, nice, at Tupper's.

—Stewart's Alexandre Kids.
A. B. Cotton.

—Carpet warp at Eaton's.

—David Jones has just received an elegant line of Kid, Buck and Dog Skin Gloves.

—Babies Walking Shoes at Tupper's.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The Three Rivers Vibrator can be seen at N. Bailey's.

—Buntings cheap at Eaton's.

—For No. 1 carpet warp call at Eaton's.

—David Jones has a splendid assortment of light pants patterns. Call and see them.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths,
Holland & Opaque window curtains,
Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains,
Lambrequin Trimmings—all new,
A. B. Cotton.

—Grain Bags at Eatons.

—Ladies Street Boots, Spanish Arch Instep, very fine, at Tupper's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.
A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Gents Fine Oxford Button at Tupper's.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.
Brown, the Photographer.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Sandals, very nice, at Tupper's.

—Toilet Slippers at A. H. Tupper's.

—Go to Tupper's for shoes.

—Nobby White Vests at W. J. Kies'.

—Orr's Pantaloon Overalls at W. J. Kies'.

—French Tie for Gents at Tupper's.

—Have you heard what Orr's Overalls are selling for at W. J. Kies'?

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at Will. J. Kies'.

—Lady Washington's at Tupper's.

—Everything in the shoe line at Tupper's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the
HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—A nice line of Mohair Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—D. Jones has one of the latest and best line of neck wear in the market.

—Walking Shoes for Ladies at Tupper's.

—100 Macinaw hats at W. J. Kies'.

—It has been pronounced by all that W. J. Kies has sold more clothing during the month of May than all the other concerns in Tecumseh.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—E. V. DePuy sells Perry's Hay Tedder. Call and see them.

—If you want a business or dress suit go to Davi Jones's who will give you bottom prices.

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at
W. J. Kies'.

—Ask W. J. Kies to show you the Eighme Shirt.

—Go to Tupper's for Walking Shoes.

—Sailors Ties for Gentlemen at Tupper's.

—Walking Shoes at A. H. Tupper's.

—David Jones now sells Base Ball Gloves.

—All the best makes of Corsets at Eaton's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

DIED.

OSBORN—In Woodstock of a painful and lingering disease of the nerve, Mrs. Angeleck, wife of A. C. Osborn, in the 61st year of her age.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 141, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street

J. F. JENKINS, N. G.

L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB, NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings at Seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, President.

A. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No.38. Mail.	No.37. Express.	No.49. Accom.
Jackson	6 00 am	2 30 pm	7 50 pm
Napoleon	7 40 "	3 36 "	9 08 "
Stowell	7 48 "	3 46 "	9 55 "
Manchester	7 30 "	3 20 "	3 25 "
Clinton	7 45 "	3 40 "	4 15 "
Tecumseh	7 53 "	3 50 "	4 40 "
Adrian	8 30 "	4 25 "	6 00 "
Detroit	10 50 "	8 15 "	.....
Toledo	3 50 "	5 25 "	.....

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No.16. Mail.	No.18. Express.	No.48. Accom.
Detroit	7 50 am	6 40 pm	.....
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "	.....
Adrian	12 01 p.m.	9 20 "	8 10 am
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 28 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 15 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 35 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

P. S. BLODGETT, Sup't Mich Div.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the west.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail.....7 30 A. M
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson.....12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit.....3 30 P. M

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily.....1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily.....1 30 "
Macon, Friday.....12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail.....7 45 A. M
Eastern Mail.....12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M

Office hours from 7 A. M. to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

Successor to McClure Brothers,

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH. - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street.

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE of the New Universalist Church at Detroit, Michigan.

June 1st, the day on which the service was appointed, was charming. Nature contributed bountifully to the enjoyment of the occasion. Long before the hour designated, 4:30 P. M., a large congregation of men and women, on foot and in carriages, had assembled to witness the ceremonies and listen to the addresses. At the hour appointed Rev. Dr. Rexford, of Akron, O., accompanied by Rev. Moses Smith, of the Second Congregationalist church of Detroit, Rev. Mr. Forbush, Unitarian, Rev. Mr. Hibbard, Swedenborgian, Rabbi Zindorf, of the Jewish Tabernacle, Rev. George B. Stocking, of Lansing, and the Board of Trustees of the church, ascended to the platform that had previously been prepared, when the services began with singing by the choir and congregation,—

"Nearer my God to thee, Nearer to thee."

After the prayer which followed, the ceremony of laying the corner-stone was proceeded with. A leaden box, containing religious papers of all denominations in the city of Detroit Universalist church to date, was first deposited, when the stone was laid with all the formula of square and level.

Rev. Dr. Rexford was introduced, and gave the principle address of the occasion. He proceeded to explain the aim and purpose of those who have the work immediately in charge. He criticised that materialistic philosophy which calls religion a phantom, and manfully defended true religion wherever found. He did not think the time had come when Universalists could feel at home in other churches, but the Universalists could say God-speed to the efforts of all churches, for every soul saved is a contribution upon the altar for the salvation of all. The address was in every way appropriate, and engaged the closest attention of all.

Rev. Moses Smith being introduced, said that he was very happy to be allowed to stand in the presence of the audience after the words just spoken. He would not ask the name of the church whose foundations were laid. All that he wished to know was in regard to the work proposed to do. The article of the Universalist creed, which taught that holiness and happiness were inseparable, contained an idea that appealed to the souls of all true men, and embodied the vital principle of true religion. The speaker closed with an eloquent appeal for faithful work.

Rabbi Zindorf was next called upon by the chairman. He proceeded to say that his was a religion that many considered a bygone religion, but which he felt was truthful. He spoke of the prejudice against his creed, but he was a lover of mankind, and the Hebrew religion was a benefaction to humanity. Jews are the champions of humanity against foes of all kinds. With an apostrophe to the temple to be erected, the learned Rabbi closed.

Rev. Mr. Hibbard, and Rev. Mr. Forbush, each delivered a brief address in harmony with the spirit of the hour.

The new edifice when completed will be an ornament to the city, and a credit to the people having the work in charge. "Beautiful for situation"—no more desirable site could have been selected on which to rear a Christian temple. It is located at the junction of Macomb avenue and Park street, with Central Park directly in front. It is expected that the edifice will be ready for occupancy early in the coming fall, and the good people are confident that by that time, God who has put it into their hearts to build this temple, will send one who shall deliver to them his own truth.

The Chancellor of the German Empire is unquestionably the most astute politician of our time. But he differs in one important particular from the current type of the European diplomatist. The Metternichs, Gortschakoffs, Buests, et id omne genus, with all their imitators big and little, look on diplomacy as a sort of legerdemain, or, perhaps we should better say, as a game of cards, where the player must under no circumstances "show his hand." The diplomat must use language to conceal his thoughts, and he must never commit himself to anything. The reader who is curious to obtain an inside view of Prince Bismarck's character as the genius of Statecraft, will find much to interest him in a paper contributed to the North American Review for July, by the great Chancellor's Boswell, Moritz Busch, entitled "Bismarck as a Friend of America and as a Statesman," and numerous other articles.

Doctors may disagree as to the best methods and remedies, for the cure of constipation and disordered liver and kidneys. But those who have used Kidney-Wort agree that that is by far the best medicine known. Its action is prompt, thorough and lasting. Don't take pills, and other mercurials that poison the system, but by using Kidney-Wort restore the natural action of all the organs.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

The Quincy boys have a cadet corps.

East Saginaw is by no means rid of the diphtheria yet.

The good Indians at Pashawba, Lalanaw county, are building themselves a church.

A wholesale slaughter of dogs is going on at Mt. Pleasant, and many a bark has been lost forever.

Twenty-five dollar reward is offered for the arrest of Reigler, the Lansing forger.

Friends of Rev. Reed Stuart, of Battle Creek, have presented him a handsome and valuable horse.

The survivors of the Fifth Michigan Regiment will hold a reunion at East Saginaw the last week in August.

Prof. McEwan, of the state agricultural college, was married to Miss Esca Babcock, of Kalamazoo, on the 17th.

Wm. L. Alexander, one of the graduates of the Niles high school, is a negro, and he has acquitted himself well.

Capt. Fred Merriman, of Port Huron, is to raise the boiler and machinery of the wrecked steamer Ambrose at Grand Haven.

A bromide factory at Midland smells so loud that the folks in the next township take an interest in the breezes from that village.

Joseph B. Cole, one of the Eaton county pioneers, died suddenly in his chair, at his home in Charlotte, on the 15th.

An effort is making at Grand Rapids to secure an extension of the Gr'd Rapids, Newaygo & Lake Shore Railroad to Manistee.

The Cheboygan Tribune says that the bodies of four of the seven ill-fated fishermen who were drowned off Pt. St. Ignace some weeks ago have been recovered.

The Grand Rapids boy who set fire to a shop says he did it to see the firemen turn out—and yet, just because he wanted a little fun, they say he is mentally disordered.

It is very probable that Fred Connor, of the Hillsdale boat club, will show up as a single sculler this season. He is believed to be an exceptionally good one.

Traverse Bay Eagle: We were shown a small twig about eight inches long from one of Geo. Rousthe's trees, Saturday that contained seventy plums.

Presque Isle County Advance: The farmers are beginning to complain that the deer are doing much injury to the crops. They are tame as sheep and far more numerous in this county.

Immediately after the Clayton saloon reopened a huge black snake crawled out of the town well and met its death. Please hunt up the moral—if there is one.

Because the census takers only make out about 30,000 inhabitants at Grand Rapids, instead of 40,000, the Democrat affects to believe they have not done their work properly.

The city marshal of Flint gives notice that the use of fire arms, fire crackers, torpedoes, or any sort of fireworks by any person in that city, will be followed by condign punishment.

A Mrs. Newton, of Muskegon, died at Utica last March, and was buried there. A few days ago her grave was opened, and it was found that her body was stolen. Gone to Ann Arbor probably.

Certain citizens of Milford have given public notice that after July 1st they will take down their road fences, etc., and if any stock comes upon their premises they will restrain said stock according to the state law.

The closing exercises of the Coldwater public school take place June 25. L. C. Hull, a graduate of Ann Arbor, and for the past two years instructor at Orchard Lake academy, has been engaged as principal next year, at a salary of $1,000.

Harry Haywood, an alleged officer, has been arrested at East Saginaw.—He is charged with extorting money from people on various pretexts. He may be innocent, but the officers found him hidden between two feather beds, a situation innocent men seldom assume.

The old settlers' reunion at Cassopolis on the 16th was a big thing in point of the number in attendance and the interest manifested. Two bands, a glee-club and four speakers helped to make the occasion interesting, and over 5,000 people were present.

Among the new wrinkles on the sleeping coaches in use on the G. R. & I. railroad, in this state, are electric call bells from each berth and a receptacle for valuables, which cannot be opened except by removing the side of the berth wherein the passenger is sleeping.

Grand Rapids Eagle: Friday last 2,500 bushels of strawberries were taken into Chicago from Western Michigan by the Chicago and West Michigan Railroad, and Saturday 2,250 bushels were shipped in from the same direction, and the crop is only just nicely beginning to move.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

ASK the recovered Dyspeptic, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Nervous, Disappointed Patient how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator,

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Burn, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivalled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel dreary, debilitated, have a coated tongue, bad taste, muddy complexion, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or biliousness, and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as a dose of

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

CENTAUR LINIMENT

always Cures and never Disappoints. The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness and destroys Worms.

B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the Blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1 50.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 altos, tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass; bell up; patent piston valves, warranted, for $150.

I also have Band Instruments for professional bands to select from, including Conn and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogues.

Address, O. F. BERDAN,

72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment, and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

Dr. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for Diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates.—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT

SANFORD'S

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order. Its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Seasickness, and other Disorders.

LIVER

The Liver is the seat of malaria, it permeates the system from Miasmatic diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the System, Purifies the Blood, Influences the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System. Regulates the Bowels.

INVIGORATOR

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 162 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING

IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and
GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,

55 Maiden Lane, New York.

ACENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF ABBIE GRISWOLD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 16th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of George C. Griswold, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters testamentary thereon be granted to petitioner, executor in said will named, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A true copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. June17

ESTATE OF JOSIAH WOODARD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 14th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Josiah Woodard, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified, of Chloe Woodard, widow of deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in [illegible] ment of said deceased, and that letters testamentary may be granted thereon to petitioner and Philip Totten, nominated executors in said instrument, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 12th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. June17

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 13th day of March, A.D. 1869, Jonas Weaver and Caroline M. Weaver by an indenture of mortgage made and executed by them on said 11th day of March, to Henry H. Rawson certain lands owned by said Caroline M. Weaver, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 23 day of November, A.D. 1869, in liber 57 of mortgages on pages 675 and 676, and which mortgage was duly assigned by said Henry H. Rawson to Jonas Weaver on the 6th day of November, A.D. 1879, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1880, in liber 95 of mortgages on page 423. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-four and 22-100 dollars and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee which is also covenanted for in said mortgage should any proceeding be taken to foreclose the said mortgage; no proceedings have been taken either in law or equity to recover the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Default having been made in the terms of payment of said mortgage by means of which the power of sale in said mortgage has become absolute; notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due together with all legal costs and charges and said attorney fee of twenty-five dollars; said sale will be to the highest bidder and will be made on the twenty-six day of July, 1880, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Dean's Opera House on Toledo street in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county.) The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold as aforesaid are described as situate in the township of Rollin in said county of Lenawee, and known as the west half of the south west quarter of section twenty-nine, except twenty acres off the north end thereof, in township six south of range one east.

Dated February 21st, 1880.

JONAS WEAVER, Assignee of Mortgage.

THOMAS J. HILLEE, Att'y for Assignee. apl22

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit. In the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, in Chancery.

Mary F. E. Taylor Complainant,
vs.
Charles L. Taylor, Defendant.

Before Willis Merritt, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the village of Tecumseh, this 30th day of April, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file, that the defendant Charles L. Taylor is not a resident of this State and is a resident of Chicago, Ill. On motion of C. A. & J. A. Stacy, complainant's solicitors, it is ordered that said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complainant in the cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of this order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

WILLIS MERRITT,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Complainant's Solicitors. may20

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of William Taylor, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of William Taylor, late of Macon, in said county, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Wood & Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 26th day of June, 1880, and on the 16th day of November, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, and that six months from the 10th day of May, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated May 25th, 1880.

JOHN B. PATTISON,
GEORGE POCKLINGTON,
Commissioners.

May27

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

NORTHERN LENAWEE FARMERS' CLUB.

This Club will hold its meetings regularly on each alternate Saturday of each month, at the Reform Club Hall in Tecumseh, at 2 o'clock P. M., until further notice. All are heartily welcomed and cordially invited to attend. Communications thankfully received. Correspondence solicited from other clubs, especially where co-operative action can accomplish desirable results. All letters should be addressed to E. L. Russell, Sec., Tecumseh, Mich.)

SATURDAY, June 19, 1880.

The meeting was slimly attended to-day. Farmers were too busy with their work at home at this season of the year to turn out generally to the Club, haying having commenced and harvesting following closely. Besides the Club has lost two main spokes out of the wheel, in the persons of Mr. C. W. Wells and Mr. G. W. Goodrich, the first by removal, and the latter by an accident which has laid him up for the present, but which we hope he will soon recover from.

On account of the slim attendance the program was not fully carried out as presented for this meeting, but the subjects for discussion and the essays upon the same were laid over for the next meeting.

The most of the time was occupied upon Miscellaneous Questions and Answers.

The question had been London Purple highly advertised in the agricultural papers to destroy potato bugs, and as it was in the market, and as he had heard complaints by some that it killed the vines, and by others that it did not affect the bugs, he would inquire if any one present had tried it.

Mr. Lowe had tried it dissolved in water at the rate of an even table spoon full to a pail of water, and sprinkled on. Thought that it held in solution better than Paris Green, and that it had cleaned out the bugs and was less poisonous and cheaper.

The question was asked, "Do the bugs eat the green, which causes them to die, or is it so offensive to them as to keep them away?"

Mr. Mather had greened potatoes and in three hours had found the bugs dead, and had repeated the experiment with the same result, and would inquire if they ate sufficient of the green in that short time to kill them, or did they inhale it, and was it better sprinkled on in a solution of water or mixed with plaster?

The President had applied Paris Green with plaster and watched the bugs and found that they had died in about ten minutes, and thought that they must inhale it, and if they inhaled it that it was best applied with plaster. He thought that as soon as the plants absorbed the poison that it no longer affected the bugs.

The question was asked, "Do bots kill horses?

It was amusing to hear the different opinions expressed, and see how far prejudice and whims will carry the minds of men. There were various signs to indicate their presence, various means to effect a cure, and different ways to prevent it. Mr. Waldron made some very good remarks upon the subject. Sanitary science has accomplished a great deal for the human race within the last few years, and there is a great work to be accomplished by veterinary science.

Some specimens of growing wheat raised from Missouri seed were exhibited, and it was requested that at our next meeting each one having this wheat would bring a sample of shelled grain and make a report.

On motion the meeting adjourned for six weeks, or to Saturday, July 31, 1880.

SALE OF THOROUGHBREDS.

Mr. E. L. Russell has just sold his choice young bull to Mr. A. C. Burdock, of Coldwater. This gentleman was taking a circuit around among different herds intending to return home and consider the matter, and then make up his mind where he would purchase. When he saw this young bull he said his mind was made up without further consideration.

Mr. Russell also sold this last spring three pure short-horned durham cows to Mr. Charles Brown, of Ida, Monroe county. Mr. Brown also purchased at the same time of Mr. B. J. Bidwell a thoroughbred yearling bull. This lot were choice animals and go to a locality where this class of stock are much needed.

PERMANENT PASTURE.

At one of the Michigan Farmers' Institutes Prof. Ingersoll asked an essayist what he considered to be the value of permanent pasture for stock. The reply was, "I regard June grass and white clover as the very best pasture, and it yields the largest quantity per acre. I regard it as a mistaken idea that an old pasture must be plowed, better put a harrow upon it and give it a top dressing of plaster." Another gentleman remarked that he had a piece of land that had been clovered thirty years; after one crop it was self seeded; since that time it has been pasture. There are six acres of it and it yields more than any other ten acres on the farm.

A blacksmith is a better authority than Hoyle on "old sledge."

JUNE NOTES.

No better month in the year than this to plant evergreens, trees and vines. Remember that raspberries and blackberries can be taken up and transplanted after the new growth has got a good start. If there are vacancies in the blackberry or raspberry rows, take up the new suckers or plants with plenty of root, and set in such vacancies.

If you are afraid to put hay or straw on strawberries because of foul weeds, scatter enough sawdust or spent tan-bark to just cover the surface lightly, mixing a little salt through it before putting on. It will keep the fruit clean and nice. Pile around the currant bushes plenty of coarse material to keep the surface cool and moist.

Watch the currant worms, and on their appearance, which can be told by the leaves being stripped off, sprinkle water over them when the leaves are dry, in which a spoonful of white powdered hellebore has been dissolved to a pail of water.

Strawberry plants may be potted off this month. Sink pots in ground near the old plants, fill with rich earth and lay in this earth young plants, keeping them to their place by throwing on earth, or with a small stone.

Sow onion seed thick in rows, and when the size of peas or beans, pull and dry for "sets" next spring.

Keep up a succession of peas on the table by sowing a row or two every week or ten days. A man or family that can be satisfied with one or two servings, hasn't the liking for green peas that we have.

Plant early kinds of potatoes late, say middle to last of this month, and they will escape the potato bug.

Put in celery this month. It's good for nervous people. The dwarf kinds need but little "trenching," in fact can be set on level ground, and well banked up in the fall.

Plant sweet corn last of this month, and have it green on the table latter part of summer.—Fruit Recorder.

THE ARMY WORM.

The farmers on Long Island, Staten Island and in some parts of Connecticut and New Jersey find this a very unfortunate year. The first part of the season they suffered severely from drought, and now their crops are being eaten up by the army worm. In Westchester county, N. Y., the worms have worked inland for several miles, and are specially destructive near White Plains. Farmers have become tired of defensive measures, and are now only trying to gather the grass and grain before the worms do it for them. In New Jersey the worms have begun their campaign from Tuckerton to the Highlands. In Burlington and Ocean counties they are destroying grape vines, carnberry vines and melon vines with disastrous completeness. Few of the vineyards that survived the late fires will escape from their ravages. Defensive measures appear totally inadequate and the farmers are forced to surrender their crops. Professor Comstock, the entomologist of the Agricultural Department, has been visiting the section of Kent county, Delaware, infested with army worms, and has made a report to Commissioner Le Due. The Professor says that the danger in that section for this season is nearly past, but in localities further north, where the pest is later in appearing, much remains to be done. The greatest injury done is to corn, which being tender is eaten to the ground whenever it is encountered by the worms in their march. The worm much resembles a common caterpiller such as infests elm trees. It varies in length from one inch to two inches. The head is black and the body green in color. It crawls rapidly, and eats voraciously, hurrying from one head of grain or grass to another.—Michigan Homestead.

If you are feeling weak, drowsy, dull and stupid, and generally debilitated, go to your druggist and ask him to let you see a bottle of Electric Bitters.—Read the directions and recommendations, and you will see that they are just what you want. No one can remain long in ill health and use Electric Bitters. Every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction. Price only fifty cents. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

To Make Gilt Edge Butter.—Every dairyman wishes to get the top price for his butter. It can be done by having it perfect in quality and appearance. When the color becomes light it is necessary to add a little of Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color to keep it up to the June standard. Many well known butter buyers recommend all their patrons to use only this preparation, as it gives the most perfect color. For sale by A. Anderson, Tecumseh.

All we ask is to give Hill's Buchu a trial, and you will find that it contains all the healing qualities it claims.

When exhausted by mental labor take Kidney Wort to maintain healthy action of all organs.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought for west figures.

Chicago Street. HENRY McCLURE. TECUMSEH, MICH

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT

SLAYTON & SON

Beg leave to inform the public that they are handling a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Among which may be found

PLOWS. The Wiard Chilled. Garden City Clipper (steel.)

Scotch Harrows, the Buckeye & Elwood Cultivators,

Johnston Reapers and Mowers,

Buckeye and Champion Grain Drills, Corn Drills & Planters, The Seymour Plaster Sower,

HAY RAKES, {The Thomas Hand Dump. The Tiger Self Dump.

THRESHERS, {The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines, the Carter Tongueless Cultivators,

Double Shovels and Shovel Plows, points for all kinds of Plows, Sections for all Mowers & Reapers

We also sell

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Scales, and the Boss Stone Boat.

☞ Just call and see if we can't furnish you anything you want.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

☞ Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients makes it an invaluable remedy for VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN,

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

This has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York.

PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.

The GREAT MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY" CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR.—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1875, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle. Pills 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE BITTERS

It is the best Blood Purifier, and stimulates every function to more healthful action, and is thus a benefit in all diseases.

In eliminating the impurities of the blood, the natural and necessary result is the cure of Scrofulous and other Skin Eruptions and Diseases, including Cancers, Ulcers and other Sores.

Dyspepsia, Weakness of the Stomach, Constipation, Dizziness, General Debility, etc., are cured by the Safe Bitters. It is unequaled as an appetiser and regular tonic.

It is a medicine which should be in every family, and which, wherever used, will save the payment of many doctors' bills.

Bottles of two sizes; prices, 50 cents and $1.50.

☞ Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF

CALLING CARDS.

At the Herald Office.

New Twine Binder.

WALTER A. WOOD'S

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

The new Twine Binder has been well tested in different kinds and conditions of grain and in different localities and has proved most efficient and durable.

THE WOOD MACHINES

Are Superior to all others in every respect, which the manufacturers and Agents stand ready to prove both by actual test and by the fact that more than ten times the number of this make of Machines are in use now in the County than of all others put together. Although they are put up in the most durable and satisfactory manner, yet they are sold at Prices to compete with second-class Machines. All we ask is for farmers to examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent.

ALL MACHINES WARRANTED.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF EXTRAS ON HAND

At Slayton & Son's.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

Farming Implements!

Weight 600 lbs. Draws easy as a farm wagon.

THE ROYCE REAPER.

GALE Chilled PLOW,

The KING of the Field.

A. A. KENNEDY. A. S. HAYDEN.

A FIELD FOR MISSIONARY LABOR.

MINISTER:—"My boy, you should not be so wicked as to catch fish on Sunday."

WICKED BOY:—"Oh, thunder! Who's a catchin fish? I can't get nary a bite."

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, June 21, 1880.

Regular session.
Present, the entire council.
Minutes of last session approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

On Finance:
Report in writing approving of and recommending the payment of the following bills:

W. C. Jordan	$9 60	John Hastings	$4 00
J. McConnell	37 91	William Nixon	6 56

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

O. O. B. DeWolf, A. S. Doty and 35 others praying that the council may appropriate one hundred dollars to assist in defraying the expenses deemed necessary for the coming celebration of the ensuing Fourth of July.

On motion, the petition was referred to the village attorney to ascertain if the council could legally make such an appropriation.

NEW BUSINESS.

The Village Marshal presented his bond in the penal sum of $3,500, with sureties. The bond with the sureties named therein was duly approved by the council.

John Sutfin and James Montague, retail dealers in spirituous and intoxicating liquors, presented for approval the bond required by law with sureties. On motion, said bond with the sureties therein named was duly approved.

A communication, signed by A. B. Cotton, chairman of citizens executive committee, notifying the council of the appointment of its members as a committee of reception and entertainment for His Excellency, Gov. Croswell, on his visit to Tecumseh on July 3d next, was received and read.

On motion, the appointment so made was accepted.

The following bills against the corporation were presented and referred to Finance Committee:

Geo. Heesen, 1 day as inspector of election	$ 2 00
Sutton & Swan, hardware	81 22
W. Nixon, 5½ days in cemetery	6 56

On motion, the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings were requested to make inquiry and recommend to the council at its next regular meeting a suitable place to establish a pound for the village.

On further motion, the council adjourned.

P. S. McKINNON, Recorder.

Adrian Times, June 21: Yesterday an old lady named Andrews, 74 years of age, visiting at Mr. A. J. Harrison's, in Palmyra, mistaking a door, fell down cellar, receiving serious and probably fatal injuries. Dr. Reynolds was called, and after an examination pronounced the case altogether doubtful. She received a large scalp wound and internal injuries, and raised large quantities of blood at intervals. She was the mother of the late "Billy" Andrews, the widow of two husbands, both of whom we believe met a violent death by accident. She was paying her old friends a farewell visit, preparatory to her departure to Iowa, to spend the remainder of her days with a daughter, her only surviving child. This is the same stairway down which a Mrs. Stowell from the northern part of the State, fell two years ago, and was crippled for life. The door is side by side with a door leading into another room. It swings the same way, and is often mistaken by strangers and not infrequently by members of the family. It will doubtless be fixed now to swing the other way.

Hudson Post: Con. Burt, son of Thomas Burt, Jr., of Ransom, was severely bitten by a dog of Mr. Philip Wolf's last Sunday. Mr. Wolf was living in a house on Burt's farm, and was absent from home at the time. Young Burt was employed to feed the dog in their absence; and when he went to give him food, the dog, being naturally vicious, sprang upon him, caught him just below the eye and tearing the eyelid loose at the outer corner, and tore his nose so that a physician had to be called to sew it up. He is doing well at last accounts.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, June 23, 1880:

Angel, Miss Maggie — Cassel, Mrs Clara L.
Hancock, Miss Mary

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

S. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARRIED.

TRIBOU—LILLEY—On the 17th inst., by Rev. J. Phelps, at the residence of the bride's father, Lucius Lilley, Esq., in this village, Mr. Lester Pullman Tribou and Miss Julia Gertrude Lilley, all of Tecumseh.

BALDWIN—NORTON—At the residence of Mrs. D. L. Rogers in Tecumseh, June 14, 1880, by Rev. A. J. Bigelow, Mr Silas Baldwin, of Hampshire, Ill., and Mrs. Louisa Norton, of Poltney, Vt.

CURTIS—REEVES—In Cambridge, on the 17th inst., by Rev. R. Wooden, Mr. Charles G. Curtis and Miss Ida Reeves, both of Madison.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, June 24, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending June 17, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show an increase of 3,792 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

51 steers	1330	4.60	20 steers	1258	$4 85
20 steers	1123	4.65	19 steers	1148	4.70
18 steers	1171	4.70	20 steers	1202	4.75

Sheep—The receipts for the week show an increase of 2,700 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

202 Ohio sheep	104	4.45
43 stock sheep	88	4.00
28 Kentucky lambs	98	6.60

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show an increase of 3,365 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

149	190	4.40	164	195	4.40
117	203	4.40	53	149	4.40
76	219	4.50	96	175	4.40

DETROIT MARKET.

Tuesday, June 22, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 3 cars at $1.03@1.02½; do July, 15,000 bu at 99½c; do August, 2,000 bu at 93c.

Feed—Bran, $11; middlings, $12@14 per ton.

Butter—12½@13½c per lb.

Eggs—Fresh, 12@12½c per doz.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@10¾c. Shoulders, 6c. Breakfast bacon, 9c. Dried Beef, 11½@12½c per lb.

Wool—35@37c per lb.

Corn—43c per bu.

Oats—34@34½c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 1540 bbls.
EGGS—Shipped 227 bbls; 35 crates.
BUTTER—Shipped 2740 lbs.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 900 lbs.
GRAIN—Shipped 5 cars.
STAVES—Shipped 1 car.
LUMBER—Shipped 1 car.
MILL FEED—Shipped 2 cars.
MANUFACTURES—Shipped 1 Brick and Tile Machine.

Apples, ℔ barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ℔ lb	5 @	7
Butter, ℔ lb	10@	12
Barley, ℔ bushel	50@	60
Beans, ℔ bushel	1.00@	1.50
Buckwheat, ℔ bushel	.50@	.60
Buckwheat Flour, ℔ hundred	3.25@	3.60
Beef—dressed, ℔ hundred	450 @	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins, ℔ lb	@	10
Corn in ear	25@	28
Corn,—shelled, ℔ bushel	45@	48
Clover Seed	3.50 @	4.00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ℔ dozen	@	8
Flour, ℔ barrel	6.00 @	7.00
Hogs Dressed, ℔ cwt	@	5.00
Hogs Live, ℔ lb	3 50@	3 85
Hay ℔ ton	7.00@	8.00
Hides, ℔ lb	@	6½
Honey, ℔ lb	@	15
Ham, ℔ lb	@	9
Lard, ℔ lb	@	8
Oats, ℔ bushel	29 @	32
Onions, ℔ bushel	1.50@	2.00
Potatoes, ℔ bushel	25 @	30
Salt, ℔ barrel	@	1.50
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1.25
Timothy Seed, ℔ bushel	@	3.00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ℔ cord	3.00 @	4 00
Wheat, White, ℔ bushel	90@	98
Wheat, Red, ℔ bushel	90 @	95

How deceptive some people are respecting their age. Sometimes a person you wouldn't suppose to be over 20 or 25 years old, after having the thing figured up turns out to be 75 and upwards.

The Day We Celebrate!!

1776.  1880.

GRAND INDEPENDENCE

CELEBRATION

AT TECUMSEH,

On Saturday July 3d, 1880.

TWO NOBLE OBJECTS---To Commemorate the Day of our Nation's Birth, and to build a Soldiers' Monument.

ORATION BY GOV. C. M. CROSWELL,

OF ADRIAN,---IN HANFORD'S GROVE.

Grand Competitive Drill of 1st Reg. M. S. T.

COL. FITZSIMMONS COMD'G. PRIZES $75 & $25.

5 FIVE BANDS OF MUSIC. 5

Manchester, Clinton, Raisin, Springville, and Tecumseh Bands.

The Blissfield and Tecumseh Fire Departments

And the HUDSON BATTERY will Join the Parade.

GRAND BASE BALL CONTEST.

Prizes 60 & 25 Dollars.

A SUMPTUOUS PICNIC DINNER will be served in Hanford's Grove.

BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FIRE WORKS

IN THE EVENING.---$500 WORTH.

Half fare & special trains on the R.R.

For full particulars see Small Bills.

HON. P. BILLS, President.

LUCIUS LILLEY, Marshal.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry,

Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:

I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $8 and an enemy.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 5 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $3.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Aesop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.

American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. Tribune Building, New York.

☞ Orders for any of these books may be forwarded through the HERALD OFFICE.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

☞ Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN!

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS.

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI—NO 6. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 1, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1543.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Grand Benefit at MARSDEN'S!

Fine Shoes and Fine Slippers

AT COST!

Open During Business Hours.

JEWELRY AT BARGAINS !

All who may be in want of Jewelry, Silverware, Clocks or Watches, will find at my store the largest and finest assortment in the city and at prices which none can undersell.

ALL GOODS AT OLD PRICES,

Notwithstanding the large advances.

Engraving Free of Charge on all goods sold by me.

O. B. DeWOLF.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY !!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

LADIES'

READY-MADE GARMENTS,

—FOR—

SPRING & SUMMER.

Circles, English Jackets,

Dusters and Ulsters.

ALL NEW AND NOVEL.

A. B. COTTON.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

BROOKLYN.

Friday evening Prof. Dickey, of Albion College, delivered an interesting address in the Presbyterian church.—His theme was "Who Wins."

There were but three graduates this year, but they are good students.—Fred. Kisber's essay on "No Luck Like Pluck," was a masterpiece of briefness and practical common sense. Fred. Crego's "Success," was successful, and Flora Townsend's "Right wins the Fight," brought forth a shower of bouquets.

Prof. Pierce has wrought a change in the school, and won the respect of the turbulent by maintaining order.—As usual the music was good and the house crowded.

The great eclipse failed to happen Saturday, but at night the cup of political enthusiasm bubbled over.—There was a ratification meeting at the Central hotel and a scatteration meeting at the jail. The speeches were very affecting, but some items that never ought to be told outside the Garfield family circle, were flung broadcast among their unsatisfied neighbors. The speaker at the jail told the largest swear I ever heard, but no one got hurt.

The propriety of holding Sabbath Schools in churches is the question that agitates some in authority here. While some think the Sunday School a part of divine service, others deem it right to close the doors against the little folks' lessons. We believe those who listened to that fifteen minute swear might stop the schism by asking the Council to allow the Superintendent to teach the commandments there. PEARLIE.

CLINTON.

If the old sign be true, corn will grow this weather.

Geo. A. Kies and wife came home on a visit last Friday. Geo. returned to his duties at Howell Monday, but his wife remains to spend the third here.

The commencement exercises of the Clinton high school, which took place at the Town hall last Friday evening were the best of the kind that we have witnessed in a long time. There were three graduates, each of whom delivered a very finely prepared essay, reflecting great honor upon themselves and much credit to their teachers. "The Loom of Life" by Miss Genevieve Lancaster, was very ably written and most faultlessly rendered. Large splendid bouquets of the choicest flowers were presented each graduate, which they seemed to fully appreciate. Prof. Wendell and Miss Newcomb, two of the teachers, each of whom has resigned, (he to take charge of the high schools of Hudson and she to return to her home at Blissfield) were presented with some very handsome bound volumes of standard works. Dr. A. W. Alvord in behalf of the scholars presented the same in some appropriate and well chosen remarks. Prof. Wendell has been with us four years, and as teacher, citizen, and friend, has but few equals. He goes to his new field in Hudson followed by the respect and kind wishes of the people of Clinton. In his labors among us he has endeared himself to all, especially the school, and now as he goes to his new field, he goes followed by the universal esteem and good will of all.

RIDGEWAY.

Farmers very busy in hay and wheat.

Our village school closed on Tuesday last.

John Britton has cleared the track, of his barns. They now occupy the south side of the turnpike. This is the first work on the Railroad.

Cecil Clark, Jonathan Hall, and Coonrod Lowe have each started self binding harvesters.

The game of ball at the Vescelius social was an interesting one. Score, 11 to 13 in favor of Ridgeway.

Miss Myra Wood and Ella Jackson were rather unceremoniously dumped out of a buggy one day last week while on their way to visit Ida Schreder's school. Ella was considerably bruised up, but is about again.

Ridgeway will turn out pretty well to the celebration at Tecumseh Saturday, judging from present reports.

The Rev. Mr. Dawe of Deerfield will fill Mr. Wood's pulpit next Sunday.

Henry Wilson, and J. R. Miller and wife have put in an appearance since the close of school.

If the weather is pleasant next Saturday we shall have the biggest crowd ever seen in Tecumseh.

OUR GRADUATES.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE HIGH SCHOOL AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

A Splendid Audience and an Interesting Program—A Presentation to Prof. Spencer.

Another graduating class has crossed the threshold from the High School into active life. The class of '80 was not as large as some of its predecessors, but its members were fully up to the standard of excellence which has given the Tecumseh High School its extended reputation.

The arrangements for the concluding exercises on Thursday evening were perfect in every detail, and a large and brilliant audience was present to witness the exercises. The stage was tastefully set with elegant furniture, house plants, and other ornaments. The vocal and instrumental music upon the program was excellent, and the several essays by the graduating class were all of extra quality and finely delivered. The array of floral offerings was unusually large and brilliant, each graduate receiving a large number of beautiful bouquets and floral ornaments. Severance's orchestra furnished the instrumental music, which was superb. Fred Wood, Leon Dutton, Alf W. James, M. L. Root and Put Woodard acted as ushers, and they proved themselves fully equal to their arduous duties.

As soon as the evening shadows began to fall, the audience began to gather, and at 8 o'clock the spacious Opera House, both floor and gallery, was completely filled.

Prof. Spencer called the audience to order shortly after 8 o'clock, and the program was presented in the following order:

Music—Orchestra.
Prayer—Rev. J. Phelps.
Music—Orchestra.
Willing or Unwilling—Luella M. Waring.
Whither?—Julia A. Snell.
Solo—Mrs. C. H. McConnell.
The Future of America—Albert L. Arner.
Vita—Minnie E. Jones.
Solo—Mrs. L. I. Bidwell.
Principles—John B. Whelan.
Grasping for Sunbeams—Clara N. Campbell.
Music—Orchestra.
Confirming Diplomas.
Music—Orchestra.
Benediction—Rev. Wm. Grandy.

We give below a short synopsis of the essays to show the general idea conveyed by each:

WILLING OR UNWILLING.

Willingness is nobility. A willingness to perform one's entire duty is true nobility. The period of leaving school is an important one, and yet one never really leaves school, for life is a school which all must enter, either willingly or unwillingly. Greatness is only achieved by hard labor. Willing or unwilling we all have unpleasant duties to perform, but the disagreeable duties are often the most productive of good results. Every one has some influence, and it should be for good rather than for evil. Those who have nothing to do have the most vexations. Excellence is never granted to man but as the reward of labor. Nothing is denied to willing and well directed toil, and nothing can be obtained without it. Willing or unwilling, all must engage in the struggle of life, and the issue will depend on the earnestness of our work.

WHITHER?

Upon every side we behold the beauties of nature. And what is nature? To God it is an agent by which he may carry out his wondrous plan of salvation; to man it is only the question, Whither? Not only is nature herself a query, but each work of her hand is a secret in itself. The wind sings the same refrain, the brook chants this lullaby, and old ocean re-echos "Whither?" in its sullen roar. And the same still small voice is heard within the human soul. Galileo watched the sinking of the sun, and to its mute cry "Whither?" he responded with the greatest modern discovery. And still there is much left unsolved. God is gracious and has granted us numberless blessings, but beyond all these he has placed a barrier and says, "Thus far shalt thou go and no farther." And the same question recurs to us in our daily life. Soon, however, the journey of life will be over and in the presence of our Redeemer all secrets will be revealed.

THE FUTURE OF AMERICA.

We are living in an age never to be forgotten, in a country whose history is a grand national success. And when we look back over the past and view our unparelleled development from a small beginning to our present position among the nations, we are moved with patriotic admiration. But notwithstanding our remarkable growth and present power, are we exempt from all danger in the futures. Will the time ever come when our States shall be dissevered and the Union dissolved? Party spirit is becoming stronger in all our affairs. Shall we prosper under this condition of things? Have our fathers fought and bled for a cause that is going to fail? These are questions for us to decide, and they are questions of no trifling importance. What our country most needs to-day is honest rulers; men of good character and sound judgment; men who can govern themselves. The world is looking to us with great expectations. Give us honest, able rulers and we shall have loyal, upright and united citizens.

VITA.

What is life? A scene of disquiet and disorder; a succession of struggles, many of which begin at the cradle and cease only at the grave. The few prizes among the many blanks which the world offers are won only by hard work. It has been said that circumstances make the man. This may be true in a measure, but there are those who seem to make their own circumstances. Milton devoted seven years to the composition of his most famous work. Why should laborers in any field become weary and falter? Though the reward may appear to come slowly, it will surely come. Many of the greatest scholars whose names enrich the pages of history struggled with poverty in their youth. As life is short, every man should ascertain as soon as possible for what he is best fitted, and pursue his course faithfully to the coveted goal.

PRINCIPLES.

As entities we are born, as entities we die, but we are as blind in regard to the infinity of the future as we are in regard to the eternity of the past. There are certain laws which govern all material things. These laws we will call principles. They always have existed and always will exist. Nature is divided into two great classes, causes and effects. Causes are invisible; effects are visible. The sum total of causes we know not; the sum total of effects is the glorious universe around us. There are principles which govern matter. These all should know, but it is of more importance to be acquainted with the principles of right and wrong, truth, justice, liberty and love. There is a book forming every day whose pages are filled with these principles. It was begun when the first law of the universe was discovered, and will be completed only when man shall cease to progress. Let each one strive to add some principle to its pages. And the place where they are wrought out is in the circle of the fireside; in the sacred trinity of father, mother, child.—Bound to no party, to no sect confined; the world my home, my brethren all mankind.

GRASPING FOR SUNBEAMS.

The infant playing upon the floor joyfully stretches forth its little hand to grasp the sunbeam which comes dancing through the window pane. But soon the child sees the fickleness of the sunbeam and gives up in disappointment. And the child's disappointment is but magnified in children of larger growth. Are we not all striving for the unattainable; reaching out in vain to grasp those things which are not for us? But there are a multitude of good gifts within our reach, and if we cannot catch the beam itself, we can appropriate day by day all the blessings it gives us. Nor is it right that we should selfishly grasp even the common blessings and confine them to our own enjoyment. We should share our blessings with others. Again, if the rays which we gather are not put to a right use it is far better that we were denied them. We may sometimes wonder why we labor to acquire and enjoy the sunbeams. The simple fact that we possess them does not give perfect contentment. It is only when we can share our enjoyment and possession with others that we can be truly happy, for then we can prove the truth, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

After conferring the diplomas, which was very appropriately performed by Mr. David McNair, a little episode occurred which added very materially to the interest of the program. The students and graduates of the High School had procured a beautiful water service, consisting of ice-pitcher and goblets, to present to Prof. Spencer as a token of their high esteem. At this point Fred B. Wood stepped upon the stage and made the presentation in these words:

Prof. Spencer: The exercises with which we have been favored to-night under your superintendency will long be remembered by us with especial interest. For this commencement not only marks the close of another academic year, but after to-night the relation you have so long and so well sustained to us will cease, though I trust the strong bond of friendship may ever unite us. And though we shall never forget your familiar face and shall always remember with pride how by your untiring efforts our alma mater has been advanced to an enviable position among her sister schools, still we have a shadowy fear lest your new duties and surroundings may somewhat efface us from your memory. Yet not so much on that account, but rather as a slight token of our deep esteem and respect for you, allow me in behalf of your pupils and graduates to present you with this memento, and in after years may it remind you of the many hearts won by you during your residence in Tecumseh.

Prof. Spencer was taken wholly by surprise and a moment or two elapsed before he could recover his usual equanimity. He then responded in a very neat little extempore speech, substantially as follows:

I am sure, my dear friends, that I cannot find words at this time to thank you for your kind expressions of friendship and for this beautiful present. It is indeed a part of the program which I had not anticipated. When I came to Tecumseh six years ago I was a great gainer, for I came a stranger and have added to my list many dear friends. Because of my coming I am a richer and wiser, but not a sadder man. In taking my leave of you I am a loser—a very great loser, for I shall miss your kindly sympathy and cheerful greeting. I desire to express my gratitude to the school board for their uniform kindness in aiding me in my work, to the parents and patrons of the school for their patience and forbearance with my faults, but especially to my numerous pupils, those dear children—many of whom are children no longer—at your firesides. Allow me again to thank you for your kindness.

For the past six years Prof. Spencer has conducted the Tecumseh High School, and during his administration it has attained a high reputation and a position among the first High Schools of the state. He now leaves us to engage in a larger field of labor. His departure occasions the most sincere regret, both among the pupils who have learned to love him, and the parents who have learned to esteem him for his abilities as a school superintendent and his sterling character as a man. The seed which he has sown here will bear good fruit in future years. May his lines fall in pleasant places, and may he attain the same measure of success in his new home, with which he has been so bountifully blessed in Tecumseh.

Adrian Times, June 29: An accident by which the driver barely escaped death, and by which a valuable horse was killed, occurred yesterday morning, about noon, on the farm of Tom J. Harris, in the town of Adrian. Mr. Harris was driving a team attached to a mowing machine, when the horses became frightened at some object and ran away. The driver fortunately succeeded in keeping out of the way of the maddened steeds, and escaping the wheels of the machine, which would have doubtless inflicted fatal injuries had they caught Mr. Harris in their revolutions. The horses ran against a tree, one of them, a valuable bay mare, falling and breaking its neck. The machine was somewhat demoralized, but taken all together, Mr. Harris congratulates himself on having come out of the predicament so cheaply.

Jackson Patriot: Invitations have been received by Co. G and the members of the brigade and First Regiment staffs resident in this city from Col. W. C. Fitzsimmons, commanding First Regiment (M. S. T.), and S. C. Stacy, committee, on behalf of the citizens of Tecumseh, to participate in the celebration of the nation's natal anniversary, which is to be held there on Saturday, July 3d. Company G has already decided to accept the invitation, and it is probable the military element in Jackson will be pretty thoroughly represented in Tecumseh on that occasion.

Hudson Gazette: A serious accident happened to Grant Fellows, a lad aged 15, on Saturday last. He had hold of the drag-rope of Alert fire engine, which was running to the McKenzie fire, when he was thrown from his feet and run over by the ponderous machine. One of his ribs was broken and one disconnected, and he was otherwise seriously hurt, so that for a time it was feared he must lose his life. But his physician, Dr. Nix, informs us he is getting along quite well at this writing, with good prospects of entirely recovering.

Lansing Republican: Several specimens of sharp practice in the wool trade, discovered by buyers within the past few days, render the term "honest farmer" somewhat mythical in their minds. On Thursday Ekstein & Lederer offered a farmer 36 cents for a lot of wool which looked like solid, nicely washed fleeces, but on examination it was found that this honest(?) granger had stuffed each fleece with tags and pulled wool, covered with filth. The seller lost 4 cents per pound by the operation. Another lot of wool had been wet in the center to make it weigh. Some men sell themselves mighty cheap.

Morenci Observer: Charley Kuney, son of Wash Kuney, the well-known horseman, came here Monday morning bearing a black eye and having a body sore and bruised. The night before, as he related, he was attacked when alone on the highway by a neighbor and sons, who bear a hostility against him and his father, and was given a beating that has since made him feel rather physically inert. Officer Jibb was dispatched with warrants after the assailants at their home near Adrian, and their trial was appointed for Friday.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

CLASS OF 1880.

CLASS EXERCISES PROPER HELD ON WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The Oration, Poem, Prophecy and History —Class Supper at Mr. H. J. Snell's.

The Class of 1880 held their class exercises in private this year, at the residence of H. J. Snell, Esq., in this village, where they partook of their class supper. The entertainment took place on Wednesday evening of last week, the members of the class being present and a few invited guests besides. The literary exercises of the evening consisted of a Poem by A. L. Arner; History, by Minnie Jones; Prophecy, by Julia Snell; Valedictory, by Clara Campbell.

The class song, composed by Luella M. Waring, was sung, and the party enjoyed their refreshments out upon the lawn. After supper the following toasts were given:

Class of '80—Response by Professor Spencer.

The Geometry Class of '79-'80—Response by Miss Kahler.

The High School—Response by Miss Cottrell.

All who had the good fortune to be present seemed to enjoy the occasion very much. We present below the literary productions in full:

Poem.

A. L. ARNER.

To the class of eighteen-eighty,
Must I now in honor sing;
And before this honored number,
Shall our words of tribute bring.
And a poem,—did you say so,
That this exercise should be?
Now, you know I'm far more prosy
Than I ought,—but I'll agree.

Now, a poem is a mixture
Of strange fancies and grave facts;
This shall be as dry and solemn
As Josh Billings' Almanax.
Those that are of class-day order,
Must be rather sad and slow;
Else we would not all remember
'Bout some things we ought to know.

And a poem, let me tell you,
Is no poem with no rhyme;
It must flow like merry music,
Where sweet tinkles beat and chime.
Should mine fall below the level
Where the best are always found,
'Twill be because I sacrifice
No common sense for sound.

Here we are my classmates gathered,
On the pleasant summer's eve;
Six our number when all counted,
Six ones more may make believe.
Teachers, too, have come to witness
What the youthful ones might do,
Thought perhaps they'd hear some speeches,
And, perchance, they'd make some too.

Come to have their memories refreshed
Of old scenes that long have passed;
Come to learn how time is fleeting,
In his journey now so fast.
Come to hear the words of wisdom,
Which like honey drops shall fall;
And to hear our fortunes told us
By the sage who knoweth all.

'Tis, you know, an old time custom,
For each class to have its day;
Meet upon the High School campus,
Have the cornet band to play.
There to have a rustic platform,
Just a classic little pen,
Green with verdure from the forest,
Hung with patient hands—and then,

Come they there on this occasion,
All the ladies in the town;
Some with happy smiling faces,
Some with nature's firm-fixed frown.
All the men are there so busy,
Scarce but few come out to hear;
Or, they lack appreciation
Of the honors of the year.

Only let a banjo player
Or some patent medicine quack,
Wheel his cart upon the corner,
And of men they never lack.
From the office and the counter,
Men of high and low degree;
Full of cheers and admiration,
Time is plenty, show is free.

So the class-day comes and passes,
And each victor pass away,
Rousing cheers and praise of ladies,
And a "program of the day."
We have changed the honored custom,
For a new and novel one,
Not from any selfish motive,
But, from good may it be done.

Two good things when nicely blended,
Make of both a happy mien;
Like the red and brighter yellow,
Give the golden orange between.
So our class-day and our supper,
Here their charms and fancies blend,
And we trust before we finish
That a happy time we'll spend.

Soon we'll see the future opened,
And our destinies we'll read;
Some will tread a road to fortune,
Some, a humble course will lead.
So, you see, our lives are fated,
Like the Greeks, in story old;
Nought can change the firm-sealed sentence
Even should time himself grow old.

Could we all but weave our fortunes,
What a fabric would we make;
All of silver threads and golden,
None no darker would we take.
But, when time had worn it thread bare,
Or, some wretched rent had made,
Might we have but straws to patch it:
Then would all its beauty fade.

Rather first of straws be woven,
As perhaps 'twill be to-night,
With some chinks on purpose open,
To be filled with threads more bright.
Weave them in I say, my classmates,
Weave in bright and shining stars;
Let each thought, each deed, each action,
Gild it o'er with spangled bars.

Let us drink a toast to school-days;
Clink your glasses now my friends,
To the best and fondest memories,
Which the most of pleasure lends.
Youth, of life, the budding springtime,
With its sunshine and its showers;
After budding, then the blooming
Into bright and handsome flowers.

Many precious [illegible] at the outset,
Many [illegible] his nose so that
O'ers[illegible] to be called to sew i[illegible]
[illegible] doing well at last accounts,

Quaff another to the future,
To the joys we trust in store;
To the hopes and lofty fancies
Filling all our visions o'er.
Flee away each thought of sorrow,
Cast no darkened shadows here,
In the heart that throbs with pleasure
There is never room for fear.

Let us all still yet be scholars
(In the great school of to-day)
Learn life's hard and sterner lessons,
As we meet them by the way.
Spend not all of life in living,
But in doing, doing well;
Not by words will you accomplish
Half your deeds your life will tell.

When this strange school life is over,
And we're graduated here,
May the class of eighteen-eighty
At that greater feast appear.
Hope and labor on, my classmates,
And the crowns at last we'll gain,
Sweet reward for all our labor,
And a gem for every pain.

Class History.

MINNIE JONES.

George Elliot says that a nation that has had no trouble has no history.—Thus it is with the Class of '80. Had our path been all sunshine, without a shadow, we would have had no great events, no victories or defeats to relate to you to-night.

When we look back over the past and recall to mind the day when we first entered school it seems but a very short time. We can all remember when we used to sit in those delightful straight backed seats, our feet about six inches from the floor, with one of our eyes cast on our book, the other on the teacher, fearful lest for some misdemeanor we would be compelled to occupy that most envied position—the dunce block.

Our first instructress was a Stocking; her position was, however, soon occupied by another who reminded us of a very large Banty; then having been Chased about for a short time, we found, to our great joy, that we would next be governed by a beautiful Rose. Under her administration we advanced so rapidly that we were soon prepared to enter the Union School.—Well do we remember starting for school the first morning of the following year. Our former schoolmates were scarcely noticed; but to our great disappointment we found on arriving at school that we were to be treated but little better. How often while thinking of the past have we recalled that beautiful march which we heard morning after morning for three years. Do you think any of us have forgotten it? The next year we found ourselves under the control of a most dignified lady, who afterwards accompanied us to the High School, where she has remained ever since. We here were joined by our president. A large class it was, indeed, who accompanied us to the High School, still how many are here to-night to represent it? Only four, yet it is with pleasure that we recall these. One of them is orator of the Class of '80 in one of Michigan's largest cities, while others have taken up the pursuits of life, and perhaps are rejoicing to think that even a few of their number have come off conquerors.

The following year, having entered the highest room, we, as was expected, were very dignified. But what was our surprise when one day the teacher made the startling announcement that "the young ladies of the High School had acted like a set of little geeses."

During our Junior year that terrible epidemic arose which we all seemed destined to catch. Various recipes were prescribed, but nothing could be effected until the cause of this dreadful disease was removed.

It was during the reign of our present teacher that most of the important events occurred. This year we commenced the study of the language of that dolorous biography, in which study we became splendid linguists.—A school choir was organized, having for its leader a member of our class.—We were now seniors, and an awful feeling of responsibility rested upon our minds, so that we began to think that as life was short we must improve the golden minutes and leave to our dear friends and teachers some memento of the Class of '80. We considered the matter carefully and at last came to the conclusion that the dearest and most precious thing we could leave them would be a picture of this wonderful class. Wishing to give our friends a surprise we told no one, but quietly left school and went to the studio. But alas, our efforts were not appreciated, for on arriving at school the next morning we found that the Junior class had also remained at home, and having heard that a special meeting of the Board had been called to consider the matter, with fear and trembling we again thought that life was indeed short for us; but no, behind the cloud was the sun still shining, for seventeen girls were too much for them, and they only asked us if we wouldn't, as our school days was of short duration, sign a paper for an example to the youthful scholar.

The last, but by no means least important event, was an invitation received from our teacher in music and the choir to a supper given in honor of this class. This will always be remembered as one of the pleasantest events of our school life.

Thus having passed through all this tumult and strife it seems wonderful that the weight of this class is now 624½ lbs. That our height is 31 feet 2½ inches. We have among our number the long 6 ft. 1½ in., the short 4 ft. 9½ inches. The youngest member of this class is sixteen; our average age is eighteen.

Another year of our school life is now finished, and we may have assembled here to-night for the last time. The events of to-day and of our past school days will ever be remembered and recalled with pleasure, perhaps with pride, as we pass through the journey of life. The little incidents which seem now hardly worth telling, will possess a deeper interest and will linger long and fondly in the imagination.

Our history closes and

"A few more days and we shall leave
This little world of ours,
And go forth in that larger world,
Where are more thorns than flowers.
But let us ever joyful be;
Though oft the teardrop starts,
We'll keep the memory of these years
Ever bright within our hearts."

Class Prophecy of 1880.

JULIA SNELL.

Our doubts and fears were ended,
We were ready to fight and win,
Our labor had been commended
By teachers and friends and kin.
So we called a meeting stately,
Of our happy band of seven,
Seven admired by all greatly
As sweet angels just from heaven.
So for prophet then they chose me,
Chose me their future to foretell,
Painted must their future lives be,
And they bade me to excel
Each and all who came before me,
And I trembling looked and listened,
While they beg, entreat, implore me that—
But as my tear-drops glistened
Down my ashen cheeks in sorrow,
They in kindly pity left me,
Cheered and pointed to the morrow;
For my senses had bereft me.
In the prospect dark and dreary
I could see no brightening ray,
Felt so tired and sick and weary,
Wished that 'twere my dying day.
But time flew on eager wing,
And in fear and dread I stood,
When from out our mystic ring
Dropped a maiden fair and good.
Though I missed her then so sadly,
Yet came up my heart's low cry,
One less live to picture badly,
One less passion to defy,
When in painting future greatness,
I shall prophesy too wrong;
Give to each her fair address,
Make the next far too headstrong.
Thus a ray of light did greet me,
And I grasped it sure and tight,
When another came to meet me,
Giving me such great delight.
For, as gazing back o'er ages,
And my mind recalled the past,
I could read again the pages,
Of each one a prophet classed;
And I heard in mournful story,
How the flesh from each did fall,
Left them clothed in deepest glory,
But mere shadows thin and tall.
Then I prayed so humbly kneeling,
That with me it might be so—
That I might not still be feeling,
As if fit for Barnum's show.
Oh, bliss! oh, rapture! what a tho't,
That from me the flesh would fall,
That I would be as long sought,
A mere shadow, thin and tall.
Thus encouraged, much I wondered,
On the future so uncertain;
Thought and pondered, sighed and blundered,
As I tried to raise the curtain,
Strive to gather up the folds,
Back of which the future lies,
All our life hereafter holds
Safely hid from human eyes.
Thus in vain I labored long,
For my feeble strength would fail,
And I saw that I was wrong
Thus to try to pierce the vail.
If the future I would learn,
I the gods' consent must wait;
If they see for what I yearn,
They will show a way so straight
That I cannot fail to find it,
And with truth the future read;
And the waiting, I'll not mind it,
If at last my wish they heed.
Then I ceased my vain endeavor,
And in patience waited long;
Yet sometimes I feared that ever
Would the gods my pain prolong.
Daily looked I for a vision,
Stood that monument beside,
While my mates laughed in derision,
And in loudest laughter vied.
Then I watched the heavens nightly,
Nightly for the chariot wasted,
But no fury saw unsightly,
As my predecessor stated.
Came to her in fiery glory,
Bore her over land and sea,
Showed her mates all with age hoary,
On the brink, eternity.
Nightly tried to dream of something
That would aid me in my task,
But my dreams all came to nothing,
And for aid I could not ask.
But the time kept coming nearer,
And my last great hope had fled;
For the fact grew daily clearer
That I then grew fat instead.
Pound by pound the flesh kept coming
Till my weight—how can I tell?
All the pounds together summing,
Somewhere in two hundred fell;
And no aid could I see near me,
Nor the future could I read,
For the gods seemed not to hear me,
Caring not how great my need.
So when all things darkness covered,
And no one could see me fly,
Where the darkest shadows hovered,
And the bats flew whizzing by;
There with winged feet I hastened,
As if of all sense bereft.
Deep and deeper grew the night-shades
All about the shadows fall,
As the light of open field fades
Into forests grim and tall.
On and on I went, not caring
Where the path before me led;
Useless eyes before me staring,
Seeing not a thing ahead.
But at last when tired and weary,
Slowly back my senses came,
And amid the woods so dreary,
I sank down so weak and lame,
When before me 'mid the trees
Came a light so bright and clear
That before it darkness flees,
And I see a camp fire near.
All around it groups of men
Smoke their pipe with laugh and jest,
While among them now and then
Flit the squaws so gaily dressed;
While from arms with brush piled high,
Heaped the fire still higher and higher,
Till the flames leaped to the sky,
Seemed to quench the holier fire,
Of the stars so brightly shining,
Pouring radiance divine
O'er the trees o'er head entwining,
O'er the leaves of ash and pine.
In the back ground stood the tents,
Their rude shelter in the wild,
And a crooning came from thence,
As a mother soothed her child.
Hearing, thought the song the same
As I'd heard long, long ago,
When from out the tent there came
A woman with form bent low;
Down she crouched beside the fire,
And the hand of each she took,
Read for them all they desire,
Read as 'twere from off a book.
When I heard her ready tongue,
As the future she'd reveal,
From me all reserve I flung,
Feeling she my grief could heal.
To the firelight then I rushed,
Down before her low I knelt,
Instantly all jest was hushed,
Their keen eyes on me I felt.
But, unheeding aught around,
Fixed my eyes upon her face,
Thus before her on the ground,
Told her all and plead my case.
With attention then she listened,
As I all my woe did tell;
At the close a tear drop glistened,
As from off her cheek it fell,
When her pity I behold,
Quick my sorrow taketh wing,
And my plan I then unfold,
While my voice with hope doth ring
Thus in earnest I implore;
"Oh! kind lady, grant to me
Such a power to look before,
And the future to foresee."
Then to me she made reply:
"Dear child, this power of mine,
Thus the future to descry,
For a short hour shall be thine."
Then with hand upon my head,
Chanted words to me unknown,
Till I shut my eyes in dread,
While she sang her mystic tune.
Suddenly her chanting ceased,
And I oped my eyes in wonder,
For I saw no man of beast,
And I heard the roll of thunder.
Gone were all the tents and men;
Gone the fire and bright starlight,
While the lightning now and then,
Lit the blackness of the night.
But amid the storm's deep roaring,
I heard a voice so deep and clear:
"Haste! the hour on wings is soaring,
The time of prophecy draws near."
And from out the bushes round me,
Came a rustling sound, as quick
Did my class of five surround me;
Pressed upon me dense and thick.
So as time was swiftly flying,
Made I no delay or waited,
All their looks and words defying,
For each one their future stated.
First came John so tall and stately,
And I seized his hand so mighty,
John self-respected then so greatly.
That the world seemed "mean and flighty,"
Seized his hand and read so plainly
From the lines there deeply traced.
What before I'd tried
To foretell in useless haste.
First before him a journey lay,
Short, but filled with hope and dread,
To Ann Arbor was his way;
To that ordeal his road led.
Back o'er long he came among us
With face weary and sedate,
And his manner deeply stung us,
For at once we knew his fate—
Knew that he had tried and failed,
And in pity tried to cheer,
But from us disgrace he vailed,
And thus answered with a sneer:
"My return, kind friends, I'll explain,
I passed so well my examination
That in Ann Arbor I remain,
Only at time of recitation."
In his striving thus defeated,
Such an aimless life he led,
That a Republican entreated,
Viewing him from foot to head,
That for wages good he'd stand,
As a tamarack pole so high,
Bearing "Garfield and Arthur" grand;
Thus the Democrats to defy.
Thus he stood so tall and stately,
Not a nerve or muscle stirred,
Till the people wondered greatly
If he ever spoke a word.
But at last o'er sea and land,
"Hurrah for Hancock" came the shout,
And no longer could he stand,
But fell, tossed by careless hands about.
Handled not tenderly,
Lifted not with care,
Fashioned so slenderly,
Young and so fair.
Next before me Albert stood,
And I searched his hand in vain,
For I thought for one so good
And a life without a stain,
Surely the future must be bright,
And they told me he was smart,
That he'd be a shining light
In the muse's world of art.
But the future that I found,
Was a sad one but too true,
For with grief it did abound,
While the sky was black, not blue.
In his joy and pride he left us,
All our sorrow he defied.
Of his presence he bereft us
For his childhood's "ingleside;"
There long years he thought to stay.
'Twas the way his genius led,
Treading in the very pathway
That the wise men all must tread.
But the people knew him not,
That in him such talent lay,
Chose for him a harder lot,
Gave of sunshine not a ray.
For they made him with one voice
Superintendent district schools,
Set his task without his choice;
To make wise men out of fools.
Four long years he fought with teachers,
Toiled and in vain struggled long,
Till at last sad grew his features,
Tried at last to soothe by song.
But he sang "so well" you know,
That they found it hard to tell
Whether 'twas him or a crow,
And his singing on stone fell.
But at last worn out by toil,
A mere shadow, short and bent,
Then he left his native soil,
To the sunny South he went,
There again his youth he sought,
While the years rolled on in flight;
But new strength could not be bought,
Oh him ever was the blight.
Oh! how little do we know
Of the future just to bud;
Though it looks as white as snow,
Often 'tis as red as blood.
Then Luella's hand I took;
Next for her the future read,
As with fixed and earnest look,
Toward me then she bowed her head.
When she left us and alone,
Started on her way through life.
Though not yet a woman grown,
She was ready for the strife;
First as school teacher she acted,
There she looked for fame and glory,
Till the business she transacted
Brought about the same old story,
Though so short was cut her hair
That a ribbon would not hold.
Though all gone her timid air,
And in place a manner bold.
Though she taught with wisdom wise,
And propounded questions hard,
Though she offered a great prize,
Which she never would award;
Yet sarcastic was her way,
And so sharp it could not be,
So it happened one fine day,
They discharged her without fee.
For a time though she had money,
Had been treasurer of our class;
How 'twas hers though seems quite funny,
Still we all did let it pass.
But as time rolled on and by,
All resources seemed to fail,
Till her choice was beg or die,
And she chose the food so stale.
That would fall from rich mens' tables,
As the beggar lame of old,
And she slept within the stables,
Dreaming of the streets of gold.
If her sweet face then failed ever,
To with pity touch the heart,
Then she sang a song which never Failed to make the tear drops start.
"God bless thee old Alma
Where 'er the blue sky,
Shines on one sun of the teaching,
Hurra! we'll reply."
As I finished with a sigh,
For the sorrow she must know,
She passed on but still stood nigh.
Then came Clara with step slow;
Many years her life was gay,
As society she graced.
All her work was naught but play,
Play were all the sorrows faced.
Of the whole of earth's fair daughters,
She was fowllest of all,
As the hearts of all she slaughters,
Holding them within her thrall.
In all games success was great,
And in archery most of all,
In croquet she had no mate,
She could conquer Arches tall.
But time flew on speedy wing,
And the beaux around her thronged,
Still her finger wore no ring,
Still her name was never changed.
But as time passed beauty fled,
Leaving her forlorn and staid,
And then o'er her came a dread,
Lest she should be an old maid.
Then with care her arts she plied,
With the zeal of great despair,
Sought to draw them to her side—
Sought to charm and keep them there.
Thus in vain all art she tried,
For the cry "The Campbell's coming,"
Roused the men; away they hied,
While their feet made such a humming,
That 'twas heard for miles around,
Like the rumbling of the thunder,
Then for hope she lost all ground,
Cast her ties of love asunder,
Read her farewell to relations,
Quickly started far away;
Stopped to make no explanations,
Waited not another day.
O'er the waters of the sea,
To her kinsmen old and staid,
To old Scotland she did flee.
Lived there ever an old maid.
Joneses coming from all ways,
Thus they kept on coming, coming,
Never ceased a single hour,
While their number she kept summing.
She herself the sweetest flower,
And forever will they come—
Never will they stop an hour,
Ever will she keep her sum.
She herself the brightest flower,
Some may say "What's in a name?"
Let me answer for you all,
Ever is it just the same;
Naught but every thing and all.
Thus I told the futures all
Of the class of 1880.
Some so short and others tall,
Fixed for age the matter weighty,
Only I remained to find,
What of life before me lay,
Would my destiny be hired,
Life, a bright or cloudy day?
But the hour was speeding fast,
And I sat in foolish fear,
Till at last the hour had past;
When from out the shadows near,
Came a voice so loud and clear:
"Greatest side-show in the world;"
And I staid no more to hear.
Through the night myself I hurled,
Speeding onward for a short spell,
Knowing not where I was going,
Till right in my face a branch fell,
And I halt at last knowing,
That around me it is dark.
But above the stars shine bright,
Hear the voice of angels, hark!
Thus they sing in the starlight,
For each one a future waits.
He can make it bright and fair,
Guided by no hand of fates,
Save the motto we declare:
(Virtus tentamine gaudet.)

Valedictory.

CLARA CAMPBELL.

We experience much pleasure in looking over the records of the lives of our forefathers, for although we find their affairs to have been influenced by superstition, we also observe that many of our pleasant pastimes sprung from what were considered their errors. Festivals and holidays have been observed from the most remote times. It is too true that these same festivals have been accompanied by gross dissipation, but notwithstanding this, every nation has been happier because of these recreations, than they would have been under severe discipline.

Throughout the world a harvest is accompanied by a celebration, and there is none probably as suggestive as that which bears the time-honored name "Harvest home." So often and vividly has the history of this custom been portrayed it seems as if we could indeed see our ancestors as they celebrate the festival. Nothing could seem more appropriate than the observance of this holiday, when we consider the gratitude we all feel toward our Heavenly Father for granting the grain to ripen once more, and in so doing furnishing food for millions of the people of the earth. Surely this is a beautiful custom, and we can almost hear the song of the reapers as they trip around in their gay dance, expressing their enjoyment of the day by the words:

"Harvest home, harvest home,
We have ploughed, we have sowed,
We have reaped, we have mowed,
We have brought home every load,
Hip, hip, hip, Harvest-home."

We find all nations contributing to this final harvest, and that some have gained their pride and glory in doing so, while others have come out of the conflict weakened and humiliated.—Defect can be traced to the manner of sowing, in which case the harvest would be incomplete. But are these harvests confined to nations alone?—No! The life of every man and woman is one grand harvest, with now and then a harvest home as an incentive to keep on in the course commenced, all of which is to be taken into account in the harvest before the Great Judge who will decide whether our harvest is imperfect, because of its mode of sowing. How different are the sheaves gathered and the result of the harvest.

Some strive to gain worldly possessions—gold and silver. Their constant thought by day, their dream by night, is how their money coffers can be increased; but they grow old and when death overtakes them of what use is their wealth? Theirs is indeed an unsatisfactory harvest. Others "seek the buble of fame in the cannon's mouth," but even such a harvest as this fails to satisfy many of the cravings of the soul.

We see the harvests of those who have scattered seeds of kindness all through their journey of life. The thorns and weeds that have sprung up have been plucked and destroyed by unceasing labor, and how great is their reward. Do we not feel a sense of pleasure when our harvest is a good one? God grant that our harvest will be ripe and golden, and that on being received into the kingdom we will make the air resound with the beautiful words:

"Oh; we are the reapers that garner in
The sheaves of the good from the fields of sin;
With sickle of trust must the work be done,
And no one may rest till the 'harvest home.'"

Another Olympaid of our lives has passed, and for many years we have been sowing seeds and reaping treasures to be stored for future use. This evening, with our exercises, we celebrate one of our harvest homes. It is a time when we feel both pleasure and sadness; pleasure because of our apparently bright future, and our privilege to go forth and battle for the right.—We experience sadness because we are to be separated from our school associates, and because of the ungarnered sheaves, but that is in the past, and we can only take warning from our previous knowledge, and make the future compensate for all errors in the days that are no more.

And now these pleasant bonds of associations are to be wrought asunder. We must each seek his sphere, his own ideal; we can do no better than to take the advice of Homerton, "If you will have a model for your living, take neither the stars, for they fly without ceasing, nor the river that cannot stay, nor the ocean that ebbs and flows; but rather let your life be like that of the summer air, which has times of noule energy and times of perfect peace." We have dwelt with pleasure upon the four years spent together, sought for signs of progress in the past and have had our brilliant prospects vividly protrayed by prophetic art.

We feel as if a great load has been lifted from our shoulders, now that our future career is made known. We extend our thanks to all of our kind friends, but particularly to our Superintendent for his unceasing interest in our plans, and for his constant aid during his guardianship of the class of '80. We have often been wayward and rebellious, but we trust he will say good-bye to us without one hard tho't. We hope that prosperity will attend him, and that as he leaves his duties here for others, he will occasionally remember, with pleasure, "our little band."

We tender our thanks to our kind teachers who have borne with us, and have faithfully urged us on in the right path, fitting us for a noble object in life, and in every way, setting us grand examples.

We thank the board for their interest in us.

Now, classmates, the time has come for us to sever our connection. We, who have struggled, toiled and reaped together, feel as if one bright era in our life could almost be considered a thing of the past, but how pleasantly will we look back on it, and we hope as the years roll on, that we may have many enjoyable reunions, and finally one grand "harvest home" where the word farewell is unknown.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The July number of this popular magazine brilliantly commences the new volume, and is even more than usually attractive and interesting.—Among its prominent features are an article by N. Robinson, "The British House of Commons," which has 20 illustrations and portraits; "How the Japanese Amuse Themselves," by Edward Greey; "The Fans of the Past and Present," "The Eye and its Use," etc. The interesting serial "Not Guilty," is continued, and there are excellent short stories and sketches. It has a graphic description of the Astor Place Riot. Each number contains 128 quarto pages and about 100 embellishments, together with a handsome colored frontispiece; in the present one the subject is "A Morning Kiss for Dear Mamma." The price is only 25 cents a number, and the annual subscription $3, postpaid.

Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N.Y.

An Honest Medicine Free of Charge.

Of all medicines advertised to cure any affection of the Throat, Chest or Lungs, we know of none we can recommend so highly as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, Tickling in the Throat, loss of voice, etc. This medicine does positively cure, and that where everything else has failed. No medicine can show one-half so many positive and permanent cures as have already been affected by this truly wonderful remedy. For Asthma and Bronchitis it is a perfect specific, curing the worst cases in the shortest time possible. Trial bottles free. Regular size 1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh Mich.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A Workingman."

ALL ENDORSE IT.

The Recorder, Americus, Ga., says: "Clerks, Senators, Representatives, Doctors, Lawyers, Citizens, in public or private life, are testifying by the thousands, and over their own signatures, that a remedy has been found for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys and for Diabetes; these are respectively known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure and Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure."

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE, Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BANTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery, U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery; also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

3 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

29 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

The square man is the best man to have round.

The mark of cane—dust on the unruly school boy's jacket.

When a man's curiosity is piqued, he asks sharp questions.

The sailor whose grog allowance was cut off said it was a dry dock.

Many of the new summer books in press will be bound in muslin.

A deed worth recording, the deed of a house to your wife.

The best strawberries and the best men are generally found at the top.

The smaller the husband, the bigger the bundles his wife makes him carry.

"Farewell, my hone," sang the barber, as he saw a thief making off with it.

The prevailing style in spring bills is to wear them much longer than usual, before being paid.

Sparking across a garden fence admits of a good deal being said on both sides.

A new species of fowl discovered in Alaska is called "the plumber bird." It has a very big bill.

Authors are spoken of as dwelling in attics, because so few of them are able to live on their first story.

When some politicians are weighed they are found wanting every office in which there is a vacancy.

Home is the dearest place on earth—when the wife strives to keep ahead of all her neighbors in style.

The man who drives the heaviest wagon has the best show on the road. Everybody has to turn out for him.

The yachtmen handling sails are as modest as the oarsmen in a race, tho' there is more blowing about what they do.

"In measles, as in elopements," casually remarks the Lockport Union, "everybody wants to see the rash proceeding."

In ancient Mexico it was the custom to sacrifice human beings to the gods. This was a case where several wrongs made a rite.

"Bob, what's steam?" "Boiling water." "That's right,—compare it."—"Positive boil, comparative boiler, superlative burst."

The other night, in a Missouri town a thief, being caught in a man's cellar, explained that he was there to get out of the way of a cyclone.

American Ball-Blue is a product of science applied to the housekeeper's wants. Pure, harmless, and of beautiful effect. Try it!

What is the difference between a stylish young lady's cranium and a hammock? One is a banged head and the other is a hanged bed.

Ah Foo Woo is a Boston Chinaman. His name sounds like the shivering of a woman when she gets out of bed on a winter morning and steps her bare feet on the cold oil-cloth.

When you see a man take off his hat to you it is a sign that he respects you. But when he is seen divesting himself of his coat you can make up your mind that he intends to make you respect him.

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

Don't keep the little ones all starched up, looking as if they came out of a band-box all the time, but let them have on old clothes a portion of the time, that dirt and play will not soil. Plenty of fresh air and exercise saves large doctor's bills.

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

IF the people would adopt the rule of governing themselves, before attempting to govern their neighbors, this world would be better governed as a general thing. Each one would have his hands so full that there would be no time for interference with others.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

ASK the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite.—they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Burn, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivalled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprain Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits. LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 altos, tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass, bell up, patent piston valves, warranted, for $150.

I also have Band Instruments for professional hands to select from, including Corn and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogues.

Address, O. F. BERDAN, 72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

Dr. TUTT,—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

The Only Remedy

THAT ACTS AT THE SAME TIME ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

This combined action gives it wonderful power to cure all diseases.

Why Are We Sick?

Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT WILL CURE

BILIOUSNESS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS, by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.

Why Suffer Bilious pains and aches?
Why tormented with Piles, Constipation?
Why frightened over disordered Kidneys?
Why endure nervous or sick headaches?
Why have sleepless nights?

Use KIDNEY WORT and rejoice in health. It is a dry, vegetable compound and One package will make six qts of Medicine. Get it of your Druggist, he will order it for you. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, (Will send post paid.) Burlington, Vt.

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms. Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., 161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

I AM THE EXCLUSIVE AGENT FOR THE

Hammock RECLINING CHAIR!

ALL KINDS OF

FURNITURE

VERY CHEAP.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

A. W. SLAYTON, Furniture Dealer, Tecumseh.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO. Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Success of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all grades of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Horse-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 8 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

33 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh, - - Michigan.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Published Every Thursday Evening.

BY C. CASEY.

Office in the New HERALD Building, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One year, Cash in advance, ... $1.50
Six Months, " " ..... .75
Four Months, " " ..... .50

Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES:

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births, and Death Notices free.

Rates on General Advertising, on term contracts made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents' names are invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 1, 1880.

SHALL WE LOSE THE RAILROAD?

The good people of Tecumseh have been watching with considerable interest and no little anxiety, the progress of the canvass for the Toledo & Milwaukee R. R., during the past few weeks. Just about six months ago the project was started here, and during the month of January an active canvass was commenced all along the Tecumseh line so-called, that is, at Ridgeway, Tecumseh, Franklin, Cambridge and Addison. At that time we had positive pledges from President Latcha, both written and verbal, that if the towns on this line raised their quotas by the first of March, the route would be fixed in our favor. The canvass was worked up to fever heat all along the line, and Addison and Cambridge raised their quotas within the prescribed time. Ridgeway and Franklin raised about half of theirs and then stuck. Tecumseh has raised about five-sixths of her allotment and has since been taking a nap.

In the mean time Adrian became alarmed at our work. If Tecumseh got the Toledo & Milwaukee road she was morally certain of getting the Butler road also, in case the same should be built. Adrian therefore quietly went to work. They raised the bonus required of them for the Butler road in one month, the line has been located, and Tecumseh is left out in the cold. And having secured a direct connection to Detroit, Adrian is now giving her attention to a competing line to Toledo. A canvassing committee is at work in Adrian at this very time getting subscriptions for the T. & M. road. They are working quietly but successfully. We have received information from several sources during the past week, which proves our statement positively. The Gas Company has signed $1000, two other leading men have signed $1000 each, and a large number of smaller subscriptions have already been obtained. There can be no question but what the Adrian committee have received some kind of encouragement from Mr. Latcha which has set them to work.

Meanwhile a few wealthy men in Tecumseh, and the enterprising residents of "Wall street" in Franklin, are industriously sucking their thumbs, and waiting, like Micawber, for something to turn up. Do the business men of Tecumseh comprehend the danger we are in? We have lost the Butler road, when we could have secured it just as well as not, had we fastened the T. & M. by the first of last March as we could have done. And a few more days of listlessness and inaction will most assuredly divert this Toledo road from Tecumseh to Adrian. If Tecumseh can get the T. & M. road, the relative business position of our village and Adrian will remain about the same as now; but if Tecumseh shall lose both roads and Adrian secure both, the death knell of Tecumseh's business prosperity is sounded. It is very easy for people to say, "Oh, the road will come this way anyway." That is exactly what some of our wise men said about the Butler road. But the Butler road didn't come this way. The time has gone by when cities and villages can get new railroads without paying for them. There seems to be but one road of salvation open to us now and even that is uncertain. The committees of Tecumseh and Franklin must go to work next week and close out this work within ten days. Those residents of these towns who have not signed aid must open their hearts and purses and help us. People must be liberal and generous about giving the right of way. Every dollar saved in this direction lessens the sum to be raised for a bonus. We should also engage the services of a surveyor to run a line through Franklin and Tecumseh, in order to convince Mr. Latcha that we have a more feasible line than the one via Adrian. By taking these measures at once, we may possibly save our bacon. At least, the prize to be gained is well worth a final and vigorous effort in this direction.

ALL who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard Lake.

THE CINCINNATI TICKET:

The Cincinnati Convention closed its labors on Thursday of last week, after a very harmonious session of three days. The platform adopted is a good one, being much shorter than the average political platform of late years, is concise and pithy in language, and unmistakably clear in its meaning.—It was framed to express rather than to conceal political ideas. The ticket placed in nomination was a general surprise, but it is conceded by both friends and foes to be one of remarkable strength. Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock, the nominee for President, is the ranking Major General of the U. S. Army. At the age of fifteen he was chosen to read the Declaration of Independence at a Fourth of July celebration. At sixteen he entered West Post as a cadet, and graduated at twenty years of age, in the same class with Gens. Longstreet, Burnside, Hill, McClellan, Grant, Jackson and Reynolds. Immediately after his graduation he was sent west to fight Indians, and after three years of active service against the savages he entered the Mexican war.

He served through the Mexican campaigns, and at their close was awarded the brevet of First Lieutenant for gallant and meritorious conduct in several battles. He was promoted to a captaincy at 31 years of age. He served in Florida during the Indian war of 1856-7. He was then transferred to Kansas, and we next find him in the military expedition to Utah, from whence he rode overland to California.

During the secession movements in the winter of 1861 he was stationed in Southern California, and his influence and speeches there contributed more than any other cause to keep California in the Union. As soon as hostilities began he returned to Washington and was given a brigade under Gen. McClellan. He fought in all the battles of the peninsula, and at Williamsburg he earned his title of "Hancock, the Superb." He was engaged at Antietam, at Fredericksburg and at Chancelorsville. The battle-field of Gettysburg was chosen by Hancock's advice, and he commanded three corps—over 50,000 men—on the second and third days of that memorable battle. In the moment of victory he fell severely wounded. He afterwards received the special thanks of the President and Congress. His wound compelled him to retire for a few months, but he returned to serve through all the heavy fighting of the Wilderness and before Richmond and Petersburg. He then came North and organized a veteran corps of 50,000 men. In 1867-8 he was in command of the Department of the Gulf, and there exhibited those noble qualities of statesmanship which have made him no less renowned than his military achievements. His celebrated "Order No. 40" is one of the grandest state papers of the present generation.

The convention was equally fortunate in its choice for Vice-President.—Wm. H. English, of Indiana, is one of the ablest men in the West. At 29 years of age he was chosen speaker of the Indiana House, and during a period of three months not a single appeal was taken from his decisions. He served for eight years in Congress during Pierce's and Buchanan's administrations, and during those years was a recognized leader on the floor. During the great battle over the admission of Kansas, Mr. English was Stephen A. Douglas' chief lieutenant. While Douglas led the fight for free Kansas in the Senate, English led the same fight in the House, and he was the author of the 'English' bill, under which Kansas was finally admitted as a free State. In 1863 he engaged in the banking business, and continued therein till 1877. He is now the largest real estate owner and the wealthiest citizen of Indianapolis. He is a man of high personal worth and great integrity of character, and his nomination will add much strength to the ticket both in Indiana and Illinois.

Taken together, the ticket is an admirable one. It is, courageous, patriotic, able and invincible. It has healed the quarrels in New York, and banished the dissensions in Pennsylvania. It appeals to the sympathies, and will enlist the hearty support of every man who has affiliated with the Democracy during the past eight y'rs. It will gather in thousands of independent voters who wear no party label whatever. It will draw thousands of Nationals in the Western States who earnestly desire a political change. It affords a broad neutral ground upon which all the elements of opposition to the Republican party can cordially unite. This ticket means a final burial of the "bloody shirt" issue; it means a genuine reconciliation between the North and the South; it means a revival of business prosperity; it means reform in the civil administration of the government. It is the strongest ticket the party has placed in the field since the days of Andrew Jackson, and there is no reason to doubt its triumphant election in November. Nothing but the grossest mismanagement of its own friends can defeat it.

CHANCERY SALE.

THE Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee.

In Chancery.

Luke Wood, Complainant,
vs.
Hiram J. Snell, Elizabeth F. Snell and Mary J. Jones, Defendants.

In pursuance and by virtue of a decree rendered by said court in this cause on the 26th day of May, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, Charles L. Hall, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, will sell at public auction at the front door of Dean's Opera House (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for said county is held) on Toledo street in the city of Adrian, in said county, on the 14th day of August, A.D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day the following premises described in said decree, viz: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: All that part of block number six (6) of Hewitt's addition to said village of Tecumseh which is included within the following boundary, viz: Beginning at the point of intersection of the west line of Evans street with the south line of Logan street in said village, said point of beginning being at the same time at the north east corner of said block number six; thence running south on the said west line of Evans street sixty-four feet, to land of C. Allaugh, (or at least in his occupancy as a pump manufactory); thence west on the north line of land of C. Allaugh and occupied by him as aforesaid, seventy-six feet to the north west corner thereof; thence south on the west line of said Allaugh's said land twenty-six feet to a parcel of land conveyed by said Hiram J. Snell and wife to J. Gilchrist and known as the livery stable property; thence west on the north line of said land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Gilchrist sixty-eight feet to the north west corner of the same; thence south on the west line of said Gilchrist land fifty-four and one-half feet to the south west corner thereof; thence west fifty-four feet to land of B. J. Bidwell; thence north on east line of said Bidwell's land nine rods to the south line of Logan street aforesaid; thence east on the south line of said Logan street twelve rods to the place of beginning.

Dated July 1st, 1880.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

WILLIS MERRITT, Solicitor for Compl't. july1

ESTATE OF ALBERT HAYDEN.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Albert Hayden, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of William Hayden, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and that he is ready to file his final account and praying for the allowance of said account, that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF HENRY TRIPP.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Edwin B. Wood, administrator of said estate, praying for license to sell the real estate of said deceased in said petition described for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF ROBERT LIDDEL.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Robert Liddel, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Thomas A. Liddel and James A. Liddel, executors of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that they have paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and are ready to file their final account and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate be assigned to the persons entitled thereto and for their discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF SAMUEL HUNTER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Samuel Hunter, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of James F. Gilmore, administrator of said estate, with the will annexed, alleging that he has paid all the debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration and all legacies except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account, and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed amongst the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

THE CORNER GROCERY

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs,
Buffalo, New York.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 729, Washington, D. C.

---

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $95.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

MALT

UNFERMENTED

MALT BITTERS

TRADE MARK

Malt Bitters Company

MALT AND HOPS

BITTERS

THIS INCOMPARABLE NUTRIENT is richer in Bone and Muscle producing Materials than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors. For difficult digestion, Sick Headache, Consumption, Emaciation, Mental and Physical Exhaustion, Nervousness, Want of Sleep, Ulcerative Weaknesses of Females, Exhaustion of Nursing Mothers, of the Aged, and of Delicate Children, MALT BITTERS are the purest, best, and most economical medicine ever compounded. Sold everywhere.

MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

We Call Attention

To our Superb Stock of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

We will Close Out

ALL SUMMER GOODS

AT COST!

For One Week.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

N. B.---Remember----We Mean Cost.

Ho! For Fourth of July.

Tecumseh Will Celebrate!

LEE

Is going to build a new block and will slaughter his large stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES

For the next 30 days.

READ PRICES:

		FORMER PRICE.
Men's Double Sole and Tap Boots,	$2.50	$3.50
" Sewed Boots, - - - -	2.75	3.75
" Low Shoes, - - - - -	1.25	1.75
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Kelley's Rochester), - - - - - -	2.75	3.50
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Rochester make), - - - - - -	2.25	3.00
Ladies Curso Kid Button, - -	1.35	1.75

Remember this is a genuine clearing out sale before removal, and goods will be sold only for cash. Come and examine before purchasing. Don't forget the place. LEE'S.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

FOR SALE.

The fee through property in this village ...ire at premises or of E. B. WOOD.

FOUND.

I have found a heavy log chain in this village, that is worth more to the owner than it is to me. Owner can have it by paying charges.

Tecumseh, June 29, 1880. Z. S. TAYLOR.

TAKE NOTICE.

My wife Emma Osborn having left my bed and board without my knowledge or consent, I hereby forbid any one trusting her on my account, as I shall pay no bills of her contracting.

June 28, 1880. O. P. OSBORN.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY,

FARM FOR SALE—A good farm of 40 acres situated in Macon, 1 mile north and 3 miles east of Ridgeway. Good buildings, 30 acres improved and well fenced, ten acres good timber, small young orchard, within 80 rods of a school house and one-half mile of Macon church. For sale cheap. For particulars enquire of Samuel Sample, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

THE DEMOCRATS RATIFY.

The Democrats of Tecumseh received the action of the Cincinnati convention with the utmost satisfaction. They are all enthusiastic over the ticket and accordingly they decided to ratify. The meeting was held last Saturday evening. The Manchester Band came down on the afternoon train and furnished the village with some of their excellent music on the streets, and at the meeting in the evening. A platform was constructed in the street in front of the Opera House, where the band and officers were seated. The meeting was called to order by S. C. Stacy, of the town committee, and on his motion the following persons were chosen officers of the evening:

President—John J. Adam.
Secretary—Jerry Root.
Vice Presidents—Wm. Hayden, Minor Davidson, John W. Benedict, W. Richard, A. P. Coddington, Abe Hanford.

Mr. Adam assumed the chair and after music by the band, Judge Stacy was introduced, who spoke over three-quarters of an hour upon the merits of the Cincinnati ticket and the issues which the people would have to decide upon this fall. At the close of his speech a motion was made and carried that a special committee of six be appointed to draft a constitution and articles for a campaign club, and report at an early day at a public meeting to be called for that purpose. The following persons were named as this committee: Chas. Burridge, W. R. Wooden, J. Davidson, Fred B. Wood, H. H. Keyser, Will D. Robbins.

The meeting then adjourned with three rousing cheers for Hancock and English.

SCHOOL PICNIC.

Last Friday was the last day of school in Dist. No. 5, of this township, where Miss Lula Monaghan has been the teacher during the past year. A picnic was held in Mr. Kinney's grove and a very interesting program of exercises was then gone through with.—The entire school had parts to perform but the feature of the occasion were the original essays by the graduating class, five in number, who had gone as far as they could in their own school and will enter the High School in Tecumseh village next fall. Remarks were made by others present, a song was sung by Mrs. Emmet and an address to the class was given by Mr. P. W. Adams, which was exceedingly appropriate. At the close of the literary exercises the crowd present partook of their refreshments, which were tip-top, both as regards quantity and quality. Miss Monaghan has been cordially sustained by the district officers and the parents during her three terms there, whose hearty co-operation has done very much to give the school the reputation which it has attained.

Morenci Observer: As Myron Fisl, of Rollin, was driving through town on Thursday afternoon, his horse became frightened at an awning, and dashed off at a fearful rate over the pavement. When about opposite Pratt & Piper's blacksmith shop the buggy came in collision with a wagon standing in the road, and was projected right into the shop for repairs before the spokes and things had stopped rattling. The horse went on over the river, but Mr. F. followed on and soon returned with him all O. K., but a little out of wind.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JULY 1, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

REMEMBER Independence Day.

BEAUTIFUL harvest weather this week.

GEO. MARSDEN has a new "ad" this week.

YOUR Uncles and your aunts will all be here Saturday.

EVERYBODY will celebrate in Tecumseh next Saturday.

OUR celebration next Saturday is panning out beautifully.

GOV. CROSWELL will be the guest of the village next Saturday.

LOTS of Brass Band music and a grand parade in Tecumseh next Saturday.

READ what Richard Caldwell has to say about his milk safes in another column.

MR. & MRS. L. P. TRIBOU returned home from their wedding trip last Tuesday.

W. C. BURNS, Ph. D., of Hilldale College Class '80, made our office a short call Saturday last.

FRED. KING, ESQ., of Laporte, Ind. was in town last Tuesday on a flying visit among his friends.

AND. J. BEBOUT, of the Toledo Democrat was in town last Monday, and made us a very pleasant visit.

THE Alumni exercises last Friday evening were largely attended and very interesting. We are obliged to defer our report until next week.

A. W. SLAYTON shipped 25,000 feet of Walnut lumber from Ohio last week. He is paying a big price for white ash plank with the hearts in.

THE postoffice of Tecumseh, will be closed next Saturday except between the hours of 7 and 9 A. M. and 12 and 1:30 P. M. The employees wish to celebrate.

Deerfield Record: One of Deerfield's tender and affectionate young men is reported to be engaged to no less than half a dozen young ladies. He should emigrate to Utah.

DR. R. B. HOUSE has returned from his western trip. He enjoyed his visit hugely and came back feeling much invigorated and ready to attend to his professional duties once more.

THE farmers in this vicinity are all busy in the harvest this week. Many fields of wheat will be secured this week, and by the last of next week, the wheat harvest will be about closed.

All members of the fire department are requested to be present at the annual meeting next Tuesday evening, July 6th, as election of officers, and other business of importance will be transacted.

THERE are 294 separate pieces in the bill of fire works to be let off here next Saturday evening, and some of them are very elaborate. It will probably take two hours' time to go through with the whole lot.

A SPECIAL train will run on the Jackson Branch next Saturday, leaving Adrian at 7½ o'clock A. M., and will leave Tecumseh on its return after the fire works, and a car on this train will be run to Monroe to take the military boys home.

OTIS W. BEAN has now got fairly started in his new quarters in the O'Row store. The building has been thoroughly renovated on the inside, and presents a very neat appearance. He has a good job stock of leather and findings, and in connection therewith he will run a retail meat market to be known as the "West Side" Market.

AT the last meeting of the R. T. of T., the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

P. C.—P. J. Farley.
S. C.—Geo. W. Marsden.
V. C.—J. D. Sholes.
Chap.—C. K. Spafford.
S. & F. S.—B. F. Steinhoff.
Treas.—A. Hyde.
Herald—H. Stevens.
Guard—L. M. Mooney.
Sent.—L. Davis.

THE lawn social at Row Vescelius', in Milan, last Friday, was a great success. The rain cleared away about noon and soon the crowd began to gather. The ball players, croquet players, and glass ball shooters were all on hand and did good work. The total receipts were $140, and the net surplus amounted to over one hundred dollars.

WE issue this week from the HERALD Job Rooms, the fifth annual Directory of Homoeopathic Physicians of Michigan, compiled by Dr. R. B. House, of this village. It is a neat little pamphlet of twenty pages, containing an alphabetical list of all the Homoeopathic Physicians in the State, and several pages of advertising. The edition issued is 3000 copies.

A SPECIAL centenary service was held last Sunday at the Baptist church. The church was elaborately and beautifully trimmed with evergreen and mottoes for the occasion, presenting a very handsome appearance. Special services were held both morning and evening, in which the children had a part to perform and large audiences filled the church at both services.

THE country seems to be suffering now from an epidemic of steamboat disasters.

WOOL is coming into our market very rapidly this week. The price ranges from 33 to 37 cents.

FOURTH of July is coming in Tecumseh. Thirty-four kegs of beer arrived this morning on the freight.

THE Tecumseh paper mill which has been closed for over three weeks for repairs started up again last Tuesday morning.

GEN. J. W. BROWN of Toledo was in town last week a day or two. He attended the Jackson County Pioneer meeting on the 23d.

THE Orangemen will meet at their hall on July 12th, at 7 o'clock P. M. All are requested to attend this meeting. By order of W. M.

THE ladies of the M. E. church will serve ice cream and lemonade with refreshments in Mr. I. P. Keyser's block, three doors east of the HERALD office, on the Third of July.

SEATON ANDERSON'S new house on Chicago street is about completed, and he is now moving in. It is very conveniently arranged and beautifully finished, and will make him a pleasant home.

OUR Fourth of July will be over this week. Next week there must be some lively railroad work done in this community. Tecumseh is now situated a good deal like the boy digging for the woodchuck. We've got to have him for we're out of meat.

JEROME GREEN got home last Monday from a trip of several weeks duration through southern and central Ohio. He says the wheat crop is good in Ohio, except in sections where it was very heavy, and there it has been struck with the rust. The crop is best on gravelly or sandy land. Harvest is now in progress there, and a large portion of the crop has already been contracted for at $1.00 per bushel to be delivered on or before the 24th of July.

JUNE 23d there was a county pioneer meeting on the fair grounds at Jackson, full 400 in attendance. A splendid picnic dinner was prepared in floral hall with abundance for all, with no limit to ice water and lemonade, all freely supplied by the good citizens of Jackson. Visitors from Ingham, Ionia, Wayne, and Lenawee counties were in attendance. The executive committee with the president, H. H. Bingham, were unwearied in their exertions to make everything complete. Hon. Eugene Pringle and Senator Hodge were the main orators with several more. An excellent band of music was in attendance.

School Matters.

PETERSBURG, June 28, '80.

EDITOR HERALD:

In regard to the article which appeared in last week's Adrian Press, we feel it due Mr. Wilson to make some explanation. It is true that two missiles were thrown as represented, and by two worthless subjects fit only for the Reform school, to which they will probably be sent. These two boys were punished during the year for several offences, and it is supposed they took this low way of showing revenge. They are now under bail awaiting the action of commissioner Bates, who will probably give them their just deserts. We will also state that Mr. Wilson has closed a very successful school year. It has been the most satisfactory to patrons and pupils since the building was constructed. Mr. Wilson has had the offer of the position for another year, and will be hired if his terms come within our ability to pay.

CORRESPONDENT.

The Wool Market.

Wool is coming in very rapidly this week, and the prices paid average about 35 cents. As high as 37 cents has been paid for a few choice lots, but most of the clips offered sell readily at about 35 cents. The last Michigan Farmer has this to say about the wool prospects in this State:

There has been a very considerable movement in wool during the past week in this State, and generally the sales have been very large. The wool growers are realizing on their clips to a much larger extent than was at first expected. At this city there have been received 417,142 lbs, and there have been shipped 231,228 lbs. We give below reports from 25 of the principal markets in the interior of the State. From these it will be seen that most of the clips are being sold at prices ranging from 32 to 38c, but we cannot place the average price at over 34 to 35c. At many points the clips are coming in freely as if the growers were determined to accept the situation. Generally the highest rates have been paid in the more northern sections. Along the Michigan Southern and the Michigan Central the prices do not rule quite so high. The receipts and shipments show that much of the wool is being purchased in this State at the prices we quote.

Up to this morning Slayton & Son have taken in 30,000 lbs. of wool, and Hanford & Anthony have taken 75,000 lbs. 40,000 lbs. were taken yesterday by Hanford & Anthony, which is the largest amount of wool ever received by one firm in Tecumseh in a single day, and probably the largest amount ever received in the county. Evans street, near Chicago, was blocked with loads of wool nearly all day.

THE COMING CELEBRATION.

The arrangements for our grand "blow out" next Saturday are now pretty well completed, and there can be no question but what we shall have a large crowd and a splendid time.

The Common Council of the village have been appointed reception committee for that day, and they will see that all the invited guests are properly entertained. The Governor of Michigan will be the guest of the village on that day, and elaborate preparations are being made to receive and entertain him in a manner becoming his station.

All the arrangements for the procession, line of march, the base ball matches, the military drill, the supplying of refreshments, etc., have been perfected. The plans for trimming and decorating the business houses of Tecumseh are under way this week, and something quite imposing may be expected in that direction. The fire works have arrived and the display in that line will be the most gorgeous ever witnessed in Tecumseh. We present below the full program of exercises:

National salute at sunrise.

Order of procession and exercises: Band, Military, Orator and President, Common Council, Clergy, Band, Fire Companies, Masons, Odd Fellows, and other Societies, Era Archery Club.

Line of march forms at 10 o'clock A. M., corner of Chicago and Oneida streets, proceeds west to Union, south to Pottawatamie, east to Ottawa, north to Logan, west to Union, north to Shawnee, east to Evans, and north to the grove.

At the grove:

1st. Music.
2d. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Grandy.
3d. Vocal music by Glee Club.
4th. Reading of Declaration of Independence by Rev. Mr. Conley.
5th. Oration by Gov. Croswell.
6th. Star Spangled Banner by the band, audience join in the chorus.
7th. Benediction by Rev. Mr. Bigelow.
8th. Dinner at 1 o'clock P. M.
9th. Form and proceed to the Ball Grounds.

Dancing at the Opera House afternoon and evening at popular prices. First class music in attendance.

Base ball at 9 o'clock A. M. and 2 o'clock P. M.

Military drill and dress parade at 4 o'clock P. M.

During the evening a grand display of fire works on the base ball grounds.

All persons are respectfully invited to bring provisions for the table.

Marshal of the day—Lucius Lilley.

Aids—Col. W. C. Fitzsimmons in charge of the Military; Capt. C. M. Woodward, C. A. Slayton, Wm. C. Jordan.

The residents of the village should understand that every family will be expected to donate something for the table on that day. While our friends in other towns are politely invited to bring in provisions, every family in the village must feel under obligations to do so.

In the first place we shall be honored with the presence of the Governor of Michigan, and a large number of other invited guests, all of whom must be hospitably entertained. And in the second place the committee desire to make at least $300 from the sale of dinners on that day. So make your arrangements to bring in your eatables, and take them to Hanford's grove as early on Saturday morning as possible. We must not take any chances of running out of provisions on the glorious Fourth. Dr. C. M. Woodward, the chairman of the table committee, will see that his department of the celebration will be properly conducted if our citizens will see to it that plenty of eatables are furnished.

A meeting of the executive and table committees was held at Sink's Hotel parlors last Tuesday evening and the following business was transacted:

There was a good attendance of the members of the committee and the village was divided off into sections to be canvassed for provisions. The work was carefully done yesterday. The tables have already been constructed and they are admirably arranged.

The following named persons have been added to the Table committee since our last issue: Miss Gussie Whitenack, Miss Della Whitenack, Miss Julia Snell, Miss Lillie Mortimer, Miss Mary Frazer, Miss Eva Hause, Miss Eva Van Vleet, Miss Lizzie Smith, Miss Carrie Hand, Miss Jennie Root, Miss Frank Bryan, Miss Belle Wooden, Miss Jennie Roseacrans, Miss Edith Phelps, Miss Rosa Brown, Miss Hattie Litchfield, Miss Mary E. Pittman, Misses Bertha and Grace DeWolf, Miss Clara Hayden. These together with all those previously appointed are expected to be present at the grove and assist in waiting on the tables.

Arrangements have been made with the L. S. & M. S. Ry., by which a train will leave Adrian at 7½ o'clock, A. M., and return in the evening after the display of fire works. A special car will run from Lenawee late at night in connection with this train to take the Monroe military boys home.

FELLOW CITIZENS, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: You are respectfully informed that the active measures taken by the different committees for the national celebration, are being gradually completed and that preparations are being made for the greatest crowd that ever [illegible] it. Tecumseh has [illegible] us with a visit [illegible] expect much of [illegible] and our visitors [illegible] be well entertained, [illegible] They may [illegible] collectively. To that [illegible] vassers are calling upon [illegible] family for donations of food, which [illegible] bountiful and of good variety. Each inhabitant is expected to appoint herself and himself a committee to [illegible] rate places of business and dwellings upon the line of march; also to [illegible] that every visitor is pleased and satisfied, and that none is neglected. Let each contribute the best efforts to promote the grand objects in view. Let the Fourth of July, 1880 be a holiday long to be remembered and the monument we hope to erect in the near future will be an endearing testimonial to fallen heroes and living hospitality.

BY ORDER OF EX. COM.

SCHOOL closed in Fractional District No. 1, Raisin township, last week. A goodly number of visitors was present to witness the closing exercises, which consisted of reviews, recitations, dialogues and songs. Number of pupils enrolled during the present term was 26, average attendance, 22 20-50. The following scholars were present every day during the term: Richard Wilson, Lydia Wilson, Eugene Harris, Willie Boyd, Jennie Russell, Julia Wilson, Robbie Boyd, Lizzie Russell, Minnie Wilson, Stuart Boyd and Gottleob Hahule. Miss Sadie Gamble has conducted the school for five terms.

THERE will be another meeting of the 4th of July table committee this evening at Sink's Hotel parlors, when it is expected that each member will bring in their lists of donations of provisions for comparison.

1880. SILVERS. 1880.

Although it were the exceedingly good luck of one of our boastful neighboring dealers to receive the very flattering compliment of an order from Garfield for a cheap suit of clothes, yet it happens to be our good fortune to possess a local reputation for honest dealing that secures to us the entire patronage of this community and likewise a very large share of that which would seemingly belong to our little southern suberb.

To reduce my immense stock of linen, alpaca, mohair, and grass cloth, dusters, white vests &c., I offer for the next ten days my entire stock of summer goods at a discount of 25 per cent. from old prices.

Silvers, the Live Clothier.

—Lemonade! Lemonade! at Davidson's July 3d.

—Wanted—To trade a Granite Monument for a good horse. Apply to L. A. Davis, Tecumseh Steam Granite and Marble Works, Tecumseh.

—Meat at Jim Cole's cheap as the cheapest.

—Attention! Tecumseh customers! On Saturday, July 3d, I shall make a free distribution of over $1000 worth of good seasonable goods at precisely 12 o'clock M.

Silvers the Live Clothier.

—Best Lemonade at Davidson's and at only five cents a glass.

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at W. J. Kies'.

—Ask W. J. Kies to show you the Eighme Shirt.

—David Jones now sells Base Ball Gloves.

—Refresh yourself with lemonade, at Davidson's, July 3d.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—FIRE WORKS, FIRE WORKS, At Davidson's.

—A Good Combined Reaper and Mower for sale cheap at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Go to Jim Cole's for Fresh Mackerel.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Flags, Flags, at Eaton's.

—Nobby Suits for Young Men at W. J. Kies'.

—Every man who loves his neighbor, pays his honest debts and eschews evil, buys his clothes of Silvers.

—F. H. Brown & Co., of Blissfield, are pleased to report to their Raisin and Ridgeway customers that their sales for June, this year are larger than ever before, and that during the month of July they will continue their closing out sale of summer goods to make room for fall purchases. We hope to see you.

—Clark, Baker & Co's celebrated Breakfast Bacon for sale by Jim Cole.

—Linen Dusters at W. J. Kies'.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids. A. B. Cotton.

—David Jones has just received an elegant line of Kid, Buck and Dog Skin Gloves.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—We have just received a new stock of summer casimeres. J. A. Eaton & Co.

—David Jones has a splendid assortment of light pants patterns. Call and see them.

—Lace and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Nappet Muslin curtains, Lambreque Trimmings—all new. A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's Cakes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over. A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A. Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday. Brown, the Photographer.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Nobby White Vests at W. J. Kies'.

—Orr's Pantaloon Overalls at W. J. Kies'.

—Have you heard what Orr's Overalls are selling for at W. J. Kies'?

—Celluloid Collars and Cuffs at Will. J. Kies'.

—Jim Cole sells Fresh California Salmon.

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Go to Jim Cole's for Fresh White Fish.

—Cheneille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

—D. Jones has one of the latest and best line of neck wear in the market.

—100 Macinaw hats at W. J. Kies'.

—It has been pronounced by all that W. J. Kies has sold more clothing during the month of May than all the other concerns in Tecumseh.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—If you want a business or dress suit go to Dav Jones's who will give you bottom prices.

—Leave your orders with Jim Cole for Ice for the 4th.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

—Decorating goods of all kinds, At Davidson's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Down wheat no hinderance to our six foot cut Standard Reaper at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Jim Cole, the "Boss" butcher is not to be undersold by any man in town.

—Japanese Lanterns at Davidson's.

—Farmers having stock to sell will do well to see Jim Cole before disposing of the same.

—FLAGS, FLAGS, At Davidson's.

—Farmers, if you get "stuck" in your down wheat, you can find a Reaper that will cut it all at Kennedy & Hayden's.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Eve'g, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

F. JENKINS, N. G.

H. SEE, Sec.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB, NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings at Seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, PRESIDENT.

G. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 16. Mail.	No. 18. Express.	No. 48. Accom.
Jackson	11 6 50 a m	2 30 "	1 50 p m
Napoleon	7 40 "	2 41 "	3 33 "
Norvell	7 58 "	2 59 "	3 53 "
Manchester	7 30 "	3 "	4 25 "
Clinton	7 43 "	3 13 "	4 15 "
Tecumseh	7 66 "	3 36 "	4 40 "
Adrian	8 20 "	4 25 "	5 00 "
Detroit	10 50 "	8 15 "	.....
Toledo	2 50 "	5 25 "	.....

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 15. Mail.	No. 17. Express.	No. 47. Accom.
Detroit	7 50 am	6 40 pm	.....
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "	.....
Adrian	12 01 p.m	9 20 "	5 10 am
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 15 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 23 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 50 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't.

P. S. BLADGETT, Sup't Mich Div.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the west.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail.....7 30 A. M
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson..... 12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit.....3 30 P. M

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily.....1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily.....1 30 "
Macon, Friday.....12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail.....7 45 A. M
Eastern Mail.....12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block,

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street.

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

WHAT IS SANITARY SCIENCE?

The design of the writer is to present as briefly as possible the subject of Sanitary Science, its comprehension, but simply a review of it, for non-professional readers, such as may be known and read by all who desire to investigate the subject in popular works without consulting the library of a physician.

Sanitary Science is known under the names of Preventative Medicine, Hygiene and Public Health, is described as an application of the laws of physiology and pathology to the maintenance of the health and life of communities by means of those agencies which are in common and constant use. This department of public science has of late years attracted somewhat of public attention, and many regard it is as of modern origin, but on turning to the pages of early history we find that the health of the general population was a subject of legislation, as in the Mosaic code of laws. The Jews made hygiene a part of their religious duty. The Greeks and Romans paid great attention to it. Aqueducts were made to cover surrounding plains, the ruins of which still remain to supply an abundance of the first of sanitary requisites.

The most important sanitary agent is air. The impurities of air may be divided into suspended matters, gaseous substances and special impurities. Amongst suspended impurities are numerous and universal germs of organic beings, both animal and vegetable.

Minute particles of inorganic matter are often taken up by currents of air, remain in suspense and are probably altogether harmless, but often in shape when the air is constantly inhaled by mechanics give rise to the production of special diseases of the lungs and stomach. Most physicians believe that the poisons from small pox, scarlet fever and measles, which are derived from the skin, consist of molecular organic matter which must pass into the air, and the same applies to typhoid fevers and cholera, which are thrown off and become capable of aerial suspension.

The impurities of the air which we have practically almost always to deal with, arise from several co-existing agents. When air is vitiated by respiration it is popularly believed, that the carbonic acid gas is the chief poisonous agent, while it is the organic matter which is always found in air, rendered fetid by prolonged respiration, and the cutaneous exhalation of a crowd of human beings, and the deficiency of oxidation and the consequent increase of putrescent matter in the human body.

Water is treated as the next sanitary element. The consequences of an insufficient and impure supply of water are deserving of the most serious consideration. A want of it, as in a deficiency of pure air, is a depressed condition of the general health and favors the spread of typhoid fever and of choleraic diarrhoea. Water contaminated with sewage and containing suspended animal matter favors cholerric symtoms. There is abundant evidence to show that impure water is one of the principal causes of dysentery. The records of our army surgeons abound in illustrative cases.

The subject of food and drink also falls within the domain of hygiene; also clothing, also exercise. The construction of houses, sewerage, either one of which might afford a lengthy and labored article, and we think it would serve good subjects for future contributors to these series.

This article would fail in the most important point of it, in the advance of sanitary science of the present age if it did not illustrate the great saving of human life and the steady decrease of the mortality rate thereby; but, Mr. Editor, please request some member of the legal or medical profession to write on the subject as relating to our government and State organizations, etc., giving statistics. I have the English reports of the Registrar General of 1867. The result of the enquiry relates to 24 towns with an aggregate population of 600,000. The table is fraught with the most valuable information, giving comparisons during a period of ten years up to 1867. There has been a diminution of the death rate in all but five cases, where it was stationary, and in four of the towns it amounts to from 18½ to 24 per cent.

W. DEM.

It is our private opinion that we shouldn't like to have a census enumerator's position for constant employment. There are so many questions to answer that the salary doesn't make a man rich, and then, too, some people are quite diffident while others are quite ignorant, and all together it isn't much fun.

A HOUSEHOLD NEED.

A book on the Liver, its diseases and their treatment sent free. Including treatises upon Liver Complaints, Torpid Liver, Jaundice, Billiousness, Headache, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Malaria, etc. Address Dr. Sanford, 162 Broadway, New York City, N. Y

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!

READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!

Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.

Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.

Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnishing Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the

Old, Reliable, ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,

71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JOE. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

FINE FURNITURE!

Buyers of Furniture can save 15 to 20 per cent. by purchasing at the shop of

RICHARD CALDWELL.

He makes a Specialty of Extension Tables. Furniture of all kinds made to order and repaired promptly at Reasonable Rates.

ALL WORK WARRANTED.

Shop and Sale Room at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Pearl St.

Highest Market Price Paid for all kinds of Furniture Lumber.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

For a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.

It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic. TRY IT

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its healthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Seasickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malaria, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public, for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 162 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

AMERICAN

AMERICAN ULTRAMARINE WORKS

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and
GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,
55 Maiden Lane, New York.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian,
General Agent for Michigan.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF ABBIE GRISWOLD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 16th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of George C. Griswold, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters testamentary thereon, be granted to petitioner, executor in said will named, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 12th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A true copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. june17

ESTATE OF JOSIAH WOODARD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 14th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Josiah Woodard, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified, of Chloe Woodard, widow of deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters testamentary may be granted thereon to petitioner and Philip Totten, nominated executors in said instrument, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 12th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. june17

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 11th day of March, A.D. 1869, Jonas Weaver and Caroline M. Weaver by an indenture of mortgage made and executed by them on said 11th day of March, to Henry H. Rawson certain lands owned by said Caroline M. Weaver, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 2d day of November, A.D. 1869, in liber 57 of mortgages on pages 675 and 676, and which mortgage was duly assigned by said Henry H. Rawson to Jonas Weaver on the 8th day of November, A.D. 1879, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1880, in liber 95 of mortgages on page 423. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-four and 22-100 dollars and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee which is also covenanted for in said mortgage should any proceeding be taken to foreclose the said mortgage; no proceedings have been taken either in law or equity to recover the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Default having been made in the terms of payment of said mortgage by means of which the power of sale in said mortgage has become absolute; notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due together with all legal costs and charges and said attorney fee of twenty-five dollars; said sale will be to the highest bidder and will be made on the twenty-six day of July, 1880, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Dean's Opera House on Toledo street in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county,) The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold as aforesaid are described as situate in the township of Rollin in said county of Lenawee, and known as the west half of the south west quarter of section twenty-nine, except twenty acres off the north end thereof, in township six south of range one east.

Dated February 21st, 1880.

JONAS WEAVER, Assignee of Mortgage.

THOMAS J. HILLER, Att'y for Assignee. ap122

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit. In the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee, in Chancery.

Mary F. E. Taylor Complainant,
vs.
Charles L. Taylor, Defendant.

Before Willis Merritt, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the village of Tecumseh, this 30th day of April, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file, that the defendant Charles L. Taylor is not a resident of this State and is a resident of Chicago, Ill. On motion of C. A. & J. A. Stacy, complainant's solicitors, it is ordered that said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complainant in this cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of this order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

WILLIS MERRITT,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Complainant's Solicitors. may20

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of William Taylor, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of William Taylor, late of Macon, in said county, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Wood & Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 26th day of June, 1880, and on the 10th day of November, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, and that six months from the 10th day of May, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated May 25th, 1880.

JOHN B. PATTISON,
GEORGE POCKLINGTON,
Commissioners.

May27

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

HOW TO SELECT A MILCH COW.

Precisely what the best breed is depends upon the question for what the milk is wanted. If for butter, there is no question that the Jersey is the best breed. Five to eight quarts of Jersey milk will make a pound of butter, whereas it requires nearly twice this amount of milk from the average native cow. And this is not all; the Jersey butter commands 50 to 100 per cent more in market. It is not essential, however, that the butter be made from thoroughbred cows. The simon Pure article is a little too oily for most palates. It is yellow, hard, and nice, but the expert butter-taster will generally give the preference to that made from grades. If cheese is the objective point, then the Ayrshire or Dutch cow is wanted. The latter is the largest animal, and gives the most milk; said to be rich in casein. Dutch cheese has a great reputation in Europe, but the Dutch cow—more frequently but improperly called Holstein—has not established a reputation in this country equal to that of the Ayrshire. Many of our farmers fear that these very large cattle, accustomed to the rich pastures of Holland, will deteriorate on the neglected grazing lands of this country. Time will soon determine this point, and also the virtues of their milk, for their importation is rapidly increasing. The fanciers of this herd claim that it combines milk and beef production in one animal in an eminent degree, virtues hitherto considered antagonistic. There is no doubt about the quality of Ayrshire milk. It is good for butter, good for cheese, and better for bringing up children on than the Jersey, the latter being too rich in cream for the latter purpose. Ayrshire is just the milk to sell in cities and villages, as the cow gives a large quantity for her size, and the quality is such as to adapt it for family use.

The signs of a good milch cow are many, and we should rely, not upon one, two, or three of them, but upon the largest combination we can find in any other animal. The first we should regard would be a large, well developed udder. This is the gland in which the milk is secreted, and must be large and well hung to hold and sustain a large amount of milk. Many persons are deceived as to the size of the udder by seeing it hang low. We like to see an udder broad and moderately deep in the rear, and extending far in under the belly, with the teats well spread, of good size, and with the ends about on a level. With the hind teats extended two or three inches below the forward ones, we do not expect a good milker, though the udder may look large from behind; but with a bag long and broad, and with the teats set as described, we have never known a cow to fail of filling a milk-pail. To make a correct judgment of the udder, a flank as well ar rear view must be taken, and always give preference to one that extends far forward and has large milk veins.

Next to the udder, which indicates the quantity rather than the quality of milk, we should examine the skin, hair, ears and horns. If the hair is soft and short and the skin soft, flexible, and yellow, the milk will probably be rich. This may be determined by looking into the ears. If these are translucent and of the color of beeswax, it is a sign of good creamy milk, and the waxy appearance of the horns also indicates the same thing. The Jerseys uniformly possess soft hair, flexible skin of a yellow tinge, which is especially manifest in their ears. Thin skins are so supple and yellow that they appear to have been soaked in cream. Not to dwell on the other signs of a good milch cow, such as a small head, slender neck, straight back, fine, clean legs, small bones, muscles, and adipose deposit, we must consider Guenon's milk mirror. We have looked at this mirror from time to time for these twenty years, and are not prepared to say that it always reflects the truth, and nothing but the truth! We are, however, always glad to see a good oscutcheon on a cow, and believe there is something in it. With a first class, first order escutcheon, a large well developed udder and a yellow skin, he will run little risk in investing. Still there is no test like the milk pail and the churn, and no seller of a cow, unless she is an inferior milker, or positively vicious, will object to the milk pail test.—Alexander Hyde.

Why despair and give up to disease and drag out a miserable existence? Are you suffering with any disease of the Stomach, Liver or Kidneys, General Debility or Nervous Prostration? If so, procure a bottle of Electric Bitters, and you will be surprised at the change that follows. Disease will disappear, strength will return, new life and ambition take possession, and you will thank Electric Bitters for the wonderful result, as thousands have done before. Price only fifty cents. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

Why will you be troubled wearing plasters for Lame Backs, when Hill's Buchu will make a permanent cure.

REPARING BUCKWHEAT GROUND.

It is common among farmers to delay plowing their buckwheat land till a short time before sowing, which is about the first of July, when the weather is hot and the ground often dry and hard; it then breaks up in lumps. I have known rain to occur at the time, so that the ground turned up wet, and nothing can be worse than to turn up clay in this condition at this time of year, and have the sun break it. It is sure to spoil the crop and hurt the land. And little better is it in the other case, as the lumps cannot be reduced to mellowness, and only partially so with rains to soften them. The plowing must be done, as the sowing cannot be delayed whether the ground is wet or dry. The remedy is to prepare the ground early.—Plow when in the right condition, whether sooner or later, and a good seed bed can be secured. This also gives a chance for a second plowing or working with cultivator and harrow. There is no weather so favorable for pulverizing the soil as in the heat and showers of summer. The effect of the fallow can then be given to the land, the shading of the soil by the buckwheat preventing weeds from appearing, thus cleaning the land. In the spring it will be found to be clean and mellow, if not too poor or too clayey, and needs only the cultivator and harrow to put it in good condition for a crop. Much good can be done the land by preparing it well for buckwheat.

This crop usually receives the worst attention, particularly on clay soil.—The worst land is usually given to buckwheat; and this will do if thorough work is made of it. It is also a good time to work in manure, spreading it on the land some time before it is plowed, so that the soluble parts can be rained into the soil, always remembering that if evenly spread so as to cover the entire surface, the whole area will be saturated with the fertilizing liquid. Plow shallow and work the soil well. This can hardly fail to produce a heavy growth, shading densely the ground, so that no weeds or grasses can live, and the ground will be sure to work up mellow with the cultivator for the next crop, no plowing being needed.—Ex.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

Hudson Post: Beardsell's steamer has two 15-horse double engines, conceded strong enough for a boat double its capacity. George says he is bound to have her safe and reliable.

Electric Bitters are fast producing a general revolution in the medicine trade, and superseding all other remedies. General Debility, Biliousness, loss of appetite, and all disorders incident to a billious climate, are speedily removed. The price, fifty cents, places them within the reach of all. Every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction, or price cheerfully refunded. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

Potato flour sells in Liverpool for nearly twice as much as that from wheat. It is the dry evaporated pulp of the common potato; is used, after various manipulations, for several manufacturing purposes, legitimate and otherwise, including starch, sizing and dressing for silk.

Gilt-Edged Butter.—There is always an active demand for butter that is up to the gilt-edged standard in quality and color. Much butter that is otherwise good sells at a reduction of from three to five cts. a pound, because deficient in color. Dairymen should then use Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color to give a bright June color. This color is by far the brightest, purest and best made.

Recently a chemist was called to examine some so-called "Baby Food" that sold for seventy-five cents a pound. It was imported from France, claimed to be made from the finest wheat flour. On examination it was found to be only corn starch.

Every Invalid a Druggist.—By buying the new and popular medicine Kidney-Wort, you get in each package enough of the dry compound to make six quarts of medicine, thus saving double the money which is usually paid for medicine, prepared on liquid, It is a specific cure for Kidney and Liver diseases.

Pure, harmless, and efficient is American Ball Blue, Housewives who have once tried it will use no other.—All grocers have it.

Italian opera was first introduced into England at the beginning of the eighteenth century.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street — HENRY McCLURE. — TECUMSEH, MICH

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT

SLAYTON & SON

Beg leave to inform the public that they are handling a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Among which may be found

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled. Garden City Clipper (steel.)

Scotch Harrows, the Buckeye & Elwood Cultivators,

Johnston Reapers and Mowers,

Buckeye and Champion Grain Drills, Corn Drills & Planters, The Seymour Plaster Sower,

HAY RAKES, {The Thomas Hand Dump. {The Tiger Self Dump.

THRESHERS, {The "Vibrator," and {The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines, the Carter Tongueless Cultivators,

Double Shovels and Shovel Plows, points for all kinds of Plows, Sections for all Mowers & Reapers

We also sell

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Scales, and the Boss Stone Boat.

☞ Just call and see if we can't furnish you anything you want.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

☞ Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN,

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN TONIC BLOOD PURIFIER

DIFFERS from all other preparations in its IMMEDIATE ACTION upon the

Liver, Kidneys and Blood.

Composed of the choicest Herbs, Roots and Extracts. Cures Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Cancers, Cancerous Humors, Pimples on the Face, Scurvey, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, Malarial Fevers etc.

For "Nervous Debility," "Lost Vitality," "Urinary Diseases," and "Broken Down Constitutions," we challenge the 19th century" to produce its equal.

Every Bottle is Worth its Weight in Gold

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN MILK CURE,

The only Medicine of the Kind in the World.

A Substitute for Cod Liver Oil.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Bleeding-Lungs, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, leading to Consumption. Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Cures Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Malarial Fevers, Sick Head-Aches, Chills and Fever, Constipation, &c. Price 25 cents per box.

SMOKE DR. S. D. HOWE'S ARABIAN

CATARRH AND ASTHMA CURE.

An infalable cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and Asthma. Sweetens the breath, and produces the most delightful sensation while, and after smoking it. Try it. Price 50 cents per box.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,

123 Liberty St., New York.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

WARNER'S SAFE REMEDIES

Warner's Safe Pills are an immediate stimulus for a Torpid Liver, and cure Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bilious Diarrhœa, Malaria, Fever and Ague, and are useful at times in nearly all Diseases to cause a free and regular action of the Bowels. The best antidote for all Malarial Poison. Price, 25c. a box.

Warner's Safe Nervine quickly gives Rest and Sleep to the suffering, cures Headache and Neuralgia, Prevents Epileptic Fits, and is the best remedy for Nervous Prostration brought on by excessive drinking, over-work, mental shocks and other causes. It relieves the Pains of all Diseases, and is never injurious to the system. The best of all Nervines. Bottles of two sizes; prices 50c. and $1.00.

Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, Safe Diabetes Cure, Safe Bitters, Safe Pills, Safe Cure yourself. Ready.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF

CALLING CARDS.

At the Herald Office.

New Twine Binder.

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

The new Twine Binder has been well tested in different kinds and conditions of grain and in different localities and has proved most efficient and durable.

THE WOOD MACHINES

Are Superior to all others in every respect, which the manufacturers and Agents stand ready to prove both by actual test and by the fact that more than ten times the number of this make of Machines are in use now in the County than of all others put together. Although they are put up in the most durable and satisfactory manner, yet they are sold at Prices to compete with second-class Machines. All we ask is for farmers to examine before purchasing elsewhere.

M. E. CONKLIN, Agent.

ALL MACHINES WARRANTED.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF EXTRAS ON HAND

At Slayton & Son's.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

Farming Implements!

GALE Chilled PLOW,

The KING of the Field.

A. A. KENNEDY. A. S. HAYDEN.

AN EFFECTIVE THREAT.

DARLING BOY.—"If you don't gimme another chunck o' that pound cake, I'll go right off and get lost, like poor little Charley Ross."

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, June 24, 1880.

At this called session the Council convened at 7 o'clock, P. M.

Present the entire Council except Mr. Mills.

The President stated the purpose of the meeting to be to take into consideration the petition presented at last regular session of Council by O. B. DeWolf, A. S. Doty, and others, and the opinion of the Village Attorney on the authority of the Council to grant the petitioners request.

The written opinion of the Village Attorney was then read, in which he expressed his inability to find any authority conferred on the Council to use the funds of the village as indicated in the petition.

The Attorney's opinion was accepted and no further action was taken by the Council in regard to the petition.

On motion it was

Resolved, That whereas Gov. Croswell is expected to visit our village on the 3d of July next, that this Council, as the representative of the people, extend to him a hearty welcome, and that such arrangements be made and paid for by the Council as may be deemed necessary and expedient for a fitting reception and entertainment of the Chief Executive of the State. The sum thus expended not to exceed one hundred dollars.

Messrs. Burridge, Root and the Recorder were appointed as a special committee by the Council to make the necessary arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the Governor.

On motion it was

Resolved, That ten special Police be appointed to preserve and maintain the peace and good order in the village on the coming third day of July and that the compensation for such service be $1.50 per day.

Council then adjourned.

P. S. MCKINNON, Recorder.

Water is Free.

That's so, but in most patent medicines you pay for it at the rate of a dollar a pint. Kidney-Wort is a dry compound and one package is enough to make six quarts of medicine without the addition of any poisonous liquors. It is nature's remedy for Kidney Diseases, Liver Complaint and Piles, for it is both diuretic and cathartic, tonic and healing. Buy it.

THE only wonder is that there are not more accidents among the ungovernable and reckless boys who roam our streets utterly without parental control, and perfectly regardless of law, decency, or the rights of others. We expect to be abused for this, but if we had cared much for that we shouldn't have said anything.

THE time within which to complete the census has expired.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, June 30, 1880:

Higgins, T. W	McAlond Matthew
Kelly, Mrs. Jane	Mayrande, Geo.
Kershaw, Mrs. Joseph	May, I. H.

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, July 1, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending June 24, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 3,502 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

46 steers	1432	5.25	17 steers	1201	$4.62½
17 steers	1420	4.90	52 steers	1279	4.80
18 steers	1211	4.60	38 steers	1043	4.35

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 5,000 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

208 white sheep	99	4.37½
185 Mich. do	94	4.00
209 do do	99	4.00

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show a decrease of 9,930 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

105	226	4.70	58	221	4.90
191	205	4.90	62	209	4.80
64	211	4.90	139	193	4.75

DETROIT MARKET.

Tuesday, June 29, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 5 cars at 99¼@99½c; do July, 27,000 bu at 99½c; do August, 5,000 bu at 93½c.

Beans—City picked, $1.35@1.37 per bu.

Butter—12@14c per lb.

Cheese—9@10c per lb.

Eggs—Fresh, 12@12½c per doz.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@10¾c. Shoulders, 6c. Breakfast bacon, 9c. Dried beef, 11½@12½c per lb.

Wool—34@36c per lb.

Corn—43c per bu.

Oats—32@34½c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 1149 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 7067 lbs.
GRAIN—Shipped 2 cars.
STAVES—Shipped 1 car.
WOOL—Shipped 2 cars.

Apples, ₩ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ₩ lb	5 @	7
Butter, ₩ lb	10@	12
Barley, ₩ bushel	50@	60
Beans, ₩ bushel	1,00@	1.30
Buckwheat, ₩ bushel	,50@	,60
Buckwheat Flour, ₩ hundred	3,25@	3,50
Beef—dressed, ₩ hundred	450 @	5.00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ₩ lb	@	10
Corn in ear	25@	28
Corn,—shelled ₩ bushel	45@	48
Clover Seed	3.50@	4.00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₩ dozen	@	8
Flour, ₩ barrel	6.00@	7.00
Hogs Dressed, ₩ cwt	@	5.00
Hogs Live ₩ lb	3 80@	3 85
Hay ₩ ton	6.00@	8.00
Hides, ₩ lb	@	6½
Honey, ₩ lb	@	15
Ham, ₩ lb	@	9
Lard, ₩ lb	@	8
Oats, ₩ bushel	20@	25
Onions, ₩ bushel	1.50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	25 @	30
Salt, ₩ barrel	@	1.50
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1.25
Timothy Seed, ₩ bushel	@	3.00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ₩ cord	3 00@	4 00
Wheat, White, ₩ bushel	90@	.95
Wheat, Red, ₩ bushel	90 @	.95
Wool, ₩ lb	30@	35

ESTATE OF DANIEL WARING.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Daniel Waring, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Lucius Lilley administrator of the estate of said deceased with the will annexed, alleging that he has paid the debts and funeral charges of deceased, and the expenses of administration of said estate, and praying for the allowance of his final account now on file in this court, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate, according to the provisions of said will and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. [4w1

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

N. W. AYER & SON

ADVERTISING AGENTS

TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.

Receive Advertisements for Leading Paper.

ESTIMATES as Lowest Cash Rates for Newspaper Advertising.

Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

The Day We Celebrate!!

1776. 1880.

GRAND INDEPENDENCE

CELEBRATION

AT TECUMSEH,

On Saturday July 3d, 1880.

TWO NOBLE OBJECTS---To Commemorate the Day of our Nation's Birth, and to build a Soldiers' Monument.

ORATION BY GOV. C. M. CROSWELL,

OF ADRIAN,---IN HANFORD'S GROVE.

Grand Competitive Drill of 1st Reg. M. S. T.

COL. FITZSIMMONS COMD'G. PRIZES $75 & $25.

5 FIVE BANDS OF MUSIC. 5

Manchester, Clinton, Raisin, Springville, and Tecumseh Bands.

The Blissfield and Tecumseh Fire Departments

And the HUDSON BATTERY will Join the Parade.

GRAND BASE BALL CONTEST.

Prizes 60 & 25 Dollars.

A SUMPTUOUS PICNIC DINNER will be served in Hanford's Grove.

BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FIRE WORKS

IN THE EVENING.---$500 WORTH.

Half fare & special trains on the R.R.

For full particulars see Small Bills.

HON. P. BILLS, President.

LUCIUS LILLEY, Marshal.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

MILK SAFES!

I have a few Milk Safes on hand which I will sell at Cost for the Next Thirty Days. Also,

Bedsteads, Bureaus & Stands

of all kinds. Kitchen Tables, leaf and extension.

Best Kiln Dried Extension Tables

At Panic Prices.

Give me a call. Shop at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD CALDWELL.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry,

Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:

I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is not a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 5 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $8.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 8 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 241,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Æsop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,

JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. Tribune Building, New York.

Orders for any of these books may be forwarded through the HERALD OFFICE.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.—NO 8. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 15, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1545.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN
Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description, I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. MC COWEN,

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT!

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

CLINTON.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stirling, of Detroit, are spending a few days at D. H. Silver's, visiting.

We never supposed that vanilla possessed any medicinal properties, but it seems a certain person in this town has taken it as a tonic with very satisfactory results.

P. C. Smith has gone to bathe in the "pool of Siloam" at Wyandotte.—He is in rather poor health.

A young men's Hancock and English club was organized here last Thursday night. John Ed. McCollum was elected president, E. R. Smith secretary, and A. B. VanDeMark treasurer.

Mrs. John P. Silvers, after suffering a living death for more than eighteen months from cancer in the mouth, was at last relieved by death, and her terrible sufferings brought to an end last Friday night. For the last two weeks that she lived, she laid in a semi-conscious state, not taking any nourishment or medicine scarcely, and death was looked for at almost any hour. Her case was a most remarkable one, and her sufferings indescribable. And now that her life is ended, her presence no longer shared in that beautiful home, we know of no better tribute to offer to the memory of that devoted wife and mother, nothing so sweet, so touching, so suggestive of the virtues of the dead as these simple words "she always made home happy."

RIDGEWAY.

HOT!

Green apples and cholic.

Flies, musquitoes and sweat.

Ella Hall expects to sail from New York Friday, in company with Mr. Bush's family, on a European trip.

Miss Salome Clark who has been sick for several weeks is improving.

It is currently reported that parties are negotiating for the old Exchange, to be used as a boarding house during the building of the Butler road.

The big reaping of the season was done by Lon Palmer, who in 6½ days cut 85 acres of wheat. Four binders took it up, one of whom was 62 years of age. No one was caught.

A 14-months old child of Mr. Beasley, who lives on the prairie, fell into the well last Saturday, and was not discovered until an older child upon being sent to the well for water was horrified to find the apparently lifeless form of the little one floating on the surface of fourteen feet of water.—The child was quickly removed, and finally resuscitated by the usual manipulations. The well had no curb around it, only a board laid loosely over the hole for a cover. From circumstances the youngster is supposed to have been in the well about twenty minutes.

BROOKLYN.

The anniversary of the founding of Sabbath Schools was held at the Baptist church last Sunday, and though the day was condensed sunshine there was a large attendance and a good time generally.

Dr. Porter, who has long been superintendent of the Presbyterian school, made the opening prayer, and Mr. Stark of the Baptist church gave a sketch of Robert Raikes, and what his system of education had done towards building up society on a right basis.

Mrs. Effie Gary recited "The Vision." She is a fine elocutionist and it adds something to one's appreciation of a story if they understand the words.

Dora Springer and Betty Freeman also gave recitations that would have been applauded if it had not been Sunday. These were followed with a short essay by Miss Palmer, and "Rock of Ages," as a solo, by Nellie Sharp.

The closing address by Rev. Lyon was a brief synopsis of what scriptural study was, what it should be both to old and young, and the mighty bracework it had become in the structure of religion and morality. Pray, allure, instruct and impress, is his banner motto for this year.

I was a little disappointed because the man was forgotten who organized the first Sabbath School in America. Will the next that celebrate tell the children of Samuel Slater, the Pawtucket cotton spinner, and oblige

PEARLIE?

THE New York Herald says it is reported that when W. H. Vanderbuilt comes back from Europe he will take immediate steps to extend the Chicago & Canada Southern road to Butler, Ind.

BLISSFIELD FIRE COMPANY.

The following we clip from the Blissfield Advance showing what they think of their fire company:

"An invitation was extended to the Blissfield fire company to participate in the Fourth of July celebration at Tecumseh on the 3d, the boys to the number of 34, together with our noble little steamer, were transported by the 8:20 train west to Lenawee Junction, and from thence by special train to Tecumseh, arriving there about 9:30 o'clock. The boys were met at the depot by members of the Tecumseh department, and took part in the procession to the grove, where the address, by Gov. Croswell, was delivered. In the afternoon a trial was made, between the Blissfield and Tecumseh engines, to test the relative capacity of throwing a stream of water the greatest distance, in which our little steamer distinguished herself by beating the Tecumseh engine a distance of over twenty feet, very much to the astonishment of the Tecumsehites, when the feat was accomplished, their steamer weighing at least one thousand pounds more than our own, and they anticipating an easy victory. Our boys felt jubilant over the event, and when two streams were thrown by our steamer nearly the same distance as the Tecumseh engine threw one, much enthusiasm was shown by all who witnessed the performance.—Blissfield may well feel proud of possessing one of the best fire engines in the state, and our citizens con rest assured that in event of a fire, it will do its work nobly and without the least apparent effort."

The Census.

Full returns have now been received from all the towns in the county. The result, with corrections to date, is a total population in the county of 48,289, a gain over 1870 of 2,694. Below are the returns in detail:

	1870.	1874.	1880.
City of Adrian	8,488	8,863	7,860
Adrian township	1,431	1,372	1,458
Blissfield	1,766	2,048	2,355
Cambridge	1,110	1,089	1,075
Clinton	1,356	1,437	1,578
Deerfield	1,224	1,366	1,580
Dover	1,494	1,467	1,468
Fairfield	1,725	1,845	2,218
Franklin	1,459	1,314	1,531
Hudson	4,094	3,927	3,733
Macon	1,439	1,435	1,513
Madison	1,294	1,300	1,315
Medina	1,973	1,798	1,905
Ogden	1,515	1,622	2,040
Palmyra	1,757	1,720	1,959
Raisin	1,643	1,572	1,565
Ridgeway	992	1,059	1,156
Riga	1,540	1,890	2,324
Rollin	1,515	1,378	1,583
Rome	1,454	1,298	1,370
Seneca	2,396	2,516	2,636
Tecumseh	2,583	2,543	2,702
Woodstock	1,365	1,315	1,380
Total	45,595	46,064	48,289

THE New York Indicator thus speaks of the new Detroit and Butler project: "James F. Joy, and his associates of Detroit, have recently made contracts for the construction of a railway from that city to Butler, Ind., where it will connect with the Wabash and St. Louis road. The new line, 120 miles long, will have no grades of more than 20 feet to the mile. It will be thoroughly built and laid out with sixty-pound steel rails. Detroit furnishes the capital chiefly, Mr. Joy and his associates thinking it of great value to Detroit, which will thus become an eastern terminus of the Wabash road, which will thus get direct connection with Buffalo and the suspension bridge at the east over the Great Western of Canada. The western termini will be Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Omaha. The road is to be completed by Oct. 15.

A PATRON of a newspaper said to the publisher: "How is it you never call on me for pay for your paper?"—"Oh!" said the editor, "we never ask gentlemen for money." "Indeed," replied the patron, "how do you manage to get along when they don't pay?" "Why," said the editor, "after a certain time we conclude he is not a gentleman and we ask him." "Oh!—ah!—yes—I see, Mr. Editor give me a receipt," and hands him the cash.—"Make my name all right on your books; that is put it down among the gentlemen."

ADRIAN held her annual school meeting last Monday night. The proceedings were wanting of disputes, everything being conducted in a harmonious and common sense way. The report of the board recommending the appropriation of $13,000 for teachers' salaries was adopted. Geo. H. Bruce and Chas. H. Comstock were elected trustees, after which they fixed the secretary's salary at $100, and adjourned.

A LETTER written by G. E. Kedzie, our former county surveyor, to his parents, dated Chihuahua, Col., and published, in the Deerfield Record, speaks of snow falling on the 24th ult., and his fingers being so numb from cold, that he could scarcely write his field notes.

WHISKEY'S WORK.

John Jackson, a widower, aged 35, living in the township of Deerfield, met with a sad death on Sunday, the 4th. Mr. Jackson's wife died a short time ago, and he has been living since then with his brother William. He had two children, one aged four years, and the other fourteen months. On Sunday morning John left his brother's in company with a young man named Grim, and drove to Palmyra, where the latter resides, his father being engaged in the saloon business there.

The party remained in Palmyra during the day and late in the afternoon started for Deerfield. They drove through Blissfield about 6 o'clock in the afternoon, both very much intoxicated. When three miles east of Blissfield, Jackson lay down on the bottom of the buggy, his head hanging out, face downward, so that the middle of the neck rested on the edge of the buggy. Jackson was too much intoxicated to release himself from this predicament, and Grim was not in a condition to help his companion, and Jackson rode in the manner above described about a mile, when the men were seen by George Brockway.—Jackson was taken out and every effort made to restore life to the unfortunate man, but without avail. Jackson died in five minutes after being removed from the carriage.

At an inquest the jury returned the verdict that Jackson came to his death by strangulation while intoxicated.

The deceased was an industrious, hard working man, and was regarded in the community where he lived as a good citizen. He was in the habit of going on an occasional spree, but aside from this was looked upon as a good man.—Times.

A RUNAWAY AND ACCIDENT.

The Deerfield Record gives the following particulars of a runaway and accident which occurred in that village on the 3d inst: About half past three o'clock in the afternoon, Dr. Yale hitched one of his horses preparatory to making a professional call upon one of his patients in the country. He invited to accompany him, a young lady of 16 years, Miss Susie Munger, of Dundee, who was on a visit at his home. Just as the doctor was about to gather up the lines, after getting into the buggy, the young lady attempted to raise her parasol, at which the horse became frightened and started to run away. The horse gave a few tremendous leaps and crossing Raisin street, just north of the doctor's residence, the buggy hit the high crosswalk, throwing the young lady out upon the side-walk, and the doctor soon afterwards was tumbled into the ditch. He was picked up in an insensible condition, from which he soon revived, having received some ugly cuts about the head from old rubbish in the ditch. The doctor though bruised and sore from his tumble, is about the streets as usual.

The young lady was picked up and carried into the doctor's residence, and was tenderly cared for. Upon examination it was found that she had received a number of injuries besides a broken right leg above the knee. Dr. Yale, assisted by Drs. Wood and Bliss set the broken limb, and she is now getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

The horse, after disposing of its freight, ran up Raisin street to Keegan, where in turning the corner it knocked down two small maple trees, after which it ran eastward and fell into a ditch where it was caught.—The horse was uninjured, but the buggy was nearly demolished.

Do you know flies play "tag?" You watch a cluster of them some drowsy afternoon as they circle and dart about under the chandelier and you will see them at the game. They play just as boys do. They keep going pretty much all the time, and lunge forward to rap each other, or dodge aside to avoid each other with marvelous rapidity. Once in a while one will go and sit down for a moment, too tired to play any longer unless another fly should happen to get pretty near him with his back turned. Then he will dash forward and hit the unwary one a rap that takes away his breath and then sail off and laugh like a lunatic over it. Then some one of the number will get his back up and go off in a huff. The whole performance is dreadfully natural.

THERE is a fortune in store for the milliner who shall devise a bonnet that can be worn in any part of the church and always present its trimmed side to the congregation.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Morenci Observer: Mr. Slayton, the booming lumber-dealer of Tecumseh, was in town this week and purchased 16 car-loads of ash and 2 car-loads of walnut lumber.

Blissfield Advance: Uncle Joseph Bliven, who was so severely injured about three weeks ago by his horses taking fright and overturning a drag, one tooth of which struck him in the breast, about one inch above the heart laying open a hole as big as your hand was able to be down town Friday evening, and although still very weak, informed us that he would soon be able to be about again as well as ever.

Hudson Post: Augustus Silvernail, of this village, was arrested yesterday afternoon on complaint of H. H. Pixley, who charges Silvernail with stabbing his (Pixley's) cow with a fork. Silvernail says that the cow was a jumper, and was in a field she had no business to be in, and while driving her out he fell and a fork he had in his hands pierced the cows neck. The examination takes place before Justice Hiller, July 29. In the meantime Silvernail is under $250 bonds for appearance.

Adrian Times: About $40,000 have been paid out for right of way in this county, by the agents of the Detroit, Butler & St. Louis railroad company. All the land that can be got now, for what the company's agents think they ought to pay. Some land is owned by estates which have not been probated, but with which it is expected satisfactory arrangements will be made. In some half dozen cases it is probable that legal proceedings will be necessary to secure possession, as there is great difference of opinion as to the value of the land.

Adrian Times: Last Friday evening three horses were stolen from William Platt, who resides on Tecumseh street, in this city. Mr. Platt offers a reward of $10 apiece for the return of the horses, and Sheriff Cairns a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the thieves. The description of the horses is given as follows: One light bay about 13 years old, short mane, weight 1050 lbs.; one a blood bay, scar on both shoulders, left front foot white, weight a thousand pounds; the third is a brown gelding, long body, homely head, weight about 1100 lbs. All three are geldings and in good flesh.

Adrian Times: Wm. Ash, one of the earliest residents of Raisin, died suddenly at the home of John Murfitt, on Pearl street, in this city, about half past one o'clock Tuesday afternoon.—Mr. Ash came to the city that morning, and while in Mr. Murfitt's butcher shop complained of feeling unwell. He took some medicine, and soon got in his buggy and rode to Mr. Murfitt's residence. Here he grew worse, and Dr. Stephenson was sent for. But before Dr. Stephenson could reach the house Mr. Ash was dead. Death is believed to have resulted from heart disease, with which Mr. Ash has been troubled at times. Deceased was about 75 years of age, and was well-known in the county.

Adrian Press: Elsewhere our readers will find a notice of the death of one of the old residents of Adrian, probably as well known as any person now living. We refer to "Tom" Newsom. Who does not remember Tom? For years he has been upon our streets, engaged in some pursuit to earn a livelihood, and though by nature crippled and unfortunate, Tom's genial good humor was proverbial. He was simple-minded, but sincere and honest, and for the past few years failing health had led him to lighter employment, and our people will remember him as he earnestly portrayed the merits of his patent soap. He had a firm belief that he had a fortune in the old country, and was always about to receive it. Poor Tom! his hope was never realized, and he has finally gone from his cares and trouble to his eternal rest.

Southern Michigan Medical Society.

Adrian Times: The semi-annual meeting of this society was held in Coldwater Tuesday. The attendance was good, and the meeting in every respect satisfactory to those in attendance. The society visited in a body the Lewis art gallery and the State public school, and were very hospitably entertained during their stay. Dr. I. S. Hamilton, of Tecumseh, was made an honorary member, as was also the retiring secretary, Dr. W. N. Smart, who has removed to Grand Haven. The following were elected officers for the ensuing year:

President—Dr. Falley, Hillsdale.
Secretary—Dr. Eaton, Clayton.
Treasurer—Dr. Morden, Adrian.

Adrian was selected as the next place of meeting, in December next.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

THE WORLD AS I FIND IT.

BY FREDERICK LANGRIDGE.

They say the world's a weary place,
Where tears are never dried,
Where pleasures pass like breath on glass,
And only woe abide,
It may be so—I cannot know—
Yet this I dare to say,
My lot has had more glad than sad,
And so it has to-day.

They say that love's a cruel pain,
They call it woman's wiles—
That poison lips in pouting lips
And death in dimpled smiles.
It may be so—I cannot know—
Yet sure of this I am,
One heart is found above the ground
Whose love is one I claim.

They say that life's a bitter curse—
That hearts are made to ache,
That jest and song are gravely wrong,
And health a vast mistake.
It may be so—I cannot know—
But let them talk their fill;
I like my life, and love my wife,
And mean to do so still.

"A OFFSCOURING."

Christian Union.

"Well, yes, ma'am, I have stole!"

"Why, John!"

"You asked me, didn't you?"

"Yes, I asked you," the mission teacher replied, a sad, almost disgusted expression on her sweet young face.

"What did you ask me for, if you didn't want me to tell you? I could 'a' lied!" the boy went on in a stolid sort of way, and yet with a ring of feeling in his voice.

"No, you couldn't, Johnny," the teacher answered with a smile, "because you promised, you remember, that you would always tell the truth to me."

"Well, I didn't go back on it, did I?"

"No, Johnny. Have you any objection to telling me how often you have taken things that don't belong to you?"

"Mebbe I couldn't remember them all," the boy replied, "but I never lifted anything partikeler. Once when the old woman where I hang out got sick, and cried a blue streak for oranges, and nobody had the money to get'm, I asked the old cove that kept the grocery store to trust me for a couple till the next day. He wouldn't do it, and that night I stole six from him."

"Why, Johnny"

"Why didn't he let me have 'em then?" the boy went on doggedly. "I'd 'a' paid 'cause I said I would. Anyhow the old woman got well off them oranges."

"Then you are not sorry you took them?" the teacher inquired.

"Well, the old woman had to have them oranges, and somebody had to get 'em for her."

The teacher's face was very grave, and as her companion looked up he saw the tears in her eyes, a sight which had a curious effect upon him.

"Don't make me tell you any more, please, ma'am," he said, dropping his eyes, while his face flushed scarlet. "I ain't nothing but a offscouring anyhow, and it ain't no go to fret about what I do. I was kinder dragged into this place, else I'd never bothered you."

"What name did you call yourself?" the teacher inquired. "I didn't understand you."

"Granny Leeds always said I was a offscouring, and so I am."

"What is an offscouring, John?"

"Oh! the leavin's of something that ain't no good."

"Granny Leeds, as you call her, was very much mistaken about yourself, Johnny," the teacher replied. "You are not an offscouring but God's own child, and he is giving you a chance to make something of yourself. How much do yo you think the things are worth that you have taken, in all, Johnny?"

"Them oranges was worth four cents apiece when I took 'em; that's twenty four; and then two loaves of bread I lifted for two fellars that froze their feet last winter, and a mackeral to make the bread go down. It's awful tough to eat bread without nothing with it; and then a base ball that was worth fifty cents, and all them things would make near hand to a dollar. I don't remember anything else.

"Well, John, I shall give you a dollar, and I want you to go to those places and pay for all those things."

"Then I'll ha e to own up," the boy interrupted, in his bewilderment relapsing at once into slang.

"Wouldn't you feel better to confess, Johnny?" the young lady inquired, not a little troubled at the effect of her words. For a moment the boy seemed lost in thought, and then lifting a frank face to his companion, said: "I ain't never felt partikeler bad about any of them things 'cept the base ball, and that I could 'a' done without, but if you say so Miss Lee, I'll give the whole thing away; only as I ain't lifted anything lately, and don't never mean to again, they would always suspician me, and make me out a thief when I ain't no such thing. Don't you think 'twould do, ma'am, if I dropped the money in them places so they'd be sure to find it? If you don't think so I'll blow the whole thing, if it takes me to the island."

"What will you do, Johnny, if somebody needs bread and oranges and you haven't g[illegible] money to buy them with?"

"That's [illegible]ker, ma'am. I dunno. [illegible] would be strange if some[illegible] that kind were to happen any[illegible], ma'am. There's something [illegible]y gen'rally to pay with the folks [illegible]know."

"Well, Johnny, I will tell you what to do," the teacher replied. "Here is my card, and when any of your acquaintances are in trouble I wish you would come directly to me; and if anything is amiss with you at any time be sure and send a messenger. You had better come up to-morrow, anyway, Johnny, for I want to give you some warm clothes, and then it will be easy for you to find the place next time."

Johnny hung his head. This kindness had overpowered him, and not a word could he speak.

"I didn't mean to hurt you, Johnny," the tender-hearted teacher hurried to say. "You are willing I should help you, are you not?"

"I guess you had better let me git, now, Miss Lee," the boy replied, huskily. "You could knock me down with a eye winker. You wouldn't worry about my remembering all you've said; but just now I'm all broke up."

"And I can trust you, Johnny?" the lady inquired.

"It is a go, ma'am," the boy answered simply.

Miss Lee tucked a dollar bill in his hand, and Johnny hurried out of the building.

It took considerable tact and skill, as well as time, for the boy to satisfactorily manage the business which his teacher had provided the money for. For instance, the grocer from whom he had "lifted" the oranges had sold out to another, and Johnny was obliged to hunt him up he was at last found, poor and ill, and the boy without a moment's hesitation confessed the theft and produced the money. "I guess I can make it thirty cents," he said, "that'll be a little interest. If I wouldn't like to give you five dollars then you may shoot me for a crow."

The ex-grocer was so surprised at Johnny's confession and subsequent generosity that he shook the boy's hand heartily and invited him to step in again soon, which the lad promised heartily to do.

By nightfall these "black debts," as Johnny navely called them, were all settled and then, after a scanty meal, the boy started out with the evening papers. About quarter to eight he had sold out, and then as fast as his fleet feet would carry him, he hurried to the neighborhood of the academy of music to watch the people go into the building. It was opera night, and this was one of Johnny's greatest pleasures; and so, with his back to a lamp-post he gave himself up to the delight of watching the gay throng. Johnny wondered what it would be like to drive round in luxurious carriages and have plenty of money to spend on fine clothes. He thought of the bread and herring he had eaten for his supper, and tried to imagine what it would be like to have turkey and cranberry sauce every day. Every Christmas Johnny had turkey and cranberry sauce for his dinner, and he knew from experience how nice they were. He had once ridden in an ambulance with a friend of his—a newsboy—who had been run over by an express wagon, and this was the nearest approach to a carriage ride that Johnny had ever enjoyed. He wondered, as he watched these happy, gayly dressed people, why it was that some people had all they wanted while others were cold and hungry, and sometimes starved to death. This was not the first time that Johnny had been perplexed with such thoughts, but they had never made him feel quite so uncomfortably as on this occasion. He called to mind the warm underclothing and tidy jacket and pants which Miss Lee had given him that day, and tried to comfort himself with the thought that there was one person in the world who cared for him.

There had been a heavy fall of snow that day, and as Johnny, still absorbed with his thoughts, started to cross the street he saw something sparkle in the snow at the side of the crossing. There had been a rush of carriages, and a few had not been able to pull up at the curb. As he picked it up he saw that it was an ornament in the shape of a cross, and studded with diamonds.

Johnny knew they were "shiners" as he called them, as soon as he looked at them, so with his heart in his throat he tucked the precious jewel in his pocket, still holding it firmly in his hand. Johnny's ambition had been to start a coffee and cake establishment where newsboys could be entertained at low rates. For more than a year he had nursed this project, and here was a chance to carry it into execution. There were nine stones in the cross. Disposing of one at a time so as to avoid suspicion, there was money enough to last him "for years and years" he told himself. It puzzled him to know where he could keep the shiners, for there wasn't a soul among his aquaintances whom he dare trust with his secret. Not until he had crept into his [illegible] tucked, with his treasure carefully hidden among the straw, did the thought occur, he ought to try and find an owner for it. Then followed a hard battle between the natural honesty of the lad and his very natural desire for creature comforts. The person who could wear a gold thing like that "chock full of shiners," he said to himself "must have money enough to buy more shiners." Here he was cold and hungry, half the time, with no prospect before him but to be always hungry, if not always, and here were these "shiners" which would set him up in business and give him a chance to help the boys. Johnny honestly wanted to help the boys. Why should he find the owner of this cross when he had nothing and the owner had everything. The fight continued until it was time for the lad to start out for his morning papers. All through the busiest part of the forenoon the battle still raged, and the newsboy's thoughts were so occupied with his new found riches that he almost forgot to attend to his customers. About half past ten, as he passed City Hall Park he noticed a gentleman in earnest conversation with another gentlemen, and as he passed he heard the words "diamond cross" spoken. Johnny slackened his pace and listened.

"The diamonds were all of the first water," the gentlemen said. "It was a present to my wife from her father, and she is terrible cut up at the loss. I don't suppose we shall ever find it."

"You will advertise it, won't you?" his companion inquired.

"Oh, of course," the gentleman replied, "but more than likely it has fallen into dishonest hands, and unless the reward is made equal to the value of the diamonds we shall probably never see them."

When the gentlemen separated the one who was interested in the diamonds entered the city hall, and after a little inquiry Johnny discovered that this gentleman held a very honorable office in the city department. After finding this out the lad took a turn round the park to think it over again.

"Granny Leeds said I was a offscouring, and Miss Lee says I ain't," he argued to himself. If I keep these shiners Granny 'll be right and Miss Lee 'll be wrong. She said the Lord was giving me a chance to make something of myself. Well, now, the question is, am I or am I not a offscouring? If I keep these shiners I am, if I give them up I ain't. Well I ain't!" and with these words on his lips Johnny started for the gentleman's office. Nothing daunted, he entered, and presented himself at the desk.

"Some of your folks have lost something ain't they?" he asked.

"They have," said the gentlemen.

"Will your honor tell me what it is like?"

"It is a gold cross set with diamonds," and the gentlemen described the relative position of the stones. "It was lost either in the academy of music last night, or on the way to or from that place."

Johnny's coat was off in a twinkling, and with a rip at the stitches which confined his treasure he took it out and put on his coat again. "I s'pose this is it, he said, handing it to the gentleman. I wanted to keep them shiners awful bad he continued. "They'd 'a' set me up in business, them shiners would, but you see I couldn't get to be such a offscouring as that, though I have been trying to be a thief all night long. If I was your folks," he went on, "I'd get a stronger string to hold them shiners, for fear they'd be gone for good and all next time."

"What is your name?" the gentleman inquired, as the lad, with his cap in his hand stood modestly before him.

"John Resney," the boy replied.

"Have you a father and a mother?" was the next question.

"Nobody, your honor, but myself."

"Which would you prefer to do, Johnny," the gentleman next inquired, "go into business or go to school?"

"Well, I would rather go to school, ten to one," said Johnny, "but there ain't no show for that."

We will see," said the gentleman. "Will you come into my office, Johnny, until I see what is best to be done?"

"Yes, sir," Johnny replied, the tears starting to his eyes.

"I shall want you to go home with me in an hour or two, and give my wife her diamonds, and see what she thinks of you."

"All right," said Johnny, brushing away the tears. "Anything to do now, yer honor?"

The following Sunday Johnny went to the mission school for the last time, and in such good clothes that Miss Lee hardly knew him. The grateful boy told his teacher all that had happened, and concluded as follows:

"I am going away to school to-morrow, and if I've got the learning stuff in me I can go to college; but Miss Lee, if it hadn't been for you and God I should have been a offscouring all the days of my life."

It is believed that the word "never" has been crippled for life.

THE RIVAL LANDLORDS.

It is said that during the high water at Prairie du Chien, the Dousman House was full of guests, the water was up to the second story, and they could not get away. Williams, the proprietor, made the guests catch fish for their board. There was a fish pole out of every window, and Williams had a corner on fish bait. He had a place where he could dig worms, and no one knew where it was but himself. It was said to be a touching sight to see him go round to the different rooms with an old oyster can and sell angle worms to the traveling men. The guests finally struck on buying worms. They opened the windows and let the fish in the rooms and then chased them under the beds and caught them in the wash bowls. One traveling man says Williams is awful heartless. A mud turtle came along and roosted on the second story window sill, and Williams pushed him off into the water because he hadn't any baggage and wouldn't pay in advance. Some of these stories against Williams are told by Col. Johnson, at the eating house here, who is down on Williams on account of some game played at Hot Springs, we believe they call it a "Bone Pot." Williams says he turned the mud turtle away because he thought it was one of Johnson's bed bugs. We wouldn't have such a temper as either of those men have got for anything.—Peck's Sun.

Stop That Cough.

If you are suffering with a Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, or any affection of the Throat or lungs, use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. This is the great remedy that is causing so much excitement by its wonderful cures, curing thousands of hopeless cases. Over one million bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery have been used within the last year, and have given perfect satisfaction in every instance. We can unhesitatingly say that this is really the only sure cure for throat and lung affections, and can cheerfully recommend it to all. Call and get a trial bottle free of cost, or a regular size for $1.00. M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Let Up—Take a Rest!

If you want to start on a very cheap and enjoyable tour in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and no "extras," write to

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Agt.,
Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

Those who once learn the value of Electric Bitters will find that they want no better medicine in their families. Persons of enfeebled and delicate constitutions will find that Electric Bitters will instill into them new life and strength, build them up, causing the ruddy glow of health to return and save yearly, hundred of dollars in doctor bills. They are pleasant to the taste and perfectly reliable. Price only fifty cent per bottle; sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

Nature's Sluice-way.

The Kidneys are nature's sluice-way to wash out the debris of our constantly changing bodies. If they do not work properly the trouble is felt everywhere. Then be wise and as soon as you see signs of disorder get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it faithfully. It will clean the sluiceway of sand, gravel or slime and purify the whole system.

Don't Get the Chills.

If you are subject to the Ague you must be sure to keep your liver, bowels and kidneys in good free condition. When so, you will be safe from all attacks. The remedy to use is Kidney-Wort. It is the best preventation of all malarial diseases that you can take. See large advertisement.

The Lansing Republican contains the following: It used to be considered neat and becoming in a girl to comb her hair smoothly above her forehead. But now, the worse she can 'slobber' her hair down over her forehead, the prettier she supposes herself to appear." Good enough. "Bang" away at 'em.

We are glad to assure our readers that Hill's Compound Extract of Buchu and Cubebs, is meeting with the success its merits justly deserve.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!

READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!

Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.

Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.

Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnish-Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the

Old. Reliable. ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,

71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK.

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. - - Michigan.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. G. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Office [illegible]

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U.S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. [illegible] MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Usborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent, District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

3 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FARM FOR SALE—A good farm of 40 acres situated in Macon, 1 mile north and 3 miles east of Ridgeway. Good buildings, 30 acres improved and well fenced, ten acres good timber, small young orchard, within 80 rods of a school house and one-half mile of Macon church. For sale cheap. For particulars enquire of Samuel Sample, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment. Perfectly Balanced on the derrick, in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular,

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Better be the head of the yeomanry than the tail of the gentry.

You will never have a friend if you must have one without a fault.

It isn't easy to straighten in the oak the crook that grew in the sapling.

The lukewarmness of our prayers is the source of all our infidelities.

He that has learned to pray as he ought has got the secret of a holy life.

The sure way to be cheated is to fancy ourselves more cunning than others.

If it were not for the livery many a master would be taken for his own servant.

If he who was without sin prayed, how much more it becometh a sinner to pray.

Bad coffee can be converted into the best Mocha by drinking it with the girl you love.

Will petitions that do not move the heart of the suppliant, move the heart of Omnipotence?

Not what we do worthily, but that which we do successfully, is what history makes haste to record.

Ohio will run the White House, no matter who is elected President. Mrs. Hancock is an Ohio woman.

What a milkman said when he found a fish in the milk, "Good heavens! the brindle cow has been in swimming again."

New York girls are practicing driving donkeys. It is good practice for those who mean to marry New York husbands.

The only way to keep a boy from going in swimming is to convince him in some way that swimming is a duty he owes to his mother.

They had to put off the dedication of a new church at Leadville for a week because the fireworks ordered for the occasion failed to arrive.

It would improve some people very much if they were as careful of their daily lives as they are of their orthodoxy.

If a man's religion is pretentious on Sunday and obscure on week-days, you had better do business with him on a cash basis.

The bad fortune of the good turns their faces up to heaven; and the good fortunes of the bad bows their heads down to the earth.

The compositor who set up "Food" Friday for Good Friday, must have been keeping Lent—out of the empty stomach the mouth speaketh.

What must be done with the kissing preachers? (Chorus of male sinners.) Muzzle em.—N. Y. Com. Adv. Too much muslin' already.—Eve. Bulletin.

Every man who has become President of the United States has been elected during a leap year. This is something for the girls to wonder over.

They tell us that this is a world of progress, and yet it is just as hard for George Francis Train to put his big toe in his mouth as it was for Mark Antony.

The Iowa Senate has fixed a very stiff penalty for grave robbery. It costs about as much to rob a grave in that State now as it does to kill a man.

When Chief Jack brought in the three prisoners to Los Pinos, the other day, General Adams looked out and exclaimed: "Hi! Lo! Jack and the game!"

"Ah, me," said a pious old lady, "our minister was a powerful preacher, for in the short time he ministered the word of God among us, he banged the in'ards out of five Bibles."

"Well, Pat, Jim didn't quite kill you with the brickbat, did he?" "No, but I wish he had." "Why so?" "So that I could have seen him hung, the villian!"

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A St. Louis paper tells a touching story of school life. It illustrates both the longing of children to appear as well as their school-mates, and the mental sufferings incident to poverty. In one of the St. Louis public schools many of the children who came from a distance were accustomed to bring a lunch, and thus save a long walk home for dinner. They generally ate it together and had a merry time.

Among those who stopped one of the teachers noticed a little girl who never brought any lunch but who looked wistfully at her playmates as they were eating the noon meal. But one day the little girl brought her bundle also, wrapped in paper. At noon she did not go with the others, but remained at her desk, as if preferring to eat alone.

The teacher thinking her unsocial, advised her to go to the lunch-room with her play mates, and walked towards the desk to take her bundle. But the little girl, bursting into sobs, said:

"Don't touch it teacher; and, oh, teacher don't tell, please. It's only blocks."

The poor girl had no dinner to bring, but wished to keep up "appearances," so as to appear not unlike her school-mates. And she was one of the best scholars in the school. She was very dear to the teacher's heart after that incident.

People who wonder why men's hair turns gray before their whiskers, should reflect that there is usually about twenty years' difference in their respective ages.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

An Albany chap is courting a deaf and dumb beauty, and he says he enjoys evening recreations with his dumb-belle. She may be deaf to his attentions, but not dumb to his caresses.

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

Wheelbarrows are in very little demand in Brazil, owing to the almost universal practice of carrying burdens on the head. Not long ago the American consul saw a sturdy negro carrying a loaded wheelbarrow on his head through the streets of Rio de Janeiro.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Light-minded young thing, in a bathing suit: "Surely, Aunt Margaret you're not going to wear your spectacles in the water?" Aunt M.: "Indeed I am. Nothing shall induce me to take off another thing."

ALL who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard Lake.

A woman hearing the sufferings of our Pilgrim fathers elaborated, popped up and inquired, "What of our Pilgrim mothers? What of our Pilgrim mothers? They had to bear all this and the Pilgrim fathers besides."

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

The number of one-armed young men seen driving out with young ladies these summer evenings is truly appaling. An old soldier at our elbow says that one arm is invariably lost during an engagement.

"James," said Mrs. Buzzer to her eldest boy, "I see in the paper that Rewsha has issued some ultimatum. You'd better get some for your hair."

Farmers! $3,000,000

can be saved every year by the farmers in this country if they will properly color their butter by using Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color. It is far better than carrots, annato, or any other color, at one fourth the cost, and no work to use. It gives a splendid June color and never turns red. Do not fail to try it.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, GRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. E. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 335 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?

Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?

Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a package at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and

One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., 161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

I AM THE EXCLUSIVE AGENT

—FOR THE—

Hammock RECLINING CHAIR!

—ALL KINDS OF—

FURNITURE

—VERY CHEAP.—

CALL AND EXAMINE.

A. W. SLAYTON, Furniture Dealer, Tecumseh.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

38 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and incorrect imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED

by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

MILK SAFES!

I have a few Milk Safes on hand which I will sell at Cost for the Next Thirty Days. Also,

Bedsteads, Bureaus & Stands

of all kinds. Kitchen Tables, leaf and extension.

Best Kiln Dried Extension Tables

At Panic Prices.

Give me a call. Shop at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD CALDWELL.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry,

Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Evening

BY C. STACY.

Office in the New HERALD BUILDING, One door south of the Opera House.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One year, Cash in advance $1.50
Six Months 75
Four Months 50

Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Business Cards, five centsper line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births and Death Notices free.

Rates on display Advertisements or more extensive work known at the Publishing Office.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondence numerous and highly valued, but necessarily for publication, only as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 15, 1880.

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Mr. J. A. Heck, of this village, has left us a copy of a late Chicago Times containing a speech by A. J. Streeter, in which he shows the earnings of the different railroads in Illinois for the year 1878. From this table it appears that a few more competing railroads would be a good thing for the people in general and for business men in particular:

Forty-five years experience upon the farm in Illinois may entitle me to address you as brothers, and to tell you that we are being robbed by the railroad corporations. Nearly one-half of every dollar paid to the big railroad corporations in the State, is to them net profit.

In the railroad and warehouse commissioners' report for the year 1878 we find the proof of the above statement, as follows:

Chicago and Alton for the year 1878—
Gross earnings	$ 4,436,356 86
Expenses	2,332,958 44
Net earnings	$ 2,103,398 12
Chicago and North-western—
Gross earnings	$19,437,116 42
Expenses	12,854,305 80
Net earnings	$ 6,582,810 62
Chicago, Burlington and Quincy—
Gross earnings	$22,561,759 04
Expenses	7,183,684 38
Net earnings	$ 6,378,088 66
Illinois Central—
Gross earnings	$ 4,758,488 85
Expenses	2,325,470 26
Net earnings	$ 2,432,018 59
Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific—
Gross earnings	$ 5,008,688 64
Expenses	2,232,574 46
Net earnings	$ 2,775,114 18

The net earnings of two of the above roads are more than one-half of the gross receipts, while the net earnings of the other three are a little less than one-half. No other business in Illinois pays one-fourth that much net profit.

Do you know of any manufactories or other industry in the State one-half of whose gross receipts are net profit? To make the farming industry equal to it, one-half of the value of every crop raised and one-half of the value of every fat hog and steer fed on the farm would be net profit.

On page 79 of the same report we find the earnings of all the railroads in the State, fifty-one in number, for the year 1878, to be as follows:

Gross receipts	$105,466,734 29
Expenses	62,953,549 57
Net earnings	$ 42,513,184 72

Showing the net earnings of all the railroads, both great and small, in the State to be above 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. The rate at which these corporations are drawing in the wealth of the country is truly alarming. Take, for example, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy company, now twenty-five years old. This corporation is said to be worth, by those who know, $40,000,000, besides having paid annual dividends to its stockholders of from 8 to 10 per cent. Now, brother farmers, if one railroad corporation can pay its stockholders from 8 to 10 per cent. dividends annually, and in addition thereto absorb $40,000,000 in wealth in twenty-five years, how long, at this rate, will it take all the corporations to eat us up?

DISASTROUS FIRE AT JONESVILLE

At 2 A. M., Saturday, fire was discovered in the Jonesville city mills, owned by the Hon. E. O. Grosvenor, and leased by Wade & Houck. The fire spread rapidly, entirely consuming the mills and the following buildings in the order named: A store-room for mill supplies, Platt's agricultural implement store, owned by Smith & Loomis of Jackson; loss of contents, $10,000; no insurance; loss on building $500; no insurance; H. A. Howe's bakery, with residence overhead; loss of stock $1,800; insured for $1,000; no insurance on building; loss, $1,000; residence owned by A. Sturn; loss $500; insured for $500; bakery, residence and store-room of Merganthaler; loss, $2,000; no insurance; blacksmith shop owned by Mrs. Dilla, loss $500; no insurance; three-story wood building owned by G. W. Bullock, loss $2,000, insured for $1,000. The Gardner block was damaged $800, insured. There was no insurance on the mill, and but $1,000 on its contents. Loss on contents $2,500. For a time it seemed as though the entire business portion of the village would be swept away, and but for the herculean efforts of our fire department and citizens such would have been the case. Commercial block, Bartholomew's livery, Cottage hotel and the woolen mills were enveloped in a rain of fire, but it was fortunately controled. Help was telegraphed for from Hillsdale. They responded promptly, but did not arrive till the fire was under control. The fire is thought to have been the work of an incendiary. The loss on the mill is about $18,000, and the entire loss will be not far from $40,000.

HONEST DEALING THE BEST

A shrewd German once said, and with a great deal of truth: "Men go in de street and sheat one nodder, and call it pishness." With some persons this seems to be an acceptable definition. A man has something to sell. He proposes to obtain for it, not what it is worth, but what any person can be deceived and be persuaded to give; and the man who knows how to deceive and beguile his neighbor into paying twice the value of an article, is held to be keen and shrewd. In the long run, it may be fairly questioned whether any bargain is a good bargain for the buyer. The man who undertakes to do business on the principle of deceiving and cheating will do well to remember that it is not wise to take a narrow view of these matters. A writer who has studied the best method of dealing, both in buying and selling, sums up the following: If of fifty men in a community each contrives in the course of a year to cheat each of the others to the amount of fifty dollars, pray tell us how much betteroff any of them will be at the year's end? Each of them has gained twenty-five hundred dollars by his own rascality, and lost twenty-five hundred dollars by the rascality of his neighbors. But most of them expect to gain, but do not expect to lose; they regard themselves as "smart," and in this opinion, no doubt, they are correct; but they make the very common mistake of supposing that because they are wise everybody else is foolish. The keenest of them in the course of a lifetime find their match, and, perhaps, lose in a day everything which they accumulate through years of craft and guile. But suppose five or ten men succeed in plucking some less crafty soul; suppose they sell him goods at enormous prices which he can neither use nor sell; suppose, after making a thousand dollars out of him by sheer deception and swindling, he fails, owing them two thousand dollars, and pays them ten cents on a dollar, how much have they gained? Or suppose they "look out for that" and are too shrewd and do not allow them, he may fail owing and ruining some one else, who does owe them, involving an innocent person in the disaster and still bringing the curses home like chickens to roost.

Now all business done on this basis of deception, cheating and rascality, is every way unsatisfactory. It ruins many, it really helps none. The long lane of crookedness and craft turns at last, and turns down hill. The only safe and proper way to do business is to do it honestly; and if men are unwilling to do this, much as they may think they may gain, they will find in the end that their loss is greater. Absence of honesty causes loss of confidence; loss of confidence causes financial panics and disasters; swindling, stealing and defalcations rob men of their rights, and send them out into the community as tramps and beggars, enemies of society, and tempted to avenge their real or fancied wrongs wherever they can find opportunity; and, finally, come anarchy and revolution, in which the ill-gotten gains of generations go down in seas of fire and blood and desolation. The remedy for panic is confidence; the foundation for confidence is honesty and integrity; and the foundation for honesty and integrity is the fear of the Lord, which is the beginning of wisdom. God, who made man, knows what is best for him; the devil does not know how to run this world successfully; those who have been taking lessons from him will need to try again, and study in another school.

DR. TANNER is now in New York undergoing the trial of living without any food for forty days and without wager the last thirty days. He has managed to get along for ten days, and if he should live forty days in the same way, what is to be gained by the experiment. People are not going to try to live without eating. The walking mania took us by storm last summer, and it was demonstrated that a man could beat a horse, but we notice horses and phaetons are still in use by those who can manage to get them. The same man that walked a hundred miles a day for fun will work like a slave three days to buy a hundred mile railroad ticket.

THE Democrats of Michigan will meet in State convention at Detroit, August 17th, to nominate candidates for Presidential electors and State officers. The call reads: "all citizens irrespective of past party differences who can unite with us in an effort for pure economical constitutional government and administrative reform, or who favor the election of General Hancock to the office of President of the United States, are invited to join in sending delegates to this convention."

THE Marshall Chronicle says that Mr. J. A. Latcha, president of the T. & M. R. R., has been summoned to Boston to consult with the capitalists owning the road, regarding the best way to procure its entire construction this season. They are anxious that it be built at once so as to make their investment pay them something.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

An Old-Fashioned Contest.

Baltimore Sun, (ind.)—Instead of a canvass of personal villification and detraction, or of appeals to sectional feelings and bygone animosities, we may have an old-fashioned contest of principles and measures.

He Wouldn't Have It.

Petroleum World.

There was a young party named Don,
Who said, "I'll be damned if I con,
By any palaver,
Be cox'd into have 'er,
I'm not such a simple young man."

What the Nomination Means.

Albany Argus, (dem.)—The nomination of Major General Hancock means unity, victory and the keeping of victory. It means election and inauguration. The act was characteristic of a great party in its best mood.

No Time to Lose.

Wilmington (Del.) News, (rep.)—We warn our Republican friends to be up and doing. There is no time to lose. If we win, it will be after one of the most hotly contested and evenly divided battles in the history of the country.

Expediency.

New Haven Palladium, (rep.)—The nomination of General Winfield Scott Hancock at Cincinnati is strikingly illustrative of the principle which has ever dominated the actions of the Democratic party, the principle of expediency.

He Will be Elected.

Washington Star, (ind.)—As to General Hancock, we believe his nomination to be the strongest one which the Convention could make. What four months may bring forth of course no man can tell, but our present impression is that he will be elected.

Satisfactory.

Hartford Times, (dem.)—To democrats his nomination is satisfactory on many accounts, and not the least reason is his acknowedged statesmanship. He is not only a great and brilliant soldier, but he has given striking proofs of his possession of the higher qualifications of a leader in civil affairs.

A Strong Candidate.

Utica Herald, (rep.)—Hancock is a strong candidate, not only in his military record and his unblemished personal character, but in the fact that he has no political record, and therefore no political enemies. So long as the South stands ready to support him there are no antagonisms anywhere in the party arpused by his candidacy.

Principles to Be the Test.

Altoona Tribune, (rep.)—The Democrats have certainly displayed wisdom in their choice, as he is the most available man they could have placed in the field. His record is clean and brilliant, and he will have to be fought solely as the representative of principles which the Republicans hold to be at variance with the best interests of the country.

Retrieving the Past.

Pittsburg Dispatch, (rep.)—For the first time in almost a score of years the Democracy have won public applause. By the nomination of Winfield S. Hancock, a soldier of the Republic and an irreproachable citizen, they have re-established some claim to political sagacity as well as to an apparent desire to get en rapport with the best sentiment of the people.

It Looks That Way.

New York Herald, (ind.)—It was said by one of the shrewdest men in the democratic party some years ago, "I don't believe we democrats will ever win until we dare to be democrats." Well, the platform this year is a genuinely democratic platform; the party seems at last to have turned democratic. It has regained its old time boldness and directness; it dares once more to say what it means. Who knows? perhaps it will win. It looks a little that way just now.

Will They Do It?

Philadelphia Times, (ind.)—Mr. Tilden seems to feel pretty well and in no need of the sympathy unanimously tendered him by the Republican party. He may not have been the original Hancock man, but that he likes the nomination is demonstrated to some extent by a contribution of $100,000 to help the boom along. It is in the form of a check payable to the order of W. H. Barnum. Now will Grant or Blaine or Sherman give as much to the Garfield fund? Mr. Jewell is waiting.

The Two Platforms.

New York Herald, (ind.)—It is often said that platforms mean nothing; but in the present instance, it happens that the national platforms represent pretty accurately the spirit of the two parties. The republican platform looks backward, the democratic platform looks ahead. The republican platform deals in and appeals to old and mischievous sectional issues; the democratic platform, though not perfect, is yet thoroughly national and not sectional in its spirit. The republican platform favors or encourages monopolies; the democratic platform favors the taxpayers—the people.

Ask the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient, how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Pain, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This universal Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, languid, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the best, cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World.
Interest paid on Savings Deposits.
LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.
Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 altos, tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass; bell up, patent piston valves; warranted, for $180.

I also have Band Instruments for professional bands to select from, including Conn and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogues.

Address, O. F. BERDAN.
72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manila paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

We Call Attention

To our Superb Stock of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

We will Close Out

ALL SUMMER GOODS

AT COST!

For One Week.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

N. B.---Remember----We Mean Cost.

What! What!! What!!!

Yes! Yes!!

W. F. BAXTER

Has bought LEE'S Stock of

BOOTS AND SHOES!

AND HAS A

LARGE INVOICE COMING

But he will sell at the old

CLOSING OUT PRICES.

		FORMER PRICE.
Men's Double Sole and Tap Boots,	$2.50	$3.50
" Sewed Boots,	2.75	3.75
" Low Shoes,	1.25	1.75
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Kelley's Rochester),	2.75	3.50
Ladies Curso Kid Button (Rochester make),	2.25	3.00
Ladies Curso Kid Button,	1.35	1.75

I invite the ladies to call and see the new styles of

Walking Shoes and Slippers

Which I have just received.

A new case of those REAL WORKING SHOES just received. In fact everything for everybody at BAXTER'S.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

Spring wagon, 1 set single harness and a bay mare, kind and gentle, will work any place. All for $65; also a very fine gray mare, price $100.
Enquire of O. P. SPARKS.

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to me are requested to call and settle immediately, or as soon as August 1st, as I have large bills to meet on or about that date.
MRS. M. A. FREELAND.

POSTPONED.

B. F. Stimhoff has been obliged to postpone his Northern trip till the latter part of the month on account of rush of business. He is making full plates on celluloid for $5.00.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

TAKE NOTICE.

My wife Emma Osborn having left my bed and board without my knowledge or consent, I hereby forbid any one trusting her on my account as I shall pay no bills of her contracting.
O. P. OSBORN.
June 28, 1880.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

WANTED.

100 TEAMS to work on the grading of the Detroit, Butler, & St. Louis R.R. Wages $3,00 per day. Apply at our office, Room No. 9, Masonic Temple Block, Adrian, Mich. STANLEY BROS.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON
Is the only agent at Tecumseh for
Genuine Warner Corsets,
Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

THE MICHIGAN MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION.

The Michigan Mutual Benefit Association has now been established one year. The progress that it has made during this time is flattering to the managers and agents, and insures success to the organization.

Not a death loss has been reported this year due to the care exercised by the agents. The officers have not endeavored to reach a membership of thousands the first year but have, by the use of all the means known, such as rigid medical examinations and carefully guarded application and a strictly honest numbering of certificates and truthful representations in regard to their business, sought to benefit their company and build up a solid foundation. They depend upon the good sense of the people of this state to discriminate in favor of the companies that are started and conducted in honesty and on a sound business basis. W. R. Wooden, the agent at Tecumseh assures us that the company can secure enough membership in this county alone to make the organization a success and with the membership which they shall secure from the balance of the state they can safely say that the company is an assured success. They have now fifteen counties under more or less thorough organization and every prospect for a very successful business year.

The company has quite a number of memberships in Tecumseh and tho' the exertions of Mr. Wooden, many persons are becoming members all the time. It is a sound organization and every person should become a member.

A coach load of the Detroit Evening News excursionists, while descending the White Mountains last Monday, were thrown over and down the mountain by the careless driving of a drunken driver. Mrs. Ira Chicester, of Allegan, was instantly killed, while several persons from Kalamazoo, Howell, Romeo and other places were seriously injured. The driver received injuries which will undoubtedly prevent him from upsetting another coach in the White Mountains.

THE artistic and phenomenal whistling of Mr. Lewis Vicary, of Detroit, is more than worth the admission fee at the concert Tuesday evening.

ADMISSION to the Opera House Tuesday evening is only 25 cents.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JULY 15, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

WHO dares to say that it is not hot enough?

SOMEBODY remarked yesterday that it was hot.

FARMERS find it difficult to obtain help for harvest.

C. M. CROSWELL, Jr., has sold his Billet Doux office.

To Detroit and back next Thursday, with eight hours in the city, all for $1.25.

A NORMAL Department has been established at Olivet College in this state.

MANY farmers have already contracted their wheat for ninety cents per bushel.

THE first popular cheap excursion of the season will run to Detroit next Thursday.

MISS MYRA GRAVES has just returned from a short vacation to her home in Adrian.

LAVERN BIDWELL has just added to his stock a splendid new double seat covered carriage.

LAST Tuesday the first thresher commenced operation around Tecumseh at Henry Brown's.

THE dogs of Tecumseh barketh no more. Now muzzle the cats and our sleep will be unbroken.

GEORGE HEESEN is painting over and otherwise repairing his dwelling house on Union street.

DR. E. HAUSE started last Tuesday on a trip round the lakes. He will be gone from home about ten days.

QUITE a number of Tecumseh people attended the Republican meeting at Adrian last Tuesday evening.

CHAS. BIDWELL'S new house on Union street is well started. It will be a fine residence when completed.

HARRY LEE and Fred Landgraf have commenced on their new block. The foundation walls are being laid.

MISSES VIOLA SKENE, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and Jesse Van Court, of Detroit, are visiting Miss Grace DeWolf.

A NUMBER of Adrian people attended the national regatta and they say they bet on Michigan and came home loaded.

H. F. BARNES of Ridgeway, left some fine specimens of his wheat crop at this office, which indicate a yield of 50 bu. to the acre.

THE Clinton News says D. R. Gibson near Clinton picked ripe peaches from his orchard July 3d. Rather premature it seems to us.

A NUMBER of young gentlemen of Adrian have bought a shell to put on Sank Lake, not so much for doing some fast rowing as enjoyment.

MISS ALLIE KING has been in Tecumseh for the past few days visiting her friends before leaving for Sedalia, Mo., where she intends to make her home.

THE canvass for the T. & M. road is progressing this week in Tecumseh with fair prospects of ultimate success. What are Franklin and Ridgeway doing?

S. S. SCOVILL, who has been to work here on the railroad canvass, has a pocket knife in his possession, which has been in continuous use for thirty-five years.

No fireworks were allowed in New York on the "Fourth," and Detroit also enjoyed, under the city ordinance, immunity from the pestiferous Chinese "cracker."

L. A. DAVIS is getting out some new granite monuments at his marble works. The Vermont granite which he uses makes a beautiful monument, and it is much cheaper than the ordinary styles of granite.

SUMNER SPAFFORD, ESQ., of Desmoines, Iowa, is in town making his accustomed summer's visit among the old pioneers about Tecumseh. One wouldn't suppose, to have a chat with him, that he would ever grow old.

Adrian Times: A daughter worth having. A daughter of B. F. Laing, of Raisin, aged 12 years, drove the team to her father's reaper, while cutting 35 acres of wheat. The reaper not being a self-raker, her father did the raking off.

AMONG the recent graduates from the Michigan University was a colored girl named Mary H. Graham, aged 22. She prepared at Flint, has stood well in her class, and now goes to teach in Lincoln University, at Jefferson City, Mo.

MR. JNO. LORENZ, better known as "Dutch John" attempted to walk sixty miles last Monday in the Opera House, in twelve hours, but after walking 50 miles in a little over eleven hours went off from the track exhausted.

R. C. VAN ANTWERP has made arrangements to furnish Raspberry ice cream in addition to what he now has, and he intends to make all the different kinds in their season. Suffice it to say that any of it is good enough for us to eat.

HUDSON has a Hancock and English club 600 strong.

THE T. & M. R. R. is booming again in Tecumseh.

WEB ANDERSON returned last week from a visit to Kansas.

IF Hillsdale can't play base ball it can row "with any of 'em."

DON'T forget the concert at the Opera House, Tuesday, July 20th.

THIS week's weather has set many a person a thinking about going to the lakes.

WE understand that the Tecumseh correspondent of the Clinton News resides in Clinton.

LUKE WOOD, president of the "Old Men's Christian Ass'n," is home again from New York state.

J. C. BONTECOU, of Ann Arbor, will address the temperance meeting next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

DR. H. PETERS of Tecumseh was present at the Southern Michigan Medical Society at Coldwater last Tuesday.

THE residents of Kilbuck street are not inclined to favor the present surveyed route of the T. & M. railroad through the town.

LAST Saturday night during the thunder storm a stray streak of lightning struck a large locust tree in front of Mr. E. Ames' house.

NEVER make fun of anybody who is sick or nervous in a thunder storm. It is not cowardice, but a temporary result of the influence sustained by the nerves from the electricity in the air.

A YOUNG man has sent us a very touching poem entitled, "Will you learn to love me when I'm gone?"—We can't promise that, but we'll bet you a gold mine that you'll learn to hate us if you ever come around here with another poem like that.

WOOL has been coming in quite freely here during the past week, and the prices range about the same as they have heretofore. Up to this date Hanford & Anthony have taken in 110,000 pounds, Slayton & Son nearly 50,000 pounds, and H. W. Stevens 35,000 pounds.

THE brigade encampment of the Michigan State Troops will be at Kalamazoo this year. The boys will go into camp Aug. 9th, and remain a week. Kalamazoo has offered many inducements which will materially effect the comfort of the troops during the encampment.

THE entire exports of agricultural products of Canada in 1879 were $25,970,887, only $2,890,853 of which represented wheat and its products. The value of butter exported, $2,101,897, almost equaled the value of wheat; and the value of cheese exported $3,790,300 exceeded that of wheat.

THE secretary of state has issued a circular showing that last year there were 30,910,853 bushels of wheat raised in this state—an average of 19.30 per acre on 1,601,710 acres. There are the best of reasons for believing that this year's crop will exceed 34,000,000 if not 35,000,000 bushels.

Developments of the census of Ypsilanti showing that city to have lost about 500 in population since 1870 must tend to stop hereafter on the part of her citizens the claim to being rival of Ann Arbor. In 1870 her population was 5,471, in 1874 she showed a decrease to 5,211, and now will fall below 5,000.

A YOUNG artist who lives in a boarding house wants to know how he can learn to play the violin without disturbing the other boarders. Soap your bow, young man, soap your bow, and bathe the strings twice a day in sweet oil. Then you can sit up all night and play overtures, and nobody will mind it.

CHICAGO has one level-headed judge. A woman in that city wants a divorce on the ground that her husband was a "confounded fool," and the judge promptly dismissed the bill for the reason that "if such an allegation were recognized as valid, the rights of no married man would be safe for a single moment."

PROF. SPENCER, who has had charge of the Tecumseh Public Schools for the past six years, left with his family Monday morning for Battle Creek to take charge of the schools there. The Prof. has accomplished considerable good for our schools and it was with much regret that many citizens saw him leave Tecumseh.

WE observe that amongst the honorary degrees conferred at the Twenty-Sixth Annual Commencement of the Michigan University was that of Ph. D. on Professor W. J. Beal, of the Agricultural College. In conferring it one of the Regents remarked that it was an honor most worthily bestowed and which would reflect credit on the University for its discrimination.

THUS far the tally is as follows: Fourth of July foolishness in Michigan, debtor, to 12 drowning accidents, 2 crushed feet, 4 persons whisky killed, 4 shot fatally, 2 stabbed, 29 boys and 2 girls wounded with shot, 62 boys and 1 girl disfigured by powder explosions, 2 wounded by bursting guns, and 7 hurt by runaway accidents. Several counties are yet to hear from.

MISS BURGESS of Toledo is the guest of Mrs. Berdan for a few weeks.

THE Republican State Convention will meet at Jackson on Thursday August 5th.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN fly a new ad. this week. They have a very fine line of agricultural implements.

ON Sunday James B. Cooke killed his wife at Greenville, Mich., and then shot himself. "Whisky did it."

A. W. MILLS has presented us a fine sample of red raspberries, which were raised on his place in the village.

THE thermometer stood at 85° at five o'clock Tuesday morning, and at noon the same day it marked 102° in the shade.

THE maps officially locating the line of the Butler road through this county were filed in the Register's office last Monday.

INDEPENDENCE day was celebrated at Atlanta, July 3, in the grandest style since the war. The visitors were estimated at 20,000.

OUR new style of business directory is taking finely. We have taken several new cards this week, and shall enlarge the list next week.

SEVERAL thermometers about the village mysteriously disappeared last Tuesday. The mercury went up so high that it carried them out of sight.

MR. TATE and John Haynes have built new houses at the east end of Pottawatamie street, that add considerable to the looks of that part of the town.

MR. V. RHEMS, traveling agent of the excursion steamer "Chief Justice Waite," was in town last week. The Waite is prepared for a heavy business this season.

CANADA BELL, the beautiful bay mare owned by Wm. McCowen, died very suddenly last Tuesday. She was a model family horse and a valuable piece of property.

THE Republican Congressional Convention has been called for Tuesday, August 10th, at Adrian. Monroe will have 12 delegates, Lenawee 21, Washtenaw 16, Hillsdale 15.

THOSE new ballads, "Twickenham Ferry," "Kerry Dance," "Two Replies," and those old favorites, "The Last Rose of Summer" and Eckert's "Echo Song," Tuesday evening.

LAST Tuesday the mercury touched its highest point for the season all over the country. Washington had it at 98 degrees, Chicago at 100, Baltimore 99, Cincinnati 86 to 100, New York 87.

Wm. H. Vanderbilt holds the 30th part of the entire funded debt of the United States and the 11th part of the registered loan. The other 10-11ths are held by more than 50,000 persons, and Michigan boasts a larger number of individual holders than any other state.

THE committe appointed to submit a plan for organizing a Hancock club have made arrangements for a meeting on Thursday evening of next week at the opera house. Seth Bean and Jas. A. Stacy of Adrian will address the meeting and a campaign club will be organized at that time.

UNDER the new postal laws, if a stamped envelope or wrapper is spoiled, it will be redeemed at its face value at the post office. Postal cards spoiled before using will be redeemed at the rate of four cents in stamps for every five cents in face value of the cards. In each instance the entire envelope, wrapper, or card must be returned to secure the value of the stamp.

"BUB, did you ever stop to think," said a Eureka grocer recently, as he measured out half a peck of potatoes, "that these potatoes contain sugar, water and starch?" "No, I didn't," replied the boy, "but I heard mother say that you put peas and beans in your coffee, and about a pint of water in every quart of milk you sold." The subject of natural philosophy was dropped right there.

A CHEAP EXCURSION.

On Thursday next, July 22d. an excursion train will run from Manchester, Clinton and Tecumseh to Detroit. It will be a special train, with plenty of cars, and will pass through here a few moments behind the regular train. Fare for the round trip is placed at the remarkably low figure of $1.25, which is much less than the regular fare one way. The excursionists will have eight hours in the city which they can devote to either business or pleasure as their inclinations may prompt them. The train will leave Manchester at 7-40 A. M., Clinton at 7-55 A. M., Tecumseh at 8-05 A. M. Returning the train will leave Detroit at 6-40 P. M. Ice cream and refreshments will be served on the train.

The steamer Garland will leave wharf at the foot of Woodward Ave. every hour during the day, and will carry excursionists to Belle Isle Park at ten cents for the round trip. The management of the excursion is in competent hands and every effort will be made to render the trip a pleasant and comfortable one. We have no doubt that a large number of Tecumseh people will avail themselves of this opportunity.

A DISTINGUISHED MUSICAL EVENT.

A grand concert is to be given at the Opera House next Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Ladies of the Baptist Church of this village for the benefit of the church.

The management of the entertainment has been placed in the hands of Mr. Tibbitts, an eminent professor of voice culture in Detroit, who will present a rare program of brilliant music such as our people seldom have an opportunity of hearing. Mr. Tibbitts will be assisted by his pupils Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Mrs. W. B. Mumford, and Miss Stella Mason of Adrian, and Mr. Lewis E. Vicary of Detroit. The selection of music will be made with especial reference to the weather; and the dullness of the ordinary concert program will be replaced by an exhilerating variety, from begining to end.

Among the vocal selections will be the famous "Drum Trio" and "Sleighbell Quartette" from the opera of Fatinitza. Two duets by Mrs. Johnson and Miss Mason. These ladies, who are sisters, possess finely cultivated voices and are not only fine soloists, but have made an especial reputation for fine duet singing.

Mrs. Mumford, who is already a favorite here, will sing two new songs, "Twickenham Ferry" and "The Two Replies." The other solos will be Eckert's "Echo Song," "The Last Rose of Summer," "The Kerry Dance," "The Wanderer," and "She Is Fooling Thee." Perhaps the most novel and attractive feature of the concert will be the introduction here of formerly famous boy singer, Lewis Vicary, as an artistic whistler. Mr. V.'s performance in this line are said to be phenominal and to deserve the rank of high artistic merit. He will execute Levy's famous "Whirlwind Polka" for cornet, a concerto for violincello by Prume, and a variety of bravura movements which he formerly sang. Altogether the program is one of rare interest and ought to draw out a full house.

BASE BALL.

Yesterday afternoon a game of base ball was played between the Hudson and Tecumseh nines. The game was lacking of interest, and if it had not been for a few excellent plays along through the game it would have been quite tiresome.

The game was called at 2:50 o'clock by umpire Frazer. Tecumseh went into the field. Finch went to bat for Hudson and walked to 1st on 8 balls. Hardy walked along after him to 1st on called balls. Spencer then went to bat, struck 3 times, Tray stopped the ball but dropped it so that the men were forced to run. But the Hudson boys didn't see the point and before they had much time to think the Tecumsehs made a triple play. Tecumseh came in to bat. Bostwick, Shaughnessy and Tray all out on short hits into the diamond.

In the second innings Nelson, Dickenson and Platt of the Hudsons scored 3 outs. Tecumsehs came in from the field. Root went to bat; was out at 1st on a grounder to Platt. Chapman did the same by a short hit to Hardy. Freeman made 1st on a base hit to right field. McKinney then sent a whizzing grounder to c. f. bringing in Freeman. Anderson made a bat to Platt, who put it to 2d too quick for McKinney, making 3 men out.

In the 3d innings Platt, Long and Knapp of the Hudsons scored 3 outs. Eccles, Root and Chapman out for the Tecumsehs, while Bostwick, Shaughnessy and Tray obtained a run.

The game ran on in this way, Hudson scoring one run in the first part of the game and another in the latter part, so at the end of the game the score stood 18 to 2 in favor of Tecumseh.

The Hudson boys are a pleasant lot of fellows, and the game was void of all wrangling and kicking. We wish they had been a better nine because it is becoming wearisome to attend such one sided games. The Tecumsehs yesterday could have made 30 runs as well as 18, but they were inclined to take it easy.

A YOUNG man of Marshall secured a livery rig and with his girl went off riding. Leaving on Friday and not returning, an officer went in pursuit. They were found Monday when they asserted they had lost their way and had been without anything to eat since departure. Appearance of the horse and surroundings substantiated the statement. The girl aged 15 was restored to her parents and the young man aged 19 was jailed.

SOME of our readers may appreciate the following which we clip from an exchange: "When a man gets mad at something and orders his newspaper stopped, it is amusing to see the persistance with which he hangs about until his neighbor's next week's copy is brought in, and the eagerness with which he scans its columns to see if there are any indications of the concern "going up" because he has withdrawn his patronage."

IF you wish to throw off languor and dullness, hear the Sleighbell Quartette and Drum Trio at the concert at Opera House Tuesday evening.

A world's fair is to be held in New York city in 1883. One million dollars is to be subscribed before any corporate act is performed. The original act establishing the fair names about one hundred citizens of New York as corporators, and provides for the appointment of two commissioners and two alternates from each state. As soon as all the states have appointed their commissioners, a permanent organization will be effected and the work will progress rapidly.

The fast mail service between the east and the west is again to be established. The postmaster general has just completed negotiations with the New York Central and Hudson River and the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroads, whereby the fast mail service which was put in operation on those roads in 1875 and 1876, will be again given to almost the whole territory of the west. The arrangements went into effect on Monday, July 5th.

IF you are tired and languid Tuesday evening, the program at the Opera House will rest and exhilerate you.

—All kinds of Screen Doors and Windows of the best material, also all kinds of building material at
S. W. Temple's.

SOMETHING NEW.

A Spring Harrow on wheels, just the thing exactly. For light draft, durability and quality of work has no equal. Call on Slayton & Son and see it.

—E. V. DePuy is Agt. for the new Shoe Grain Drill. Call and see, or at Byron Beach's in Macon.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids.
A. B. Cotton.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres.
J. A. Eaton & Co.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new.
A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.
A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton s.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.
Brown, the Photographer.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Cheneille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at
Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Wanted—To trade a Granite Monument for a good horse. Apply to L. A. Davis, Tecumseh Steam Granite and Marble Works, Tecumseh.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14 I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brown's Store, Chicago Street.

J. F. JENKINS, N. G.

L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB, NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings at Seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, PRESIDENT.

G. C. SPRING, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No.35. Mail.	No.37. Express.	No.39. Accom.
Jackson	6 50 a.m.	7 30 p.m.	1 30 p.m.
Napoleon	7 10 "	2 53 "	2 35 "
Norvell	7 16 "	3 03 "	2 55 "
Manchester	7 39 "	3 20 "	3 35 "
Clinton	7 45 "	3 40 "	4 15 "
Tecumseh	7 55 "	3 50 "	4 30 "
Adrian	8 30 "	4 25 "	6 00 "
Detroit	10 50 "	6 15 "
Toledo	9 50 "	5 25 "

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No.16. Mail.	No.18. Express.	No.48. Accom.
Detroit	7 50 a.m.	6 40 p.m.
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "
Adrian	12 01 p.m.	9 20 "	5 10 a.m.
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	5 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 35 "
Norvell	1 15 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 50 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't.

P. S. BLODGETT, Detroit Div. Sup't.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the U. S.

N. S. SAFTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A.M.
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit ..... 3 30 P.M.

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A.M.
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A.M. 9 57 P.M.

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Coukling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

DIPHTHERITIC SORE THROAT.

As diphtheria is one of the most terrible maladies, a person is often startled on being told by his physician that he has diphtheritic sore throat. The diseases, however, are not the same. Neither is the latter a lower type of the former.

In diphtheria, while the disease localizes itself in the tonsils—and may extend down through the air passages—there is a general poisoning of the system, which shows itself in a peculiarly depressing fever. In the diphtheritic sore throat, the disease is confined to the tonsils and adjacent parts, with only a slight general disturbance.

In diphtheria, the exudation which covers the tonsils—and may cover other parts—is of a leather-like consistency (whence the name from the Greek word, diphtheria—leather), and adheres to the substance of the flesh; in diphtheritic sore throat, the exudation is simply a curdle-like matter which is poured out from the glands of the inflamed tonsils. At the first glance, however, it resembles the real leathery exudation of diphtheria.

In removing the diphtheritic membrane, the skin is abraded and bleeds; but the removal of the curdy matter from the tonsils is like removing putty from the hand.

Diphtheria is always infectious; ordinary diphtheritic sore throat is not. The symptoms of the latter are enlarged tonsils, very red, with spots of cheesy secretion at the mouths of their many glands; cutting pain in swallowing, and some fever for a few days. In most cases, only one tonsil is affected; still, even this may be so enlarged as to materially encroach upon the fauces. The disease is what is now termed "a filth disease," and is due to contamination in the water or air.—The most frequent source is sewer-gas, from imperfect house drainage.—Youth's Companion.

A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS.

We shall come to that unless we reform in the matter of diet. We like highly-spiced food. The mock-turtle soups, lobster croquettes, scalloped oysters and veal, Welsh rarebits and other cheese relishes are all very delightful and sure to be eagerly pounced on by the diseased appetite of a dyspeptic, but they are productive of much suffering in the end. We do not wish to insinuate that the half of the world who may eat these things with impunity should be deprived of them on account of the other half who cannot eat them, but, as not more than half of the world have the common sense to know what does or does not agree with them, we would, as a sanitary measure, have such recipes labeled "Dangerous." If we followed the example of the "beef eating English," sallow complexions and delicate health would improve directly. True, many of our made dishes are French, and the French are supposed to have reduced cooking to a science, but the extravagance which loaded our grandmothers' tables with ten different kinds of cake sends as many extremes to our own. The dinners of the wealthy American, who prides himself upon his "good living," will probably carry off the palm for vulgarity and lack of art. There is some radical reform needed to keep us from dwindling to a race of pasty-skinned invalids. Would it not be possible for scientific cooking to be placed among the arts and accomplishments to be learned at a modern boarding school? What knowledge can be more useful to a girl than the art of managing a house?

USE OF LEMONS

There are three ways of making lemonade: To squeeze the juice into cold water—this is the shortest way; or to cut it in slices and soak it in cold water, or to cut it in slices and then boil it. Lemonade is one of the best and safest drinks for a person, whether in health or not. It is suitable to all stomach diseases, is excellent in sickness. The pips, crushed, may also be mixed with water, and used as a drink. We advise every one to rub the gums daily with lemon juice, to keep them in health. The hands and nails are also kept clean, white, soft and supple, by the use of lemon instead of soap. It also prevents chilblains. Lemon is used in intermittent fevers, mixed with strong, hot, black coffee, without sugar. Neuralgia may be cured by rubbing the part affected with a cut lemon. It is valuable, also, to cure warts and to destroy dandruff on the head, by rubbing the roots of the hair with it.

The Hartford Courant tells how a German neighbor cured a foul well of a decided "flavor of morality" which it had borne for years, by first cleaning it out, and then putting in a peck of salt, letting the well fill up again, and again pumping it dry.

In Paris the fashionable shade is "sulphur." There is one other place where it is fashionable.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

A fruit-drying establishment is being built at Coldwater.

There are 354 prisoners at the Ionia House of Correction.

Superintendent French, of the Kalamazoo public schools, has been reappointed.

The Jackson Knights Templar are going out in the country to camp for a few days.

The Ovid Register has gone out of the neutrality business, and hoists the Hancock flag.

Mrs. T. Gould, of Quincy, is 89 yrs. old, and walks 1½ miles to church on pleasant Sundays.

Sojourner Truth has left her comfortable Battle Creek home and again taken to the lecture field.

There are only two pairs of working oxen in Kalamazoo township—one of the finest farming towns in the state.

Battle Creek hasn't got that long talked about system of water works in operation yet.

Elwood George, of Mt. Clemens, had three fingers cut off in a stave mill on Friday last.

The governor has pardoned James Burrows, a state prison convict sent from Tuscola county.

The Grand Rapids horsemen are out about $400 by the recent races, and talk of going out of the horse race business.

Haskell Newman, of Plymouth, was buried at that place on the 7th inst.—He was killed by a falling tree near St. Louis.

A Mt. Morris farmer named Lorenzoo Geer died on the 8th from injuries received by a runaway accident at Flint.

The Caro ladies' band is composed of girls of 11 to 18 years of age. They blow very prettily, and taught by a "horrid man".

The Port Huron opera house now being rebuilt, will be substantially as it was before the fire, barring the proscenium boxes.

The way an Ithaca man made custard of another Ithaca man was to break a quantity of eggs over him and leave him in the sun to dry.

Mrs. Bellheumer, of Negaunee, is 109 years old, and a resident of Menominee county, whose name is not given is 101 years old.

At a catholic church fair held at Port Huron, a gold-headed cane was voted to General Garfield, and will be duly sent to that gentleman.

The once flourishing academy maintained by a catholic sisterhood at Marshall, is a thing of the past, and the nuns have been sent home.

Seventy-eight thousand dollars' worth of buildings are being erected at St. Clair, including one $50,000 residence and another to cost $10,000.

David R. Cooley, of Union City, a prominent citizen and former politician, died a few days ago. In 1872 he was a delegate to the republican convention at Philadelphia.

The Battle Creek Journal says that Nichols & Shepard, the threshing machine makers of that place, have made 900 Vibrators this season, and are now shipping a great many.

An Ishpeming man named Anderson filled a Fourth of July cannon to the muzzle and fired it. The man was found, but the gun is still wandering.

Robert Navarre, who is believed to be the first white child born in what is now the state of Michigan, is still living three miles south of Monroe, at the age of 90 years.

Mrs. E. M. Young, of Indiana, has revived her claim against the village of Lowell, for damages sustained by falling through a hole in a sidewalk in that place.

Mary Graham, a young colored girl who recently graduated from the University of Michigan, has been appointed a teacher in Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo.

A Traverse City correspondent says: Reports from all around us show that the crops in this region are unusually good. In many places the hay crop is double that of last season.

Fred Connor, the Hillsdale single sculler who made such a good record at the national regatta, is but 19 years old, but is a good one, and his friends advise the boys to look out for him at the Bay City regatta.

In Ovid township, Branch county, last week, a child of Ed Davis was kicked to death by a horse; William Kerns was bitten by a rattlesnake, and Charles Bender fell from a tree and broke an arm.

The improvements made at the Bay View (methodist) state camping grounds near Petoskey, this year, are of a nature that makes the location a very desirable summering place. Some handsome and convenient cottages have been built, new lots platted, and the ranks of the association are being rapidly recruited. The annual camp meeting begins July 27, but some 40 families are already on the ground.—Bishop Bowman is to be present this year.

KNOWLEDGE IN A NUTSHELL.

A cubit is two feet.
A pace is three feet.
A fathom is six feet.
A span is 10½ inches.
A palm is three inches.
A great cubit is 11 feet.
A league is three miles.
There are 2,750 languages.
Oats, 35 pounds per bushel.
Bran, 20 pounds per bushel.
Barley, 48 pounds per bushel.
A day's journey is 33½ miles.
Two persons die every second.
Sound moves 743 miles per hour.
A square mile contains 640 acres.
A storm blows 30 miles per hour.
Coarse salt, 85 pounds per bushel.
A tub of butter weighs 84 pounds.
Buckwheat, 52 pounds per bushel.
The average human life is 31 years.
A barrel of rice weighs 600 pounds.
An acre contains 4,840 square yards.
A firkin of butter weighs 56 pounds.
A barrel of flour weighs 196 pounds.
A barrel of pork weighs 200 pounds.
Slow rivers flow five miles per hour.
Timothy seed, 45 pounds per bushel.
A hurricane moves 80 miles per hour.
A hand (horse measure) is four inches.
A rifle ball moves 1,000 miles per hour.
Rapid rivers flow seven miles per hour.
Electricity moves 288,000 miles per hour.
The first lucifer match was made in 1829.
Gold was discovered in California in 1848.
The first horse railroad was built in 1826-7.
A mile is 5,280 feet, or 1,770 yards in length.
The first steamboat plied the Hudson in 1807.
Corn, rye and flax seed, 56 pounds per bushel.
A moderate wind blows seven miles per hour.
Wheat, beans and clover seed, 60 pounds per bushel.
The first steam engine on this continent was brought from England in 1753.
Until 1776 cotton spinning was performed by the hand spinning wheel.

ABOUT SALARIES.

Leadville pays its bank cashiers $5,000 a year; tellers $2000.

Railroad superintendents in the West get about $1,000 a month.

The Governor of Michigan receives $1,000 a year.

Mining superintendents in Colorado $8,000 to $10,000.

New York's City Judge, District Attorney and Recorder, get each $12,000.

The chief cook at the Union Club, in New York, $1,800.

The head clerk of the Grand Pacific Hotel, in Chicago, gets $5,000.

Vice-President Talmage, of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, draws $7,000.

General passenger agents on Western railroads from 2,500 to 4,000.

The Mayor of St. Louis $5,000 and the Governor of Missouri the same.

The Judges of the Supreme Court in New York city are paid $11,500.

Commercial travelers in Chicago and St. Louis are making from $50 to $100 a month. Many get $75. A few run up to $2,000 a year.

Head clerks and salesmen in large St. Louis houses draw salaries of from $2,000 to $3,000 a year. Dapper young men in Fourth street bazaars from $10 to $18 a week.

How He Caught Him.

Dana Krum, one of the conductors on the Erie railroad, was approached before train time by an unknown man who spoke to him as if he had known him for years. "I say, Dana," said he, "I have forgotten my pass, and I want to go to Susquehanna; I am a fireman on the road, you know?" But the conductor told him he ought to have a pass with him. It was the safest way. Pretty soon Dana came along to collect the tickets. Seeing his man, he spoke when he reached him. "Say, my friend, have you the time with you?"

"Yes," said he, as he pulled out a watch, "it is twenty minutes past 9."

"Oh, it is, is it? Now if you don't show me your pass, or fare, I will stop the train. There is no railroad man that I ever saw who would say 'twenty minutes past 9.' He would say '9 twenty.'" He settled.

A QUACK'S SUCCESS.

A medical writer tells this story of a celebrated English quack: He was once visited by an old acquaintance from the country who addressed him as "Zam."

"I'm glad to see thee'st got on so vinely Zam," said the rustic, "but how is't, man? Thee know'st thee never had no more brains nor a pumpkin."

Taking him to a window, the quack bade him count the passers-by. "How many have passed?" asked the quack, after a few minutes.

"Nointy, or mayhap a hundred."

"And how many wise men do you suppose were among this hundred?"

"Mayhap one."

"Well, all the rest are mine."

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF ALBERT HAYDEN.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Albert Hayden, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of William Hayden, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate and all legacies bequeathed in said by said will except residuary legacies, and that he is ready to file his final account and praying for the allowance of said account, that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF HENRY TRIPP.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Edwin B. Wood, administrator of said estate, praying for license to sell the real estate of said deceased in said petition described for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF ROBERT LIDDEL.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Robert Liddel, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Thomas A. Liddel and James A. Liddel, executors of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that they have paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and are ready to file their final account and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate be assigned to the persons entitled thereto and for their discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF SAMUEL HUNTER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate

In the matter of the estate of Samuel Hunter, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of James F. Gilmore, administrator of said estate, with the will annexed, alleging that he has paid all the debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration and all legacies except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account, and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed amongst the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF JAMES BRACE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 8th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Brace, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Ann-Maria Waggott alleging among other things that she is the just and lawful owner of a note made by William Monnett, dated August 21st, 1876, for the sum of $3,263.50 payable to said James Brace, deceased; that said note has come to the possession of Edwin B. Wood, administrator of the estate of said deceased, with the will annexed, and praying that said note or the residue of money collected thereon be by order of said court turned over to petitioner, and for such other relief in the premises as shall be agreeable to law.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 2d day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN!

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS,

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF LYDIA MORSE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 7th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lydia Morse, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Robert B. Hinson, administrator of said estate, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate, and is ready to file his final account as administrator, and praying that said account may be allowed that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to and amongst the heirs at law of said deceased and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 2d day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july8

ESTATE OF WILLIAM C. FISHER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 8th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate

In the matter of the estate of William C. Fisher, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, of Abbie Fisher executrix of the last will and testament of said deceased alleging that she has paid the debts of deceased and the expenses of administration of said estate thus far incurred, and is ready to file her first account in this court and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed according to the provisions of said will and the statute in such case provided.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 2d day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july8

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 11th day of March, A.D. 1869, Jonas Weaver and Caroline M. Weaver by an indenture of mortgage made and executed by them on said 11th day of March, to Henry H. Rawson certain lands owned by said Caroline M. Weaver, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 2d day of November, A.D. 1869, in liber 57 of mortgages on pages 675 and 676, and which mortgage was duly assigned by said Henry H. Rawson to Jonas Weaver on the 6th day of November, A.D. 1879, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1880, in liber 95 of mortgages on page 423. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-four and 22-100 dollars and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee which is also covenanted for in said mortgage should any proceeding be taken to foreclose the said morigage; no proceedings have been taken either in law or equity to recover the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Default having been made in the terms of payment of said mortgage by means of which the power of sale in said mortgage has become absolute; notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due together with all legal costs and charges and said attorney fee of twenty-five dollars; said sale will be to the highest bidder and will be made on the twenty-six day of July, 1880, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Dean's Opera House on Toledo street in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county,) The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold as aforesaid are described as situate in the township of Rollin in said county of Lenawee, and known as the west half of the south west quarter of section twenty-nine, except twenty acres off the north end thereof, in township six south of range one east.

Dated February 21st, 1880.

JONAS WEAVER, Assignee of Mortgage.

THOMAS J. HILLER, Att'y for Assignee. ap22

ESTATE OF DANIEL WARING.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate

In the matter of the estate of Daniel Waring, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Lucius Lilley, administrator of the estate of said deceased, with the will annexed, alleging that he has paid the debts and funeral charges of deceased, and the expenses of administration of said estate, and praying for the allowance of his final account now on file in this court, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate, according to the provisions of said will and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon; be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

CHANCERY SALE.

THE Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee—In Chancery.

Luke Wood, Complainant,

vs.

Hiram J. Snell, Elizabeth F. Snell and Mary J. James, Defendants.

In pursuance and by virtue of a decree rendered by said court in this cause on the 26th day of May, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, Charles L. Hall, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, will sell at public auction at the front door of Dean's Opera House (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for said county is held) on Toledo street in the city of Adrian, in said county, on the 14th day of August, A.D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day the following premises described in said decree, viz: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: All that part of block number six (6) of Hewitt's addition to said village of Tecumseh which is included within the following boundary, viz: Beginning at the point of intersection of the west line of Evans street with the south line of Logan street in said village, such point of beginning being at the same time at the north east corner of said block number six; thence running south on the said west line of Evans street sixty-four feet, to land of C. Albaugh (or at least in his occupancy as a pump manufactory); thence west on the north line of land of C. Albaugh and occupied by him as aforesaid, seventy-six feet to the north west corner thereof; thence south on the west line of said Albaugh's said land twenty-six feet to a parcel of land conveyed by said Hiram J. Snell and wife to J. Gilchrist and known as the livery stable property; thence west on the north line of said land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Gilchrist sixty-eight feet to the north west corner of the same; thence south on the west line of said Gilchrist land fifty-four and one-half feet to the south west corner thereof; thence west fifty-four feet to land of B. J. Bidwell; thence north on east line of said Bidwell's land nine rods to the south line of Logan street aforesaid; thence east on the south line of said Logan street twelve rods to the place of beginning.

Dated July 1st, 1880.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

WILLIS MERRITT, Solicitor for Compl't. july1

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

EXHAUSTION OF THE SOIL.

Dr. J. B. Lawes, the well known English agricultural writer and experimenter, writes to the American Cultivator on the exhaustion of the soil. The following extracts may be of interest to Michigan wheat growers.

It is now exactly forty years since we began to exhaust a portion of one of my fields by continuous unmanured wheat crops; it may therefore be interesting to show the evidence we are in a position to bring forward upon the subject of exhaustion as regards the soil at Rothamsted. The product of this unmanured land, I may mention, is one of the elements upon which we estimate the yield of the wheat crop of the country, each season, and we have recently submitted the figures to careful consideration, in order to ascertain to what extent the produce now obtained has been affected by exhaustion.

It would appear probable that the annual decline due to this cause may amount from one-quarter to one-third of a bushel of wheat per acre per annum. If we take the smaller quantity, and add to it the ordinary proportion of straw, the result would be equivalent to about forty pounds of produce; and, as there is but little doubt that the bulk of the organic matter of the crop is obtained from the atmosphere, the amount of matter annually taken from the soil by this forty pounds of produce (including the nitrogen it contained) would be between two and three pounds. The evidence derived from other experiments in the same field proves that the decline in produce is due to an absence of nitrogen, as also that the minerals are in excess, but the actual amount of nitrogen that this forty pounds of produce would have contained would be less than one-half pounds in weight.

It will seem to my readers some thing like an absurdity to suppose that half a pound, more or less, of any substance, upon an acre of land, could have an appreciable influence upon a crop. I may observe, however, that this annual decline of forty pounds of produce, small as it appears to be, amounts in forty years to ten bushels per acre. Analysis of the soil made at different times show that the nitrogen is declining; and as the free use of minerals in an adjoining experiment does not prevent the decline of the crop, we can come to no other conclusion than that the gradual decline in the produce is due to the diminishing amount of nitrogen in the soil. As far as the wheat crop is concerned, it would appear that the total amount of produce to be obtained from any soil must depend very much upon the stores of nitrogen already in the land.

It is true that the soil obtains a certain amount of ammonia from the rainfall, and it probably condenses more or less from the atmosphere; but on the other hand, drainage carries away every year more or less nitrogen in the form of nitric acid; and it is evident that the atmospheric supply, whatever it may amount to, does not suffice to prevent a decline of the crop; it is therefore also evident that the source, from which the forty crops obtained their supply, must have been the stores of nitrogen already existing in the soil when the experiment commenced; further, it seems most probable that the yield of future crops will depend upon the amount of nitrogen liberated each year from the soil.

We have in these experiments a very interesting question opened in relation to the sources of fertility in soils, and exhaustion generally; it is however, quite certain that the yield of the wheat crop in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, for the twelve yrs. given in the American paper, could not possibly furnish any reliable information upon the subject.

HINTS ABOUT POULTRY.

Put the chicken coops in the shade.

A little sulphur mixed with dough is seasonable.

Dough will always swell—it is safer to let it swell in the dish than in the chick's crop, therefore mix it an hour before using.

Never put sulphur and lard on chicks, to drive off the lice. Sulphur combined with grease or oil forms an acid, which we have seen eat the skin completely from the skull of a chick, and it often blinds them; dry sulphur alone, or fresh lard by itself, is harmless.

It doesn't pay to slight the fowls for the sake of the chicks. Young birds are more interesting, but the old ones need care too. Give them all the green food (cut grass is altogether the best) that they will eat, feed on the smaller grains—give whole corn a rest for a while.

A garden plot need not be wasted because chickens run over it. Sunflowers are very hardy and grow rapidly. The seed is good for fowls in the winter, the plants will afford shade for the chicks, and it is said to be a good health agent in miasmatic localities. So utilize the vacant corners of the garden by planting sunflower seed.

CATTLE IN HIGHWAYS.

Under what circumstances a farmer in this State has a right to let his live stock run at large on the highways and to what extent he is liable for damage done by them while at large, are questions upon which there has been a great variety of opinions, and the practice has led to much serious annoyance. The Legislature at its last session passed a very stringent law against cattle running at large in cities of more than ten thousand population under any circumstances, which settled the matter as far as these cities were concerned, while cities and villages of a less population took refuge under an old enactment which authorized—or seemed to authorize—any board of Supervisors or annual town meeting to prohibit stock from running at large within the township. The inference was, of course that unless in a large city or in a town where this special prohibition was made, stock had a perfect right to run at large.

The Supreme Court, however, seems to take a different view of the matter. While not called upon to pass on the question directly, it has indirectly intimated that no stock owner has a right to use the public highways of Michigan for a common or pasture, excepting possibly that part of them adjoining his own premises. In the course of an opinion in the case of Campau vs. Konan, (39th Michigan reports, now going through the press,) which mainly involved other questions of law, but incidently embraced the point of the right of stock to be in the highway at all—the court says:—"Whether authority could be conferred upon the board of supervisors or any other body to permit beasts to run at large upon public highways may, to say the least, admit of considerable doubt. Upon principle the owner of lands adjoining the highway is entitled to the herbage growing thereon, and whatever rights the public may have on the highway, a common or pasture is not among them." This would seem to settle the point on general principles that live stock has no right to run at large on the highways, no matter what the Legislature or board of Supervisors or anybody else may have to say about it.—Michigan Homestead.

A CHAPTER ON HOGS.

Mr. W. Pettes furnishes the Farmer a chapter on hogs, in which he reviews the report on swine as given in the first report of 1880, of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture. Mr. Pettis' review suggests the question of hog-breeding as the source of exclusive stock farming, and the probable profits arising from it as a specialty. Hog raising has either been followed as a business by professional breeders of pure-bred animals to supply farmers to breed from, and hence the market prices for pork has not been a direct factor in their business. The demand for thoroughbred stock to breed from was the gauge alone which governed those breeders. Those who follow hog-raising most extensively are generally cattle feeders, and use the hog to follow the cattle and economize their droppings.

But the hog alone, as a species of farm stock, might be raised with profit if grass contributed a large part of his feed. Where clover can be raised, a good breed of fast-growing, easy-fattening hogs will thrive on clover alone and make rapid progress, or with a daily addition of very little grain or slop made of ground or crushed grain. Pork made in this way is far preferable in the amount of lean to fat meat, sweetness, flavor; and wholesomeness, to that which is produced by following cattle, or on distillery slops, while the animals have greater exemption from disease, reducing the hazard of loss to the owners to the minimum.

Where corn is cheap and good, red clover pasture can be depended upon for summer feed; the hog, it would seem, ought to make a profitable animal as a branch of live-stock farming. A year or less suffices to take him from pighood to the butcher's block; and if grass can be introduced to supply as large or nearly as large a percentage of his food as that of horned cattle, the profit on hog-raising should be equal to that of any other live stock.

To insure profit, grass will have to enter largely into his food. To convert grass into flesh is the problem which should engage the farmer's most serious consideration. If he can master this art, the sunshine and the rain will put dollars into his pocket without the intervention of serious and costly manual labor.—Kansas Farmer.

Our druggists have at length been able to secure a partial supply of Electric Bitters. This is the remedy that is producing such a sensation thro'out the country. The demand for these Bitters is unprecedented, many dealers being unable to procure them at all. Their wonderful and rapid curative qualities in removing diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, as wells as the low price (fifty cents,) seem to take like wild-fire.—Exch.—For sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—of—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street — HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT

SLAYTON & SON

Beg leave to inform the public that they are handling a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Among which may be found

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled, Garden City Clipper (steel.)

Scotch Harrows, the Buckeye & Elwood Cultivators,

Johnston Reapers and Mowers,

Buckeye and Champion Grain Drills, Corn Drills & Planters, The Seymour Plaster Sower,

HAY RAKES, The Thomas Hand Dump, The Tiger Self Dump.

THRESHERS, The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines, the Carter Tongueless Cultivators,

Double Shovels and Shovel Plows, points for all kinds of Plows,

Sections for all Mowers & Reapers

We also sell

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Scales, and the Boss Stone Boat.

☞ Just call and see if we can't furnish you anything you want.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

☞ Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an invaluable remedy for REGULARIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN.

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures,

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills,

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to TOTALLY CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1875, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk-Cure and Arabian Tonic their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only safe remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

☞ Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

☞ For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

☞ For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

☞ Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take,

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF

CALLING CARDS.

At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

Farming Implements!

GALE Chilled PLOW,

The KING of the Field.

A. A. KENNEDY. — A. S. HAYDEN.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:—

I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 3 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $5.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 31,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Æsop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. — Tribune Building, New York.

☞ Orders for any of these books may be forwarded through the HERALD OFFICE.

DRESS FOR A BELLE OF THE SEASON.

Sunday-School Hymns and Music.

It seems to us high time that the songs of the Sunday-school, the prayer meeting and the regular church service should become more closely allied to each other, so that while the latter shall be made more hearty and earnest, the two former shall be less unworthy of a place in the mind and heart with the grand truths and magnificent literature of the Bible.

Too much countenance has heretofore been given in the Sunday-school to "hymns" which are mere rhymes without reason, with here and there a dash of sweet sentimentalism in place of vigorous thought,—flippant in style and irreverent in expression, and set to tunes of little merit.

Rev. Dr. Charles S. Robinson, the author of "Songs for the Sanctuary," rendered a valuable service to the churches when he added to his later work, "Spiritual Songs for the Church and Choir," a most excellent edition called "Spiritual Songs for Social Worship;" and now a continuation of the series is to be issued, "Spiritual Songs for the Sunday-school," by the same accomplished author, who has been assisted in the work by Mr. W. F. Sherwin, the well-known musical conductor, composer and general Sunday-school worker.

The title of the book is hopefully suggestive, and the names of Dr. Robinson and Mr. Sherwin give such promise of thoroughly sensible and attractive work that the advent of the new volume will be watched with eager interest, as one likely to meet most happily the present need. The book will be published by Scribner & Co.

We cannot but smile, says an exchange, when a man tells us that he cannot afford to take a local paper. He might as well say he cannot afford bread as he intends to have sponge cake. Meanwhile he has to ask his neighbors about the local news and notices, and the local paper goes on building up his place of business and serving his conveniences without his support. This is not manly, and we say without fear of contradiction that there is something out of joint with the man who does not support his local paper.

At this season of the year when the broker returns on Monday morning from the seaside or the springs, and his friends comment on his rubicund complexion, he remarks briefly, "sunburn." And then they laugh and point exultingly to his pimple, and he answers, "poison oak." But they believe him not, for the seaside whiskey is of exceeding strength, and the barkeeper at the springs scrupleth not to put high wine in the cocktail.

Canadians are a little annoyed at the large emigration from the Dominion to the United States. It is stated that 57,000 Canadians have left Ontario during the last eight months, and that nearly all of them have located permanently this side the line. This class, too, it is said, is made up of the best of farmers and mechanics, who are dissatisfied with the government and the slow progress and steady increase of the public debt of Canada.

The Clinton News man has erected a 75 foot flag pole and invites both parties to run up their streamers.

Plainwell Independent: A smart shower fell on Thursday night of last week, and in the morning the ground and sidewalks in parts of the village were found absolutely swarming with young toads about half an inch in length. Did they rain down or hatch out during the night, or how are they to be accounted for?

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, July 14, 1880:

Collens, Mrs. Ellen	Gorden, E.
Calar, Mrs. Sarah	Holmes, Samuel
Dunn, Mrs. Wm.	Harvey, Edward
Darling, Mrs. S.	Hum, Walter C.
Frost, Mrs. Satie	Williams, Geo. C.

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, July 15, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending July 7, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 2,836 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

21 steers	994	4.20	19 steers	1272	$4.70
20 steers	1128	4.40	6 steers	1165	4.30
39 steers	1419	4.75	95 steers	1372	4.90

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 3,300 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

145 Mich. sheep	96	4.00
175 Mich. do	99	4.20
47 do lambs	58	5.50

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show a decrease of 1,915 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

142	203	4.62½	67	166	4.65
132	241	4.62½	56	214	4.70
108	254	4.70	90	267	4.67½

DETROIT MARKET.

Tuesday, July 13, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 5 cars at $1.06; do July, 6,000 bu at $1.04½; do August, 5,000 bu at 95c.

Beans—City picked, $1.40 per bu.

Butter—13½@14c per lb.

Cheese—9@10c per lb.

Eggs—Fresh, 11½@12c per doz.

Feed—Bran, $12; middlings, $14@15 per ton.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@10½c. Shoulders, 6c. Breakfast bacon, 9c. Dried beef, 11½@12½c per lb.

Wool—34@36c per lb.

Corn—42c per bu.

Oats—31@33c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 705 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 1080 lbs.
EGGS—Shipped 123 crates, 13 bbls.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 37100 lbs.
LIVE STOCK—Shipped 1 car.
WOOL—Shipped 101,018. lbs.

Apples, ₱ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ₱ lb	5 @	7
Butter, ₱ lb	10@	12
Barley, ₱ bushel	50@	60
Beans, ₱ bushel	1,00@	1.30
Buckwheat, ₱ bushel	,50@	.60
Buckwheat Flour, ₱ hundred	3,25@	3,60
Beef.—dressed, ₱ hundred	450@	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ₱ lb	@	10
Corn in ear	25@	28
Corn,—shelled ₱ bushel	45@	.48
Clover Seed	3.50@	4.00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₱ dozen	@	8
Flour, ₱ barrel	6.00@	7.00
Hogs Dressed, ₱ cwt	@	5.00
Hogs Live ₱ lb	3 80@	3 85
Hay ₱ ton	6,00@	8.00
Hides, ₱ lb	@	6½
Honey, ₱ lb	@	12
Ham, ₱ lb	@	9
Lard, ₱ lb	@	8
Oats, ₱ bushel	25@	60
Onions, ₱ bushel	1,50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₱ bushel	30@	70
Salt, ₱ barrel	@	1.50
Sheep Pelts	50@	1.25
Timothy Seed, ₱ bushel	@	3.00
Turkeys, dressed	@	16
Wood, ₱ cord	4.00@	4.00
Wheat, Waite, ₱ bushel	90@	95
Wheat, Red, ₱ bushel	90 @	96
Wool, ₱ lb	30@	35

KENNEDY & HAYDEN
DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Champion Drills,
Missouri Drills,
Myers' Wind Mills,
Champion Fruit Ladders,
Gregg Sulky for Plows,
Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,
Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,
Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,
Gale Fallow Cultivators,
Kala'zoo Spring Tooth Harrow,
Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,
A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,
Gart Scott Engines,
Gart Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,
Standard Mowers,
Royce Reapers,
Meadow King Mowers,
Grand Rapids Small Tools.

USBORNE BLOCK,
TECUMSEH, - - MICH.

THE LITERARY REVOLUTION

The most successful revolution of the century, and to American readers of books, the most important. Only books of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are low beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate and demonstrate these truths, we send the following books, all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named:

Macaulay's
Life of Frederick the Great. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Carlyle's
Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Light of Asia,
By Edwin Arnold. Former price, $1.50. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.

Thos. Hughes's
Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print, brevier type; price three cents.

John Stuart Mills's
Chapters on Socialism. Essays of exceeding interest and importance. Price three cents.

Baron Munchausen.
His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Burgeoise type; price five cents.

Mary Queen of Scots'
Life, by Lamertine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Vicar of Wakefield.
By Olive Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress,
Bourgeoise type, leaded; beautiful print; price six cents.

Private Theatricals.
By author of "Sparrowgrass Papers." Small pica type, leaded; price two cents.

Stories and Ballads.
For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.

Leaves from the Diary
Of an Old Lawyer. Short stories of thrilling, laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.

Booksellers
Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH, VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR

CAMPAIGN GOODS

of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply

Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c,

We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.

☞ We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a

Present of a $100 Gold Watch

—OR—

NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.

Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the

U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

Dr. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for Diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Sick-sickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It Purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 102 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

N. W. AYER & SON
ADVERTISING AGENTS
TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA
Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.
Receive Advertisements for this Paper.
ESTIMATES at Lowest Cash Rates.
Free for Newspaper Advertising.
Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

AMERICAN BALL BLUE.

AMERICAN ULTRAMARINE WORKS

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

☞ For Sale by all Grocers. ☜

American Ultramarine Works,
55 Maiden Lane, New York.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF
DRY GOODS.
2 & 3 Opera House Building,
DETROIT, MICH.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,
SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,
GO TO THE
LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY
☞ Satisfaction Guaranteed.
J. R. HIALEY.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

THE CORNER GROCERY,
—OF—
WILSON McCLURE
Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powder,
CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,
And a general variety of
CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES
☞ Everything New, Neat and Clean.
Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

DR. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compellled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs,
Buffalo, New York.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D. C.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $95.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—☞ Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

MALT UNFERMENTED MALT BITTERS

TRADE MARK

Malt Bitters Company

MALT AND HOPS

BITTERS

THIS INCOMPARABLE NUTRIENT is richer in Bone and Muscle producing Materials than all other forms of malt or malt liquor, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors. For difficult digestion, Sick Headache, Consumption, Emaciation, Mental and Physical Exhaustion, Nervousness, Want of Sleep, Ulcerative Weaknesses of Females, Exhaustion of Nursing Mothers, of the Aged, and of Delicate Children, MALT BITTERS are the purest, best, and most economical medicine ever compounded. Sold everywhere.

MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

P. J. WELLING,
Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.--NO 9. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 22, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1546.

Over 30,000 Now in Use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE,

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN,

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

FRANKLIN.

News scarce this week.

Harvest nearly completed, and the whistle of the threshing machine is heard in the land.

Wheat yields well and is of good quality, and if it brings a fair price farmers will be happy and times good.

The quarterly meeting of the M. E. church took place last Sabbath, and a considerable number were received into full communion. The society have recently made quite extensive repairs to their church and the barn connected with the parsonage, and are in a flourishing condition.

Mr. Jacob Slater is having a very fine monument erected in our cemetery, which will add much to its already beautiful appearance.

Married at the Congregational parsonage, on Sunday the 18th inst., by Rev. James Vincent, Willis W. G. Smith and Bertha M. Spaulding, both of Tecumseh; and thus it ever is, most people from the "rural towns" prefer to come to the metropolis to have such important services performed.

Uncle Ira Hardy came to the corners yesterday for the first time since last christmas, both he and his wife having been in very poor health during that time, and the latter is still quite feeble, but slowly improving.

Mrs. Pitcher has completed the repairs on her house, which adds much to its interior convenience.

Our band have decided to hold a picnic at Devil's lake one week from next Saturday, which will doubtless prove a pleasant affair, and by the way we understand that some of our enterprising citizens threaten to assist them in procuring uniforms, which we hope will be carried into effect, as it would serve them right. For we believe people in general do not realize how much of a tax it is upon the members of such an organization both in time and money in order to make it what it certainly is, a credit to themselves and the community, and we think should be encouraged.

Mr. Decker has decided not to open his hotel here till about the 1st of October when his lease of the Sand Lake Hotel will expire.

RIDGEWAY.

Two runaways with slight damages this week.

Richard and Mrs. Wall Cadmus are off for Petoskey.

John Exelby and family are expected home from Nebraska soon. More grasshoppers.

Wheat is turning out 25 to 30 bushels and upwards so far as heard from.

Cornelius Dibble and Hattie F. Palmer were married on the 18th at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Thos. Lupton.

Threshing has begun in earnest; although horsepowers have given place to steam, and the number increased, yet they seem to be driven. Elmer Ellis passed through the village Tuesday with a new outfit for the business.

We have kept still while other sections have been telling big yarns about the weather. Now hark! we had it just as hot as any of you during the heated term, and since the cold we had. Snow every day till the 14th, when the last went off.

Palm. Hamilton has taken up railroading. He is fireing on a freight between Elkhart and Chicago, with home at Elkhart, where he has moved his family this week. Priest will occupy his house on South street.

Miss Hoyt, of Walled Lake, is visiting Miss Vie Loree.

Henry C. Wilson and wife, of Hillsdale are here for a few days.

Burt Palmer and wife arrived Tuesday from the East.

Miss Thornton, of Perrysburg, Ohio, is visiting her sister Mrs. Frank Pocklington.

The Republican electors of this township will meet in caucus at 7 P. M. on Friday the 30th, at G. P. Waring's warerooms.

Carlisle Sliarp is erecting a telephone line from the Post Office to his residence on Tecumseh street. This will be the longest line in town.

Revs. A. B. Wood and E. W. Frazee exchanged pulpits last Sunday.

The report that the Butler project had fallen through caused considerable excitement for a day or two. Everything is settled now and the road booming.

Dr. Loree exhibits a corn stalk 11 ft. 4 in. in length from his prairie farm. Said corn was planted May 21. In 60 days more it will be 22 feet 8 inches. How high is it at?

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Reunion will be held here August 21st.

CLINTON.

A Turk at the Baptist Church next Wednesday evening, July 28th, will appear in six different national costumes, and will exhibit various Oriental curiosities in a lecture on Life in Turkey. Strange and amusing customs of the Turks, the Howling Dervishes, the Greeks, Koords, Arabs and Armenians will be represented. A delightful and instructive entertainment may be anticipated. Myerdich Attarian, the turk who lectures, is at present a student at Madison University, State of New York, and comes highly recommended. Admission 20 cents for adults, children under 12 years half price.

A KINDERGARTEN INSTITUTE.

Miss M. H. Ross, Principal of the Kindergarten Normal School of Columbus, Ohio, will hold a Kindergarten Institute in Toledo, commencing July 26th and lasting two weeks.

The real object of these Institutes is to give teachers of all grades an insight into the character and claims of the Kindergarten. It is to convince educators that the principles underlaying, and vitalizing Froebels' mathematical and philosophical system of education, not only to apply in a particular sense to infant amusement and instruction, but have a broad and universal significance, furnishing food for minds that have left the kindergarten far behind. The governing principals can be applied to, and be utilized in all subsequent educational methods; hence teachers of all grades, High School, State Normal, and University Instructors, are invited to attend.

The exercises will consist of daily lectures, as well as daily practice in the use of the Kindergarten Gifts and Occupations. In presenting these, the logical law of sequence, which determines their significance, will be strictly adhered to. Each analysis will end in a synthesis. Lessons and lectures will alternate. Through the former, principles embodied in philosophy and natural science—especially geometry, the science of the universe, will be familiarized to the mind by varied application, and concrete illustration. The notes of the lectures will be used as topics and guides for minute research, and exact criticism in written essays by members of the institute. A portion of each day will be set apart for reading these essays—for discussion and close scrutiny of the principles therein contained, fundamental to physical, ethical, and theological science. Tuition for two weeks $10.

ATTENTION, TEMPERANCE MEN.

There will be a County Convention of Temperance men at Dean's Opera House, Adrian on July 30, 1 P. M., in the interest of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State. Measures will be taken to thoroughly organize every township in the county for immediate work. Capt. J. C. Bontecou, and Rev. D. R. Shier of Saline will be present, and address the convention.

The following is the proposed amendment:

ART. IV, SEC. 49.—"The manufacture or sale of spiritous, malt and vinous liquors is prohibited in the state, except for medicinal, sacrimental and art purposes; and there shall exist no property right in such spiritous, malt, or vinous liquors, except such right to manufacture or still for medicinal, sacramental or art purposes, and no other as may be directly confined by law.

SEC. 50.—Every person who shall manufacture, sell, expose for sale, or may have in possession for purposes of sale, any spiritous, malt, or vinous liquors except for medicinal sacramental or art purposes, under authority of law as limited by section 49, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and imprisonment not less than thirty days, nor more than six months for each offense."

The liquor men are organizing all over the state to secure a legislature that will remove restrictions from their business. They are holding their conventions and secret gatherings, and openly declare their purpose to expend $100,000 to make sure their triumph.

In nearly every portion of the state the temperance men are coming grandly to the front. Lenawee County is thus far behind. The liquor interest admit that the temperance sentiment now is strong enough to carry the amendment. If defeated, then we are to blame and must bear the curse. By united organized effort we can win the battle. Come to the convention! we need you, and indifference at this time is positive disloyalty. By order of State Central Committee. Tecumseh, July 19, 1880.

C. E. CONLEY,
A. J. BIGELOW.
C. S. KIMBALL.

A WATERY GRAVE.

Fanny Stocum and Etta Converse Drowned.

The Morenci correspondent of the Adrian Times writes:

The most heart-rending calamity occured here on Thursday afternoon, whereby we have lost two of our brightest and best little girls, Fanny Stocum, youngest daughter of Dr. and Mercy Stocum, and Etta, adopted daughter of Oliver and Lucy Converse who were drowned while bathing in the creek just north of the railroad bridge.

A COMPANY OF GIRLS

had gone there to have a little picnic, and in wading in stepped into an unknown deep of 10 feet of water. Alarm was immediately given and some boys who were further up the creek hearing it, came down, but all too late. Charley Smalley dove and seized Etta and brought her to the surface and to the bank. Handing her over to some one, he went down again and brought up Fanny.

Dr. Stephenson's daughter rescued herself by securing a hold on a branch or twig, or she too would have found a watery grave.

Sympathizing friends accompanied the anxious parents to the scene, and every possible effort was made to secure resusciation, but of no avail.

They were also unconscious of the danger, as the girls had gone to another friend's house to stay an hour, and unknown to their parents had accepted the invitation which led them over that other River which all must cross.

They were the pride and the joy of many fond hearts, which are well nigh broken. Funeral services at the M.E. church on Saturday afternoon, probably at the time known as children's hour, when one week before, Fanny passed the examination in the normal class of Bible study, conducted by her mother.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, July 19, 1880.

At this regular session the Council convened at the usual hour.

On motion, Charles Burridge was chosen Recorder, pro tem.

Present the entire Council except Messrs. McKinnon and Mills.

The minutes of proceedings of the last two preceeding meetings were read and approved.

On motion, the Marshal was instructed to construct a plank sidewalk along the west side of E. R. Nichols' residence, in accordance with resolution of this council passed at its session held May 17, 1880.

On further motion, the Marshal was instructed to make examination and report to this council at its next regular session, all the lots or parcels of land in this village, and also the owners or occupants of such lot or parcel of land upon which or in front of which he shall find trees or shrubs or other like plants, the branches or limbs of which overhang within eight feet of the surface of the sidewalk adjoining or cross walk leading to such lot or parcel of land.

A communication from W. E. Gray informing the council that the year for which he had engaged his services to this council would expire with the present month, and that he offers his services to the council for the ensuing year.

Whereupon, on motion, the Recorder pro tem was instructed to negotiate for the services of Mr. Gray for one year ensuing July 31, 1880, at a salary of $400 for the year, upon the same conditions of services as contract of last year.

The following bills against the corporation were presented and referred to Finance Committee:

W. C. Fitzsimmons	$ 8 00	13 special police, at John Whitenack.... 21 62, $1.30 each	$19 50
A. B. Cotton	1 03	Samuel Smith	3 00
W. C. Fitzsimmons	5 00	James Moir	3 75
W. B. Hoag	4 50	S. C. Stacy	18 00
W. C. Fitzsimmons	5 00	C. A. Wright	3 75
Jerry Root	1 15	J. McConnell	35 09

On motion, an appropriation of $200 was made to aid in support of the night watch for the year recently entered upon by such night watch, to be paid in like manner as heretofore by this council.

The Committee on Finance made a report in writing recommending that the claim of Sutton & Swan for $31.22 and George Heesen for $2. and W. C. Jordan for $60, be allowed as presented and paid.

Whereupon, on motion, the report of the committee was accepted and adopted and orders directed to be drawn for the several amounts.

On further motion, the council adjourned.

CHARLES BURRIDGE,
Recorder, pro tem.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, July 21, 1880.

At this special session the council convened to take into consideration the advisability of offering a reward for the apprehension and conviction of one Charles Simmons, who, it is alleged, attempted to commit the crime of murder in this village on the evening of the 20th inst.

Whereupon, after some discussion, it was resolved that the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh do offer a reward of one hundred dollars for the apprehension and conviction of the said Charles Simmons of the offense alleged.

CHARLES BURRIDGE,
Recorder, pro tem.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Miss Delia Hutchings, of Clayton, is teaching the grammar department at Leslie, this State.

John C. Sharp, supervisor of the census enumerators for this district, is examining the returns of the census enumerators. It is said that about three-fifths of the rolls will be returned for correction.

Hudson Post: Robert and William Rhead, of Plymouth, Mich., have purchased the Comstock House, Hudson, and are now in possession. They exchanged a valuable farm in Plymouth for the property. Mr. Brokaw has gone on to the farm.

Hudson Gazette: The old Cemetery has been nicely fenced and the unsightly bushes and shrubbery, which had overgrown the graves, all cleared away. If the long, long sleepers over there could speak we know they would thank the city fathers.

Blissfield Advance: While Andrew Fisher and Ed. Bliven were driving along the road near the residence of J. F. Bliven, last Friday, the horse suddenly shied, throwing out both the occupants, Andy receiving a very badly wrenched foot. The horse became unmanageable and tore the harness to pieces, the boys having the fun of leading him home. The vehicle was afterwards brought home.

Blissfield Advance: An incipient fire was discovered about 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning, in the building on the corner of West Adrian and Monroe streets, and occupied as a millinery shop by Mrs. Clint Willet. A large hole was burned in the floor, and some millinery goods destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated by spontaneous combustion, and had probably smouldered there some time. Some $500 worth of millinery goods were either destroyed by the fire or ruined by smoke. They were insured for $300.

Morenci Observer:—Gone at last.—The young man, Horton Miller, who has been confined to his room for nearly two years by what was supposed to be rheumatism, was finally relieved by death on Saturday evening last of his long, weary sufferings. In the post-mortem examination, as held by Drs. Armstrong and Wyman, some 61 gall stones were found in the system, which with his other difficulties, produced a complication resulting in the most acute suffering and pain, protracted through many long and weary months. His funeral occurred on Monday, and the remains were interred at Fayette. The deceased was 26 years of age, and leaves a wife and a large circle of friends to mourn his sad and untimely fate.

Adrian Press: We expect to commence, about Aug. 1, the publication of a daily paper, to be continued as long as it is supported. We desire to have 400 subscribers before we begin. The daily will be half the size of the weekly, and will be delivered by carriers for 15 cents per week, and furnished by mail at 50 cents per month, in advance. We would like to have our friends, who desire a daily, leave their orders. Hudson people may leave orders with H. C. Hall; Tecumseh folks with W. R. Wooden, and Blissfielders with W. D. McCann.—Should the subscription warrant it Aug. 1, we shall begin the publication. Please give us your names, friends.

Adrian Press: Immediately upon its being known that Mr. Ash had died rather suddenly, though it was explained that a physician was present and pronounced it heart disease, that chronic old corpse-viewer Ludlow, coroner of the county, seeing a chance to run up a bill against the county, proceeded to empannel a jury and hold an inquest. This man Ludlow is getting to be an intolerable affliction. A man can't die in peace if away from home, without he pounces down upon the corpse like a crow upon a corn hill, and commences to hold an inquest. The jury was indignant and found a verdict that the man died of heart disease as was apparent to every man with the sense of a gnat.—They also expressed the opinion that the corpse knew more than the coroner. We hope this unmitigated fraud upon dead men's rights and live men's pocketbooks, will be promptly squelched by the board of supervisors, and to that body we earnestly protest against paying a dollar to this over zealous official for his services. He has made himself obnoxious to all decent people and why it is that death comes into our midst and takes from us old respected citizens and misses this man, is one of the many things laid to the inscrutability of Divine Providence.

DRIED APPLE PIES.

Death, author, detect, despise,
Abominate, dread apple pies!
I like good bread, I like good meat
Or anything that's fit to eat;
But of all your grub beneath the skies,
The poorest is dried apple pies.
Give me the toothache or sore eyes,
In preference to dried apple pies.

The farmer takes his poorest fruit,
Wormy, bitter, and hard, to boot—
They leave the hulls to make us cough,
And don't take half the peeling off;
Then on a dirty string they string
And from a chamber window hang
To form a giant for flies and flies
Until it's ready to make pies.
Tread on my corns, or tell me lies,
But pass me not your apple pies!

FATHER OR SON?

BY VICTORIA F. BENTON.

"Who is that deacon?"

Mrs. La Rose, seated in the Jersey "carryall," that belonged to "The Deacon Harland Place," looked across the fertile fields of her old friend's farm, and fixed her eyes with a certain interest on the tall, well-developed young man who was coming down the lane, leading a handsome colt by the forelock, while the colt rubbed his velvety nose affectionately against his master's shoulder, and licked his hand.

"That is my son Joe, Mrs. La Rose—my only child," replied the farmer.

"How much he is like you, as you were in your 18th year, when I came from teaching school to visit your sister Hetty, at the old place in New Hampshire!" said the fashionable widow, and ending the sentence with a sigh.

The deacon looked uneasily at her, and then at her lovely 18-year-old daughter, who sat on the front seat, beside his hired man, who was driving the party home from the railway station at Ellintown.

In his 18th year, a poor farmer's son, he had been this woman's lover.

Now, in his 55th year, the wealthy proprietor of a most valuable and extensive fruit farm in New Jersey, he was troth-plighted to his old love's beautiful daughter, and she was coming, with her mother, to pay her first visit to her future home.

The worthy man was not deceived. He knew that this lovely child did not love him. He fully understood that she was about to wed him at the entreaty of her mother, and in the hope of securing for that mother the wealth, the freedom from all pecuniary care, and the luxurious life and home, which she had never yet enjoyed.

All these things he meant to secure to her. In return, he hoped and believed that she would learn in time to love him. Gratitude would surely teach her that lesson, since (as her mother declared) she loved no one else.

But it would be fatal to his hopes to let her gain the least knowledge of the early love that had existed between her mother and himself.

And he blessed his lucky stars, when his matched chestnuts, scenting their stable, and seeing Joe's bay colt prancing beside his master in the lane, broke into a run that tested the strength and skill of Mike, the driver, and frightened the widow entirely out of all her reminiscences by the time they condescended to pause before the verandah steps.

Joe Harland viewed the arrival with profound disapproval, from afar.

He had loved his mother tenderly. He resented what he considered a slight to her memory. He was wrong there, however. The deacon had been a widower for more than five years, and all the widows and old maids in Ellintown had long since given up in despair trying to keep house for, and to sympathise with him.

A maiden sister of the deacon's had managed the affairs of the household since the wife's death. She, as well as Joseph, had been greatly surprised when the farmer announced the speedy coming of the lady guests from New York. And she, as well as Joseph, had supposed the elegant widow to be the bride-elect.

In the old days on the home-farm in New Hampshire, this sister had been the Hetty whom Julia Carlyon had visited. And, knowing so much of the early love affair, she naturally supposed that it was now about to be renewed.

Mistress Hetty welcomed the mother and the daughter very cordially to the Harland's, deeming it well that she should keep on the best of terms with its future mistress.

Joseph did not appear until the late tea—which was ordered in compliment to the travelers—was on the table. Then he came forward at his father's request, was introduced to the guests, made two sulky bows, and studied his future step-mother's face during the whole meal, from under a pair of heavy black eyebrows, with a pair of deep blue eyes. He scarcely looked at little Esther, who sat beside him.

But she stole many a shy sidelong glance at him—wondering why he looked so stern—wondering why he was so silent—wondering if his father really had been so handsome at 18 years of age. Trying to imagine the gray-headed deacon a tall, erect figure with dark blue eyes and jet-black hair, and a frank, handsome face, with sunburned, crimson cheeks, and a sore head white as snow—trying, but failing miserably! And, then wondering again whether the deacon, at 18, had not been more agreeable as a lover than he was now at 55.

"If only—" thought little Esther, glancing once more, musingly, at the young man and the old.

And then she blushed hotly all over her beautiful face. For the young man had turned toward her to offer her a slice of golden honeycomb, and his dark-blue eyes seemed to read the thought of which she was but half-conscious herself, until he looked at her.

"Why did she blush like that?" was Joe's first thought. And his second was, "What a lovely little creature she is! I must try and make this place endurable to her, while our elders are making geese of themselves by fancying that, at their age, they can fall in love!"

From that very evening, the funniest kind of a "Comedy of Errors" began in the Harland house.

The deacon was forever finding Joe in his way when he wished to say sweet things to his prospective bride.

Sister Hetty wondered why her brother took such pains—unheard-of-pains—to please his future daughter-in-law, when her approval was of no consequence whatever.

"I wonder Julia stands it! I would n't, if I was in her place," she continually murmured to herself, as she noted the daily increasing attentions that the poor man tried his best to pay.

While the widow looked on in sore dismay, and finally (being urged thereto by the deacon) gave her daughter so severe "a-talking to" about what she termed her 'disgraceful coquettry' that Esther's heart was nearly broken.

Joe saw her that very evening, as he was coming home from the village with his colt and buck-board.

Her mother's lecture was not yet an hour old; and Esther was crying, down under the maple tree in the lane, so that she did not see Joe, till he had fastened the colt to the next tree, and was kneeling down beside her, asking in the kindest of voices what had gone wrong.

Esther gave a little scream and sprang to her feet when she saw him there, and so very near.

"Oh, go away, please, and never let me see you again!" she sobbed. "Mamma says that I have been so very wrong and immodest, too—oh, dear, oh, dear!—because I have talked so much to you. Oh, won't you go and live somewhere else, please, where I never shall see you? I'm sure I never can marry your father, Joe, if you stay here."

"What?" shouted Joe so loudly that the bay colt gave a tremendous jump, and nearly broke his halter.

In five minutes he had coaxed the whole story from the weeping, trembling girl.

"Well, of all the— However, I won't swear about my own father!" he exclaimed. "Now, Esther, this mustn't go on another hour, you know. It is abominable nonsense!"

"Isn't it, Joe," she sighed. "Only think of my being your mother-in-law."

"You can be something better than that, darling, if you will be guided by me," said Joe, as his arm stole around her waist, and his bearded cheek rested against her smooth one.

They talked long and earnestly in that shaded lane, while the young moon rose, and the bay colt listened, with his head over Joe's shoulder, and looked remarkably wise.

Finally, the colt and the buck-board were turned toward Ellintown once more, and the eight-day clock in the deacon's hall was on the stroke of 9 when they returned.

In the lane they met the deacon, driving the widow in his one-horse chaise, drawn by the sorrel mare.

They had missed Esther and Joe at last, and were just setting out to search for them.

"Esther, leave that disgraceful carriage at once, and come home with us!" cried the widow, as she caught sight of the buck-board and its double freight. "How dare you? As for you, Mr. Joe—"

"As for me, Mrs. La Rose, Esther is my wife, and you must not speak to her unless you speak kindly," said Joe. "We were married by Parson Willis, at his house, at 8:30 this evening."

Joe drove on toward home without another word.

The widow gasped for breath; the deacon turned pale, then grew red with anger.

"Oh, hush!" cried the widow, as "unparliamentary" words poured by the dozen from his lips. "Perhaps he was only joking. You might go to Parson Willis and see."

"Joe never jokes. He has taken the girl from me, and I shall be the laughing-stock of the country," stuttered the deacon, who was quite wild with rage—" "unless—"

He paused, and looked keenly at his companion.

She was a handsome woman still. She looked up, then down, and met the earnestness of his gaze.

The days of old seemed suddenly to come back to the old deacon. He was a farm lad of 18, on the old homestead once more, and Julia Carlyon was all the world to him.

"I've been an old fool, Julia!" he exclaimed. "What did I want of your daughter? Let Joe take her! I am glad of it; and there's room for them both in the old house. But you, Julia—I do want you. What do you say? Shall we go and see Parson Willis on our own account, being as we are already on the way?"

There was a little pause. Then—the sorrel mare trotted on, and Parson Willis pocketed another marriage fee that night.

The good man wondered, as did his wife, and in due time the neighbors, why the happy couples chose to come and to be married separately. When they read this true story they will know why.

A ROUGH TRANSLATION.

A young lady moving in the most exalted social circles of Galveston, after much toil and practice at the piano learned to play with considerable dexterity a piece entitled "Picnic Polka." It is something after the style of the celebrated "Battle of Prague," in which the listener can readily distinguish the roar of artillery, the rattle of musketry, the shouts of the soldiers and the groans of the dying. In the "Picnic Polka" the noise of the wind among the trees and the joyous carols of the birds are reproduced, the finale being a thunder shower which disturbs the sylvan revellers. It happens that a country cousin is in town just now, and the young lady thought she would play the piece to him and hear his comment. He is a plain, simple-minded youth, and although not very bright, is very appreciative. She told him what the piece was and proceeded to give him the "Picnic Polka." The first notes are rather slow and hesitating, the idea sought to be conveyed being the solemn solitude of the forest, through which the gentle zephyr (not heifer) sighs. After she got through with this preface, she asked him if he did not almost imagine himself in a lodge in some vast wilderness. He replied that he thought all that slowness meant the delay in getting off. Said he, "There is always some darned cuss who oversleeps himself and keeps everybody else waiting."

She did not care to discuss the point with the ignorant fellow, so, to conceal her emotions, she once more let herself out on the piano. The words were filled with music. The mocking bird whistled as if his throat would split, the cuckoo filled the sylvan bowers with his repeated cry, while ever and anon the mournful cooing of the dove interrupted the matin song of the lark.

"There, now, I guess you know what that sounds like," she said, as she paused.

"You meant that 'tootle, tootle, tootle, chug, chug, chug?' You just bet I understand that. Many is the time at a picnic I've heard it from the mouth of a demijohn of the bunghole of a beer keg."

Her first impulse was to hurl the piano stool at him, but it passed off, and once more she went at the piano as if it was the young man's head and was insured for double its value. The thunder growled, the lightning flashed (from her eyes), and the first heavy drops are heard upon the leaves. She banged and mauled the keys at a fearful rate; peal after peal of deafening thunder purturbed the atmosphere and reechoed in still louder reverberations until it wound up in one appalling clap as a grand finale. Then, turning to the awe-struck youth, she said—

"I suppose you have heard something like that before?"

"Yes, that's what the fellow with linen pants said when he sat down on the custard pie."

The audience found himself alone, but he picked up his hat and sauntered out into the street, densely unconscious that he had said anything out of the way.—Galveston News.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

The Mule Puzzle.—Draw a circle fifteen feet in diameter, place a mule in the centre and walk around him without getting out of the circle.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

BRINGING THEM TO TIME

There is no foolishness about some of the fathers of Dubuque county, Ia., who have marriageable daughters, and they know how to precipitate business when the fruit is ripe for plucking, and hangs wasting its sweetness, when it should be plucked. Matters were brought to a climax with a rush at a certain farmer's residence in Vernon township, recently. A young tiller of the soil had for months been paying most assiduous attentions to one of his daughters, but he was such a bashful, modest chap, never having been much in the company of girls, except this one, that he had never been able to raise his courage sufficiently high to pop the question.

He had gone to the house in which the lady lived at least on twenty different occasions resolved to know his fate, but when ushered into the presence of the fair one, in whose keeping he had placed his heart, his courage would invariably "go back on him," and he would return to his lonely room in greater suspense than before. Upon the evening in question he had determined that, come what would, he would tell his Mary that he loved her. He would, once for all, decide the matter, but, as upon each former occasion, he could not get the proposal further than his throat. There it stuck, and he determined to gulp it down and give up the seige, when the door opened and in walked the girl's father, who advanced to where they were sitting and thus addressed them:

"I came out to put a stop to this foolishness. It ain't courtin' expenses that I'm looking at, for coal oil is cheap, and wood can be had for the haulin', but I'm sick and tired of this billin' and cooin' like a pair of sick doves, keepin' me awake of nights, and it's got to be stopped right here.—Do you love John Henry well enough to marry him?"

"Why father, I—I—you must"

"Stop that silly foolishin'," yelled the old man. "Answer yes or no, and quick, too. It's got to be settled now or never."

"Well—but, father, don't you know—if you'll only wait, and—"

"Dry up; answer yes or no. Speak!" roared the old gent.

"Well, then, yes! There, now," and Mary again hid her face.

"That's business; that's the way to talk. Now, John, look here—look up here, or I'll shake you all to pieces.—Do you want that gal o' mine for a wife. Speak out like a man now."

"Why, Mr.——, ain't this rather a—I mean can't you—"

"Speak it out, or out of this house you'll go, head foremost. I won't wait a minute longer. There's the gal, and there ain't a likelier gal in the State, an' you just heard her say that she wanted you. Now, John, I won't stand a bit of foolin'. Once for all, yes or no?"

"Well, yes, sir. I have been presumptuous enough to hope that I—"

"Oh, stop your soft talk; the thing's settled now. You two fools would have been six months more at the job that I have done in five minutes. I never saw such foolin' as there is among people nowadays. Ain't like when I was young—an' now, good-night. You can talk the thing over, an' you an' me, John, 'll go up to town and get the license to-morrow.—Soon be time to get to plowin'; no time for love-makin' then. Good-night, good-night; I hope I wasn't too rough, but I was determined to fix the thing one way or t'other," and the old man went back to bed.

Now that the ice was broken the young people laid all their plans for the future, and John felt just a little bad at the comfort he had lost, when Mary looked up to him so shyly, and said:

"This would have been all right months ago, John, if you hadn't been so skeery. I knowed all the time that you wanted to ask me, but it was not my place to say anything you know."

Cause of female weakness, delicate and enfeebled constitutions, and those suffering with Stomach, Liver and Kidney complaints, will find Electric Bitters a speedy and certain cure.—The sick and prostrated should rejoice that such a reliable remedy is placed within their reach. Health and happiness will surely follow where Electric Bitters are used. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., price only fifty cents.

It can scarcely be possible that the handsome stockings now worn by ladies are intended for show only when being hung upon the clothes line.

High Priced Butter.—Mr. A. W. Cheever, Editor New England Farmer, owns a fine dairy and gets a high price for fine butter. In an editorial, Nov. 2d, he said: "The Perfected Butter Color made by Wells, Richardson & Co., we have used for several years, and have found nothing equalling it, although we have tested about everything of the kind made in this or the old country. It should entirely supersede carrots, and all preparations of Annatto." Sold by Druggists.

In time—four letters.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores,

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!

READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!

Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.

Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.

Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnish-Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the

Old. Reliable, ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,

71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh, · · Michigan.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Usborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel,) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs. Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

9 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FARM FOR SALE—situated in Macon, east of Ridgeway. Good farm of 40 acres, improved and well fenced, mile north and 3 miles small young orchard, with buildings, 30 acres timber, house and one-half mile ten acres good timber, cheap. For particulars enquire of Samuel in 80 rods of a school house, or at the HERALD OFFICE. Macon church. For sale

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Played out—Croquet.

A cheap country seat—A stump.

Rapid transit—The career of a mad dog.

Rise up, deferred maketh the potatoes small.

A figure of speech—Naught set down in malice.

One half the world doesn't know the other half lies.

It is a mean temperature that don't send a fresh breeze.

A singing fish has been discovered. It has chromatic scales.

The Electoral College is the only one that doesn't confer degrees.

The first use of a locomotive in this country was in 1829.

The first almanac was printed by George Van Purback, in 1640.

Sheridan Shook and wife have separated. She shook him as it were.

Paris editors lead a duel life, one in the sanctum and the other in the suburbs.

A cruel husband calls his wife "green fruit" because she never agrees with him.

When one is digging clams, is he fishing or is he engaged in agricultural pursuits?

Denny Kearney has left the workingmen's party; that is to say, he is out of the workhouse.

Colored revivalists sing, "I am going home to Dinah Moore." That is their idea of heaven.

An Iowa county official walked five miles to have some one explain to him what the "5th prox," meant.

A ship tips over when she don't have ballast enough, and a man when he has too much.

The Rochester Herald says that swimming tights and intoxicated bathers are not one and the same thing.

Bald-headed men may be interested in knowing that the common house-fly when alarmed flies nearly 35 feet in a second of time.

The book "Success with Small Fruits," will not tell about the success of the boy who eluded the dog in the strawberry patch.

Farmers do not hear corns talk.—Neither do men who wear tight boots. But there are some things which speak louder than words.

Young men persist in hugging delusions, and that's the reason, probably that so many ladies wear those delusion shawls.

The cashier of an eastern bank ran away with all the funds and the directors placarded the door, "No cashier."

It is good for the fame of Ajax that he passed away before New Jersey was discovered. He never could have defied her lightning.

A Syracuse grocer used to smoke his pipe while leaning against his kerosene barrel. His mail now goes to the Dead Letter office.

When you talk to women you must choose between lying and displeasing them. There is no middle course unless you say nothing.

A recent London book is entitled:—"The Three M's—Mind, Manners and Morals, or How to Make Home Pleasant." And another M—Mend them.

A little girl in church, after the contribution plate had been passed, complacently and audibly said: "I paid for four, mamma, was that right.

The New Haven Register speaks of a woman who enjoyed good health.—Once in a while you find a person who enjoys bad health, but hardly ever.

The ghost of Oakes Ames is a bigger man than Mulligan. It walks up and down the earth in broad daylight and carries a memorandum book.

Some of the schools have a rule punishing a boy who is tardy without an excuse. A boy who couldn't give an excuse for being tardy ought to be punished.

A reporter of the St. Joseph Herald asked a local clergyman what he was going to preach about on the coming Sunday, and the reply was, "About ten minutes."

When the ice man finds the lump too heavy he chips off the odd weight and lets the pieces melt in the street. It has never been discovered how he manages when the lump is too light.

Now can doctors decide whether the difference of the two degrees between the normal temperatures of men and women enables women to look cool at each other's dresses in the hottest weather?

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

They say that insects can't reason, but a spider at the West End has stretched his web right over the portrait of a bald headed man. And he doesn't go hungry, you just wager.

Let Up—Take a Rest!

If you want to start on a very cheap and enjoyable tour in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and no "extras," write to

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Agt.
Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

The New Orleans Picayune wants every rule to work both ways. It says: "There is no instance known of a man sentenced to imprisonment for life having his sentence commuted to hanging."

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

"Always get up from the table hungry if you wish to avoid dyspepsia," is a bit of advice that boarding-house keepers should not neglect to paste up in their dining-room.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

If you grasp a rattlesnake firmly about the neck, he cannot strike you, says a Western paper. "To be perfectly safe," remarks the Elmira Free Press, "it will be well to let the hired man do the grasping."

ALL who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard Lake.

His name is not "May-I-shoot-a-long-horned-cow"—that is, if the King of Siam's name is referred to. He writes it this way: "Mahan Chuta-long-korn Klow."

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

Blossoms produce apples, apples give us cider, and cider produces blossoms. Thus one of natures most beautiful compensations.

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

At a recent school teachers' examination in Vermont the word 'imposter' was defined: "One who drives in posts."

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread, when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer. More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. J. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

The Only Remedy

THAT ACTS AT THE SAME TIME ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

This combined action gives it wonderful power to cure all diseases.

Why Are We Sick?

Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT WILL CURE

BILIOUSNESS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, KIDNEY COMPLAINTS, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS, by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.

Why Suffer Bilious pains and aches?
Why tormented with Piles, Constipation?
Why frightened over disordered Kidneys?
Why colors nervous or sick headaches?
Why have sleepless nights?

Use KIDNEY WORT and rejoice in health. It is a dry vegetable compound and One package will make six qts of Medicine. Get it of your Druggist, he will order it for you. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, (Will send post paid.) Burlington, Vt.

2

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best

KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., 161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

I AM THE EXCLUSIVE AGENT FOR THE

Hammock RECLINING CHAIR!

ALL KINDS OF FURNITURE VERY CHEAP

CALL AND EXAMINE.

A. W. SLAYTON, Furniture Dealer, Tecumseh.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO. Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

UNEQUALED AS TO Quality of Material, Workmanship of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and successfully handling all the long straw Fodder in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 3 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

38 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

MILK SAFES!

I have a few Milk Safes on hand which I will sell at Cost for the Next Thirty Days. Also,

Bedsteads, Bureaus & Stands

of all kinds. Kitchen Tables, leaf and extension.

Best Kiln Dried Extension Tables At Panic Prices.

Give me a call. Shop at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD CALDWELL.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Silver Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry, Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Evening.

BY S. C. STACY

Office in the New HERALD BUILDING, one door East of Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

Single Copy in advance $1.50
Six Months 75
Four Months 50
Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.
Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.
Marriages, Births, and Death Notices free.
Issues on General Advertising, on firm contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents' names are invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 22, 1880.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION—SECOND DISTRICT.

The Democratic Congressional Convention for the Second Congressional District—composed of the counties of Hillsdale, Lenawee, Washtenaw and Monroe, will be held at Manchester, on Tuesday, August 24th, 1880, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Representative in Congress, and the transaction of such other business as may be deemed necessary by the convention. Each county will be entitled to six delegates for each representative in the lower branch of the State Legislature.

W. H. TALLMAN, Hillsdale.
S. C. STACY, Lenawee.
W. D. HARRIMAN, Washtenaw.
H. SHAW NOBLE, Monroe,
Congressional Committee.

July 19, 1880

A RAILROAD WAR.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Fighting the Butler Road.

The Monday's issue of the Adrian Times contains the following information in regard to the litigation begun against the new Butler road:

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad company are beginning to show their teeth in relation to the Detroit and Butler road. The first named company has had too good a thing in the monopoly of the carrying trade of this city to sit tamely by and allow a rival to step in unchallenged.

Injunctions have been got out to restrain the Detroit & Butler company from crossing the land or line of the L. S. & M. S. company. Henry Bowen, one of the contractors, was first served with this injunction. Sheriff Cairns went to Detroit this morning to serve similar papers on the officers of the road, and service will probably be had on the Messrs. Casement before this reaches the eyes of our readers. What the object can be except to annoy a rival company, and delay and obstruct the building of the road, it is difficult to say. Technically, the Butler road crosses what the Lake Shore company will probably claim to be their depot grounds. But we don't think the courts will sustain this claim of the company. The side tracks at the crossing of the Butler road were put in some years since, when Adrian was talking railroad. They have, we are informed, never been used until the Butler road seemed likely to be built, and since then, a number of cars have occupied the track, one standing directly across the line of the new road.

That the Lake Shore company intends to obstruct and harass the Detroit and Butler people is shown by the following, which we clip from the Detroit Evening News, of Saturday. The Lake Shore company is the owner of the Chicago and Canada Southern road, and were anxious to sell the line to the Wabash company.

The line of the Butler road runs through a portion of Williams county, Ohio, and part of the route, for three miles is on the old line of the Chicago & Canada Southern. These three miles, which are partly graded, were obtained by the C. & C. S. on condition that the line would be built within a certain period of time, said to be five years. The Butler road obtained these three miles of partly graded line from the property owners, who considered that their contracts with the C. & C. S. had lapsed for nonfulfillment of the conditions. Nevertheless, the officers of the road yesterday obtained a temporary injunction against the Butler road, on the ground that they still had some rights in the property. The real motive of the attack is hard to realize at the present time. It may be that the Chicago & Canada Southern people believe that the Butler road will damage their interests, and take this method to delay and embarrass the work of its rival.

The Popular Science Monthly for August.

The August "Popular Science Monthly" begins with an article by Mr. Henry George, of San Francisco, on "The Kearney Agitation in California." Mr. George is author of a work of much power that has lately attracted a great deal of attention, called "Progress and Poverty." He is a keen analyzer of social conditions, and has long given close attention to California affairs. His estimate of Kearney and his history of the movements connected with him are full of new considerations.

It speaks well for American enterprise to notice the fact that an American magazine is the first to attempt the illustration of the homes and haunts of the characters of Charles Dickens. In the Midsummer Scribner begins a short series on this subject, entitled "About England with Dickens." The illustrations are by Charles A. Vanderhoof, who was sent abroad for this purpose, and whose work the Scribner audience are familiar with.

THE railroad war at Adrian is waxing hotter. The Times of last evening has two columns devoted to the subject.

A TRIP ROUND THE LAKES.

PETOSKEY, July 20, 1880.

EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

According to my promise I give you a brief sketch of my trip around the Lakes, accompanied by my daughter Gertie. We took the boat at Toledo on Tuesday, via Detroit and Port Huron. We passed over Lake Huron on Thursday. When off Thunder Bay we encountered a very heavy storm of thunder, rain and hail. During the storm, about a dozen of us were singing "Hold the Fort," but the clatter of hail about the size of quail eggs, nearly drowded our voices. Mr. and Mrs. Giles Cleveland rather enjoyed it, but some of the passengers did not as they were withg reluctance compelled to part with a good dinner, taken in only an hour or two before. Quite a heavy sea continued until we landed at daylight in Mackinaw. Here we left the boat, which passed on to Chicago, to give the remaining passengers another shaking up on Lake Michigan the following day. After taking in Mackinaw Fort and all, we bid farewell to Prof. Thomas, (formerly of Tecumseh,) and doubled back to Cheboygan in the afternoon, where we called on our friend, Jacob Walton, who speaks well of the climate here and thinks he will spend his remaining days in Cheboygan. Saturday at 10 A. M., we started on the inland route for Petoskey, via Mullet Lake and two other lakes and their connecting rivers, through deep tangled wild wood, saw logs and tall grass, reaching the west bank of Crooked Lake in time to take the dummy with seats crosswise, passing the first mile over wooden rails, the balance of the six miles over rails of iron, rounding round lakes and passing over one or two trout brooks, we rolled up to the foot of a terraced sloping bank of Little Traverse bay, on which is nestled Lakeview camp ground, reaching the terminus of the road at sun set. We passed the Sabbath in visiting the old chief, Petoskey, who lives in a little white cottage among the pines, on an elevated spot overlooking the lake at the southwest. He is now 99 years old, but still can't speak English and perhaps never will. I gave him a cigar while Gertie played one or two airs on his grand daughter's parlor organ, then left him alone in his glory. Then descending the hill we took a stroll on the beach until the time came to go on the little dummy out to Bayview, to attend the three o'clock service on the camp grounds. To-day we will start on another inland tour via Boyne Falls, Elk Rapids and Glen Arbor, before going over the lake to Chicago.

E. HAUSE.

TANNER'S LONG FAST.

New York Herald, July 18.—Several days ago this day was set down by the wise ones as a day that would be a certain limit to the endurance of Tanner, the great chameleon; yet when the Herald went to press Tanner was not only in as good a condition as he was when the prophecies were made, but in a distinctly better condition. His revival under the use of water is so far the most curious phenomenon in his experiment; but it is not so incomprehensible as to force the conviction that his increase of weight implies the digestion of food. He had gone to the limit of endurance without either food or water, or on a minimum of water. But as the whole human fabric taken together is about eighty per cent water—as if all the water were dried out of us not more than twenty per cent would remain by weight—it follows that water is proportionally important, and that when a man is starved as to food and water he is more starved for water than for food. Consequently when Tanner began to take water he came up suddenly and gained weight and strength and elasticity, not merely as he would if he had taken meat, but more than he would if he had taken meat. Tanner's operations show that he fasts with a scientific perception of all the relations of his case, and this encourages the conviction that he may perhaps go through his allotted period.

Godey's Lady's Book for August

Comes to us full of fresh, breezy matter, a welcome guest upon a midsummer day. From Darley's exquisite picture to the eagerly sought chitchat on fashion it is full of interest, and the closest scrutiny will fail to find one dull page. The fashions are so numerous that every taste must meet with its own requirements, in preparing summer wardrobes for home or the resorts of travellers in the hot season. Seaside costumes and mountain dresses, the simplicity of country dress, or the elaborate toilet of the watering place belle, can all be modelled from the illustrations given in Godey, and the clear directions accompanying them. The literary matter is rich and varied, containing sparkling stories and exquisite poetry from the pens of such popular writers as Estelle Thomson, Christian Reid, James B. Marshall, S. Annie Shields, Caroline Meright, and others. In every department there is to be found matter valuable to the fair sex, for whom the magazine is especially intended, and we are sure our opinion will be indorsed by every reader of the beautiful number before us.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

Not the Time.

Chicago News.—This is hardly the time of year to rent a red hot purchase paper.

Will He Do It?

Fairfield Ledger.—Now is Hancock's opportunity. A letter of acceptance couched in half a dozen short, forcible sentences, such as Hancock knows how to utter, would rouse the country from the somnolence which Garfield's long document has produced, and make it raise its hat for the mad, if it west words, "Will he be equal to his opportunity?"

Educating Himself.

Chicago News, (Ind.)—The Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency is educating himself to succeed Mr. Wheeler, the present incumbent, and has gone into the woods on a fishing picnic. It is from such little things as this that we learn how great men not only amuse themselves, but in the calm seclusion of the forest solve in advance the knotty problems of State which they may, perchance, be called upon to consider in the future.

Gen. Garfield's Defense.

Philadelphia Record, (Ind.)—A pamphlet is for sale at the news stands written by General Garfield for circulation in his district in 1873, defending himself against the inculpations of Oakes Ames in the Credit Mobilier affair. It is probably the best and the only defense that General Garfield can or will make. It stands against the finding of the Committee of Investigation, who believed Mr. Ames and refused to believe General Garfield, both gentlemen having been first sworn to tell the truth.

A Waste of Time.

Pittsburg Chronicle, (Ind.)—It is a waste of time to assail the integrity of General Hancock. It need not and will not excite much wonder if it is proven that General Hancock was prevailed upon to permit his name to be used in a corporation which he was led to believe was "all right." The number of business men—bankers, merchants, manufacturers, publishers and professional men, (not excluding the clergy), in this State, who were accounted shrewd, who were duped in the days when the oil fever was at its height, are so numerous as to leave scarcely enough of the unbitten to make a decent jury to sit in judgment on General Hancock.

Hard to Understand.

Cleveland Plain-Dealer, (Dem.)—There are things about this political campaign that are hard to understand. We are solemnly informed by Republican organs that the South is full of unrepentent rebels, that negroes and white Republicans are in daily danger of their lives there; that there is violence, intimidation, disloyalty and a bad state of things generally. Now, it has only been a short time since General Grant, who is the most distinguished member of the Republican party, travelled in the South, and when he came back declared emphatically in several speeches that he found everything quiet and orderly there, as much toleration of opinion and as much loyalty and devotion to the Union as he had ever seen in the North.

A Pertinent Application.

Buffalo Courier, (Dem.)—"It is a shame to publish such things about Garfield," said a Republican the other day to a Democratic friend of ours, referring to some passages from the candidate's Congressional record. Whereupon the Democrat remarked that he was reminded of what a Supervisor from one of the south towns once said at a meeting of the board. The subject of discussion was the old jail.—Several members enlarged on the beastly accommodations of the old rookery—it was a shame to put prisoners in such a place. "Well," said the Supervisor, "perhaps it is a shame but if prisoners don't like that jail why don't they keep out of it?" The application is obvious. If our Republican friends dislike to have Garfield's record ventilated why did they nominate him, and why did he make such a record?

A Scrap of Convention History.

Quincy Herald, (Dem.)—Tom Ochiltree, of Texas, has pronounced for Hancock. "Cameron gave me a certain section of the South to look out for." Tom explains, "and every —— delegate in that region I brought up to Chicago for Grant. They were all for him when they got there and they remained true to him with the exception of one nigger from Alabama. He was bought up the third day after his arrival for $1,000. As soon as I heard of the transaction I went for that nigger and managed finally to get him back into the ranks, money and all. He stayed there until the call of that —— thirty-sixth ballot commenced.—Alabama was the first on the list and the nigger rose and voted for Garfield. I wanted Grant, but Hancock is a good second choice and I am going to take the stump for him. I shall travel all over the country, and everywhere I speak I propose to tell how the 'spontaneous' Garfield managers bought out my Grant nigger for $1,000." The Republican party will have to look out for Tom.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN TONIC BLOOD PURIFIER

DIFFERS from all other preparations in its IMMEDIATE ACTION upon the

Liver, Kidneys and Blood.

Composed of the choicest Herbs, Roots and Extracts. Cures Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Cancers, Cancerous Humors, Pimples on the Face, Scrofula, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, Malarial Fevers etc.

For "Nervous Debility," "Lost Vitality," "Urinary Diseases," and "Broken Down Constitutions," I challenge the 19th century to produce its equal.

Every Bottle is Worth its Weight in Gold

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN MILK CURE,

The only Medicine of the Kind in the World.

A Substitute for Cod Liver Oil.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Bleeding-Lungs, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, leading to Consumption. Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Cures Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Malarial Fevers, Sick Head-Aches, Chills and Fever, Constipation, &c. Price 25 cents per box.

SMOKE

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN

CATARRH AND ASTHMA CURE.

An infallable cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and Asthma. Sweetens the breath and produces the most delightful sensation while, and after smoking it. Try it. Price 50 cents per box.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty St., New York.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.
(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED.
HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.
The best water-softener made.
The best disinfectant.
The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a super removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 25 per cent stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.
The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

G. T. Lewis & Menzies Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

CENTAUR

always Cures and never Disappoints. The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

USED ALL THE YEAR ROUND!

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA,

—FOR—

LIVER COMPLAINT

—AND—

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use proved to be the best remedy for Sick or the Sides or Back, Pimples on the Face, Piles, and all Diseases from a disordered Liver or an impure state of our best people to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily, most recommend strictly vegetable, the most delicate one of the best for regulating the system. It is sold druggists at one dollar per bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers.

DETROIT, MICH. AMHERSTBURG, ONT.

We Call Attention

To our Superb Stock of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

We will Close Out

ALL SUMMER GOODS

AT COST!

For One Week.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

N. B.---Remember----We Mean Cost.

BAXTER

Can Boot any one in the County.

BAXTER

Can shoe any lady of any age.

BAXTER

Can and will suit everyone on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

I have just received the first fall invoice of Heavy and Fine MEN'S BOOTS.

Call for the

Rockland Ditching Boot,

At Lee's old stand.

BAXTER.

I Have 12 Milk Safes

That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.

A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to Mrs. H. E. Stout are respectfully requested to call and settle the same at their earliest convenience, and oblige

MRS. H. E. STOUT.

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to Miss M. C. Dingman are requested to settle the same immediately.

M. C. DINGMAN.

FOUND.

On Chicago street, last Saturday, July 17th, a lady's parasol. The owner will find the same at the HERALD OFFICE.

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to me are requested to call and settle immediately, or as soon as August 1st, as I have large bills to meet on or about that date.

MRS. M. A. FREEMAN.

POSTPONED.

B. F. Steinhoff has been obliged to postpone his Northern trip till the latter part of the month on account of rush of business. He is making full plates on celluloid for $5.00.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

TAKE NOTICE.

My wife Emma Osborn having left my bed and board without my knowledge or consent, I hereby forbid any one trusting her on my account as I shall pay no bills of her contracting.

O. P. OSBORN.

June 28, 1880.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

WM. HAYDEN has purchased about a thousand bushels a day of old wheat during the past week.

VET ERSKINE made his brother Nathaniel a visit last week. Nat. sent out to Jehiel Davidson a pair of delicate wooden slippers, such as are worn by the Hollanders in the western part of the state.

C. K. SPAFFORD'S new ice cream rooms, over Sholes' harness store seem to be well patronized, and they ought to be for he makes an extra quality of cream. The sample he left for the HERALD boys tells the story.

Attention Comrades!

All old soldiers and others interested in the reunion to be held in Tecumseh, on August 21st next, are requested to meet at the Council Chamber, in this village, on Tuesday eve'g next, at 7:30 o'clock, at the ringing of the bell. Let there be a large and prompt assemblage.

W. C. FITZSIMMONS,
Pres't Lenawee Co. Soldier's & Sailors' Association.

THE BAPTIST CONCERT.

The concert given under the auspices of the Baptist society last Tuesday evening at the opera house drew a fair and appreciative audience.

The program, under the direction of Mr. Tibbetts of Detroit, consisted of selections by his Adrian pupils assisted by Miss Hattie Buck and Lewis E. Vicary, of Detroit; and was as follows:

Part 1.—Pian solo, selected, Miss Hattie Buck. Drum Trio from Fatinitza, Mrs. Johnson, Mumford, and Miss Mason. Selections of Bravura Airs, including the famous Polnaise from Mignon, Lewis E. Vicary. Two Replies, Earl, Mrs. Mumford. The Last Rose of Summer, Martha, Mrs. Johnson. The Kerry Dance, Maloy, Miss Mason.

Part 2.—Duet—"See the Pale Moon" Campana, Mrs. Johnson and Miss Mason. a Concerto for Violincello, Prume, b Whirlwind Polka, for Cornet, Levy, Mr. Vicary. "Echo Song," Ekert, Mrs. Johnson. Twickenham Ferry, Marziales, Mrs. Mumford. Duet—"La Calabrese," Gabussi, Mrs. Johnson and Miss Mason. Sleigh Bell Quartette from Fatinitza, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Mumford, Miss Mason and Mr. Tibbitts.

Miss Buck favored the audience with only one instrumental selection, much to their regret, as the selection was one especially adapted to an evening concert and was dextrously rendered.

Mrs. Johnson, soprano, and Miss Mason, contralto sang their duets in an excellent manner. "See the Pale Moon" was especially good and one of the best parts of the program.

Mrs. Mumford is well known to Tecumseh audiences and enhanced the already great appreciation of her singing by her rendering of "Twickenham Ferry."

Mr. Vicary's whistling was a novelty and well counterbalanced the lack of instrumental music. We would be pleased to have Mr. Tibbetts afford us another such evening.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JULY 22, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

NICE nights for sleeping.

No pay, no paper, is the platform the Blissfield Advance now stands upon.

MRS. BRAZEE, of Cleveland is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Betts, in this village.

ELDER GEO. PRICE left the HERALD boys a basket of red astrachans the other day. Thanks.

THE members of Co. "C" are now shining up their brass buttons preparatory to encampment.

MR. C. W. GOODRICH, wife and daughter, of St. Joseph county, are visiting friends in Tecumseh.

SLAYTON & SON tell their patrons a story this week about their stock of agricultural implements. Read it.

REV. H. SHEPARD will hold services at the Gurnee School House next Sabbath, July 25th, at 3:30 P. M. All are invited.

THE local amateurs are talking of putting the comedy "London Assurance" on the stage sometime during the summer.

ADRIAN is agitating a line of street cars running from the "four corners" to the depot, college buildings and Reform School.

WEB ANDERSON has a new bay horse that he obtained in Ann Arbor. It is claimed to be a fine animal and a good trotter.

MR. GEORGE TANSLEY takes charge of A. W. Slayton's undertaking department. He understands the business thoroughly.

J. C. BONTECOU, of Ann Arbor, dropped in upon us last Monday. He is rusticating a few days with some friends in Macon.

L. F. WHEELER took several stereoscopic views of business blocks on the 3d inst. The view of the HERALD building is a splendid one.

IF a person don't believe that "distance lends enchantment" let him have an office next to an Opera House where all concert rehearsals are had.

Two poles, a hickory and a tamarack, are still standing in Tecumseh which have bent to the breeze for the past four years and are good for four more.

HIGBY & CURRY have dissolved partnership and the barber shop will be conducted hereafter by Mr. Curry, he having bought out Mr. Higby's interest.

Too many members of the Common Council dwell on Kiltuck street to allow a railroad track to be laid on that street; that is, some of their neighbors say so.

THE Butler road proposes to cross the L. S. R. R. inside of its switches at Adrian, but the latter company object. The courts will probably settle the matter.

JEHIEL DAVIDSON always was a sensible man and decidedly so when he opened up a big water melon on the imposing stone last Saturday for the HERALD boys.

NEW wheat is selling in this market for 90 cents a bushel and old wheat for $1,00. Several hundred bushels of old wheat have been marketed here during the past week.

A CORNET band is organizing in Tecumseh. The members are all acquainted with music, and a hot campaign is near at hand, so their auspices are very flattering.

DAVE MACHAM has a large bill fish nicely stuffed in his shop which he captured at Wampler's Lake this season. The lower jaw don't lack much of being a foot long.

THERE were 154 teams hitched on Chicago street at a quarter past nine o'clock last Saturday evening. The day was a fine one to draw wheat and farmers came to town after supper.

TECUMSEH can now boast of the best base ball club in the State, and the proper thing to do is to send them on a tour over the State and let them satisfy all doubts as to their championship.

THE man who will allow his team to stand hitched in the street a whole hot afternoon to be bitten by flies, ought to be required to stand a week in a straight jacket in a musquito swamp.

Four hundred and sixty-four marriages solemnized in the county within the past year, have been recorded in the county clerk's office. Of this number 103 have been performed by justices of the peace.

FOUR teams which had been working on the Butler road near Adrian, passed through Tecumseh on their way back to Detroit last Friday night. They were dissatisfied with the work that was required of them, so they bolted.

A PARTY of thirteen Tecumsehites left here last Saturday afternoon for a trip round the Lakes, Mr. & Mrs. A. W Mills, Mr. & Mrs. A. L. Brewer, and several others. They expect to be sailing around away from home about two weeks.

THE venerable Gen. J. W. Brown of Toledo is spending a day or two at Tecumseh.

Two hundred and forty-seven tickets sold to the Detroit excursion this morning.

HALF fare over the L. S. & M. S. to Hillsdale next week for the Regatta, July 27 and 28.

JOHN WHITENACK has a new card on the first page. The Buckeye pump still leads the van.

SILAS CHAPMAN has returned home from Missouri. Pork and hominy with the thermometer in the nineties didn't agree with him.

THE Tecumseh base ball club would have gone to Detroit to-day, but they failed in making an arrangement with the Cass club to play.

MR. D. R. GIBSON, of Clinton, has brought to our office a sample of the ripe peaches which were picked from his orchard July 3d. We are incredulous no longer.

MR. A. H. HIGBY is opening a new barber shop in the room of John Sutfin's new building, next to Anderson's grocery store, where he would like to see all his old friends.

FRED DEUBL has just taken the job to oversee the erection of a big flouring mill, with fourteen run of stone, at Croswell, Sanilac county, Mich. He will leave soon to commence the work.

THE report that has been in circulation reflecting upon Capt. Sink of Monroe is grossly false. One Long insulted him in his hotel and the Capt. slapped him with his flat hand. The exaggerated report which has been circulated does Capt. Sink great injustice.

Notice to the People of Tecumseh.

The annual reunion of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Association will be held at Tecumseh on Saturday, August 21st next. It is confidently expected that the people of our village will, with their well known hospitality, welcome the veterans on that occasion with a liberality not exceeded by any place in Michigan. The exercises of the day will be of interest to all of our citizens, and a large assemblage may be expected. Let every one interest himself in making the coming reunion the most enjoyable of the series. See notice of preliminary meeting elsewhere.

W. C. FITZSIMMONS,
President of the Association.

THE LATEST RAILROAD PHASE.

The last issue of the Blissfield Advance contains this item in regard to the T. & M. Railroad project, which affords a little "food for reflection" for the citizens of Ridgeway, Tecumseh and Franklin:

"Joel Carpenter, Esq., of this place, has just read to us a letter from Hon. W. T. Lawrence, of Adrian, purporting to be written at the request of the officers of the Toledo & Milwaukee R. R. Co., inquiring what the people of Blissfield will do for the Company, in case the road is run through our village. The idea is not entirely a new one, as some of our shrewdest business men have heretofore intimated to us the probability of such an inquiry being made by the company. A glance at the map will show that if the road runs near Adrian it will naturally pass through or very near this village. We hope our people without distinction of location will take hold of this matter at once, and give the company to know that Blissfield — wide-awake Blissfield—will do all that can be expected of her, and more.

We suggest that a meeting be called at once, to take such action in the premises as our interests demand. If Adrian has a competing road we must have it, or suffer the inevitable consequences."

LECTURE ON TURKEY.

TECUMSEH, July 21, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:—

I would deem it a favor to say to your readers that Megerdich Attarian, a native of Turkey, has been invited by the trustees to deliver his popular lecture in the Baptist Church of this village, on "The People of Turkey," Tuesday eve. July 27. Mr. Attarian is a convert from Moslemism and is in this country for the purpose of securing an education to enable him to labor in his native country as a missionary. The price of admission is nominal, only 20 cents. The entire proceeds are to be given to the lecturer, for he is largely dependent upon his own resources for his education.—He will appear in six different national costumes, and exhibit various Oriental curiosities, which not only illustrate the lecture but give it an absorbing interest to the audience. A business letter received from a citizen of Jonesville, where the lecture was recently delivered, says: "His entertainment has been a great success through this section. Our people are clamorous for him to come again. It is a pleasing and instructive entertainment." I know of no better nor cheaper way to evangelize the world than to help the converted heathen who come to our shores for preparation to preach the gospel to their people.

Respectfully,

C. E. CONLEY.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

THE MERCILESS DEED OF A VILLAINOUS HUSBAND.

Who Seeks His Wife's Death in a Cold-Blooded Manner.

Last Tuesday evening about half past nine o'clock the persons dwelling on Pottawatamie street near the residence of Amos Stocking were thrilled with the cry of murder! murder!!

Several persons startled by the cries were soon out of doors and quickly ran toward the place whence the cries came.

Chas. Smith was the first one to reach the scene. He found in the west part of the house of Amos Stocking upon the ground floor in a sitting room a lady, Mrs. Simmons, near a table lying upon the floor in a most heart-rending condition. Streams of blood were flowing out of deep cuts in her head and her garments were all besmeared with blood, her groans and sobs adding gastliness to the sight. Scattered around her body were broken pieces and splinters of a heavy ash chair besprinkled with blood, while the carpet was red with the blood of the poor woman. He picked up the nearly helpless body while doctors were sent for. Her left arm was broken above the elbow, her head had a deep cut on the forehead and on the right side while her right eye was nearly closed from the effects of a blow. Her right arm and hand were black and blue from bruises. Her limbs were in the same condition, at first it was supposed that the right one was broken above the knee but it was afterwards found to be only severely bruised. In fact her whole body was lacerated with cuts and terrible bruises.

It was soon learned that the

HUSBAND WAS THE DOER

of the sanguinary and nearly successful attempt to carry out the ungodly engendered purpose to kill his wife and mother of their child unconsciously sleeping in his sight. Officers were immediately despatched in every direction after the criminal. They were out a good share of the night without success and then came back to Tecumseh to make arrangements for starting out again in the morning.

The sheriffs of the surrounding counties were notified, and Sheriff Cairns with his deputies started out from Tecumseh in search. The common council held a special meeting and voted to pay a for the arrest of Simmons. All that is known of him is that he has been working near Jackson and Tuesday night ran out of the front door of the house after he undoubtedly supposed he had killed Mrs. Simmons.

HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD.

CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE DEED.

About three years ago, Mrs. Simmons met Simmons at the home of Milan Wheeler in Manchester, known as the Millard farm, where Simmons was engaged as a hired man. Mrs. Simmons was at that time Miss, and was also engaged there in taking care of the hops. They both remained there a few months during which time they became engaged to each other. Finally they were married and removed to Blissfield where they remained until about a year after their marriage when Simmons for reasons never known left her helpless and confined to her bed by child birth. Soon as possible Mrs. Simmons with her child went to Clinton and remained at the home of Mr. Saxton until she came to Tecumseh. Her father lives in Canada, and was unable to ameliorate her pitiable condition on acc'nt of his extreme age and indigent circumstances. So, Mrs. Simmons, in poor health with her child and herself to support, and abandoned by her husband, has been for the past two years entirely dependent upon herself.

During her residence here, Simmons has at various times visited Tecumseh and called upon her. At every opportunity he has entreated her to live with him again. But she knowing his character refused. It was while he was on a visit that he made this assault last Tuesday night.

He arrived on the four o'clock train from Jackson and immediately proceeded to the home of Mrs. Simmons. She saw him coming and quickly ran over to Mr. Smith's to send word to her cousin, Miss Fisher, to have her come and stay with her. She came back and let Simmons in, who remained there during the evening. Miss Fisher soon arrived and then the three passed the evening in pleasant conversation, Simmons not once directly asking her to live with him again. But at one time he said it would be pleasant if they had a house of their own where they could live together; whereupon she told him that if he would come to Tecumseh and work and build up an honest character she would live with him. The last words that Mrs. Simmons said to him were concerning some letters that she had received from him. She told him that when she read his letters she became angry and would have burned them if she hadn't thought that they would be of service to her some time. Not answering a word he then rose from his chair and leaned upon it as if intending to go. Then suddenly raising to the ceiling he struck Mrs. Simmons upon the head, knocking her from her chair to the floor. Then he dealt six rapid heavy blows upon her body when Miss Fisher ran afrighted to Mr. Smith's for assistance at the same time crying murder.

Mr. Smith was soon out and at the house but Simmons had fled.

The chair was a heavy wooden seated one and when found all four of the legs and rounds were split and broken from the chair. The splinters were all covered with blood, and the ceiling above has eight large holes in it where the chair struck when he raised it, showing that he put all his strength in the blows and nerved himself for base murder.

It is simply wonderful how Mrs. Simmons escaped death, when a person sees the manner in which the chair was shattered by the blows upon her body and the cuts and bruises she sustained, her living seems miraculous. She says that Simmons stood over her and dealt her quick successive blows as long as he dared and then probably went away thinking that he had killed her.

Mrs. Simmons is now attended faithfully by medical assistance and hopes are entertained for recovery in a month or so.

If Simmons is caught a change of clothes for Jackson and twenty years for refreshments is none too long a time to take the villainy out of him.

ROUGH TREATMENT.

In a civilized portion of the State as the Southern, it is not only a surprise but a shame that the authorities should allow a gypsy crowd of rough, uncouth men to travel around through the country committing gross abuses wherever they go. But Alex. Parks and Benj. Clark sorely realize that such is the state of matters.

It seems that a large semi-barbarous band of gypsies from Detroit selected a camping ground near the Culbertson school house, north east of Tecumseh, and a few members came to Tecumseh with a lot of "trading" horses of the usual proverbial kind. They found a man who had a horse that he thought of trading and they were setting forth the good qualities of their nags when Alex. Parks came on the scene and told the gentlemen whom the gypsies were beguiling that the gypsies' horse was a poor one. This put an end to the bartering, much to the wrath of the gypsies. In return they asked Alex. to bring his horse down to their camp and they would try to make a trade. Alex. very injudiciously accepted the seemingly kind invitation and went and got Ben Clark to go along. They had no sooner reached the camp and jumped to the ground before a big Irishman stepped out and commenced to abuse them. They then surmised that they had been indiscreet in coming but before they could think much about it the aforesaid Irishman hit Alex. a stunner on the jawbone which put a "quietus" upon him. Then the same thumper turned upon Ben and dealt him a heavy blow upon the nose. The two then quickly climbed into their buggy and drove to Tecumseh. Alex. was almost insensible and Ben's nose was trying hard to get behind his ear. A doctor was summoned for Alex. whose jaw was in a bad condition, while Ben applied cold water to his nose.

The boys after this will probably allow the wandering band to do their own horse trading.

THE pop business came to a stand still last Tuesday evening when a horse hitched to a pop wagon balked and refused to go for a quarter of an hour, while the driver kicked, swore and cussed, twisted, pulled and jerked.

JOHN ARNER, of Ridgeway, has our thanks for a basket of fine harvest apples.

—Champion Rubber Buckets for chain pumps at Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—The Hoosier Drill is the best in the market. For sale by Wm. Snedicor, Ridgeway.

—All kinds of Screen Doors and Windows of the best material, also all kinds of building material at

S. W. Temple's.

—If you want a good porcelain and cylinder pump get it at the Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

SOMETHING NEW.

A Spring Harrow on wheels, just the thing exactly. For light draft, durability and quality of work has no equal. Call on Slayton & Son and see it.

—Always bear in mind that Wm. Snedicor, Ridgeway, has pumps for sale.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids.

A. B. Cotton.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

Floor Oil Cloths,
Holland & Opaque window curtains,
Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains,
Lambrequin Trimmings—all new,

A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.

A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—Secure better pictures; and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.

Brown, the Photographer.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the

HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Chenille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at

Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Wanted—To trade a Granite Monument for a good horse. Apply to L. A. Davis, Tecumseh Steam Granite and Marble Works, Tecumseh.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres.

J. A. Eaton & Co.

DIED.

ISAAC.—At the residence of her grand daughter, Mrs. E. Rodman, in Michigan Center, on Monday, July 19, 1880, Mrs. Ann Isaac, aged 74 years and 2 days.

Mrs. Isaac was for many years a resident of Newburg, near Clinton, and many friends here will mourn the loss of a true friend and a good woman.

CLARK—July 3, 1880, Mrs. Harvey Clark aged 27 years. The domestic history of this unfortunate lady is full of tragic sorrow—of loving devotion on her part and crime on the part of him who vowed to love, honor and cherish her. Her brief life would afford material for a novel, where truth would be stranger than fiction. When she and her young good looking husband first sailed out on life's ocean both intelligent and fairly educated and everything looked fair for a prosperous voyage. He was industrious, sober affectionate, beyond the average of men; while she possessed all the womanly qualities necessary to make home happy, four children came to them, all of whom are living, their ages ranging from 2 to 9 years. But long ere this the demon of lust had taken possession of the man and the proverb of Solomon was established in their case—he lost wife, home, children, situation and friends; and gained a "strange woman," while the wife struggled hard with four children and poverty, oftimes without a mouthful to eat until kind neighbors would bring in some; but never without hope that the man she worshiped would return to her and provide for his family. But he was bound, Prometheus-like; he tried to loosen his bonds by taking poison but fortunately or unfortunately he did not take enough to kill him; and he lives to be whipped by remorse, and cudgeled by his companion in crime. Well might Solomon say, with knowledge of such facts as these, "My son with all thy getting, get understanding."

The Good Templars took charge of the family; generous individuals, who knew his history, tried to furnish her with employment, but she was not a robust woman, and she over exerted herself, and lay down and died. The Lodge cared for her in her last sickness, and buried her; and the children are left to the tender mercies of a cold world, or a worse parent. Mr. Carlisle takes care of one of them, and still there is room for a further exercise of Christian charity.—Stevens Point, Wis., Democrat.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, No. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec. J. F. JENKINS, N. G.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB, NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings, at Seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, PRESIDENT.
G. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No.15. Mail.	No.37. Express.	No.49. Accom.
Jackson	6 50 a m	2 30 p m	1 30 p m
Napoleon	7 12 "	2 55 "	2 15 "
Norvell	7 16 "	3 00 "	2 35 "
Manchester	7 38 "	3 20 "	3 55 "
Clinton	7 43 "	3 40 "	4 15 "
Tecumseh	7 53 "	3 50 "	4 40 "
Adrian	8 30 "	4 25 "	6 00 "
Detroit	10 50 "	6 15 "	.....
Toledo	9 50 "	5 25 "	.....

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No.16. Mail.	No.38. Express.	No.48. Accom.
Detroit	7 30 am	6 40 pm	.....
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "	.....
Adrian	12 01 p m	9 26 "	5 10 am
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 13 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 50 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't
P. S. BLODGETT, Detroit Div. Sup't.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the U. S.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A. M.
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 "M.
Eastern and Detroit ..... 3 30 P. M.

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A. M.
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M.

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,
TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

(Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

KEEP COOL.

The familiar admonition "keep cool" goes deep. It declares that a man's mental and moral functions are obscured by anger or haste, which are sudden flaws of spiritual heat. It says that only a temperate pulse is compatible with good thinking and wise action. The term "hot-headed" implies the same limitation and reproach.

The first condition of coolness is a proper diet. The Esquimaux, munching his blubber, drinking oil with delight, seems to us a revolting animal. But he is simply obeying Nature. She says to him, "Assimilate all the carbon you can, lest you perish with the cold." Here she sets a different feast. With the first languors of spring her salads and earlies vegetables are ready. As the days go on, one crowds another, so profuse is she; and with the strong heats of summer, her acid fruit tempts us to eat. First comes shy strawberries, hiding under sheltering leaves; then gems of currants, strung double along their stems; pulpy raspberries; amber gooseberries, bursting with winy juice; and while her great rich blackberries still bend the thorny stalks, the fragrant grapes cry "pluck me! pluck me!"

Cherries, apples, pears, plums, peaches, shower themselves upon us, adding beauty to excellence, to tempt us away from butcher's stall and confectioner's shop. Perhaps only Americans who have lived much abroad, and starved for the fruit they wasted at home, can appreciate fully the adaptation of this food to our needs.—Vegetables and fruit from early spring to late autumn would save us many a fever, and keep us clear-headed, strong hearted and cool-blooded.

If meat be used at all during this period, it should be sparingly. And if certain constitutions require it, as surely certain others are far better without it. All rich cakes, pastries, and confections also supply the objectionable carbon, clog the system, and, as the phrase is, are "heating."

It goes without saying that bathing is an important means of coolness.—The freer the skin, the more liberal the excretion. But we do not so readily remember that allowing a small stream of cold water to run on the inside of the wrists will lower the temperature of the body several degrees in a brief space. The great blood vessels there receive the pleasant shock, and diffuse it to the remotest point in the intricate net-work of vein and nerves.

Of course loose dressing of the neck and wrists is essential to coolness.—Soft ruffles are better than stiff linen, which often binds like a bandage.—Under-garments should be made in one, if possible, to equalize the covering of the body.

Doubtless we invite those "flushes of heat," which are most grievous to endure, by our own heedlessness. We go out when by good management we might stay in. We walk when by contrivance we might ride. And we move at the same pace that we keep at midwinter, when the air is crisp with oxygen, and motion is a delight. We do not even cross the street to the shady side, thinking it too much trouble if we have not far to go.

But if we have tropical conditions, we must to some extent, adopt tropical habits, or perish in the attempt to adapt our polar instincts to our equatorial state. It is not laziness, it is wisdom, to lighten summer work as much as possible, to do what must be done early or late, but not, when it can be avoided, at mid-day, to saunter where we are prone to rush, and to rest whenever we can. With fruit, a bath-tub, an umbrella, a fan, and judgment, life may be made endurable in the summer solstice, even on the fortieth parallel of north latitude, and in the intemperate zone.—Harper's Bazar

CHILDREN'S WANTS.

Children do not like fat meat, so give them good bread and butter, and allow them plenty of honey or sugar. A chemist will tell you that both fatty substances and saccharine or sweet substances are eventually oxidized in the body. Sugar is the form to which many other things have to be reduced before they are available as a heat-making food, and the formation of sugar is carried on in the body. It has been proved that the liver is a factory in which other constituents of food are transformed into sugar. Now, it is probable that your children really need something sweet to keep them well, and it is fortunate that most children are fond of vegetable acids, it is often a better corrective than a dose of medicine; yet the majority of parents give a nauseous dose in preference. It does seem sometimes as if parents were occupied more in denying than gratifying their children's appetites. This is neither necessary nor fair. They get tired of bread and milk as you would. And what comes of it? Simply, that as soon as they have an opportunity they indulge their love for sweets to excess.

Use Kidney-Wort and rejoice in good health.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

[illegible] have a few [illegible] sales [illegible] Hollyville.

Bay City will soon have a town clock of excellent make.

Dr. H. C. Arndt, of Grand Rapids, is to succeed Prof. S. A. Jones at the university.

The adventists are holding meetings at Cass City, and stirring up a great amount of discussion.

Cass county has 21,824 inhabitants, Bay has 38,008, Washtenaw 41,958, and Grand Traverse 3,504.

Peach picking has begun in the Saugatuck region, and the prospects for a fine crop are excellent.

At Bellevue a new opera house, new office for the Gazette and several new stores are building.

Will T. Drulard, late a student at the university, died at his home in St. Clair a few days ago of consumption.

Merrit Malcom, of Isabella county, is accused of having stolen an ax one day, sold it the next, and married the next.

A large new brick passenger depot is to be built by the L. S. & M. S. R. R. at Hillsdale, and the freight depot has been extensively repaired.

Underwood's opera house, at Hillsdale, is being elaborately frescoed.

John Mathison, a respected old resident of Grand Rapids died Friday.

Senator Childs, of Washtenaw county, gets $3,200 for the Butler road right of way across his farm.

The Clarion says that the Centennial mills of Lapeer shipped 1,000 sacks of flour direct to Glasgow, Scotland, recently.

Rev. J. Gordon, for many years pastor of the presbyterian church of Coldwater, died in Kansas recently.—He was buried at Coldwater.

There are 755 Hollander tax-payers in Grand Rapids, and they pay $15,195.33 in the way of taxes this year for the privilege of living there.

Another Grand Rapids girl dosed up with morphine last week. Her name was Carrie Hart. They pumped her out, and she lives to love some more.

A Battle Creek correspondent says: "There has not been a time during the past 30 years when James W. Pugsley was not interested in a law, suit, either civil or criminal; and he has cost the county $50,000 or more." Yes, and now the county is boarding him—rich as he is.

The Vassar Pioneer begs the Tuscola county folks not to become insane, as it costs the taxpayers $70 per year to support those already in the asylum for the insane.

Theodore Newbury, of Avon, refused right of way to the Air Line railroad through his property for their offer of $250. He wanted $1,000, but a jury gave him $200.

The wedding of Albert W. Fisher and Miss May Thompson, of Bay City, one night last week, took place in their own house, which with four city lots was the gift of Fisher's parents. Nice idea!

Andreas W. Gustavson, a Finlander, arrived at Howard City direct from the old country last Thursday, got a job of work Friday, and was dead on Sunday. The heat and drinking cold water killed him.

An unknown man's body was found in Grand River last Thursday, near Seymour street. He had a deep cut on the back of the head; supposed to be about 23 years of age, and to have been in the water about two weeks.

Willie Doud, aged 19 years, only child of Frank Doud, of Cheshire, was riding a horse a few days since, which stumbled, threw him off and fell upon him, injuring him so severely that he died in about five hours.

John Driscoll, alias "Silver Jack" a notorious character, convicted of highway robbery, was sentenced a few days since at East Saginaw to State Prison at Jackson for fifteen years.—He has served five years for a similar offense.

The Ionia Sentinel says that Hon. J. C. Blanchard's Colorado wool crop this year approximated 30,000 pounds, which sold for 30 cents per pound, making a grand total of $9,000. The expenses of raising it, besides the capital invested, was $2,500, leaving a net profit of $6,500.

The corner-stone of the new baptist church at Port Huron was laid last Thursday. Rev. Alex. McFarland, now of Portland, Me., but formerly pastor of the Port Huron society, delivered the address. During the service he received a dispatch announcing the death of his child.

A man named E. J. McCumber, who was visiting Mrs. R. J. Hall, his sister, of Essexville, was killed by lightning about 8 o'clock on the evening of the 15th. He was walking from Unionville, where he had been to see some friends, and was by the farm of A. C. Maxwell when struck. His hair was burned from his scalp, the lightning running down his side and melting the silver money in his pocket.

As the record of Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever & Ague, or Mercurial Diseased Patient, show they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite — they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, SOUR STOMACH, Heat, Burn, &c.,

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivalled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of MERCURY, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you and drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It dispenses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors,
Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. O. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World.
Interest paid on Savings Deposits.
LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.
Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine

Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 altos, tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass; bell up; patent piston valves; warranted, for $130.

I also have Band Instruments for professional hands to select from, including Corn and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogues.

Address, O. F. BERDAN,
72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF ALBERT HAYDEN.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s. s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Albert Hayden, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of William Hayden, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and that he is ready to file his final account and praying for the allowance of said account, that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF HENRY TRIPP.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s. s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Edwin B. Wood, administrator of said estate, praying for license to sell the real estate of said deceased in said petition described for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF ROBERT LIDDEL.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Robert Liddel, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Thomas A. Liddel and James A. Liddel, executors of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that they have paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and are ready to file their final account and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate be assigned to the persons entitled thereto and for their discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF SAMUEL HUNTER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Samuel Hunter, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of James F. Gilmore, administrator of said estate, with the will annexed, alleging that he has paid all the debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration and all legacies except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account, and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed amongst the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

ESTATE OF JAMES BRACE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 8th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Brace, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Ann Maria Waggott alleging among other things that she is the just and lawful owner of a note made by William Monnett, dated August 21st, 1876, for the sum of $3,263.39 payable to said James Brace, deceased; that said note has come to the possession of Edwin B. Wood, administrator of the estate of said deceased, with the will annexed, and praying that said note or the residue of money collected thereon be by order of said court turned over to petitioner, and for such other relief in the premises as shall be agreeable to law.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 2d day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july3

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS.

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF LYDIA MORSE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 7th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lydia Morse, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Robert G. House, administrator of said estate, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration of said estate, and is ready to file his final account as administrator, and praying that said account may be allowed that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to and amongst the heirs at law of said deceased and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 2nd day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july2

ESTATE OF WILLIAM C. FISHER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 8th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William C. Fisher, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, of Abbie Fisher executrix of the last will and testament of said deceased alleging that she has paid the debts of deceased and the expenses of administration of said estate thus far incurred, and is ready to file her first account in this court and praying for the allowance of said account, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed according to the provisions of said will and the statute in such case provided.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 2d day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A true copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july8

MORTGAGE SALE.

ON the 11th day of March, A.D. 1869, Jonas Weaver and Caroline M. Weaver by an indenture of mortgage made and executed by them on said 11th day of March, to Henry H. Rawson certain lands owned by said Caroline M. Weaver, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 2d day of November, A.D. 1869, in liber 57 of mortgages on pages 675 and 676, and which mortgage was duly assigned by said Henry H. Rawson to Jonas Weaver on the 6th day of November, A.D. 1879, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county of Lenawee on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1880, in liber 95 of mortgages on page 423. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-four and 22-100 dollars and the sum of twenty-five dollars as an attorney fee which is also covenanted for in said mortgage should any proceeding be taken to foreclose the said mortgage; no proceedings have been taken either in law or equity to recover the amount due on said mortgage or any part thereof. Default having been made in the terms of payment of said mortgage by means of which the power of sale in said mortgage has become absolute; notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due together with all legal costs and charges and said attorney fee of twenty-five dollars; said sale will be to the highest bidder and will be made on the twenty-six day of July, 1880, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Dean's Opera House on Toledo street in the city of Adrian in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said county,) The premises described in said mortgage and to be sold as aforesaid are described as situate in the township of Rollin in said county of Lenawee, and known as the west half of the south west quarter of section twenty-nine, except twenty acres off the north end thereof, in township six south of range one east.

Dated February 21st, 1880.

JONAS WEAVER, Assignee of Mortgage.
THOMAS J. HILLER, Att'y for Assignee. apl22

ESTATE OF DANIEL WARING.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s s.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday, the 28th day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate

In the matter of the estate of Daniel Waring, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Lucius Lilley, administrator of the estate of said deceased, with the will annexed, alleging that he has paid the debts and funeral charges of deceased, and the expenses of administration of said estate, and praying for the allowance of his final account now on file in this court, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate, according to the provisions of said will and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.
A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. july1

CHANCERY SALE.

THE Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee—In Chancery.

Luke Wood, Complainant,
vs.
Hiram J. Snell, Elizabeth F. Snell and Mary J. James, Defendants.

In pursuance and by virtue of a decree rendered by said court in this cause on the 20th day of May, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, Charles L. Hall, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, will sell at public auction at the front door of Dean's Opera House (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for said county is held) on Toledo street in the city of Adrian, in said county, on the 14th day of August, A.D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day the following premises described in said decree, viz: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: All the part of block number six (6) of Hewitt's addition to said village of Tecumseh which is included within the following boundary, viz: Beginning at the point of intersection of the west line of Evans street with the south line of Logan street in said village, such point of beginning being at the same time at the north east corner of said block number six; thence running south on the said west line of Evans street sixty-four feet, to land of C. Albaugh (or at least in his occupancy as a pump manufactory); thence west on the north line of land of C. Albaugh and occupied by him as aforesaid, seventy-six feet to the north west corner thereof; thence south on the west line of said Albaugh's said land twenty-six feet to a parcel of land conveyed by said Hiram J. Snell and wife to J. Gilchrist and known as the livery stable property; thence west on the north line of said land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Gilchrist sixty-eight feet to the north west corner of the same; thence south on the west line of said Gilchrist land fifty-four and one-half feet to the south west corner thereof; thence west fifty-four feet to land of B. J. Bidwell; thence north on east line of said Bidwell's land nine rods to the south line of Logan street aforesaid; thence east on the south line of said Logan street twelve rods to the place of beginning.

Dated July 1st, 1880.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.
WILLIS MERRITT, Solicitor for Compl't. July1

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

DEVON CATTLE.

This beautiful race of cattle numbers many strong friends among the stock-breeders of the United States. As working oxen the Devons perhaps are equal if not superior to all other races in quickness, docility and the ease with which they are matched. They are fast walkers, and when no longer wanted for work they fatten easily, producing superior beef. As milkers, our dairymen have not considered the Devons equal to the average of other breeds.

In this connection, it may be interesting to read the following extracts from an English contemporary: Famous alike for beauty, symetry, agility and antiquity, the Devons are held in high esteem in the southern counties of England. Natives of a bleaker district than one would ever expect to find so far south, the North Devons, from whom the other branches have sprung, are at once hardy, agile compact, plump as a partridge and sound as an oak, though not very large.

They have a high reputation as beef makers, and are universally admired at the Smithfield Club Shows, where the place of honor is always given to them in the catalogue. They are not famous for large quantities of milk, but Devonshire cream has a world-wide celebrity. The South Devons are larger than those of the North, and those of South Hants, the "Southhammer breed" as they are called, are larger still, while the Sussex cattle, which are said to be of the same species, and resemble the Devons in almost every thing except size, are perhaps the largest of all.

The reason why Devons are not considered good milkers, as also in the case of the Herefords, finds its origin in the fact that they have not in times gone by been cultivated with a view to copious milking. The best draft oxen in the world, probably, are Devons; certainly they are the best in the British Islands. They are at once very strong, very active and very enduring. It follows, then, that since for ages they have been used for the cultivation of the land, and in many cases for road work, long before milk, cheese and butter were special commercial elements, these beautiful animals were chiefly valuable first for work, next for beef, and last of all for milk, in the eyes of the farmers who owned them.

Excepting the few relics that remain of the once extensive herds of wild white cattle, the Devons, it is said, are the oldest of our English breeds of cattle. Like the Herefords, they are coming slowly into favor as dairy cattle, and their "milkiness" when cultivated is to be found of a very satisfactory character.

NOON HOUR ON THE FARM.

The human system, taken in all its parts, is a very wonderful self-governing and at the same time dependent machine. The system will assert its demands for food in the severe pange of hunger, and the lack of rest will make itself known in involuntary sleep. Out of these necessities of the case, there has grown a common sense custom of "taking a nooning" of an hour or so in the middle of the day, in which the system is replenished with food, and the nerves and muscles refreshed by a period of inactivity. A Spanish-American town is, in the midday hours, as quiet as one in New England on the Sabbath. One from the North in visiting such countries is apt to look upon the people as indolent, but he soon falls in with the custom, and finds that the siesta, as the noonday nap is called, and which is taken by the richest and poorest alike, is not a manifestation of laziness, a mere habit, but a wise compliance with the demands of the climate. The head of the family finds his rest in the newspaper, and is refreshed with the knowledge of the doings of the great and active world beyond the boundaries of his farm. In the half-hour dividing his labors of the morning from that of the afternoon, he acquires a fund of information that keeps him abreast with the world, and alive to the importance of his own calling. A little time thus taken from the toils of the day refreshes and strengthens the man, and makes the whole life fuller, and therefore nobler and better. The noon hour should not be a time of thoughtless inactivity, but of intelligent recreation—Ex.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a billious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life: strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., at fifty cents per bottle.

A few doses of Hill's Buchu will relieve the severest cases of Kidney Complaint.

A book-keeper's motto—But few men are born to rule.

A DIET OF EGGS.

Considering the enormous quantities of eggs which are imported annually from France into this country, it would seem not only that the business of poultry-farming is better understood across the Channel than it is here, but also that the English are even more fond than the French of this article of food. It is not uninteresting to have the opinion of a popular medical writer in France upon the merits and demerits of a diet of eggs. After explaining the chemical composition of a hen's egg, and laying due stress upon the large proportion of albuminous matter contained in it, Dr. Valoureux goes on to assert that some prudence should be exercised in indulging an appetite for eggs. Of all the 600 different modes of preparing them for the table, the most wholesome is that of simply boiling them a la cog, as the French phrase has it. But it is necessary even in accepting this rule to qualify it by adding that the egg should not be boiled too much, as in such case it becomes very much less digestible. Another injunction is that the eggs should not be eaten without taking some wine or other liquid at the same time; and the Doctor recounts a story of a certain modern Blue Beard who was said to have killed four or five wives successfully by inducing them every morning to eat two eggs without drinking anything at all. Moreover eggs are not to be devoured in large quantities at a time, unless the person making the experiment wishes to have a painful experience of the maxim than an egg is equivalent to a quarter of a pound of meat.

Apropos of this latter warning the Frenchman might have added, if he had known it, a very modern Devonshire story of a laborer who was ordered by the village doctor to eat eggs, and whose employer gave him a shilling to enable him to comply with these orders without going to any unwarrantable expense. A few days afterward the good-natured employer called to ask how the sufferer was.—He had followed out the doctor's injunctions with alacrity, but instead of being any better, was a great deal worse; and further inquiries elicited the fact that he had bought eighteen eggs with his shilling, and had at once set to and finished them at a sitting.—London Globe.

MAKING VINEGAR.

Most thrifty housekeepers have already learned that it is not difficult thing to keep the vinegar barrel well filled after it is once started. Good vinegar can be made in the course of time from sweetened water and yeast; it is a slow process, unless there is plenty of heat, and much the quickest and best to have some strong stock to start with. A ten gallon keg would answer the purposes of a small family; it should be provided with a faucet and a bunghole, and have in it five gallons of good strong cider vinegar. To this may be added hard cider from time to time, as space and strength will permit, unless the supply of fruit be such as to make cider unnecessary. Put all parings and cores of sound frust, scraps of tomatoes, scum and rinsing of preserving kettles, and the pulp remaining in the jelly press, into a stone jar; cover with warm water, tie a thin cloth over the top, and set it in the sun in the summer; in cold weather, near the stove. At the end of two weeks strain the liquid through a bag, and pour it into the keg through a funnel; first drawing out some of the good vinegar for immediate use. Where much fruit is used, the refuse portions will be amply sufficient for keeping a plentiful supply of vinegar on hand, and there will be no necessity for consuming deleterious and poisonous acids in the form of commercial vinegar.—Prairie Farmer.

Down East farmers call it "cursing the driver" when the wheel creaks upon the axle of the wagon. This is not a bad figure of speech. The driver who neglects the frequent greasing of the axles of his wagon, deserves something more than the "cursing" of the wheels. He not only permits the rapid wearing out of the parts where the friction occurs, but he places an additional burden upon the poor beasts that haul his loads. A hired man who is too lazy or too negligent to keep the axles well greased, should be promptly discharged; and the farmer himself who is guilty of the same negligence—well, he neglects most things that should be done at a proper season, and moves away to some other State, where the land is richer and farming is more likely to pay.

Habitual Costiveness is the bane of nearly every American woman. From it usually arises those disorders that so surely undermine their health and strength. Every woman owes it to herself and to her family to use that celebrated medicine, Kidney-Wort. It is the sure remedy for constipation, and for all disorders of the kidneys and liver. Try it now.

Coal is one of the things that is made in vein.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought fowest figures.

Chicago Street HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT

SLAYTON & SON

Beg leave to inform the public that they are handling a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

Among which may be found

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled, Garden City Clipper (steel.)

Scotch Harrows, the Buckeye & Elwood Cultivators,

Johnston Reapers and Mowers,

Buckeye and Champion Grain Drills, Corn Drills & Planters, The Seymour Plaster Sower,

HAY RAKES, The Thomas Hand Dump, The Tiger Self Dump.

THRESHERS, The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts,"

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines, the Carter Tongueless Cultivators,

Double Shovels and Shovel Plows, points for all kinds of Plows, Sections for all Mowers & Reapers

We also sell

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Scales, and the Boss Stone Boat.

Just call and see if we can't furnish you anything you want.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a [illegible]

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN,

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SIKS.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to POSITIVELY CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1876, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic, their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE. SAFE DIABETES CURE. SAFE CITRATES NERVINE PILLS. READ: Save Thyself

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N.Y.

Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whenever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low-spirited try it. Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF

CALLING CARDS.

At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Champion Drills,

Missouri Drills,

Myers' Wind Mills,

Champion Fruit Ladders,

Gregg Sulky for Plows,

Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,

Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,

Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,
Gale Fallow Cultivators,
Kala'zoo Spring Tooth Harrow,
Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,
A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,
Garr Scott Engines,
Garr Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,

Standard Mowers,

Royce Reapers,

Meadow King Mowers,

Grand Rapids Small Tools.

USBORNE BLOCK,

TECUMSEH, - - MICH.

THE LITERARY

Revolution.

The most successful publication of the century, and to American readers [illegible] books in most perfect. Only books of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are now beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate and demonstrate these truths, we send the following books, all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named:

Macaulay's

Life of Frederick the Great. Former price $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print, price three cents.

Carlyle's

Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Light of Asia.

By Edwin Arnold. Former price $1.50. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.

Thos. Hughes's

Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print; brevier type; price three cents.

John Stuart Mills's

Chapters on Socialism. Essays of exceeding interest and importance. Price three cents.

Baron Munchausen.

His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Burgeoise type; price five cents.

Mary Queen of Scots'

Life, by Lamertine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Vicar of Wakefield.

By Oliver Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

Bourgeoise type, leaded; beautiful print; price six cents.

Private Theatricals.

By author of "Arrowgrass Papers." Small pica type, leaded; price two cents.

Stories and Ballads.

For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.

Leaves from the Diary

Of an Old Lawyer. Short stories of thrilling, laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.

Booksellers

Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH. VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR

CAMPAIGN GOODS

of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply

Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c.

We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.

We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a

Present of a $100 Gold Watch

—OR—

NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.

Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the

U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic. TRY IT

SANFORD'S

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Sealsickness, and other Disorders.

LIVER

The Liver is the seat of malaria! diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic influences. It Purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

INVIGORATOR

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 182 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

N. W. AYER & SON

ADVERTISING AGENTS

TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.

Receive Advertisements for this Paper.

ESTIMATES at Lowest Cash Rates free for Newspaper Advertising.

Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

CULTIVATION OF DUTCH BULBS.

PLACER and gulch mining for gold have in them more romantic interest than attaches to any other process of unearthing the precious metal—not counting, of course, the pelf of Captain Kidd. But the placers are rapidly becoming fewer, and, before many years, the lonely prospector with pick and pan, the humble brook-side cradle, the gushing sluice, the sputtering "little giant" itself, must cease; and then the thud and stamp of the quartz-crushing mill will be all that is heard in the storied land of gold. Those who are pining for the romance of gold-digging, therefore, should go at once and secure claims on the few bars still left; but first they would do well to read some true account of placer and gulch mining (such as Ernest Ingersoll's in St. Nicholas for August,) just to see what the romance amounts to.

Hudson Gazette, July 16: The Hudson ball club went to Tecumseh Wednesday to play the nine of that village, and were beaten by a score of 18 to 2. This may look like a "big scoop," for the Hudsons, but the Tecumsehs are the best club in the State. They have been beaten but once this year. They have two salaried men—Shaughnessy and Tray—who can't be beat. The Tecumsehs are all gentlemanly fellows and won many friends on Wednesday. The Hud's played a fair game for the practice they had had, but as soon as they can obtain better grounds, they will do better playing. The return game will be played in about 5 or 6 weeks, when a good game may be looked for.

WE clip the following from the Republican of Sycamore, Ill. The deceased was a brother of Enoch Tindall, of Tecumseh:

Mr. Jessie Tindall died at 3 o'clock last Thursday morning. He has been in ill health ever since last November. The immediate cause of his death was paralysis of the throat. He was 68 years of age. His funeral took place yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. Mr. Tindall has been for nearly forty years a prominent citizen of South Grove and of Sycamore. He left a large number of descendants who are among the best of our citizens, and who were all permitted to be present except one son who is traveling in Europe.

Hillsdale Herald: Southern Michigan—rich soil, no drouth in summer, no intense cold in winter, no failure in crops, no mud, no dust, fine lakes and flowing streams, rolling country and prairie openings and heavy timber, pure water, no fogs, clear skies, low taxes, no State debt, quiet, peace and good order, large cities of the living, small but beautiful cities of the dead, pleasant towns and villages, modern architecture, intelligent, educated people, school system best in the world, from the common school to the University. God's country.

OWING to the Military Brigade Encampment having been fixed to be held in Kalamazoo during the week commencing on the 9th day of August next, it has been determined by the society, after consulting with the President and other members of the State Pioneer Society, to postpone the Tenth Annual Reunion of the Kalamazoo Society, to the 25th day of Aug. next, and the State Society will hold their annual meeting at the same time and place.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

Let Up—Take a Rest!

If you want to start on a very cheap and enjoyable tour in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and no "extras," write to

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Agt.,
Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

ALL who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard Lake.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, July 20, 1880:

Andrews, Homer J.	Church, Joseph T.
Harrington, Albert	Peterson, C.
Winslow, Lewis J.	Wise, William

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

Lake Ridge.

Remaining unclaimed in the Postoffice at Lake Ridge, Mich., July 19, 1880.

Hunter, Thomas	Lamb, Wm
Ewald, P. L.	Odell, L. L.

Persons calling for the above letters will please say "advertised."

N. A. DARLING, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD,
Thursday, July 22, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending July 14, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N.Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 486 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

18 steers	1240	4.60	15 steers	1518	$5.10
57 steers	1140	4.40	13 steers	1216	4.30
17 steers	1265	4.50	16 steers	1378	4.80

Sheep—The receipts for the week show an increase of 5,500 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

111 Mich. sheep	81	4.00
243 Mich. do	84	4.25
193 Ohio do	93	4.70

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show an increase of 420 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

113	179	4.55	102	238	4.90
67	144	4.60	78	137	4.70
162	261	4.80	176	258	4.85

DETROIT MARKET.

Wednesday, July 21, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 2 cars at $1.07¼; do July, 30,000 bu at $1.06½@1.05½; do August, 8,000 bu at 94½c.

Butter—15@16c per lb.
Cheese—9@10c per lb.
Eggs—Fresh, 11@11½c per doz.
Provisions—Hams, 10½@10¾c. Shoulders, 6c. Breakfast bacon, 9c. Dried beef, 11½@12½c per lb.
Wool—34@36c per lb.
Corn—43c per bu.
Oats—31½@33½c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 1094 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 5538 lbs.
EGGS—Shipped 17 crates, 27 bbls.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 18942 lbs.
WOOL—Shipped 19,612 lbs.
GRAIN—Shipped 2 cars.

Apples, ₱ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ₱ ℔	5 @	7
Butter, ₱ ℔	10@	12
Barley, ₱ bushel	50@	60
Beans, ₱ bushel	1,00@	1.30
Buckwheat ₱ bushel	50@	60
Buckwheat Flour, ₱ hundred	3,25@	3,50
Beef,—dressed, ₱ hundred	4,00 @	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ₱ ℔	@	10
Corn in ear	25@	28
Corn,—shelled ₱ bushel	45@	48
Clover Seed	3.50 @	4,00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₱ dozen	8@	10
Flour, ₱ barrel	6,00@	7,00
Hogs Dressed ₱ cwt	@	5,00
Hogs Live ₱ ℔	3 80@	3 85
Hay ₱ ton	5,00@	8,00
Hides, ₱ ℔	@	6½
Honey, ₱ ℔	@	12
Ham, ₱ ℔	@	9
Lard, ₱ ℔	@	8
Oats, ₱ bushel	25 @	30
Onions, ₱ bushel	1,50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₱ bushel	30 @	70
Salt, ₱ barrel	@	1,50
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1,25
Timothy Seed, ₱ bushel	@	3,00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ₱ cord	4 00@	4 00
Wheat, White, ₱ bushel	80@	85
Wheat, Red, ₱ bushel	85 @	87½
Wool, ₱ ℔	30@	35

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT.

Grain, Flour, Feed and Coal.

SLAYTON & SON

Are still at the old stand with a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled. Mohawk Valley Clipper (steel.)

"Leader" Spring Tooth Harrow.
Elwood, Robbins and Buckeye
CULTIVATORS.
"Springer" Spring Tooth Harrow, (on wheels.)

GRAIN DRILLS. { Buckeye. Farmer's Friend, Triumph.
THRESHERS, { The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines.

Rare Bargains in

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Lime, Water Lime, Salt, Cal. Plaster and Plastering Hair.

If you want anything in our line call and get prices before you buy.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

1880.

Harper's Young People

ILLUSTRATED.

The evils of sensational literature for the young are all well known, and the want of an antidote has long been felt. This is supplied by HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, a beautifully illustrated weekly journal, which is equally devoid of the objectionable features of sensational juvenile literature and of that moralizing tone which repels the youthful reader.

The volumes of the Young People begin with the first Number, published in November of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

INDUCEMENTS FOR 1880 ONLY.

☞ Thirteen Numbers of HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE will be furnished to every yearly subscriber to HARPER'S WEEKLY for 1880; or, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE and HARPER'S WEEKLY will be sent to any address for one year, commencing with the first Number of HARPER'S WEEKLY, for January, 1880, on receipt of $5 00 for the two Periodicals.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

N. W. AYER & SON
ADVERTISING AGENTS
TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA
Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.
Receive Advertisements for this Paper.
ESTIMATES at Lowest Cash Rates
Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't.

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not obliterated; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

THE CORNER GROCERY:
—OF—
WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders.

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS.

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

☞ Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

1880.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

"Studying the subject objectively and from the educational point of view—seeking to provide that which, taken altogether, will be of the most service to the largest number—I long ago concluded that, if I could have but one work for a public library, I would select a complete set of Harper's Monthly."—CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr.

Its contents are contributed by the most eminent authors and artists of Europe and America, while the long experience of its publishers has made them thoroughly conversant with the tastes of the public which they will spare no effort to gratify.

The Volumes of the Magazine begin with the Number for June and December of each year. When no time is specified, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to begin with the current Number.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4.00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

A complete set of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, comprising 50 Volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express, freight at expense of purchaser, on receipt of $2 21 per volume. Single volumes, by mail, postpaid, $3 00. Cloth cases, for binding, 38 cents, by mail, postpaid.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

"This popular periodical is pre-eminently a journal for the household.

Every Number furnishes the latest information in regard to Fashion in dress and ornament, the newest and most approved patterns, with descriptive articles derived from authentic and original sources; while its Stories, Poems and Essays on Social and Domestic Topics, give variety to its columns.

The Volumes of the Bazar begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4.00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7.00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S BAZAR, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twelve Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt tops, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

"The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications." Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and the half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town) a club of five orders we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes need will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.	American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 3 vols., $2.50.	Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.	Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.	Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $8.	Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.	Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.	Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.	Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Acme Library of Biography, 59 cents.	Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Book of Fables, Aesop, etc., illus., 50 cents.	Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.	Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.	Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.	Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.	Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.	Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.	Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, ... in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.

JOHN E. ALDEN, Manager.

AGENCIES: Boston, H. L. Hastings; Philadelphia, Leary & Co.; Cincinnati, Robert Clarke & Co.; Indianapolis, Bowen, Stewart & Co.; Cleveland, Ingham, Clarke & Co.; Toledo, Brown Eager & Co.; Chicago, Alden & Chadwick; in smaller towns, the leading Bookseller, only one in a place.

AMERICAN

AMERICAN ULTRAMARINE WORKS

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and
GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

☞ For Sale by all Grocers. ☜

American Ultramarine Works,
55 Maiden Lane, New York.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,
DETROIT, MICH.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,
SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,
GO TO THE
LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

☞ Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

P. J. WELLING,
Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFLICTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs.
Buffalo, New York.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees, fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. B. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Look Box 725, Washington, D. C.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, ... by $95.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—☞ Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

MALT
UNFERMENTED
MALT BITTERS
TRADE MARK
Malt Bitters Company
MALT AND HOPS
BITTERS

THIS INCOMPARABLE NUTRIENT is richer in Bone and Muscle producing Materials than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors. For difficult digestion, Sick Headache, Consumption, Emaciation, Mental and Physical Exhaustion, Nervousness, Want of Sleep, Ulcerative Weaknesses of Females, Exhaustion of Nursing Mothers, of the Aged, and of Delicate Children, MALT BITTERS are the purest, best, and most economical medicine ever compounded. Sold everywhere.

MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Tipton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI—NO 10. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 29, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1547.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

Over 30,000 Now in Use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE,

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

CLINTON.

Mr. Henry C. Owen, one of the oldest residents of this vicinity is dangerously ill.

Hub Smith lost another valuable horse yesterday.

A certain sign in front of a well known establishment in town is made to read "Lemmons 25 cents a dozen."

Freeze & Hause furnished ice cream on the train to the excursionists last Thursday, and G. W. Lewis peddled peanuts.

A political mass meeting was held last Sabbath in Day's grove, 3½ miles north-east of here, in Bridgewater.—An Ann Arbor man spoke the piece.

L. H. Salsbury, Esq., of Hudson, is to address the Hancock and English club at Town Hall, on Friday night, of this week, on the leading political issues of the day. All are invited.

In the article in last week's Clinton News, under the title of "Morality vs. Christianity," signed "E," "R," of a former communication to the same paper, in an attempt to say something which was justly compared to a little school boy's composition on "Kats," received a "literary broadside" over the mouth. Served him right Mr. "E". Slap him again.

RIDGEWAY.

Rev. and Mrs. Wood contemplate a trip to Chautauqua.

H. C. Wilson will take charge of an Iowa school the coming school year.

Our Clinton county friend reports about 10 bushels per acre as the average wheat crop for that section.

There will be a church social held at the M. E. parsonage to-morrow, Friday evening. General invitation.

We have been asked why the new matting has never been laid in the church? and it is a connundrum that we can't answer. Perhaps somebody can tell.

Mrs. Mary A. Barrett lost her pocket book between the Globe Mill and Ridgeway one day last week and the finder will be satisfactorily rewarded by leaving it with Geo. W. Clark & Son.

Bontecou gave a lecture at the M.E. church last Friday evening on temperance and the proposed constitutional amendment. At the close of which a subscription was taken which realized $32 for the furtherance of the cause. Had the lecture been well advertised, probably a much larger sum would have been raised.

Oliver Smith, son of C. F. Smith, aged 25 years, was buried on Tuesday, a victim of consumption. Decease leaves a wife and child. A son of Bradley Zibble was buried on the same day.

FRANKLIN.

Budd Hulett has decided to close up his grocery business here as soon as possible in order to return to Adrian and take charge of his father's business, which the ill health of the latter renders necessary. He has won a host of friends here, and his genial face will be missed. May success attend him in his new field of labor. A good opening will be afforded some enterprising man to engage in the same or some other business in the store he has occupied, and will doubtless soon be occupied.

Eugene Norcross met with a serious accident some two weeks since, by falling from a cherry tree, breaking his left arm below the elbow, but it is doing as well as could be expected.

We claim to have the champion grain binder, age considered, in the country. Uncle Perry Allen, aged 84 years, raked 45 dozens of wheat in a day, and of the hotest of the season at that. Next.

A Republican caucus is called for the 30th inst., to elect delegates to the county convention at Adrian in August.

A heavy storm passed over this locality Tuesday evening accompanied by the heaviest thunder of the season, but no damage reported.

Announcement Extraordinary.—To whom it may concern.—We propose, weather permitting, to take our first holiday since coming to Tipton, on Saturday next, and our patrons will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Harvest, with the exception of oats, is secured in splendid condition, and corn never looked more promising for an abundant crop than at present.

Mrs. H. H. Eby, of Wyandotte, and sister of Mrs. E. P. Peirce, and Miss Julia Ward, of Hudson, are visiting friends here.

The health of this community was probably never better than at present. Poor place for M. D's.

COLORADO LETTER.

Rusticating Among the Foot Hills of the Rocky Mountains.

"Camp Difficulty" on the Headwaters of the St. Vrain River.—July 16th, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:

You may have heard something about the "tyranny of fashion." I would not be surprised, if you had repeated to yourself or some admiring friend in your "vealy" days, the old stereotyped expression, "as well be out of the world as out of the fashion."—Indeed, the real motive which incites a large class of people to pursue certain courses of conduct, is not the necessity, nor the right or wrong of it, but its fashionableness. Most people manifest more regard for what Mrs. Grundy will say about them, than they do relative to God's estimate of their conduct. How many people omit to do what they know to be right, in order to engage in doing that which has nothing to recommend it except its fashionableness.

For instance, why do people consider it necessary to wear black clothing at the burial of their dead, and then continue the practice for months afterward? Is there any principle at the bottom of the practice? Not at all.—It is simply the fashion, to wear black as an external sign of inward grief.—And so poor people, in order to be in fashion, and manifest proper respect for a deceased friend, will deprive themselves of the plainest necessaries of life, in order that they may rig themselves out in a regulation suit of "deep mourning," so that outsiders may know there has been a death in the family. It is simply yielding a passive obedience to the old adage, "As well be out of the world as out of fashion."

At the East it is the fashion to spend a portion of every summer at some watering place. People who claim to be anybody, must spend a few days at least at Saratoga, Newport, Long Branch, or Niagara Falls, or else lose caste. It may not be convenient to go. Perhaps they cannot afford the expense. Possibly, the whole thing may be an intolerable bore to them. But it is the fashion, and so they must obey its behests, even at the sacrifice of their own personal enjoyment.

This same thing is done out here in Colorado, although the modus operandi is somewhat different. Instead of going to Saratoga or Newport as the eastern fashionables do, the high-toned Coloradan packs his "tenting outfit" and goes into the mountains to rough it for a few days. He makes up his party of congenial spirits, rigs up a good strong team and lumber wagon, loads his tent, plenty of thick blankets, and an abundant supply of commissary stores, with bags of feed for the horses or mules as the case may be, and then heads for the wildest part of the mountains which is accessible with a team. They do not aim to reach any particular point by any given time, but set up their tent at any time of day, and at any place which can furnish grass for the animals, and plenty of dry feul, and good water for man and beast. Here they may remain through the night, or for several days, as fancy may dictate. The cooking is done over a small fire built upon the ground, with three or four stones laid close enough to each other to support the coffee boiler and frying pan, a cast iron "bake kettle," answering in place of the cooking stove oven, for the baking of bread, which is mostly in the form of huge light biscuit of excellent quality. All kinds of canned fruits and vegetables are taken along, also canned beef, salmon, mackerel, chicken, etc., with a basis of smoked ham and bacon as the main reliance. The mountain streams are full of trout of excellent quality, while the woods abound in the cunning little "cotton tail rabbit," with a sprinkling of grouse, so that a camping party is really in no great danger of starvation.—When night closes in a huge camp fire of dry pitch pine logs is built a few feet in front of the open tent, around which the party sits until about ten o'clock, telling stories, singing songs, and having a jolly time generally; when the blankets are spread upon the ground, either in the tent or outside according to individual fancy, and soon all is silence where so recently the most uproarous jollity was in the ascendant.

You would be astonished to see how generally this practice or custom prevails here, and how much fun can be extracted from a few days devoted to this kind of wild life. And there is lots of health in it too. Even the tenderest invalids seldom take cold from this kind of exposure, but almost invariably gain strength with wonderful rapidity, bringing back from these camping excursions appetites which carry terror into the very heart of the culinary department at home.

Last Tuesday morning, in company with a round dozen of the members of his congregation, your correspondent started from his home in Longmont, Colo., with a full camping-outfit for a two weeks' excursion into the mountains. Our first point of destination was over the foot hills in a north easterly direction, through Antelope park to a point on the St. Vrain river about twenty miles from Longmont, where the mountain trout abound in such abundance as fairly to make your mouth water at the bare mention. It was the wildest route I have ever travelled over even in Colorado. It was either up hill or down all the way but more up than down, as our place of destination was more than one thousand feet higher than Longmont, our place of starting. I had made careful inquiries as to the safety of the road, and was assured that although some portions of it were "rather steep," the track was in good condition and no danger need be apprehended. And so we started, strong in the conviction that what has been done can be done again.

I suppose you think you have travelled over hills in Michigan. Nothing of the sort. You never saw a hill in your life. Come out here and go with me on a camping excursion into the foot hills of the Rocky Mountains, and you will learn what it means to travel over a hilly road. On the route to which I refer, the hills as a rule, are as steep as the roof of a building set in what carpenter's call three-fourth pitch, with places which are so nearly perpendicular that you need a spirit level to determine whether they have any slope or not. It is the only piece of road I have ever travelled over even in Colorado, where in going down the hills, you are compelled to hang heavy weights to the tails of the horses to prevent them from turning summersaults for the diversion of the driver.

But we reached our destination at last without any accident, and established our camp at the point where the bank of the river is nearly perpendicular, and the river bed lies fully three hundred feet below. It was fun alive to bring all the water needed by a party of fourteen persons, up this almost perpendicular bank. It was one of the wildest places I have ever been at, where we were surrounded with mountains which towered above us seemingly almost to the skies in every direction, miles from any human habitation, and with an altitude of more than six thousand feet above sea level. Here we remained from Tuesday evening until Friday morning, feasting on mountain trout, and gaining health and strength while breathing the purest air this side of heaven.

H. L. HAYWARD.

BOY DROWNED.

Adrian Times, July 26: A sad case of drowning occured in this city last evening.

Joseph Craighton, a boy eight years of age, son of Henry Craighton, who lives at No. 73 Locust street, had gone to take the cow to the pasture lot, by the river, next to the ice-house of Henry Bowen. He was accompanied by a lad of about his own age, named J. Alexander, who was the only witness of the sad occurrence. The boys were standing on the top of the old white mill dam. A sudden gust of wind blew young Craighton's hat into the water, and he at once waded out on a board to recover it. When only a few feet on the board, the boy went suddenly down, and was lost to view of his companion. Young Alexander immediately ran home and told his mother, who informed Craighton's parents. Mr. Craighton at once hastened to the scene, where by this time quite a large crowd had gathered. The body was finally rescued by Amil Bendell. The drowning must have occurred about six o'clock.

THE T. & M. RAILROAD.

The following significant item from last Monday's Adrian Times will furnish our enterprising (?) citizens with a little more "food for reflection:"

Mr. W. T. Lawrence has received a letter from Mr. Latcha, in which he speaks in the most flattering terms of the prospects of the road. The matter of local aid is the only thing that remains to be settled. Arrangements have been made, so Mr. Latcha says, for the iron for the road. He is anxious to know what Adrian and Blissfield will do, and Mr. Lawrence is going to Blissfield soon, to find out what can be done down there. The Blissfield people are anxious for the road. During a recent trip west, Mr. Lawrence saw several parties who are acquainted with the circumstances surrounding the enterprise, and they are confident of its success.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Adrian Press: During the thunder storm of Saturday night last, lightning struck a wind mill near the residence of Mr. N. B. Pierce near Weston, and shivered the parts badly. The concussion which followed shook the glass out of the windows of the house.

Morenci Observer: Peleg Lee, of the State line cheese factory, is now disbursing, on an average, $1,000 a week to his patrons. He is shipping 300 boxes of cheese to one party in Detroit, and that, with his other smaller orders, consumes his make of 33 cheese per day.

Morenci Observer: Arrangements are now being made for an immense grange meeting on the fair ground, at the time of our annual fair, in September next, to be addressed by one of the "big guns" of the order; and we see no reason why it should not be the largest gathering of farmers ever assembled in Southern Michigan. A committee of ladies are also preparing an attractive premium list for the children's department.

Blissfield Advance: A tramp, whose name we were unable to learn, was "pulled" by Deputy Wheeler on Sunday morning, on a charge of vagrancy and locked in the "cooler." At noon, as Barney went to give him his dinner, the door was found wide open and the bird flown. The door had been pried open by means of a piece of scantling, and the lock broken. That fellow probably never made better time than he did in getting out of Blissfield, and it is well for him that he did.

Clinton News: Can any one tell why young men who are always behindhand with their creditors can play billiards night and day, and always be ready for a game of cards when money is at stake? Can any one tell why four-fifths of the young women prefer a brainless fop under a plug hat, with loose pants and a short coat, to a man with brains? Can any one tell us why it is that some mothers are ready to sew for the heathen, when their children at home are ragged and dirty?

Clinton News: Rob Ellis found a queer specimen of a stone on the farm of William Silvers last Sunday. It was about eight inches in length by two inches wide, flat and tapering to a point, having over thirty notches of various sizes cut on the edges, and two round holes through the body of the stone. It is supposed to be an Indian's skinning knife, and By. Randall says the notches indicate the number of scalps taken by the owner, the size of the notches corresponding with the size of the scalps lifted. Ugh! Big Injun! Take heapee scalpee.

Hudson Post: Miss Ida McBean, daughter of Thomas McBean, of Wheatland, died at the residence of Mrs. Van Epps, in this village, last Sunday. She had been stopping with Mrs. Van Epps for the past six weeks, but being very low with consumption, her parents thought they would remove her home. They took her to the carriage, but the effort was too much, and seeing that she could not live but a short time, they carried her back into the house, and in about ten minutes she had breathed her last. She was about nineteen years old, and was a very estimable young lady.

Morenci Observer: Quite a sensation was produced one day last week by an alleged robbery at the residence of L. A. Norton, who lives on Mr. Cooley's farm in the north part of the township, by which a couple of horse dealers from Detroit claim to have lost $1,240. These men were stopping with Mr. Norton, and the night being very warm they slept in the barn and in the morning their money was missing, one of them being short $840 and the other $400. The case was at once reported to the authorities, and officer Jibb, with a deputy from Adrian, went to the place but failed to get any satisfactory trace of the robbers. There is supposed to be a mystery about the affair that time may solve.

Deerfield Record: A certain young man living not over a thousand miles from this village, had the conceit completely taken out of him recently. This young man is a fellow who talks a great deal with his mouth, and also has a tendency to boast a little of his personal qualifications. He was boasting at the time to a man from an Ohio city, of his good qualities as a card player, and intimated that he would like to play for money with some of the above city's sharpers. The aforesaid man told him that he could accommodate him, and they sat down to play. The result was the young man lost his money, but he cried and made such a terrible fuss that the city man gave him back his money.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE

A LOVE MATCH.

[illegible]

"Now, Mr. Lennox," [illegible] "Come in and [illegible]"

"Narcissa" [illegible] interrupted Lennox, [illegible]

[illegible] "Now don't look so glum, Lennox, [illegible]

"Nonsense! [illegible] Lennox, [illegible] "Nonsense, you should have been a boy," said Lennox.

"I wish I had! No, I don't either, for then you wouldn't have fallen in love with me. What made you think?" with a [illegible] and a [illegible] movement.

"Because you are so sweet, darling," [illegible] Ray, [illegible] "But I, for [illegible], Narcissa, you would [illegible] of those hoyden ways and be more dignified."

"Like Miss Isham?" asked Narcissa.

"Miss Isham is a very superior woman, and I would not have you be any her in some respects."

The same spring into Narcissa's eyes at the idea. They were like the [illegible] and Ray took a seat in a great armchair. Narcissa, giving her curls a toss backward, went and sat down.

"I wish you would put up those [illegible] and [illegible] your hair as other young ladies do," said Ray. "And see here, Narcissa, I want to have a talk with you. You know I love you, and in truth, my dear, my wife must have something of the magnetic in her dress sometimes. Your manners need polish, my dear. I came down to tell you this my sister Laura is visiting at Liberty to-day, the most [illegible] young person and she wishes you to be one of the bridesmaids."

"Are you going?" asked Narcissa.

"No, my business will not allow me, but I shall see you several times. Will you go?"

"I don't want to go. The matron may look at the country and [illegible] country ever day."

"Narcissa, I must insist upon more self-control," said he, [illegible]

"The fact" [illegible] the [illegible] girl.

[illegible]

The summer-bell rang in the distance, and Narcissa hastily exclaimed, "[illegible] to the gate, Lennox," and ran out of the room and up stairs to her own chamber.

"Yes, I'll go. And I'll teach you one lesson, Mr. Lennox. Have an I'll teach," she muttered.

It was nearly the middle of September, [illegible] the Ray homestead, [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] was [illegible] Narcissa.

"Lennox" [illegible] said she.

"Yes, Miss Narcissa."

"We were in the parlors talking with a French Count, a moment ago. [illegible] is at the door."

"Ah," said Lennox, [illegible] the way toward the door.

Ray's face [illegible] when he drew near to see if the stranger, whose hair was [illegible] was [illegible] Little Narcissa of three months ago.

Lennox stood up with a [illegible] the bewildered family to which she was [illegible] and held out his hand with an eager exclamation.

"Narcissa!"

She made him a sweeping courtesy, and hesitatingly extended the tip of her fingers, but not a muscle moved her proud white countenance with well-[illegible] politeness.

"Ah, [illegible], Mr. Ray."

"Narcissa! are you glad to see me?" [illegible] Lennox, feeling that the hand was applied within him.

"Oh, to be sure, Mr. Ray, quite glad. Allow me to present my friend, the Count de Beauregard. Mr. Ray, Monsieur."

Lennox merely bowed to him, [illegible] Parisian, and offered his arm to Narcissa.

[illegible]

A LOVE MATCH.

[illegible]

"Thanks—but [illegible] and I [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible]"

[illegible] coming [illegible]

"But I am engaged to Mr. Lennox."

"Then, then I'[illegible] [illegible] with a jealous pang.

"[illegible] I will [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible]

"Good heavens! [illegible] [illegible]

"Perhaps, if [illegible]

And without the [illegible] of her [illegible] she walked away with [illegible] Stanford.

Lennox sought his sister.

"Laura, have [illegible] changed [illegible]"

"Yes, she has changed. Isn't she perfect?"

"Perfect." Rather too perfect perhaps, [illegible] Lennox. "Perhaps I shall see more of Virginia," he thought.

[illegible] and "this elegant Miss Irving," as they styled her, was always in demand and poor Lennox, [illegible] as which she kept him, [illegible] in [illegible] turn-around, varying between wrath, jealousy, pride and despair.

"Narcissa," said he one morning, when he found her in a moment's [illegible] "Thank heaven [illegible]"

"I believe you wished me to [illegible] have to engagement ring [illegible] Mr. Ray," [illegible] she said coldly.

"But, Narcissa—"

"Well, if you are not pleased, with the result of your own advice, I am not to blame. You must excuse me now, Mr. Ray. I am going to ride with the Count de Beauregard."

And with a graceful gesture of adieu, she left him sick at heart.

That afternoon Lennox walked unannounced into Laura's room.

"I thought I'd drop in and say good-by before you went down stairs," said he. "I have to-night."

"Indeed! Where are you going?" asked Laura.

"O, I don't know. I was in strange mood."

"You can take a note to Georgie for me?"

"Yes, if you get it ready," said he.

"Very well. I will write it now."

Laura left the room, and Lennox stood moodily at the window. Presently Narcissa came in and stood beside him.

"Are you really going away?" she asked.

"Yes, I am," was the short answer.

"And won't you tell us where?"

"I don't know myself—neither know nor care," he growled.

She sighed her [illegible] in the [illegible] with the old [illegible] movement. In remembrance of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] be [illegible]

"But, Lennox, don't you go [illegible] of [illegible]? What [illegible]"

The [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] to his heart.

"Oh, Narcissa, Narcissa!" he cried, passionately. "If you would only come back to me and love me!—I would be never my own treasure. I would not go [illegible]

[illegible]

She laid her head upon his shoulder and sobbed.

"Lennox, can tell my whole [illegible] [illegible] the Count [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]"

"O, Narcissa, darling!" [illegible] "I couldn't give up [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a Specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REVITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel,) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

9 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN.—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FARM FOR SALE—A good farm of 40 acres situated in Macon, 1 mile north and 3 miles east of Ridgeway. Good buildings, 30 acres improved and well fenced, ten acres good timber, small young orchard, within 80 rods of a school house and one-half mile of Macon church. For sale cheap. For particulars enquire of Samuel Sample, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

A kid-napping case—a cradle.

An old theatre goer—Red paint.

System is twin-sister to success.

What does the pupil of the eye study?

Runaway pigs were the first American pen-shunners.

All the citizens of the Hub think their city is the Bostown.

A gambler has several in decks fingers on each hand.

A faint heart never won a fair lady, but a faint whisper often catches her.

It is strange, but true, that a horse can eat better when he hasn't a bit in his mouth.

The spots on the sun do not begin to create the disturbance as do the freckles on the daughter.

Conumdrum—Why do men feel so much more like footing the bill collector than in footing the bill itself?

Cabinet makers in Illinois are kept busy making furniture once owned and used by Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Edison is always found in his shirt sleeves, so we presume the remainder of the garment is in the wash.

Politeness is like an air cushion—there may be nothing solid in it, but it eases the jolts of the world wonderfully.

A young lady, who had studied all the "ologies," wants to know if the crack of a rifle is where they put the powder in.

They have a race-horse out west called "Chicago Girl." Of course the horse-shoer has a double-rate price for shoeing it.

A Boston artist is credited with having painted an orange peel on the sidewalk so natural that six fat men slipped down on it.

"What on earth takes you off to the stable so early every morning lately?" asked a woman of her husband.—"Curry hossity."

"Soldiers must be fearfully dishonest," said Mrs. Partington. "It seems to be an occurrence every night for a sentinel to be relieved of his watch."

"There, that explains where my clothes-line went to!" exclaimed an Iowa woman, as she found her husband hanging in the stable.

The legs of St. Louis policemen are so crooked that a revolver accidentally discharged in the hip pocket may wound each leg three times.

A bottle has been thrown ashore by the sea containing a document which purports to have been written by Noah. It is probably a hoax.

"Do you sit up for an angel, now?" she asked; "your visits are so few and far between." "No!" he answered, "but an angel sits up for me."

"Isn't your husband a little bald?" asked one lady of another, in a store, recently. "There isn't a bald hair in his head," was the hasty reply of the wife.

A Frenchman who attended a fox hunt was asked where the meet came off. He had been thrown, so, he replied that it came off his hands and knees.

A Kansas boy earned a nice Bible by committing three hundred verses to memory, but he traded his Bible for a shot-gun and accidentally peppered his aunt in the leg.

There are two kinds of oranges grown in this country; one is the kind that is good to eat, and the other is the kind that is sold on the railroad trains.

A St. Louis rich man drew up a will which was so pathetically worded that it moved all his relatives to tears. It left all his property to an orphan asylum.

It is a read-letter day for a man when his wife goes on a piscatorial expedition into his coat pockets, and fishes up a note written in a strange feminine hand.

An unfortunate Indianapolis man, who lost several toes by a car wheel, was consoled by an Irishman near by with: "Whist, there, you're making more noise than many a man I'v seen with his head off."

Let Up—Take a Rest!

If you want to start on a very cheap and enjoyable tour in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and no "extras," write to

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Agt., Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

ONLY CHRISTIANS

John Wesley was once troubled in regard to the disposition of the various sects, and the chances of each in reference to future happiness or punishment. A dream one night transported him in his unconscious wanderings to the gates of hell.

"Are there any Roman Catholics here?" asked thoughtful Wesley.

"Yes."

"Any Presbyterians?"

"Yes."

"Any Congregationalists?"

"Yes," was again the answer.

"Any Methodists?" by way of a clincher, asked the pious Wesley.

"Yes," was answered to his great indignation.

In the mystic way of dreams, a sudden transition, and he stood at the gates of heaven. Improving his opportunity, he again enquired:

"Are there any Roman Catholics here?"

"No," was replied.

"Any Presbyterians?"

"No."

"Any Congregationalists?"

"No."

"Any Methodists?"

"No."

"Well, then," he asked, lost in wonder, "who are they inside?"

"Christians!"

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world-wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost, or regular size for $1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Godey's Lady's Book for August

Comes to us full of fresh, breezy matter, a welcome guest upon a midsummer day. From Darley's exquisite picture to the eagerly sought chitchat on fashion it is full of interest, and the closest scrutiny will fail to find one dull page. The fashions are so numerous that every taste must meet with its own requirements, in preparing summer wardrobes for home or the resorts of travellers in the hot season. Seaside costumes and mountain dresses, the simplicity of country dress, or the elaborate toilet of the watering place belle, can all be modelled from the illustrations given in Godey, and the clear directions accompanying them. The literary matter is rich and varied, containing sparkling stories and exquisite poetry from the pens of such popular writers as Estelle Thomson, Christian Reid, James B. Marshall, S. Annie Shields, Caroline Merighi, and others. In every department there is to be found matter valuable to the fair sex, for whom the magazine is especially intended, and we are sure our opinion will be indorsed by every reader of the beautiful number before us.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

ALL who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard Lake.

Met by chants—The church choir.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED

BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It is NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO.

PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A

TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

Dr. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMESON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this Dye. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES

KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. H. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "it is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABON, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY? BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best

KIDNEY

INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., (61 Jefferson Ave.,) DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yard corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848.

ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts. PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

38 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL," and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

MILK SAFES!

I have a few Milk Safes on hand which I will sell at Cost for the Next Thirty Days. Also,

Bedsteads, Bureaus & Stands

of all kinds. Kitchen Tables, leaf and extension.

Best Kiln Dried Extension Tables

At Panic Prices.

Give me a call. Shop at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD CALDWELL.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Silver Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry,

Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Evening.

BY S. C. STACY,

Office in the NEW HERALD BUILDING, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One year, Cash in advance.....$1.50
Six Months, " 75
Four Months, " 50

Twenty-Five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES:

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births, and Death Notices free.

Rates on General Advertising, or term contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents' names are invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 29, 1880.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

A convention will be held in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, August 14th, 1880, at 11 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Detroit, August 17th next, and also to choose delegates to the Congressional Convention, to be held at Manchester, August 24th next. Each township and ward will send six delegates to this convention; Hudson is entitled to eight delegates. All citizens irrespective of past party differences, who can unite with us in an effort for pure constitutional government and administrative reform, or who favor the election of General Hancock to the office of President of the United States, are cordially invited to join in sending delegates to this convention.

By order of the County Committee,

W. S. GARDNER, Chairman.

H. D. HULL, Secretary.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

Returns from the West.

Philadelphia Times, (Ind.)—A democratic politician has arrived at Washington all the way from California with the returns of the next elections in the Pacific States in his pocket.—Strangely enough they are all for Hancock. These are the very first returns in except those brought a day or two ago from the same States by General Dumont, steamboat inspector, who found that all the Pacific States had gone for Garfield.

The Way Out for Garfield.

A rural voter writes as follows to one of the leading journals. From the tenor of his letter, we fear that General Hancock cannot count on his assistance: "Garfield is my candidate and he gets my vote. A man who drives a mule on a tow-path shows he's not stuck up, and that's the kind of man we want for President. When he is elected and draws his first month's salary he will pay the $329 for which he got credit in Mobile and about which the Democrats are making such a fuss."

Not a Political General.

Washington Post, (Dem.)—In the fall of 1864, during the campaign of Lincoln and McClellan, the officers and soldiers indulged in pretty free discussions of the conduct of the war on the part of the administration.—Hancock issued a general order, which was read to every regiment, commanding that all this should cease.—"Our first duty," he said, in substance, "is to stop the rebellion, not to talk.—When the war is over you can criticise as much as you like. Until then, a soldier's duty is to obey and fight."

A Split in Ohio.

Cincinnati Enquirer.—The Republicans of Cuyahoga County are indulging in the luxury of a split. Ex-Mayor Rose was the popular candidate for the nomination for Congress, and Mr. Townsend was said to be out of the way. Mr. Townsend, however, recently determined to run for a third term, although it is claimed he agreed to quit with two terms when Rose turned up a formidable opponent to his first renomination. The convention was held yesterday, and Townsend was nominated for the third time, but the Rose men bolted and are now in open rebellion. The Republican papers of Cleveland, it is reported, will be on opposite sides of the question. There is a rupture which cannot be healed, and there is considerable alarm on account of the probable effect on the National ticket.

Ill-Judged Reflections on Hancock.

Penn Monthly Notes, (Rep.)—That General Hancock has been a soldier and nothing but a soldier, that he was dedicated to this life at the very baptismal fount and has pursued it thro' his whole lifetime, may be very properly alleged in proof of his lack of the political experience which should be possessed by the President of the Republic. But we must protest against the use made of these facts by some of our Republican contemporaries. It is no disgrace to have been educated by the nation at West Point, nor is an American soldier to be sneered at as one who "never earned a day's bread." Equally absurb and unfair is it to speak of him as one who has lived off the nation, as though he had given no fair equivalent for his pay. It is true that some low Democratic papers have spoken of the army and its officers in this way, and if they are worth the powder, it may not be out of place to ask them to eat their words. But such language is not fit for Republican mouths. The party has always honored the army and recognized its sterling services.

FOR THE HERALD.

CONFIDENCE SHARPERS.

BY A NEW YORK DETECTIVE.

A class of swindlers known as "Banco men" have flourished here for the past eight or ten years, and during that time have counted among their victims judges, physicians, ministers of the gospel, and the wealthier classes of business men and farmers, who have had occasion to visit the metropolis on business, or otherwise. That they continue to exist and secure large sums of money from their unsuspecting dupes, in spite of the police, can be better understood by glancing at their modus operandi, which is as follows:

For instance, a merchant from the west comes to New York, stops at a hotel, and after breakfast starts out for the day's purchases. He is met by a well dressed gentlemen, who grasps him warmly by the hand and says, "How are you Mr. Brown; when did you leave Wisconsin?" The gentleman addressed, who happens to be Mr. Green, from Iowa, states these facts, whereupon the well dressed gentlemen apologizes profusely for having made such a mistake, and takes his departure. Mr. Green then continues his walk, and in a few moments is stopped by another well-dressed gentleman who takes him by the hand, and this time addresses him by his proper name, at the same time introducing himself as the son of a prominent citizen of Iowa, with whom Mr. Green is acquainted, but perhaps not intimately, and being pleased and flattered by the circumstance of having met such a nice gentleman from his own state, falls into an easy conversation, which being taken advantage of by his new found friend, leads to the discovery of the town Mr. Green is from, what brings him on here, and in fact everything pertaining to his visit.

The reader will understand, at this point, that the two well dressed gentlemen are pals or associates, and that after the first one had secured their intended victims name and address, the information was at once given to number two, who then began operations with the above result. The first point is now secured, inasmuch as they have obtained Mr. Green's confidence. He is informed, by his new friend, that he has drawn a valuable prize, and begs Mr. Green to go with him and have it cashed, giving as a reason for Mr. Green's presence, that he will receive fair dealing at the hands of the "Company" if accompanied by a gentleman of his imposing appearance.—To this proposition Mr. Green readily assents, after being assured the transaction will not occupy over fifteen minutes; and wishing to appear courteous to his friend from Iowa, accompanies him to the place.

He is taken to a side street and is ushered into a fine looking house, which is usually situated in a first-class locality. Once inside he is introduced to a number of other well dressed gentlemen, and if he is inclined to make merry is immediately taken to the sideboard where he can help himself to all the liquor he desires. The more the better for their purposes.

Well, the prize is cashed, a game is introduced, and Mr. Green's friend tries his luck and wins, and then Mr. Green is induced to try his luck, which turns out successfully, and it needs but little persuasion to induce him to try again and again, increasing the sum risked each time, until the final turn deprives him of all the money he has. He is then prevailed upon to make an effort to recover his money, they suggesting to him to draw his check for the amount, which of course he loses.

When they have managed to get all they can out of him, he is permitted to leave; and realizing the fact that he has been swindled hurries to the nearest telegraph office and forbids the payment of his checks, and feeling a relief in having saved that amount, (which sometimes aggregates hundreds of dollars,) returns to the hotel for reflection. The first thought is of the police, but no, says Green, that will not do, for if I make a complaint my friends will hear of it, and my reputation will suffer. I have saved my checks, and I will simply say I lost the money out of my pocket.

After the object of his visit to the city is accomplished, he returns home and proceeds to the bank to see if they have heard anything from his checks on which he had ordered payment stopped. Yes, the checks have been forwarded by a N. Y. Collection Agency, and Mr. Green is threatened with immediate suit if they are not honored. Being thus placed he scarcely knows what to do, for if a suit is begun his townsmen will brand him as a gambler, and besides, his credit in N. Y. and elsewhere will be seriously impaired; and on the other hand, if he is compelled to meet the payment of the checks his financial condition will be crippled, if not entirely ruined, and in this dilemma he decides upon opening negotiations with the aforesaid Agency.

After a good deal of blaster, on the part of the Agency, Mr. Green effects a compromise and settles, vowing the next time he is approached by a stranger he will have his wits about him and not be led into any such schemes.

The question naturally arises, why are these men permitted to ply their nefarious calling? The answer is very simple. In the first place victims will not make a charge against them for the reasons given in Mr. Green's case, and in the event of a complaint being made to the police the birds have flown; for as often as they fleece a victim, they move their headquarters, and the unlimited number of handsomely furnished unoccupied rooms in this city afford them every facility for a speedy and safe transfer from place to place.

MORAL.—Beware of well dressed strangers who approach you in a city.

DR. TANNER'S FAMILY HISTORY.

Philadelphia Times: Tanner, the starvation man, is an odd sort of a genius in almost every particular.—He has been reported to be a bachelor, but it now seems that he was once married and is now a divorced man. The specialty of incompatibility between himself and the lady of his choice appears to have been as to the menu. The Spratt family, who have been traditionally and poetically handed down to fame, found marital comfort in diversity of tastes. Had the Tanners been willing to live as the Spratts did domestic joy might have permanently crowned their loving career. But their diverse tastes led to personal disagreement. Tanner wanted his wife to live according to his bill of fare. He would have nothing for breakfast, warm it up for dinner, and serve the cold remains for tea.—There was not enough of the spiritual about Mrs. T. to make her content with such a diet. She wanted pie and cheese, doughnuts and cabbage, crullers and corned beef, pickles and chestnuts, and many other things so indigestible as to be fit only for an ostrich. To see her eat these things made Tanner abhor her. She became cross and bilious and grunty, and was all the time complaining of being sick and wanting Tanner to cure her. Instead of taking his prescriptions and obeying his advice she kept on stuffing herself, possibly thinking that she ought to make up for her husband's omissions in the matter of taking food. This exasperated Turner, for above all other things he hated to see a woman stuff herself and then complain of being sick. So he got a divorce from her, and that was the end of their married life. It is worthy of note that another woman has now written to him offering to become his wife.

REV. IRA C. BILLMAN.

A report having obtained circulation that Rev. Ira C. Billman of Jackson had refused to live with his wife and had abandoned his family, a correspondent of the Adrian Times states the real facts in the case thus:

Rev. Ira C. Billman, for causes which one of the finest legal advisers of our city has said, "were sufficient grounds for divorce," has been forced to separate from his wife, but he has not abandoned his family to the support of friends.

The $25 mentioned as "raised" was paid by Mr. Billman's order to his wife, by the trustees of the church, from salary due him.

One week ago Saturday, "not two" Mr. Billman failed to fulfil his engagement in Flint, by missing the train that would take him there in time.

The trustees of the church, much as they deplore the necessity that led to the separation, fully sustain their esteemed pastor, whose uniform kindness and christian bearing has endeared him to the hearts of all.

After a short vacation they expect him to resume his labors among them, and carry forward the good work he has so successfully began.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The number for August contains a vast amount of entertaining and instructive reading. N. Robinson has an admirable article descriptive of the "Passion Play" at Obbrammergau, with twelve illustrations; George J. Hagar on "Some Remarkable American Women, at the Bar, in the Pulpit and on the Stage," with seventeen portraits and illustrations. "What the Japanese Eat," by Edward Gray; "Cameo-Cutting," "Mont Blanc and the Matterhorn," "A Soap-Bubble," by John A. Bower, etc., etc., are excellent articles, profusely illustrated. Etta W. Pierce's interesting story, "Not Guilty," is continued, and the numerous short stories and sketches are by popular writers of unusual merit. Address, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York.

Turkey, with all her weakness, has a tremendous capacity for keeping the diplomacy of Europe in fermentation. The Russian press, just now, is quite aggressive in urging the blotting out of this old effete empire. One paper, the Molva, asserts that all the powers, save Germany and Austria, are favorable to a plan for its accomplishment. It really looks as though the last days of the "sick man" were at hand.

THE Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake entered during the last year 97 Cadets, representing ten States. To secure such patronage in three years proves that only thorough work is done there.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN TONIC BLOOD PURIFIER

DIFFERS from all other preparations in its IMMEDIATE ACTION upon the

Liver, Kidneys and Blood.

Composed of the choicest Herbs, Roots and Extracts. Cures Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Cancers, Cancerous Humors, Pimples on the Face, Scurvy, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all disease arising from an impure state of the Blood. Malaria, Fevers, etc.

For "Nervous Debility," "Lost Vitality," "Urinary Diseases," and "Broken Down Constitutions," "I challenge the 19th century" to produce its equal.

Every Bottle is Worth its Weight in Gold

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN MILK CURE,

The only Medicine of the Kind in the World.

A Substitute for Cod Liver Oil.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Bleeding-Lungs, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, leading to Consumption. Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Cures Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Malarial Fevers, Sick Head-Aches, Chills and Fever, Constipation, &c. Price 25 cents per box.

SMOKE

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN

CATARRH AND ASTHMA CURE.

An infallable cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and Asthma. Sweetens the breath and produces the most delightful sensation while, and after smoking it. Try it. Price 50 cents per box.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,

122 Liberty St., New York.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.

(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED.

HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 18 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 2½ per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

G. T. Lewis & Menzies Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

CENTAUR

Always Cures and never Disappoints The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

USED ALL THE YEAR ROUND!

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA,

—FOR—

LIVER COMPLAINT

—AND—

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use (even) to be the foundation for Sick in the Side or Back, Pimples on the Face, and all Diseases from a disordered blood. Thousands take it and give it to others. Physicians prescribe it. Those who use it recommend it to others. It is and cannot hurt a constitution. It is medicine in the bowels. It is sold druggists at one bottle, or six bottles for $5 dollars.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers.

DETROIT, MICH. AMHERSTBURG, ONT.

We Call Attention

To our Superb Stock of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

We will Close Out

ALL SUMMER GOODS

AT COST!

For One Week.

W. J. KIES

The Cash Clothier.

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

N. B.---Remember----We Mean Cost.

BAXTER

Can Boot any one in the County.

BAXTER

Can shoe any lady of any age.

BAXTER

Can and will suit everyone on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

I have just received the first fall invoice of Heavy and Fine MEN'S BOOTS.

Call for the

Rockland Ditching Boot,

At Lee's old stand.

BAXTER.

I Have 12 Milk Safes

That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.

A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A GOOD BARGAIN.

For sale cheap a good buggy and single harness. For particulars, enquire at McCOWEN'S FURNITURE STORE.

FOUND.

On July 23, 1880, a small sum of money in a pocket book. The same can be obtained by paying the charges. Apply at HERALD OFFICE.

TOWNSHIP CAUCUS.

A caucus will be held in the Council Building in the village of Tecumseh, on Friday, Aug. 6th, 1880, at 2 o'clock P.M., to choose six delegates to attend the Democratic County Convention to be held at Adrian on Saturday, Aug. 7th, 1880; and also six delegates to attend the Representative Convention hereafter to be called. All citizens irrespective of past party differences who favor the election of General Hancock, are invited to join in this caucus.
BY ORDER OF TOWN COMMITTEE.

FARM HAND WANTED.

A good farm hand can find employment by inquiring at the HERALD OFFICE.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets,

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

THE Rev. J. A. McElwain, of Manchester, will fill the pulpit of the M. E. church next Sunday morning and evening.

THERE will be a business meeting of the Erie Archery Club at the residence of Rufus Raymond on Saturday eve., July 31st. By order of Ex. Com.

THE Adrian Band remained over at Toledo on their return from Put-in-Bay and played for a big Democratic Mass Meeting. The excursion replenished their treasury to the amount of about $50.

DR. HAUSE and Gertie arrived home last Tuesday noon. They were much pleased with their trip, enjoying fine weather on the lakes and visiting all the places of interest in the northern part of the state.

DURING the storm Tuesday the lightning shattered a large tree in front of Jas. Hunt's house, it then very expeditiously and obligingly run around the corner of the house and struck a peach tree, throwing splinters into Dr. Hause's yard.

A Card.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Doke wish to extend their thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted them in their recent affliction.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our gratitude to the friends and neighbors who have so kindly rendered us their aid and sympathy in our recent affliction. We would especially tender our sincere thanks to the physicians, Oakley and Howell, who so faithfully watched over our loved one during his last illness.

MRS. MARY A. COLLINS & FAMILY.
Macon, July, 1880.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH CLUB.

In pursuance of the call of the committee, the democratic voters of the township of Tecumseh met last Thursday evening at the Opera House for the purpose of organizing a Hancock and English club. There was a good attendance and they went to work in a business like manner to organize the club.

Hon. Jno. J. Adam was placed in the chair, and a committee appointed to make nominations for the different officers of the club.

Mayor Stacy of Adrian was then called upon for a speech. He made some pertinent and vivacious remarks, encouraging the young democratic voters to enter the present campaign with vim and zeal to accomplish their purpose. Seth Bean Esq., of Adrian, followed with an enthusiastic speech, reviewing the characteristics of the different parties and their candidates.

After the speeches the committee submitted the following report:

For President—Wm. Hayden.

Vice Presidents—Alfred James, Jno. J. Adams, W. R. Wooden, D. McNair, Jehiel Davidson, Will D. Robbins, Geo. N. Stacy, Jno. W. Benedict, J. W. DePuy, W. B. Keyser.

Secretary—Fred B. Wood.

Treasurer—A. B. Cotton.

Finance Com.—The Treasurer, H. H. Keyser, M. L. Root.

The nominations were greeted with applause and heartily elected. The club started with a membership of about 200. It will hold weekly meetings and tend to campaign matters in this township.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. JULY 29, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

PEACHES and cream.

J. S. STRONG has arrived home from his Ohio trip.

WEB ANDERSON is confined to his house by sickness.

J. C. ECCLES and family returned from the East last Tuesday.

J. H. MILLS and wife arrived home from an extended trip east last week.

THE Republican County Convention will be held at Adrian on Monday next.

WM. TOTTEN started to-day for Petoskey. Hope he will have a good time.

Do not forget the games of base ball to-morrow and Saturday. They will be the best of the season.

J. G. ROBERTS has been quite sick for several days but is now on the gain, and will be out again soon.

THE Wabash St. Louis and Pacific company decided at their meeting in St. Louis to lease the Butler road.

LAST week's Clinton News plainly shows that the stuffed club of the fool killer has not visited Clinton lately.

MISS GRACE DEWOLF returned last Monday from Detroit where she has been visiting for the past two weeks.

MRS. MARIA L. SPAFFORD has been bedridden for a number of days in a critical condition. She is now improving.

GEO. A. KIES, a brother of Will J. Kies, is about entering into partership with Will, in the clothing business in this village.

THE State Military Board, at their session yesterday, purchased 300 pairs of pants and 200 coats. They will be distributed at camp.

MISS HATTIE LITCHFIELD, who has been visiting in Tecumseh for the past two months, returned to her home in Salamanca, N. Y. yesterday. Come again.

C. W. GOODRICH, wife and daughter after spending a few days with friends here in Tecumseh, returned to their home in St. Joseph county last Monday.

LEW BATES has taken Betts' milk route and will hereafter run the milk business. One thing is certain, you will never find Lew's milk cans under the pump.

MR. A. G. BURTON, of Clinton, shipped an elegant top carriage to Chicago last week. This speaks well for Burton's manufactory and for Clinton industries.

CAMPAIGN clubs wishing portraits of the presidential candidates for frames or transparencies, of any size, will do well to write, or call on L. F. Wheeler of this place, who will fill all orders promptly and furnish first class portraits in colors or white and black.

THE Detroit excursionists last Thursday had a good time. But we fear if Tecumseh had not sent nearly half of them that Clinton would have been considerably out of pocket.—There was a vote taken on the train which resulted in 78 for Hancock and 99 for Garfield.

WE see in the report of the Ann Arbor Argus of the Circuit Court proceedings that Mrs. Gwinner, of Manchester was granted a decree of divorce from Orin B. DeWolf. We have nothing to say, but emphatically call upon Mr. DeWolf to give us a satisfactory explanation or to proceed to deliver the State from the affliction of Ann Arbor reporters.

Kalamazoo Telegraph: It is by competent authority stated the needs of the encampment will be 1,800 loaves of daily bread, 1,800 pounds of meat, 140 gallons of milk, 30 bushels of potatoes, 100 pounds of butter, 60 pounds of coffee, and quantities of other supplies. The number of plates, cups and saucers, knives and forks, etc., for 1,800 men will be needed, but the crockery, it is said, will be purchased at the pottery in Ohio.

The Republicans of Tecumseh held their convention Tuesday afternoon and elected the following delegates to the county convention to be held at Adrian next Monday: W. C. Fitzsimmons, A. D. Hall, H. C. Conkling, B. P. Anderson, Robert Cairns, and Hiram Raymond. An expression of the meeting was taken as regards their choice for congressional nominee which resulted about equally for Childs, Rynd, Boies and W. C. Fitzsimmons.

THE "boss" left us last Tuesday noon for the rest of the week. We don't exactly know why he departed so suddenly but we infer the reason.—Just before he left he opened up a list of the judges of the coming county fair lying on his table, and everything kept the quiet tenor of their ways until his eyes met the following: "Division 14.—Ambrotypes and Photographs—Judges, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Stacy." This was too much, he collapsed. Grabbing his hat he started for the depot, and as he was quickly disappearing at the door we heard him mutter, "I am going to the Sunday School Convention at Lansing."

At the county convention of the liquor dealers of Lenawee county held at Hudson, July 26th, Henry Holderman, of Tecumseh, was chosen as one of the delegates to the State Convention at Lansing. The purpose of the organization is to obtain influence in the legislature by which means the tyrannical license law will be abolished." 'Tis sad 'twere ever thus.

Adrian Times: We understand that scarlet fever has developed in the family of Mr. Joseph Dennison. One of his twin children, about three years of age, died last night, and his son is said to be ill. The little one was only sick about twenty-four hours, and was dead before the parents dreamed that danger was imminent. Their many friends will sympathize with them in their loss.

Adrian Times: Harry Stearns aged 10, a son of Ald. Willard Stearns, while at the picnic held by the Baptist Sunday school, in the grove near the Stone & Medick farm, yesterday afternoon, met with a serious accident. He was swinging by a rope which the larger boys had put up for their sport. Harry missed his hold and fell violently to the ground. He fell on his arms both of which were broken just above the wrist, one of them being fractured in two places.

The bill of fare at the coming state encampment will be as follows: Breakfast—Tea and coffee, sugar and milk, beef steak, potatoes, hom-bread, sausage, butter, salt pork, crackers and pickles. Dinner—Tea and coffee, sugar and milk, roast beef, roast mutton, boiled ham, butter, boiled corn beef, pork and beans, boiled rice, potatoes, bread, crackers, pickles, and one additional vegetable. Supper—Tea and coffee, sugar and milk, cold roast beef, hot potatoes, corned beef, bread, boiled ham, crackers, pork and beans, butter and pickles. Soldiers who growl at this "grub" will be soused in the swill barrel.

SEATON W. ANDERSON has now one of the neatest and most convenient residences in Lenawee county. He moved into it several weeks ago but not until last week was the finishing touch put on. The wood work which was superintended by Mr. Crane had long since been completed, the windows and screen doors had been set in their places, the grounds about the place had all been graded and fixed in suitable style to compare with the residence, everything was complete, and yet something was lacking, viz., a male heir to the estate. Last week the gentleman arrived and now all are happy.

A STRANGE PHENOMENON.

A strange phenomenon appeared in Tecumseh last Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock in the evening persons living on the streets south of Logan and east of Union St. heard a peculiar noise resembling the blowing off of steam from a boiler, but looking around them they could find no cause for the noise until they happened to notice that large drops of rain were falling above Union St. The rain fell so fast and heavily that the water was running off the middle of the roads and it was impossible to see through the storm. People a block below watched the storm 3 minutes before it reached them. So we no longer doubt the story of the rain storm and the fast horse.

But the strangest part of it was that it was seemingly a storm without a cloud and that the line of demarkation between the section where the rain fell and did not, was plainly visible. One part of Merchants block was dripping with water, while the other part was perfectly dry. In the same way Mr. Morse's house was soaked with the storm of about 20 minutes duration and Mr. Larned's house, not over 4 rods north had not received a drop.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' REUNION.

A meeting was held at the council chamber on Tuesday evening, pursuant to call, to organize for the Reunion to be held at Tecumseh, August 21st. It was decided to ask our citizens generally to assist in entertaining the veterans on that occasion, and the opinion was generally expressed that the various committees would as usual meet with hearty co-operation on the part of our people. Committees of arrangements were appointed as follows:

Finance—Comrades A. W. Slayton, John McKinney, and Wm. DeMott.

Banquet—Comrades H. W. Stevens & wife, H. E. Stout and wife, Mrs. Wm. Tilton, and Mrs. Hudson Conkling. This committee is authorized to add to their number as shall be deemed necessary or expedient.

Reception—Comrades W. C. Fitzsimmons, A. W. Mills, F. J. Landgraf.

Procuring Speaker—Comrade G. W. Westerman.

Engaging Hall—W. C. Jordon, James Moir.

Vocal Music—Messrs. J. S. Strong, R. B. House and H. C. Conkling.

Band—Comrades A. A. Kennedy, J. Davidson and H. S. Lee.

It is expected that the several committees will immediately set about the duty assigned them and have everything in order at an early day. Let Tecumseh sustain her time honored reputation for hospitality and superb entertainment on this occasion.

W. C. FITZSIMMONS, Pres. Ass'n.

DETROIT EXCURSIONISTS.

Mrs. Abbie Fisher left at this office "Among the Clouds," a paper published on the summit of Mt. Washington, from which we clip the following:

The Michigan Excursion party under the direction of William H. Brearley, of the Detroit Evening News, arrived at the Glen House on Saturday. They left Detroit on Wednesday, July 7, at 3 a. m. in a train of four Pullman and two day cars, and proceeded directly to Toronto, where supper was served. The party numbered 265 and was the largest that Mr. Brearley has conducted to the White Mountains, this being his fourth annual excursion. From Toronto the party went by cars to Kingston, where they took the steamer Corsican Thursday morning for a sail through the Thousand Islands and down the Rapids to Montreal. After supper at Montreal they left by boat for Quebec, arriving Friday morning. The principal places of interest in that ancient city were visited and in the evening those who had started for the mountains left for the Glen House by rail. They reached Gorham early Saturday morning, where they took Mr. Milliken's stages for a ride of eight miles to the Glen House. On arrival the party numbered 204, and after dinner a considerable number visited the summit of Mount Washington. Others followed at subsequent times and nearly all of them were favored with very fine views. With the exception of the accident to one of the stages while descending the mountain Monday afternoon, everything passed off very pleasantly and the party were greatly pleased with what they saw and the service rendered them.

The members of the party from Tecumseh were Mrs. Abbie Fisher, Mrs. M. W. Hoag and P. S. McKinnon.—They report a pleasant trip and one that every body should enjoy.

BASE BALL.

The Base Ball Ass'n has completed arrangements for two games of ball between the Green Stockings of South Bend, Ind., and the Tecumseh club to be played this Friday and Saturday.

The Green Stockings are the champions of Indiana, and the Tecumsehs are the champions of Michigan, so that the base ball interest, not only of the two nines but also of the states will be centered in these games.

The games that the Tecumsehs have played during the season with two exceptions have been merely "walk aways" for them but now they will probably be compelled to work their best for every run they score so that the games promise to be interesting and close.

The Secretary of the Ass'n has been to considerable trouble lately in endeavoring to secure engagements for the nine but he cannot find a club in the state that is willing to play, or presumptous enough to think they can beat the Tecumsehs. So the ass'n has went to the expense of procuring the Green Stockings. Every one interested in the game of base ball should attend and give the ass'n their support. The games will be called at 2 o'clock, P. M., on the Tecumseh base ball grounds.

COUNTY FAIR.

We have received the premium list of the third annual county fair of Lenawee county to be held in Adrian, Sept. 28, 29, 30, and Oct. 1.

The officers for 1880 are Geo. B. Horton President, S. B. Mann Secy., T. J. Tobey Treas. Dewitt J. Tallman is the member of the board of directors for Tecumseh.

The fair is under the auspices of the Agricultural Society of Lenawee Co. No premiums will be awarded to any person who is not a member of this society. Any person can become a member of the society by paying one dollar annually into the hands of the Treasurer.

All live stock exhibited must be brought on the fair grounds before 11 o'clock of the second day of the fair. The premium list covers a wide range and everything points toward a successful year. The only objection we have to make is against W. T. B. Shermerhorn of the Hudson Gazette being made a judge of penmanship.

$200 REWARD.

The county of Lenawee has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and delivery in any jail in this state, Charles Simmons. The village has offered the same amount for his arrest.

Simmons was about 30 years old, was 5 feet and 7 inches high, weighed about 160 pounds. He had light brown hair, light moustache and goatee, gray eyes, bald on top of head, small scar on his face. He wore a dark coat and vest, light colored stripped pants, dark hat and white shirt.

The officers are perseveringly looking for him and will keep it up until they find him. The citizens of Tecumseh have afforded the best of care to Mrs. Simmons. Tuesday a subscription paper was started and every business man in Tecumseh responded in a liberal manner.

Mrs. Simmons is slowly recovering and fears are entertained that her left arm will never be of any service to her.

LAST Monday A. W. Slayton measured and shipped 22,000 feet of ash plank. He furnishes a large agricultural factory in Illinois.

TOM SMITH, of the district below Ridgeway, came to Tecumseh last Saturday night and when it was time to go home he was exceedingly boisterous and seemed to take considerable delight in riding up Main street on horse back. The officers finally collared him and conveyed him to the lock-up where he was allowed until morning to sleep off the effects of the liquid he had indulged in.

THE Universalist Sunday School convention is now in session at Lansing. The delegates from Tecumseh were Rev. H. Shepard, S. C. Stacy, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Kennedy, Miss Florence Shepard, Franc Hyde, Belle Wooden, L. Loana Stacy.

—Our Mr. Clement is now east having having a car load of Buggies made expressly for us, with our brand on every one, warranted. Come and see our stock if you do not buy.
Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—A Special offer for 30 days. One hundred and ten dollars will buy a good upright Piano. Warranted for five years at Adamson's.

—If you want a good porcelain and cylinder pump get it at the Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

SOMETHING NEW.

A Spring Harrow on wheels, just the thing exactly. For light draft, durability and quality of work has no equal. Call on Slayton & Son and see it.

—You can kill two birds with one stone Aug. 7th. There is to be a big mass meeting, pole raising, speakers from abroad will be here and one of the biggest sales of Buggies ever in Lenawee Co. Be sure to come to Blissfield Aug. 7 and have a good time. Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—Always bear in mind that Wm. Snedicor, Ridgeway, has pumps for sale.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids.
A. B. Cotton.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres.
J. A. Eaton & Co.

—We have on hand all the time, about 25 buggies. Call at our warehouse and look over our stock.
Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—Champion Rubber Buckets for chain pumps at Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—The Hoosier Drill is the best in the market. For sale by Wm. Snedicor, Ridgeway.

—All kinds of Screen Doors and Windows of the best material, also all kinds of building material at
S. W. Temple's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Notice, a great sale of Wagons and Buggies at Blissfield Aug. 7, 1880. We will sell at auction and private sale, 40 Wagons and Buggies consisting of Milburn platform spring, open and top; Carriages Dayton, open and top; Syracuse open and top; Romeo open and top; and the A, B, and C, grades of Cincinnati buggies. If you intend purchasing a Buggy open or top come to our sale Aug. 7.
Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at
Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the
HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the
HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Cheneille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk, Parasols at Eaton's.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new,
A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Misses' Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.
A. B. Cotton.

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton s.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.
Brown, the Photographer.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Rushings at Eaton's.

—Wanted—To trade a Granite Monument for a good horse. Apply to L. A. Davis, Tecumseh Steam Granite and Marble Works, Tecumseh.

DIED.

GILLESPI[illegible] e 12th of July, 1880, at he[illegible] in the township of Cl[illegible] enawee County, Michigan, [illegible] Clarinda Gillespie, died, after a long and painful illness. Aged 72 years, 5 months and 14 days.

She was the daughter of Peter Roberts, and was born in Sparta, Livingston county, New York, January 29th, 1880. In September, 1828 she was married to Richard B. Gillespie who died June 16, 1870.

In September, 1832, she removed from Sparta with her husband and her two children to her home where she died, then entirely in its natural condition in a wild and sparsely settled country. Here she lived 48 years, devoting herself with most assiduous care and diligence to the comfort and happiness of her husband and children. She was retiring and quiet, industrious and patient, always cheerful and hopeful. Her acquaintance with her neighbors was not extensive, but all who knew her will not forget the uniform and constant benevolence and kindness of her intercourse with all. She was always cheerful and friendly a gentle, dutiful daughter, an amiable and loving sister, a considerate, prudent and affectionate wife, a devoted, kind and loving mother, and a true and faithful friend. In all the relations of her long and useful life, she was never weary of doing all the good in her power to others, unmindful of self. She endured her last sickness with a cheerful and resigned spirit, and when the final time came she passed peacefully and hopefully to immortal life.

KEYSER.—July 22d, Mrs. Anna Keyser one of the earliest residents of Tecumseh, died at her daughters, aged 77 years.

Mrs. Anna Keyser was born in Groveland, Livingston County N. Y. April 16, 1803. She was the daughter of Patrick Mixon. She was married to Peter Keyser in 1825, and came to this state in 1829. They first settled in Ridgeway where they remained a short time. They purchased a site for a farm 4½ miles northeast of Tecumseh, which was then almost a wilderness, where they removed to in the spring of 1830, built a log house, moved into it and commenced the foundation for a home. The old log house yet stands strong as she left it, the monument of their work of more than one half century now passed, where she spent the morning of her life.

After the loss of her husband in the fall of September, 1853 with that true spirit of christian womanhood she remained on the old farm managing it successfully and rearing her children, and as they grew up and went for themselves, she growing old and infirm clung to the old log house. Until within the last ten years she has spent most of her time among her children, at times going back to her old cherished home so dear to her in the past which she regretted to leave. For the past two years her declining health forbade her visiting her old home. She died at her daughters, Mrs. Wm. Dokes, July 22d at a ripe old age. She has been a member of the Presbyterian church over 45 years; attending its services as often as her circumstances would allow with the care of a large family, and her increasing years with infirm health. She passed away as she has lived firm in the faith of Christ, to that sleep which knows no waking.

COLLINS—At his home in Macon Township, on Saturday, July 17th, 1880, Mr. Isaac Collins, aged 67 years, 6 months and 18 days.

The deceased was born in Barnegat, N. J., December 30, 1812. At the age of 18 he came with his father to Michigan, settling in the fall of 1831 on the farm now owned by Dr. Geo. Howell. He belonged accordingly to the very earliest pioneers of this region. On the 16th of December, 1840, he was united in marriage to Mary A. Allen, who, together with five children, survive him. Mr. Collins was a member of the Society of Friends, and was characterized by many excellencies of heart and conduct. Long will his memory be cherished by many. The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy and condolence of numerous friends and neighbors and are sustained in their affliction by the hope of meeting their beloved one again and of enjoying again in "the pleasant Land" the companionship which was broken off by death. A very large number of persons assembled on Sunday, the 18th inst., to perform the last rites in honor of the esteemed departed. The funeral discourse was preached by Rev. J. A. De Spelder, pastor of the Reformed church

"Say not 'Good-night,'
But in some brighter clime
Bid me 'Good-morning.'"

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 141, F. & A. M.

[illegible]

TECUMSEH CHAPTER, NO. 7, R. A. M.

[illegible]

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. & M. S. RAILROAD.

[illegible]

TRAINS ARRIVE AT TECUMSEH.

STATIONS.	Mail.	Mail. Express.	Accom.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Supt.

E. J. MINNETT, Detroit Div. Supt.

General Agency.

Answer questions and give information at this office free of charge, and prepare tickets to any point in the U. S.

N. A. [illegible], Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan.

[illegible]

Eastern and Detroit—[illegible]

Northern and Detroit, via Jackson—[illegible]

Eastern and Detroit—[illegible]

Times Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn.

Tecumseh, Blissfield, Wednesday, Friday—[illegible]

Hudson—daily—[illegible]

Clinton, Tipton, daily—[illegible]

Rome, Friday—[illegible]

Northern Mail—[illegible]

Eastern Mail—[illegible]

Office open for the delivery of letters on Sundays from 10 to 10½ a.m.

E. A. TIMSON, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS.

In Lilley & Vaught's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

and all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Stephen Fleming Mill, near R. R. Depot.

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

desires purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Chalking, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering to sell at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furnishing Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door north of Sheridan's Meat Market, Railroad street.

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at auction at all times within 10 miles of country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention.

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

DISINFECTANTS.

Bad smells indicate the presence of decomposition, somewhere and, in some form or other, and this is the sure harbinger of epidemic diseases. Whenever bad smells are to be found it may be assumed that the generation of bacteria is going on, and these animalcule and various germs of the life which, opposite from decay, have been proven by modern chemists to be always ready, on association with the necessary pabulum, to develop, and thrive, if not in abundance, will always destroy these bacteria, and when this is effected we know that the causes of disease are destroyed with them. Hence it is important to know what sort of disinfectants are good. With a view to ascertain this, Dr. George M. Sternberg, surgeon in the United States army, has been making some valuable experiments, under the auspices of the National Board of Health. In the latest bulletin issued by that body he reports his observations on the effects of carbolic acid and other disinfectants. The result of his experiments was not favorable to the employment of carbolic acid. The crude acid, such as manufactured and sold in New Orleans expressly for disinfecting purposes, utterly failed to prevent the formation of bacteria. Test tubes, in which the acid was used to prevent the substance from spreading and propagating itself by inoculation, except when the pure acid in its crystalline form, was used to the extent of ten grains. This amount, Dr. Sternberg says, is equivalent to 17 pounds of pure acid for a room twelve feet square and twelve feet high. "If one-fifteenth, said" he adds, "to fulfill the conditions of the experiment in disinfecting on a large scale, it would be necessary this amount over the floor of a room having these dimensions, and to suspend articles to be disinfected near the floor for at least six hours, care being taken that all apertures were closed so that the fumes of acid might not escape." It would require sixty-eight pounds of the crude acid to disinfect the same under the same conditions. Forty-six fluid ounces of the crude acid in a room of this size failed to destroy the potency of vaccine virus, and consequently would fail to destroy the yellow fever germ or the poison of small-pox. In conclusion, Dr. Sternberg says of his interesting and valuable experiments that they show "that the popular idea, shared, perhaps, by some physicians, that an odor of carbolic acid in a sick room, or in a foul privy, is evidence that the place is disinfected is entirely fallacious, and in fact, that the use of this agent as a volatile disinfectant is impracticable, because the expense of the pure acid and the considerable quantity required to produce the desired result." Sulphurous and nitrous acid gases, however, and chlorine, he found to destroy bacteria at once and effectively. The general result of his experiment is to show that chloride of lime is a more trustworthy disinfectant than carbolic acid. It is probable that a strong solution of copperas (sulphate of iron), liberally used, is the best wash for promoting the purity of drains and sinks. But it must be used liberally and regular in order to secure good results.

LEMONS.

The excessive heat and frequent injuries from the too frequent use of water in warm weather, make the following suggestions regarding the use of lemons during the summer valuable: Most people know the benefit of a lemonade before breakfast, but few know it is more than doubled by taking another at night also. The way to get the better of all bilious symptoms without pill or quinine, is to take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as the appetite craves, in as much ice water as makes it pleasant to drink, without sugar, before going to bed. In the morning on rising, or at least half an hour before breakfast, take a juice of one lemon in a goblet of water. This will clear the system of humors and bile with mild efficacy, without any of the weakening effects of Calomel or Congress water. People should not irritate their stomachs by eating lemons clear; the powerful acid of the juice, which is almost corrosive, healthily produces inflammation after a while. But properly diluted, as that it does not burn or draw the throat, it does its full medicinal work without harm, and taken when the stomach is clear of food, has opportunity to work on the system thoroughly.

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents per bottle.

Free of charge—an empty pun.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

A [illegible] is to be built at Bellevue.

The hog cholera has broken out at Gallatin.

A branch of the order of Chosen Friends has been established at Ionia.

Ithamar B. experimenting with a wind mill and water system at Marquette.

St. Joseph will experimental the Lagier artificial lake fight, on a money of $1,000.

A special term of the Saginaw county court is to be held, beginning Sept. [illegible].

Three new salt blocks are now in operation at Midland, and more will be put to the work at once.

Another big and rich deposit of silver has been struck at Silver Islet. It is far below the lake surface.

The Saginaw Courier says: It has rained once in the twenty-four hours every day this month.

[illegible] has been shipped from Sturgis during the past few days.

The ceremony of laying the cornerstone for the new Presbyterian Church at Tecumseh took place last Saturday.

John Thomas, of Lapeer, accidentally shot himself through the right knee, while cleaning a revolver on Sunday.

Deputy postmaster Geo. H. Snook has been appointed postmaster of Mt. Clemens, vice James H. Snook, deceased.

The Detroit, Lansing and Northern railroad depot and freight buildings at Big Rapids are now completed and in use.

The State has boring machinery on the Capitol grounds, at Lansing, and will try for a well of water not contaminated with filth.

There are about twenty store buildings and residences now in the course of erection in Petoskey at the present time.

A. W. Peck, of Hart, has some pear trees that are a sight to see. It seems as though the trees could hardly stand up under their half grown fruit.

The blind pupils at the Flint institution will be removed to Lansing as soon as the oddfellows' elephant there can be made ready for its new uses.

A farmer drove into Dearborn with a load of produce, where he sold it and spent every cent of the proceeds for beer before he got out of town.

Nat Wasey, a St. Clair butcher, has been fined for cruelty to animals. He appeals. The case is arranged as a test matter.

Charles Dane of Lawrence, will be arraigned before Justice Yoder, of Paw Paw, on the 27th inst., on charge of an attempt to kill Frank Dexter with an ax.

The citizens of Niles are making preparations for having a grand time on the occasion of the soldiers' and sailors' reunion, August 25, 26 and 27. They will endeavor to have Ben. Butler, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan present.

The hardware store of the late A. Neff, of Shelby, Oceana county, now in charge of an administrator, was entered on the night of the 23d, the safe blown open and $100 stolen. Old hands at the business did the job.

The colored people of western Michigan will hold an emancipation celebration at Bangor, August 3. Rev. Allen Allensworth, of Bowling Green, Ky., W. C. Atwood, of East Saginaw, Julius Cesar Burrows, of Kalamazoo, and A. H. Morrison, of St. Joseph, are expected to be the speaking.

David Lutz and Frank McGuiness, of Bay City, quarreled and fought on the night of the 23d. Afterward Lutz shot McGuiness in the groin and leg. Lutz was arrested, but the wounded man swears he will not appear against him, and that they are still good friends.

One year ago last April Conductor Avery, of the Lake Shore railroad, put Charles Pierce off the train between Bronson and Batavia, after he had bought a ticket for Batavia, because the train did not stop at that place and he refused to pay to Coldwater. The circuit court awarded Pierce $300 damages and costs.

The Hillsdale boat crew will row at their home regatta and at Toronto, and will then probably disband and do no more rowing. When they rowed at Saratoga last year many believed their victory was a "scratch," and this nettled them into a resolution to "show 'em what we can do," and thus they have met and vanquished all comers. It is worth noting that there has never been a shadow of a doubt of their integrity, nor an atom of proof that they have, directly or indirectly, been interested in pool-box, faro-bank or other dirty work, such as the great Maumee crew were freely accused of indulging in. The boys propose to quit with clean records and retire as did the Renwerycks, with the proud consciousness of having squarely beaten the best.

Simmons Liver Regulator

IS SAY AS ROCK OF AGES.

This invaluable medicine, combining all the medicinal properties necessary to a healthy state of the system, is recommended by all who have used it, and pronounced as a blessing.

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the greatest success to the most delicate infant. It cures the pains of children and mothers of every kind. It is the strongest nerve and the most healthy sustainer in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like it, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.

It invigorates the Liver.

It regulates the Bowels.

It gives vivacity in place of lassitude, cheerfulness in place of gloom, and vigor in place of languor.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Scrofulous Affections, General Debility, in short all the consequences of Impure Blood are speedily conquered by the powerful corrective, the mild and certain action of this ancient or modern medicine. Recommended by the Fathers.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and compelling the diseases to leave the blood.

It vitalizes PEPTONE, GALL BUBBLES, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SWELLINGS, SALT RHEUM, BLOTCHES, PIMPLES, SCALD HEAD, RING WORM, and all MERCURIAL DISCOMFORTS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It [illegible] the system of those advanced. It improves THE APPETITE and [illegible] without the [illegible].

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures COMPLAINTS, WEAKNESSES and DISCHARGES.

It removes the most obstinate constipation, [illegible] internal or external.

It eradicates the effects of Venereal Disease and Mercurial Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many testimonials, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," to which we invite your attention.

Price $1 per bottle, containing 2 ounces, or six bottles, $5. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on sale he will be happy to have it for you to order. Direct all communications and remittances to the sole proprietors.

D. RAPHAEL, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FLEMMINGS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are available in all the principal cities of the World.

Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

CHAS. J. FLEMMING, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Zithas, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Bull House,"

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Sent to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

Midland [illegible] Instruments, 2 Rs, 2 Bs, 2 strong tenor, baritone, Bb bass and Eb bass, full up patent piston valves; warranted, for $[illegible].

I also have Band Instruments for professional bands to select from, including Cotta and Bergson, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Conquet, Paris, and the genuine Boehm of London. Send for catalogue.

Address, CHAS. W. BERDAN,

32 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the Herald office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

CHANCERY SALE.

[illegible]

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

A complete set of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, comprising 53 Volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express, freight at expense of purchaser, on receipt of $10 per volume. Single volumes, by mail, postpaid, $1 00. Cloth cases, for binding, 50 cents, by mail, postpaid.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

Combining the subjects objectively and from the educational point of view—meaning to provide that which shall entertain, will be of the most service to the largest number—being now established, it could rate but one work for a public library: I would select a complete set of Harper's Monthly.—Hon. Henry Adams, [illegible].

The contents are contributed by the most emi[illegible] authors and artists of Europe and America, while the long experience of the publishers has made them fortunate in securing with the favor of the public, which they will spare no effort to merit.

The volumes of the Magazine begin with the first Number for June and December of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S WEEKLY, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twenty-three Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 00 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Weekly

ILLUSTRATED.

This periodical has always, by its able and authority discussions of the questions of the day as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind. The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment, and refinement.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S BAZAR, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twenty-two Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

PATENTS.

[illegible]

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF LYDIA HOSMER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

[illegible]

ESTATE OF WILLIAM C. FISHER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 7th day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William C. Fisher, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Abbie Fisher executrix of the last will and testament of said deceased, praying that she be allowed debts of deceased and the expenses of administration of said estate since her appointment, and to render to the heirs of said estate since her appointment, and to render to the heirs of said estate, and to render to the heirs of 1880.

Harper's Bazar

ILLUSTRATED.

This popular periodical is pre-eminently a journal for the household.

Every Number furnishes the latest information in regard to Fashion in dress and ornament, the latest and most approved patterns, with descriptive articles derived from authentic and original sources; while its Stories, Poems and Essays on social and Domestic Topics, give variety to its columns.

The Volumes of the Bazar begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S BAZAR, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twenty-two Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. P. Parsons, Prin't

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

NORTHERN LENAWEE FARMERS' CLUB

Farmers will all please remember that Saturday, July 31st is the day for the Farmers' Club Meeting. These meetings have been adjourned four or five weeks through haying and harvest. The crops of hay and wheat have been abundant and of good quality, the weather favorable, and they have been secured mostly in good condition, and now we look for a crowding meeting on next Saturday at 2 o'clock. Program the same as announced for the last meeting—Butter and Bread Making. Those appointed to introduce the subject and for Essays will please remember and respond. Music, miscellaneous questions and answers, and discussions will be in order.

E. L. RUSSELL, Secretary.

THRESHING BY STEAM.

Most of the wheat of California is threshed by steam, and much of it on the day when cut. The sickle is set on a level with the bottom of the lowest heads of grain, so as to take off no more of the straw than is necessary. From the platform behind the sickle the grain is carried by an endless apron or elevator into a wagon driven alongside the header; and this wagon, relieved by another at short intervals, transports the grain to the threshing machine, which is not unfrequently moved from one point of the field to another, so as to be near the header. Or, if the threshing is to be done after [illegible] their loads into piles, very different from the stacks carefully built of sheaves in those climes where rain is frequent in summer and where the threshing may be delayed until late in the fall. The management of the steam threshing machine is usually the exclusive business during July, August and September of its owner. If the machine is one of the ordinary size, he expects to thresh about 1,600 bushels—100,000 pounds—in a day; that is, if the crop is heavy and the circumstances favorable.

He employs a dozen men, who are ordinarily boarded by the farmer, and he receives from 5 to 8 cents per bushel for threshing. His total daily expenses may be $60, and his average gross receipts twice as much per day. He gets his pay on the basis of the weight of the grain as sacked, and the more soil, gravel, cheat, and other material that should be included the greater his profit. If he threshes the grain directly from the header wagon, there is little opportunity to get gravel in; but if the grain is fed to the threshing machine from a pile on the ground, many shovelfuls containing as much soil as grain are fed into the machine. The foreign buyers complain to the shippers of the gravel, and the shippers to the farmers; but the remedy does not appear near at hand, for the evil is part of a complicated system. The thresher may have $3,000 invested in his machine, wagons, horses, and tools needed for traveling and working; and as he hires and manages a dozen men, and has but a short season of threshing, he must make a good profit. The business demands much skill in the control of machinery and men, and great care to prevent fire and accidents, so that the average profit is not unreasonably large. The charge for threshing is low, because the farmers generally have preferred that the work should be done with haste rather than with care.—San Francisco Alta.

BE GENTLE WITH ANIMALS.

Some people govern their children and domestic animals with the whip. Boys thus governed, either run away from their parents, or leave them without much regret as soon as they become of lawful age to do so. Some farmers are kind and gentle with their domestic animals, and the brutes reciprocate their treatment by showing the same acts. And this leads us to say, in the words of a wise man, "tameness and gentleness are qualities to be encouraged in all domestic animals." Their value is discovered when it is necessary to handle the animal at critical periods. When confidence, if not affection, exists, we can do much with a suffering animal, when otherwise interference might make matters worse. It would be well to make friends with cows, and sheep especially, by petting them, giving them salt and palatable things and mingling with them in the yards. Every animal should be trained to be handled when loose in the yard.

A Mechanicsville, N. Y., farmer protects his hen-roost from hawks and from thieves by keeping a flock of a dozen guinea fowls. He regards them better than any watch-dog, and says that they give instant warning of the approach of a stranger.

Horn shavings are excellent fertilizers, as they contain a large amount of amonia. They are sold in the English market at the rate of $40 to $50 per ton.

American sweet potatoes are becoming popular in English markets.

THE DEMAND FOR HEAVY HORSES.

The Factory and Farm states a fact which we have noticed to exist in this city for some time past, i. e. an increase in the number of large horses used on trucks and heavy business wagons. During the last fifteen years, the writer remarks, there has been a great change in the demand for horses in this country. Formerly nearly every one bred in relation to speed and endurance. Now a large proportion of [illegible] ing size and strength. This change is not the result of choice. There has been a steady, increasing demand for heavy horses, and a corresponding falling off in the demand for light ones. Fashion has had little to do in the matter. Heavy horses are wanted because they supply an existing want. From present appearances it will be many years before the supply of heavy horses will equal the demand. The country is now well supplied with horses. At no time in its history, perhaps, were there as many horses to a given number of inhabitants as at present. Small work horses are low, but heavy draught horses continue to be high.

The importation of Clydesdale and Percheron-Norman horses increase every year. The first that were brought over were regarded as very uncertain ventures. At present they are of no doubtful value. The importers of horses from France and Scotland have suffered none of the reverses of the importers of short-horn cattle. With rare exceptions they have [illegible] ces we shall soon be sending Clydesdales to Scotland and England, and Normans to France and Belgium. The value of heavy draught horses was recognized in the Old World before it was in the New. Now that their worth is appreciated here, all persons having teaming to do seem anxious to procure them.

Large horses are less liable to injuries from the swinging of the pole of wagons than small ones. Their bones are firmer, and they are commonly more hardy. Large horses are more economical as respects harness, stall room, feed and work required to take care of them. In all the countries of eastern Europe heavy horses have taken the place of light ones in general farming operations. That American farmers will soon generally employ heavy horses in field work seems certain.—Scientific American.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

There are a few operations, small in themselves, which are often overlooked in summer, the neglect of which results in positive harm. Trees which were recently set out and are making their first growth in the orchard this year should have the soil kept clean and mellow about them for a few feet on each side. Their success and thrifty growth depend largely on this care. When the hot, dry days of mid-summer make their appearance, newly set cherry trees are greatly benefited, and often saved from destruction, by a copious mulching. Where grafts have been set on young or old trees, examine them and rub off all shoots springing up below the grafts. The present is the best time to remove suckers from the trunks of orchard trees—not by cutting them away and leaving stumps which will send up new suckers, but by pulling them off with a brisk jerk downwards, setting the foot first on them if they are strong. If low down, remove the earth about the tree. A gouge and mallet may be needed for large suckers.

Envied Beauty.

What is more handsome than a nice bright, clear complexion, showing the beauties of perfect health? All can enjoy these advantages by using Electric Bitters. Impure blood, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are speedily cured. For nervousness and attendant ailments, they are a never failing remedy, and positively cure where all others fail. Try the Electric Bitters and be convinced of their wonderful merits. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

A horse's hoof is of the same nature as horn. If you desire to know the effects of applying a hot shoe to a horse's hoof, place your comb on a hot stove for a minute or two, then let it cool, and see how easy it will break. A hot shoe makes the hoof brittle instead of tough.

A gentleman, recently, about to pay his doctor's bill, said: "Well, doctor, as my little boy gave the measles to all my neighbors' children, and as they were attended by you, I think you can afford at the very least to deduct ten per cent. from the amount of my bill, for the increase of business we gave you.

A young lady in Brooklyn is working a motto, "No Ice Cream." She says, "You know it is leap year, and the ice crop is a failure, and the boys might as well know that, first as last."

Druggists claim larger sales for Hill's Buchu than any other medicine.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT.

Grain, Flour, Feed and Coal.

SLAYTON & SON

Are still at the old [illegible] with a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

PLOWS The Wizard Chilled, Mohawk Valley Clipper (Wrought)

"Leader" Spring Tooth Harrow, Elwood, Robbins and Buckeye

CULTIVATORS.

"Springer" Spring Tooth Harrow, (on wheels).

GRAIN DRILLS, Buckeye, Farmer's Friend, Triumph.

THRESHERS, The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines.

Rare Bargains in

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Lime, Water Lime, Salt, Cal. Plaster and Plastering Hair.

If you want anything in our line call and get prices before you buy.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought fowest figures.

Chicago Street HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)

Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a [illegible]. YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, AND CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN.

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Buchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York.

PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY CURE CONSUMPTION."

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Judge E. Gray, Judge of Recorder's Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1878.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

Dear Sir:—Permit me to add my testimony to the many of witnesses to the virtues of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plain and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic, when their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She joins with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle. Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF CALLING CARDS. At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN STEAM PLANTS

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Champion Drills,

Missouri Drills,

Myers' Wind Mills,

Champion Fruit Ladders,

Gregg Sulky for Plows,

Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,

Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,

Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,

Gale Fallow Cultivators,

Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow,

Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,

A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,

Garr Scott Engines,

Garr Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,

Standard Mowers,

Royce Reapers,

Meadow King Mowers,

Grand Rapids Small Tools.

USBORNE BLOCK,

TECUMSEH. MICH.

THE LITERARY Revolution.

The most successful reproduction of the century, and to American readers of books, the most important. Only books of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are low beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate these truths, we send the following books all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named:

Macaula, s

Life of Frederick the Great. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Carlyle's

Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Light of Asia.

By Edwin Arnold. Former price, $1.50. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.

Thos. Hughes's

Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print, brevier type; price three cents.

John Stuart Mill's

Chapters on Socialism. Essays of extraordinary interest and importance. Price, three cents.

Baron Munchausen

His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Bourgeoise type; price five cents.

Mary Queen of Scots'

Life by Lamartine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Vicar of Wakefield.

By Oliver Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

Bourgeoise type, leaded, beautiful print; price six cents.

Private Theatricals.

By author of "Sparrowgrass Papers." Small pica type, leaded; price two cents.

Stories and Ballads.

For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.

Leaves from the Diary

Of an old Lawyer; short stories of thrilling laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.

Booksellers

Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN F. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH. VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR

CAMPAIGN GOODS

of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply

Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c,

We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents, or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.

We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a

Present of a $100 Gold Watch

—OR—

NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.

Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the

U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order. Its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Sickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It Purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public, for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 162 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS,

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &C.

NEW INVENTION. NO PATENT.

This cut represents the Hoe of the

STRAYER DRILL.

Each Hoe spreading the grain over a space

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a 9-Hoed Drill there is

27 INCHES

Of ground covered with grain.

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

Of ground that other Drills cover, thereby equalizing the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a depth gauge on each Hoe so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the field.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

To the Acre by using such a Hoe than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

N. C. ARNOLD, Agent,

Tecumseh, Mich.

AN APPEAL TO THE PIONEERS OF MICHIGAN.

The Pioneer Society of the State of Michigan was organized April 22, 1874, for the purpose of collecting and preserving historical, biographical, and other information relative to the State of Michigan, such as would, without some such organization, go into oblivion, and be forever lost to the historian.

In order that the object of the society might be more effectually carried out, there was elected at the annual meeting, held Feb. 2 1876, a committee of historians, consisting of five members, whose duty it was to take in charge all materials collected, arrange and prepare the same for publication, and as fast as enough should be collected, to publish them in a series of volumes to be entitled "Pioneer collections."

Two of these volumes have already been published and material enough collected for a third, but the committee is without the means to proceed further without assistance. They do therefore appeal to every member of the society who has not already done so, to come forward and purchase a copy of each of Vols. I and 2, and also to become an agent of the Society in the further sale of these valuable books, by using their utmost endeavor with their friends to also become purchasers, and thereby furnish the committee with ample funds to proceed at once with the publication of Vol. 3.

Every pioneer who reads these volumes, no matter in what part of the State he resides in, will find in them something that will call the "memories of other days."

Vol. 1 contains 554 pages and Vol. 2 689 pages. Price for each, $1.25. They can be procured at Thos. Adamson's.

The following clipped from the Evening News, shows how a Tecumseh boy can hold the fort against a crowd of roughs:

Two years ago Mr. N. Church, of Ithaca, put up a building on land owned by the Jeffry estate. The agent of the estate claims that it was agreed Church would remove said building when the land was wanted. The land was wanted last week, and Church, Bills & Co., bankers, et al., did not propose to move, and a force of men were brought from St. Louis to do the job on Sunday. Church was not at home, but Mr. Bills held the fort with a brace of revolvers and secured an adjournment until night. When night came the town was full of men anxious for gore, and perhaps the building would have been moved rather unceremoniously had not some one who evidently spoke by authority assured them that the job shoud be decently done this week. The affair was little short of a genuine riot, but all is calm now.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

A Cincinnati physician whose specialty was the treatment of idiots, was very mad at his neighbor, the editor, who meant to be complimentary when he spoke of the physician as a celebrated idiot doctor.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, July 28, 1880:

Bush, A. L.	Odell Frank E.
Barry, Charles H.	Peacock, Miss C. E.
Hurley, Jewel M.	Reither, Geo. W.
Jones, Maggie	Ruthany, W. P.
Monroe, Henry	Smith, W. C.

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, July 29, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending July 21, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 2,152 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

26 steers	1272	4.60	17 steers	1421	$4.80
36 steers	1374	4.85	18 steers	1255	4.75
21 steers	1017	3.90	14 steers	1213	4.30

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 1,800 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

46 Mich. sheep	92	4.50
418 Ohio do	84	4.25
183 do do	84	4.10

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show a decrease of 1,620 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

68	266	4.90	74	176	4.72½
91	237	4.95	97	236	4.90
91	285	4.90	99	239	4.90

DETROIT MARKET.

Wednesday, July 28, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 1 cars at $1.03. New wheat, 1 car at 97¼; do July, 1,000 bu at $1.04¼; do August, 5,000 bu at 94½c.

Apples—$1.25@1.50 per bbl.
Butter—16@17c per lb.
Cheese—9½@10c per lb..
Eggs—Fresh, 10c per doz.
Feed—Bran $16 and 17 for middlings $15 per ton.
Provisions—Hams, 10½@11c. Shoulders, 6½c. Breakfast bacon, 9½c. Dried beef, 12c per lb.
Potatoes—$1.70@1.80 per bbl.
Tomatoes—75c per bu busket.
Corn—42c per bu.
Oats—32¼@36c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 967 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 3490 lbs.
EGGS—Shipped 25 crates, 46 bbls.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 14200 lbs.
WOOL—Shipped 2 cars.
GRAIN—Shipped 1 car.
MILL FEED—Shipped 2 cars.
LUMBER—Shipped 1 car.
MANUFACTURIES—Shipped 1 Tile Machine.

Apples, ℔ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ℔ ℔	5 @	7
Butter, ℔ ℔	10@	13
Barley, ℔ bushel	45@	55
Beans, ℔ bushel	1,00@	1.30
Buckwheat, ℔ bushel	50@	.60
Buckwheat Flour, ℔ hundred	3,25@	3,50
Beef,—dressed, ℔ hundred	450@	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ℔ ℔	@	10
Corn in ear	35@	40
Corn,—shelled ℔ bushel	45@	48
Clover Seed	3.50 @	4,00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ℔ dozen	@	8
Flour, ℔ barrel	6,00@	7,00
Hogs Dressed, ℔ cwt	@	5,00
Hogs Live ℔ lb	3 80@	3 85
Hay ℔ ton	6,00@	8,00
Hides, ℔ ℔	@	6½
Honey, ℔ ℔	@	16
Ham, ℔ ℔	@	9
Lard, ℔ ℔	@	8
Oats, ℔ bushel	25 @	30
Onions, ℔ bushel	1,50@	2,00
Potatoes, ℔ bushel	30 @	70
Salt, ℔ barrel	@	1,50
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1,25
Timothy Seed, ℔ bushel	@	3,00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ℔ cord	4,00@	4 00
Wheat, White, ℔ bushel	80@	85
Wheat, Red, ℔ bushel	85 @	87½
Wool, ℔ lb	30@	35

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold, deceased

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for county of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Abbie Griswold, late of the township of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 27th day of August, 1880, and January 19th, 1881, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, six months from the 19th day of July, 1880, are allowed by the said Court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated July 26th, 1880.

WM. C. FITZSIMMONS,
SEATON W. ANDERSON,
Commissioners.

jul29

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

PREPARED BY

R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H.

Sold by all Dealers in Medicine.

1880.

Harper's Young People

ILLUSTRATED.

The evils of sensational literature for the young are all well known, and the want of an antidote has long been felt. This is supplied by HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, a beautifully illustrated weekly journal, which is equally devoid of the objectionable features of sensational juvenile literature and of that moralizing tone which repels the youthful reader.

The volumes of the Young People begin with the first Number, published in November of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

INDUCEMENTS FOR 1880 ONLY.

☞ Thirteen Numbers of HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE will be furnished to every yearly subscriber to HARPER'S WEEKLY for 1880; or, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE and HARPER'S WEEKLY will be sent to any address for one year, commencing with the first Number of HARPER'S WEEKLY for January, 1880, on receipt of $5 00 for the two Periodicals.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE BITTERS

It is the best Blood Purifier, and stimulates every function to more healthful action, and gives a benefit in all diseases.

In eliminating the impurities of the blood, the natural and necessary result is the cure of Scrofulous and other Skin Eruptions and Diseases, including Cancers, Ulcers and other Sores.

Dyspepsia, Weakness of the Stomach, Constipation, Dizziness, General Debility, etc., are cured by the Safe Bitters. It is unequaled as an appetizer and regular tonic.

It is a medicine which should be in every family, and which, wherever used, will save the payment of many doctors' bills.

Bottles of two sizes: prices, 50 cents and $1.00.

SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE. SAFE DIABETES CURE. SAFE BITTERS NERVINE PILLS. READ! Save Thyself!

☞ Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

THE CORNER GROCERY

—OF—

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

☞ Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

---

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, by $93.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—☞ Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Agents Wanted for SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY & HOLMAN'S NEW PICTORIAL BIBLES. Address, for circulars, A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Phila.

ELMIRA COLLEGE.

This college is thoroughly furnished for giving a superior education in Collegiate and Eclectic Courses of Study, and also in Music and Art. By reason of its endowment its charges are unusually moderate. Send for catalogue to REV. A. W. COWLES, D.D., Pres., Elmira, N. Y.

MALT

THE NEW FOOD

Malt Bitters Company

MEDICINE

BITTERS

DO not confound this Matchless Renovator of Feeble and Exhausted Constitutions with violent cathartics, cheap decoctions of vile drugs, and ruinous intoxicants innocently labeled "bitters." MALT BITTERS appeal to popular confidence because prepared from Unfermented Malt, Hops, and Quinine, and precious ingredients, according to the process of Liebig and are richer in the elements that restore to permanent health the Weak, Convalescent, Consumptive, Over-worked, Nervous, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Bilious, and Fickle in Appetite, than all other forms of Malt or Medicine. The genuine are plainly signed by the company. Sold everywhere. MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

The BEST HEALTH AND STRENGTH RESTORER EVER USED.

So perfect is the composition of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC that no disease can long exist where it is used. If you have Dyspepsia, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bowel, Kidney, or Liver Disorder, or if you need a mild stimulant, or appetizer, the TONIC is just the medicine for you, as it is highly curative and invigorating but never intoxicating. Try a 50c. bottle. Your druggist can supply you.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of Mary Sones, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Mary Sones, late of the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 15th day of September, 1880, and 14th day of December, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon on each of said days, six months from the 14th day of June, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

CHARLES W. CULBERTSON,
AUSTIN G. HALL,
Commissioners.

july29

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit, in Chancery, Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County, in Chancery.

Carolina Lentz, Complainant,
vs.
Gotlieb Lentz, Defendant.

Before Charles L. Hall, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the city of Adrian, the 26th day of July, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing, by affidavit on file, that the defendant Gotlieb Lentz is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but that he now resides in the State of Indiana. On motion of Wm. L. Greenly, solicitor, and C. A. Stacy and J. A. Stacy, of counsel for complainant, it is ordered that the said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complaint in this cause taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of the order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

WM. L. GREENLY, Solicitor for Complainant.
C. A. & J. A. STACY, of Counsel for Compl't.

july29

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

BY virtue of an order of the Probate Judge of the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, made on the 26th day of July, A.D. 1880, licensing me as administrator of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased, to sell the right, title and interest of which said deceased died seized in and to the lands hereinafter described, I will, on the 9th day of September, A.D. 1880, at the office of the undersigned in the village of Tecumseh in said county and State, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, sell at public vendue all the interest and title of which said deceased died seized, in that parcel of land situate in the township of Franklin, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, known and described as the west half of the north east quarter of section twenty-nine, town five south of range three east, containing eighty acres more or less, which sale will also be made subject to a mortgage on said land given by said deceased and his wife to Lucius Lilley, and subject to the right of dower of the widow of deceased, the particulars of which mortgage and the terms of sale will be published at and before said sale.

Dated July 27th, 1880.

EDWIN H. WOOD, Administrator of Estate of Henry Tripp, Deceased.

jul29

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

"Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 19. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes heard will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "HAMLEN'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 13 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 3 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 5 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $3.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $8.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Æsop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of "Sparrowgrass Papers," 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,

JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. Tribune Building, New York.

AGENCIES: Boston, H. L. Hastings; Philadelphia, Leary & Co.; Cincinnati, Robert Clarke & Co. Indianapolis, Bowen, Stewart & Co.; Cleveland, Ingham, Clarke & Co.; Toledo, Brown Fager & Co.; Chicago, Alden & Chadwick; in smaller towns, the leading Bookseller, only one in a place.

AMERICAN

AMERICAN ULTRAMARINE WORKS

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING

IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and
GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

☞ For Sale by all Grocers. ☜

American Ultramarine Works,

55 Maiden Lane, New York.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

☞ Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

DR. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect: if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?
Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?
Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a package at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.
(Will send post paid.)

N. W. AYER & SON

ADVERTISING AGENTS

TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA

Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.

Receive Advertisements for this Paper.

ESTIMATES free for Newspaper Advertising at Lowest Cash Rates.

Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Clinton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.--NO 11. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 5, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1548.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

Over 30,000 Now in Use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE.

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

CLINTON.

Dog days have come to the dogs in this town in earnest. No less than eight or ten have been poisoned within the past week.

Frank Brown carelessly dropped a lighted match in a can Tuesday night, where happened to be some powder, and the explosion that followed was the means of collecting, in less than five minutes, a larger crowd around the door of that store than we supposed could be mustered in town. No damage.

L. H. Salsbury's speech at Town Hall last Friday night, is acknowledged by all to be one of the ablest speeches ever made here. He will speak here again during the campaign.

Henry C. Owen, one of the oldest residents of this section, died at his home, 1½ miles south-east of here, on Sabbath last, and was buried Tuesday. He settled here in 1832 and was consequently one of the old pioneers.

FRANKLIN.

The Band picnic, or rather excursion to Devil's lake, last Saturday, was largely attended, and was a very enjoyable affair, and passed off without an accident or anything to mar the pleasure of the trip.

As we intimated last week, we, i. e. our better half and your humble servant, organized an excursion of our own, on a large scale, and visited the "Long Branch" of Lenawee, (Sand Lake,) and enjoyed a half holiday immensely; sailing, rowing, fishing, bathing, and flirting, of course, as married men are expected to do, which was facilitated by a leap year picnic party from Raisin township, and returned sober, but exhilerated and happy.

A temperance meeting is called at Tuttle's Hall for Friday, at 6 P. M., for the purpose of effecting a township organization. Speakers are expected from abroad, and a full attendance is desired.

The Nationals held a caucus last evening at Tuttle's Hall and appointed delegates to the county convention at Adrian, to-day, as follows: B. F. Reynolds, Andrew Wilson, John Dowling, E. Learnard, Milton Burns and Otis Whelan.

Mr. S. S. Scovill is again in town soliciting the right of way for the T. & M. R. R., which indicates that this route is not yet abandoned, providing prompt, energetic action is put forth by Franklin, Tecumseh and Ridgeway. But little time, however, remains for action, as the matter will doubtless be decided during the present month. Must the matter be allowed to go by default, after all the labor that has been expended, and the road allowed to go via. Adrian?

EAST RIDGEWAY.

Steam threshers in all directions.

Wheat yield 20 to 25 bushel per acre.

Corn in this section is very poor on account of the wet weather.

Geo. Getty has five or six acres of wheat that he has not cut yet on account of the ground being too soft to run a reaper.

The new Christian church is assuming shape. Steve Whittier is doing the carpenter work and has the frame up and roof boards on. James Pocklington commences the brick work this week. As it is near the crossing of the Butler road we expect to get a depot there.

Ridgeway will have to look out or East Ridgeway will be the business place yet, and as Fletcher has agreed to move all of Ridgeway down here except the church we shall have quite a city.

Robert Vanduser came home Friday afternoon from Tecumseh sick with Spinal fever. Several cases reported around. Mr. Demphrey lost a boy about 8 years of age, with it last Friday, in Dundee township.

NIX.

FROM Greensburg, Ind., Standard, July 25th, 1880: "Notwithstanding the excessive heat and the busy season with the Granger community, the turnout at Barr Robbins' show was large and at night a perfect jam. The show is a good one, the street parade very fine, and the conduct of the attaches commendable, there being a complete absense of any gambling or tricks of deception practiced in any department. We can recommend the manager to the brethren of the press as a fair dealing man."

THE Farmers' Picnic Association will hold their 7th anhual picnic at Beardsell's landing, Devil's Lake, on Wednesday, August 18th.

COLORADO SIGHT SEEING.

Climbing the Rockies—Visit to one of the Loviest Spots in Colorado.

ESTES PARK, COLORADO, July 25th, 1880.

EDITOR HERALD:

I believe my last letter was written, or at least dated at "Camp Difficulty." I am sure it was dated there, but it was mostly written on the road, and I should not wonder if to your readers it should seem somewhat bragmentary. But they must not blame the writer on that account, for the truth is, it is not an easy task to write a well arranged newspaper letter, when your route of travel takes you up hills steeper than the roof of a house with two or three miles of ascent, and where you are compelled to walk down the sides of mountains so steep that you find it necessary to fill your coat pockets with stones so as not to turn summersaults to the great detriment of your pants. This kind of travel is not only fatigueing, but it has a natural tendency to unsettle the nerves and cause a fellow to think spasmodically, and get things slightly mixed.

We spent two days and three nights at "Camp Difficulty," leaving there Friday morning, July 15th, for Estes Park our present location. It was necessary to return within twelve miles of Longmont, where we struck the Estes Park stage road, it being impossible to take a wagon direct through the mountains from one point to the other. After striking the stage road, we followed up the line of the foot hills for several miles, camping Friday night where the road crosses the St. Vrain river, and then turning west into the mountains.

The distance from Longmont to Estes Park, is called 36 miles, but to any one who passes over it for the first time it seems fifty. The ascents and descents are as steep, and the gorges as wild and rugged, as those we encountered on the route to Antelope Park. But the road is in far better condition, as it is a toll road, over which a six horse Concord coach is run both ways every day in the week excepting Sundays. Our little company of fourteen passed over this route in perfect safety, although there were several places where the carriage way cut into the nearly perpendicular side of the mountain, and barely wide enough for a single team to pass along; and where a single mis-step, or the breaking of any part of the harness, would be almost certain to land the whole outfit down hundreds of feet to the base of the mountains.

Estes Park is one of the most beautiful and romantic spots I have ever visited in this part of the Rocky Mountain region. It enjoys an altitude of 8000 feet above the sea level—or 2000 feet higher than Colorado Springs, and 3000 feet higher than Longmont. It is about nine miles long, by one and a half miles wide, with the Big Thomson river winding its way through the length of it. It is entirely enclosed on all sides by lofty mountains which lift their summits hundreds of feet above the natural level of the Park. The park itself is a natural meadow, on which hundreds of tons of native hay are cut along the bottom lands each side of the river; while the portion further back and high up the sides of the mountains, furnishes pasturage for hundreds of cattle. All over the park are scattered little hills covered with pine trees, which add greatly to its general beauty.

As you appoach the park, you pass over a comparatively easy grade upwards for about five miles, when all at once you are brought face to face with one of the lovliest spots the eye ever rested upon. Five hundred feet below the spot where you stand, nestled among the surrounding mountains, with the Big Thompson river winding its way through its center, and looking in the bright sunshine like a burnished band of silver, the park is spread out before your astonished gaze. "As the mountains lay round about Jerusalem," so do they also lay round about Estes Park, like a wall of defense.

When our party reached the point where the park first opened to our gaze, we all stopped to enjoy the beautiful vision. Not one person in the party could command language strong enough to express his or her sense of the wondrous beauty, of the landscape spread out before us. After the fatigueing exercise of climbing rugged mountains for a day and a half, the entire distance being either uphill or downhill, with scarcely enough level ground at any one place to enable a wagon to stand secure without putting on the brakes; the view of this park imparted a sense of quiet rest, extremely grateful and soothing. We finally descended and pitched our camp in the upper portion of the park on the bank of Fall River, which comes down through Horseshoe Park from the west, and forms a junction with the Big Thompson a short distance below our camp. It is a lively, rollicking turbulent stream, which comes tumbling over the rocks in the most reckless manner, the water being almost as pure as the water of life, and softer than any rain water I have ever used. Here we have lived for one whole week the sweet music of the river soothing us to quiet and refreshing sleep every night, and welcoming us with a joyous greeting in the morning. The river is full of mountain trout, which are easily caught by the skilled fisherman, and when "done brown," furnish a tempting dish to the hungry camper. The members of our party put themselves outside of an even 300 of the little speckled beauties, varying in size from six to ten inches in length, and of delicious flavor. Any man who does not feel good natured and genial, and ready to hug and kiss his mother-in-law, after having swallowed six or eight of these Rocky Mountain trout, must be a brute, entitled to no consideration from civilized humanity.

Our party, with the exception of your correspondent, all started for home this morning. The change from Longmont to this point 3000 feet higher, has proved so beneficial to my health during this week spent here, that it seemed best for me to remain a few weeks longer. I have my quarters at the boarding house of Mr. W. E. James, and the table affords everything that a reasonable man could desire. Mr. James is a jolly, fun-loving fellow, while his wife is a lady of more than average refinement, who carefully supervises the culinary department, and in a quiet motherly fashion strives to make all their guests feel perfectly at home. Unless there should be some necessity not now forseen for my return to Longmont, I intend to remain here until the first of September, which is the time fixed for the close of my vacation. Perhaps I may write again during my stay, perhaps not. I shall still remain yours very truly,

H. L. HAYWARD.

Notice.

To the members of the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company of Lenawee County:

The directors of said company have adopted the following additional by-law. This company is liable for losses occasioned by the use of steam power for threshing purposes, providing that the engine is in all respects in good order; that it has a double screen over the smoke stack, or an efficient spark arrester, that a competent engineer is employed, that at least a barrel of water, with four buckets and a ladder of sufficient length to reach the roof of the barn, is at all times on hand ready for use; that the engine is not left without a watch man of good habits while there is fire in it, and not otherwise.

Z. COOK, President

G. R. ALLIS, Secretary.

IT happens thus about 12 times out of a dozen. A young gent, once a Morenci boy, and who now has a clerkship in another city, who comes home at intervals "to astonish the natives" by the faultless cut of his broadcloth, dainty cane and pretty twist of his moustache, now writes a piteous wail to his friends for money to save his watch and things from the relentless pawnbroker. The moral of this story is, that it is wise for the boys, after being away, to come home the same plain, old boy, remember that their former acquaintances have about as much good common sense as any of their present associates; and that to put on airs is an expensive gush that never pays in the end.—Morenci Observer.

Morenci Observer: The rumor was current all through this region, yesterday, that the Canada Southern authorities were to resume the control and management of the Fayette branch at an early date—possibly next week. We give the report for what it is worth yet if the change is made it will unquestionably be gratifying to our people, as under the direction of the Canada Southern authorities it will become a part of the main line westward, but under the Lake Shore management it will probably remain but an insignificant plug road, worthy of but little attention from the magnates of that great corporation.

Columbus, O., Journal: The Burr Robbins' Great Allied Shows, were greeted by large and appreciative audiences, ng better circus and menagerie has been seen in our city for many years.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, Aug. 4, 1880.

At this regular session the Council convened at the usual hour.

Present the entire Council except Mr. McKinnon.

On motion, Charles Burridge was chosen Recorder, pro tem.

The Committee on Finance to whom was referred the following claims, viz:

Jerry Root	$ 1.15
C. A. Wright & Co.	3.75
James Moir	5.26
James Moir, 13 special police	19.50
John Whitenack	21.62
A. J. Palmer	7.50
A. B. Cotton	1.03
W.B. Hong	4.50
Jno. McConnell	35.00
W. C. Fitzsimmons	15.00
S. C. Stacy	18.00
S. M. Smith	2.00

Reported favorable thereto, and recommend such claims be allowed and paid.

On motion, the report was accepted and adopted, and orders directed to be drawn for the several amounts.

The street commissioner made his monthly report in writing, showing the No. of days of labor on the streets of this village during the past month including labor done with teams as well as hand labor, which report was approved and accepted by the council.

In compliance with a resolution of the council thereto requiring, the village marshal made a report in writing, showing the names of the owner or occupant of premises upon which or in front of which there are trees or other such plants with branches overhanging within eight feet of the sidewalk or crosswalk beneath such branches, which report was on motion accepted by the council and on motion it was resolved that each and every person named on such report having shade or ornamental trees or other like plants upon or in front of premises owned or occupied by him in said village, the branches of which trees or other plants overhang within eight feet of the sidewalk or crosswalk beneath such overhanging branches, be and is required hereby to remove any and all such overhanging branches, so that the sidewalk and crosswalks aforesaid shall be clear of branches to the height of eight feet above the surface thereof, and that such removal be made 10 days after the service of notice upon such owner or occupant named in said report, and that in default thereof the village marshal cause such overhanging branches to be removed and the payment of the costs and expense thereof be required of such owner or occupant, and on further motion the recorder pro tem. was instructed to procure 300 copies of the marshal's said report together with the previous resolutions of this council and the marshal to cause a copy thereof to be served on each and every person named in said report.

The following communication was received from the Tecumseh Fire Department, viz:

To the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh.

At the regular annual meeting of the Fire Department holden July 6th 1880, the follwing persons were elected officers for the ensuing year subject to the approval of your honorable body:

Chief—S. W. Bordine.
1st Ass't Chief—B. P. Anderson.
2d " " —Jehiel Davidson.
Engineer—Robt. Stretch.
Ass't Engineer—H. B. Stout.

S. W. ANDERSON, Secretary.

Dated July 6, 1880.

On motion the foregoing communication was accepted, ordered placed on file and the election therein set forth was duly approved and adopted.

The following claims were presented and refered to the committee on Finance, viz:

F. S. Wilson services as named, $2.50. Slayton & Son, coal.

Mr. George Curtis then appeared before the council and stated that the street lamp at intersection of Pottawatamie street and Maiden lane was worn out and worthless as a street lamp and asked it to be removed and replaced by a good one, wherefore on motion the matter presented by Mr. Curtis was refered to the street committee.

On further motion, the council adjourned.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, Secretary, pro tem.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Below is a list of transfers of Real Estate in Northern Lenawee for the week ending July 31, 1880, prepared at the office of Register of Deeds for the Tecumseh HERALD, by M. P. Long, Register:

DEERFIELD.

Perley Bills to Job Chase; land on sec. 35. $800.

ADRIAN.

J. W. Schnapp to J. B. Carlton; land on sec. 26. $1000.

MACON.

O. P. Osborn to B. J. Bidwell; land on sec. 16. $1593.34.

TECUMSEH.

A. Stocking to F. P. Clough; land in village. $600.

Morenci Observer: A severe thunder storm passed over the north part of the township on Thursday evening, during which a small horse barn on the farm of John Cooley was struck by lightning and burned; loss about $300, mostly covered by insurance in the Lenawee Farmers' Mutual. A small barn in Canandaigua was also struck by the fluid, but no particular damage was done.

Co. "C" will leave here for the Kalamazoo Encampment next Monday morning on the early train going South.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE

IN A HAMMOCK.

BY W. H. BOCK.

Dreamily swaying in indolent mood
Under the shadowy trees,
Catching swift gleams of the heaving sea away
Lulled by the hum of the bees,
Hazy [illegible] the great [illegible] of [illegible]
Hung in the either at rest;
Down by the brook in the [illegible] grass
A strong singing bird to its nest.

Murmurs of [illegible] leaves overhead,
Ripples of grass at my feet;
Drowsily [illegible] to a happiness, [illegible]
Charm with a melody sweet.

Hard beside [illegible] chatter in [illegible]
Light as the [illegible] on the stream;
Lulling [illegible] upon [illegible] in to mine,
Startle me out of my dream.

Soon in the [illegible] mood with delight,
I am as happy as you;
Through singing glad, if my heart had a voice
Its song would be full of joy too.

Oh the june day, with its sunshine and balm,
Its bird-song and beauty and bliss!
And oh, the dear eyes looking love into mine,
And lips that meet mine with a kiss!

THE WEAVER OF RAVELOE.

BY GEORGE ELIOT.

It was fifteen years since Silas Marner had first come to Raveloe, and at the end of fifteen years the Raveloe men said just the same things about him as at the begining. He was subject to catalepsey and to the villagers there was something mysterious in these fits, as a fit was a stroke and it was not in the nature of a stroke to let a man stand on his hind legs like a horse between the shafts, and then walk off as soon as you can say "Gee."

So had his ways of life peculiar peculiarities; he invited no comer to step across his door-sil, and he never strolled into the village to drink a pint at the Rainbow, and he sought no man or woman, save for the purpose of his calling, or to supply himself with the necessaries of life.

He had knowledge of herbs—and charms too they thought—and perhaps he was possessed of an evil spirit, so it was partly to his vague fear that Marner was indebted for protecting him from prosecution, and still more that as linen-weaver his handicraft made him a highly welcome settler to the rich housewives of that district. There was only one important addition which the years brought; it was, that Master Marner had laid by a fine sight of money somewhere.

His life had reduced itself to the mere functions of weaving and boarding. But about christmas of that 15th year, a great change came over Marner's life, and his history became blent in a singular manner with the life of his neighbors.

The greatest man in Raveloe was Squire Cass. Of his two sons, Dunsey, the second, the neighbors said it was no matter what become of him, a spiteful jeering fellow, whose taste for drinking, betting and swopping might turn him out to be a sowing of something worse than wild oats.

But it would be a pity if Mr. Godfrey, the eldest, a fine, open faced, good-natured young man, should take the same road as his brother which he seemed inclined to do of late.

Godfrey was in Dunstan's power as he had secretly married a coarse beauty whose love of drink had made her an unfit companion for any one, and he lived in fear of his father learning the dreadful secret and turning him adrift, so Dunstan made constant demands on him for hush money. Driven to desperation by his profligate brother he had given him permission to sell his favorite horse if he would make no further demands upon him.

So Dunsey rode the horse to the races, and before he had a chance to sell, killed the horse, and went from the grounds in a drunken, penniless state.

As he was plodding home through the dark he saw a light in Marner's house. He knocked but no one answered, and in stepping in he found it vacant. Where could he be, leaving his supper a cooking and the door unfastened. It was a dark, rainy night, and perhaps he had gone out for fuel and fallen in the stone pits.

That was an interesting idea to Dunstan. If the weaver was dead, who had a right to his money? Who would know where his money was hidden? Who would know that anybody had come to take it away? He saw a place near the loom where the sand had finger marks, he darted to it, lifted the bricks and found two leathern bags. He hastened out of the house with the bags. The rain and darkness had got thicker, but he was glad of it.

Silas came soon after, and after getting warm he thought he would put his beloved guineas on the table before him, as it would be pleasant to see them as he ate his unwonted feast. For joy is the best wine, and Silas's guineas were a golden wine of that sort. The sight of the empty hole made his heart beat violently, but the belief that his gold was gone could not come at once. He had put his gold somewhere else, and then forgotten it. He turned his bed over, he looked in the brick oven.

He felt once more all round the hole. He could see every object in cottage [illegible] gold [illegible] there. He put [illegible] trembling [illegible] to his head and gave a wild rending scream, the cry of desolation. The cry had relieved him from the first maddening pressure.

He tottered toward the loom, and got into the seat where he worked, instinctively seeking this of the strongest assurance of reality. The idea of a thief began to present itself. He started from the loom to the door. He rushed out in the rain and made his way to the inn. There Silas told his story under the great excitement, as the mysterious character of the robbery became evident.

The slight suspicion with which his hearers at first listened to him, gradually melted away before the convincing simplicity of his distress.

Dunsey Cass had never been heard from, and on New Year's eve Squire Cass gave a large party. That night Godfrey's wife was walking with slow uncertain steps through the snow-covered lanes of Ravelo, carrying her child in her arms.

Soon she felt numb with cold and fatigue, and then nothing but a supreme immediate longing to lie down and sleep. The complete torpor came at last; the fingers lost their tention, the arms unbent; then the little head fell away from the bosom, and the blue eyes opened wide on the cold starlight. Suddenly its eyes were caught by a bright gleaming light on the white ground; in an instant the child had slipped on all fours and held out one hand to catch the gleam. But the gleam could not be caught, and now the head was held up to see where the enaning gleam came from. It came from a very bright place; and the little one, rising on its legs on to the open door of Silas Marner's cottage, and right up to the warm hearth where Silas's coat lay on the bricks to dry. The little one squatted down on the coat, and presently the warmth had a lulling effect, and the little golden head sank down on the old coat asleep. But where was Silas Marner? He was in the cottage, but he did not see the child. He had gone to the door to look out, and put his right hand on the latch of the door to close it—but he did not close it; he was arrested by the invisible hand of catalepsy, and stood with wide but sightless eyes, holding open his door, powerless to resist either the good or evil that might enter there.

When Marner's sensibility returned he closed the door, and turning towards the hearth, where, to his blurred vision, it seemed as if there were gold on the floor in front of the hearth.

Gold!—his own gold—brought back as mysteriously as it had been taken away.

He leaned forward at last, and stretched forth his hand; but instead of the hard coin, his fingers encountered soft, warm curls. Could this be his little sister, come back to him in a dream? He had a dreamy feeling that this child was somehow a message come to him from that far-off life. But there was a cry on the hearth, and Silas fed and soothed it. He found it had on wet shoes, which suggested to him that she must have come from out doors, so he raised the child and went to the door, and the little one cried mammy. Bending forward he could just discern marks made by the little feet, and he followed their track to the furze bush, and there he found a human body, with the head sunk low in the furze, and half covered by the shaken snow. Silas knew that all the town was at the grand party at the Squire's so he carried the little one right there in search of the doctor. The doctor, Godfrey, and a few others, go to the stone pits, and then find that the woman is past help—dead. They urged Silas to part with the child, but he presses it to him and says:

"No, no! I can't part with it. It's come to me—I've a right to keep it."

It was a bright autumn Sunday, sixteen years after Silas Warner had found his new treasure on the hearth.

The bells of the old Raveloe church were ringing the cheerful peel which told that the morning service was ended.

He called her Eppie for his sister, and that morning as they walked home together, in low murmuring tones, Eppie talked to him.

"Father, if I was to be married, ought I to be married with mother's ring?"

"Why, Eppie, have you been a-thinking on it?"

"Only this last week, father," said Eppie, ingeniously, "since Aaron talked to me about it."

"And what did he say?" said Silas.

"He said he should like to be married because he was going on four and twenty, and had got a good deal of gardening work, now Mr. Mott's given up."

"And who is it he's wanting to marry?" said Silas with rather a sad smile.

"Why, me, to be sure, daddy," said Eppie, with dimpling laughter, kissing her father's cheek; "as if he'd wanted to marry any body else."

"And you mean to have him, do you?" said Silas.

"Yes, some time," said Eppie, "I don't know when."

"Evelyb[illegible] [illegible] time. Aaron says."

"But I told him that wasn't true, for I said, look at father—he's never been married."

"My child," said Silas, "your father was a lone man till you was sent him."

"But you'll never be lone man again, father," said Eppie tenderly. "That was what Aaron said."

"I could never think o' taking you away from Master Marner, Eppie, mun," I said, "it wd be no use if you did, Aaron," and he wants us all to live together, so you needn't work, and he'd be as good as a son to you. But I don't want any change. Only Aaron does want a change, and he made me cry a bit—only a bit—because he said I didn't care for him, for if I cared for him, I should want to be married as he did."

"Eh, my blessed child," said Silas. "You are o'er young to be married. But I shall get older and helpless, and I should like to have somebody else besides me—somebody young and strong, as 'ud take care o' you to the end."

"Then you would like me to be married, father?"

"I'll not be the man to say no, Eppie, but will ask your godmother. She'll wish the right thing by you and her son too."

And the godmother wished it.

In draining the lands the stone pits were drained dry, and the skeleton of Dunstan Cass was found and all of Silas Marner's gold, two hundred and sixty-five pounds. So Aaron and Eppie enlarged their garden and made pretty their home as they did not wish to leave the stone pits, and Epple's own words tell the story of their united happy life.

"Oh, father, what a pretty home ours is! I think nobody could be happier than we!"

BADLY MIXED.

Mark Twain in his new book called "Tramps Abroad," tells how a party of tourists got wet, and what they did when they came back to the hotel: "We stripped and went to bed, and sent our clothes down to be baked; all the horde of soaked tourists did the same. The chaos of clothing got mixed in the kitchen, and there were consequences. I did not get back the same drawers I sent down, when our things came up at 6:15; I got a pair on the new plan. They were merely a pair of long white, ruffled, cuffed sleeves, hitched together at the top with a narrow band, and they did not come down to my knees. They were pretty enough, but they made me feel like two people, and disconnected at that. The man must have been an idiot to get himself up like that to rough it in the Swiss mountains. The shirt they brought me was shorter than the drawers, and hadn't any sleeves to it—at least it hadn't any more than Mr. Darwin would call rudimentary sleeves; these had edgings around them, but the bosom was ridiculously plain. The knit-silk undershirt they brought me was on a new plan, and was really a sensible thing; it opened behind, and had pockets in for the shoulder-blades; but they did not seem to fit me, so I found it a sort of uncomfortable garment. They gave my bobtail coat to somebody else, and sent me an ulster suitable for a giraffe. I had to tie my collar on because there was no button on the foolish shirt which I described a little while ago."

TO MAKE A LIVE TOWN.

1. Sell your building lots at reasonable prices.
2. If you can afford to do so, donate a building lot for some large business enterprise, and thereby enhance the value of the town.
3. Induce business men to locate in your town.
4. Patronize the business men of your own town.
5. Always sum up your expenses when you visit places outside of your own town to buy goods.
6. Speak well of worthy public enterprises.
7. If anything should be undertaken that may be of benefit to the town, do not speak ill of it to others because you happen to be prejudiced against it.
8. Speak well to strangers of your town and people.
9. If you have surplus money, do not spend it in far off speculations, but give yourself and your town the benefit of it by establishing some profitable factory.
10. Encourage your local newspaper by subscribing for, advertising in, and paying for it.

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

The shades of night go about dewing good.

TOPICS.

A tub of butter weighs eighty-four pounds.

Coarse salt weighs eighty-five lbs per bushel.

Saturate leather belting with castor oil, and the rats will never gnaw it.

Samuel Martin, a Quaker of Kennett Square, Penn., has left $35,000 to various educational causes.

In the poorhouse at Milwaukee is one Joseph Dave, who before the war was reputed worth over $3,000,000.

A monument to Hans Christian Anderson, the fairy-tale writer, was unveiled in Copenhagen on the 20th of June.

A petition was recently presented to Parliament from the British Medical Association, signed by seven thousand medical men, against vaccination.

Greene Smith, the only son of the late Gerrit Smith, died July 23, at Petersboro, Madison County, N. Y., of consumption.

They have a very queer domestic custom in Japan. What a guest leaves upon his plate at table is wrapped in a paper and given to him to carry away.

The assessed valuation of real and personal property in New York city allows very nearly $1000 for each inhabitant, as ascertained by the recent census.

It is said that of the one hundred patents issued at the government office in Washington, ninety-eight never pay back the amount of the fee to the owners.

General Hancock is reported to be a rich man. Beside all his other property in Missouri, he has some excellent coal mines, which he refuses to sell, and does not at present care to open.

Ninety-one cities in this country have a population of over 5,000,000, or about one-sixth of the entire population, and this does not include cities with less than 30,000 population.

A large tea garden is about to be established in Georgia by John Jackson, an expert in tea-growing of 15 years' experience in India. He has bought a plantation, and has 160,000 plants under cultivation.

In the palace of San Souci, Frederick the Great's room is preserved as he left it, with his uniform, clothes, books, pens and paper all unmoved, while the clock, which by a strange coincidence stopped at the moment of his death, still points the hands to twenty minutes past two.

Two eggs of the Great Auk, declared to be genuine, and to have been discovered in an old private collection in Edinburgh, were sold by Mr. Stevens, auctioneer, King street, Covent Garden in London, July 2. Each one was sold for about $500.

By means of a little instrument called the sphygmograph, the pulse-beats may be accurately and permanently recorded. And now Dr. B. W. Richardson, LL. D., F. R. S., of London, by adding a microphone to a sphygmograph, has constructed a sphygmophone, by which the pulse beat may be heard forty feet away.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

It is predicted that there will not be a half dozen professional base ball clubs in the country next season.—People want to see a man maimed for life; this season a head bruised or a finger mashed has lost its interest.

The Bone and Muscle producing Malt, the Nerve-quieting Hop, the superb Malarial antidote Quinine, and other precious ingredients, combined without fermentation, are the ingredients of "Malt Bitters," prepared by the Malt Bitters Company.

That was a funny remark of the little girl who was sent out to hunt hen's eggs. She thought, as she didn't find any, it was strange, as she saw "lots of hens standing around doing nothing."

The Michigan State Grange of Patrons of Husbandry will hold its annual harvest festival at Lansing, on the 12th of August. The Michigan Grange embraces many able and enterprising men and women, and this occasion will be an interesting one.

A Frenchman cannot pronounce "ship." The word sounds "sheep" in his mouth. Seeing an iron-clad, he said to a boy. "Is dis a war sheep?" "No," answered the boy, "it's a ram."

Firecracker's frightened the horse of a New Haven pie-peddler, and caused it to jump into the sea. The pies were lost, owing to the crust being heavy.

Hill's Compound Extract of Buchu and Cubebs is warranted to cure Gravel.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

TREMENDOUS STOCK!!

READ MABLEY'S PRICE LIST!

Then visit his Mammoth Establishment and secure some of the Greatest Bargains Ever Offered.

Men's Strong Working Suits, $4, $5, and $6.
Men's Worsted and Union Cassimere Suits, $6, $7, and $8.
Men's Cashmere Suits, all wool, $9, $10, $11.
Men's Fine Dress and Business Suits, $12, $15, $18 to $20.
Men's Spring Overcoats and Ulsterettes from $5 up.
Men's Working Pants, 75c, $1, $1.25 and $1.50.
Men's Cassimere Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's School Suits from $2.50 up.
Boy's Fine Suits from $5.50 up.
Children's Suits from $1.25 up.

Suits Made to Order at the Lowest Possible Price. Gent's Furnish-Goods at the Lowest Possible Price. We have in stock every article advertised and 25 per cent. can be saved by trading with the

Old, Reliable, ONE-PRICE CLOTHIER, MABLEY,

71 & 73 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. - - Michigan.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. F. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Hessen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Peabody's Block.

P. S. MORRISON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HASKELL, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Revised Statutes Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Hessen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL. (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE. (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co; with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Hessen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

HIGBY & CURRY, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Haselton Bros., Gebler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

3 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in the village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

22 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residences of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

On a tramp—rags.

Clear grit—cheap sugar.

A good side-show—A pretty cheek.

A dangerous man—One who takes life cheerfully.

What would make a good fishing rod? Bass wood.

During the summer vacation life is mellow-drama.

Emulative of a gas main, the campaign is open at both ends.

When a man dies he adjourns sine die, so to speak.

A pun upon the dog days would be a dog gone good one.

To bring up a child in the way it should go, lead the way.

What is that which no man wishes to have and no one wishes to lose? A bald head.

The way for a desolate old batchelor to secure better quarters is to take a "better half."

Dr. Tanner is the sort of a citizen the English would like to colonize Ireland with.

Why is a miser like a man with a short memory? Because he is always for-getting.

A Philadelphia girl who pads her bathing suit says it is the safest and surest way to reform.

"Please pass the butter," as the man remarked when he sent his goat by rail.

Falling down stairs don't hurt some men. The reason is that they don't indulge in the performance.

An agricultural paper asks, "What is worse than smut in wheat?" Smut in a newspaper.

Time of life when a young man's mind turns fondly to dress is unpleasantly called the garb age.

Don't you believe that when a modern belle has done up her false hair, she has done her jute, eh?

A fashionable remark on entering a restaurant now is, "My name is Tanner; make haste!"

An addition of fifty baboons and monkeys has been made to the New York Central Park Museum. They are all foreigners.

The compositor who set up "$1000" instead of $10,000 might have prevented his mistake by a little fourth ought.

An Ithaca little girl, attempting to describe an elephant, spoke of it as "that thing that kicks up with its nose."

"You never saw my hands as dirty as that," said a petulant mother to her little girl. "No, but your ma did," was the reply.

The discovery that the chief of a tribe of Canadian Indians was really a woman, has created a squaw-king among the red men.

A little boy has been drowned in a public bath. This comes of the fatal habit of going into the water before having learned to swim.

A man just died in New Orleans of eating matches. The poor impatient could not wait till after death for his brimstone.

It has been noticed in cities where ladies are employed as ushers that the worshippers with new bonnets are all compelled to take back seats.

In playing polo, a horse recently lay down and rolled on his rider. If death ensues, this game will suddenly spring into rivalry with base ball.

The economical city housewife carefully searches her husband's vest pockets for cloves, in anticipation of the fruit spicing and pickling time.

The pool of Bethesda was very cleansing, and we have known a young man in the present day to be entirely cleaned out by fifteen ball pool.

"It's not the phisky a man drinks that makes him dizzy," said O'Flaherty, "but it's lukin' at the bartinder's diamond through the bottom iv the tumblers, be gorra!"

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

MISCELLANY.

Anger, like rain, breaks upon what ever it falls.

Draw not thy bow before the arrow be fixed.

Never expose your disappointments to the world.

If you would make a thief honest, trust him.

The simple flowers are sociable and benevolent.

Fortune can only take from us what she gave.

Words sometimes wound more than swords.

A good book supplies the place of a companion.

He who stops to pick a flaw in other's knitting work, drops many stitches in his own.

Those that flatter us the most in our prosperity are the first to speak ill of us in the time of trouble.

A restlessness in men's minds to be something they are not, and, to have something they have not, is the root of immorality.

A French statist has come to the conclusion, after a very laborious examination of the number of deaths from railway accidents in all parts of the world, that if a person were to live continually in a railway carriage and spend all his time in traveling, the chances in favor of his dying from railway accident would not occur until he was 960 years old.

Every failure is a step to success; every detection of what is false directs towards what is true; every trial exhausts some tempting form of error.—Not only so, but scarcely any attempt is entirely a failure; scarcely any theory, the result of a steady thought, is altogether false; no tempting form is without some latent charm derived from truth.—Whewell.

Free of Cost.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, etc., is given away in trial bottles free of cost to the afflicted. If you have a severe cough, cold, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness or any affection of the throat or lungs by all means give this wonderful remedy a trial. As you value your existence you cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. We cannot afford, and would not give the remedy away unless we knew it would accomplish what we claim for it. Thousands of hopeless cases have already been completely cured by it. There is no medicine in the world that will cure one-half the cases that Dr. King's New Discovery will cure. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Let Up—Take a Rest!

If you want to start on a very cheap and enjoyable tour in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and no "extras," write to

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Agt.. Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1868. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

Physicians freely prescribe the new Food Medicine, "Malt Bitters," because more nourishing, strengthening, and purifying than all other forms of malt or medicine, while free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

THE Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake entered during the last year 97 Cadets, representing ten States. To secure such patronage in three years proves that only thorough work is done there.

Multum in parvo!—American Ball-Blue is declared by expert housewives to be a little blue giant of many accomplishments for laundry use.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health and by the best Chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in least a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

Biscuits, Cake, Pastry, etc., can be made prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, Bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this Dye. It imparts no injurious property to the hair, is perfumed and elegant. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. R. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "it is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Constipation it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABOM, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?

BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts. of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best

KIDNEY

INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculi, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the Cold and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., 161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Maiden streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich. Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

NATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for easily superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less fuel than one half the usual power and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 4 to 13 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

38 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED

by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

MILK SAFES!

I have a few Milk Safes on hand which I will sell at Cost for the Next Thirty Days. Also,

Bedsteads, Bureaus & Stands

of all kinds. Kitchen Tables, leaf and extension.

Best Kiln Dried Extension Tables

At Panic Prices.

Give me a call. Shop at S. W. Temple's Planing Mill, Tecumseh, Mich.

RICHARD CALDWELL.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Silver Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry, Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD,

Issued every Thursday morning,
IN TECUMSEH, LENAWEE CO., MICH.
Office in the Kies Block, Patterson's Corners, One door East of the Post Office, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One year (in advance) $1.50
Six Months, " 75
Four Months, " 50
Every person who shall send to the publishers a club of twenty-five names, shall receive one copy free for one year.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.
Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.
Marriages, births, and Death Notices free.
Rates for general advertising, and for contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents' names are invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG. 5, 1880.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The fall term of the Tecumseh Public Schools will begin on Monday, Sept. 6th. Prof. Fairfield, the new superintendent is already here, and an efficient corps of teachers has been employed to assist him. Several important additions have been made to the course of study, and the prospects for a larger foreign attendance than usual are very encouraging. We present below a few items of information for such as desire attending school here during the coming year.

The schools of Tecumseh are divided into three departments: Primary, Grammar, and High School. These consist of four years each. By a faithful attendance upon his duties, a pupil may pass from the lowest grade to the highest, qualified to enter college, engage in teaching, or the active duties of a business life. To residents in the school district the advantages thus presented are certainly great; while admission is granted to all who desire it.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The courses of study in the High School have been framed upon the basis laid down by the State University, so that a student who holds a diploma of graduation, is qualified for matriculation in any of the colleges. Students who have gone to the Michigan University from this High School have been invariably successful in their examinations and stand among the foremost in their classes. Many of the teachers of this and neighboring townships received their preparation here.

The Classical, Latin, and Scientific courses consist of four years each. The English course is arranged for three years, this with the addition of solid Geometry and English History, meets the demands of the University for their new English course. The commercial course is a new feature of the Tecumseh schools, and is arranged to meet the demand of those who can spend but a short time in the High School, and wish, during that time, to pursue those studies usually regarded more practical. The course is arranged for two years and includes, among others, double entry book-keeping, business arithmetic, business correspondence, natural philosophy, and chemistry.

Students are permited to take selected studies from any of the regular courses, but nearly all find it to their advantage to enter some regular course as soon as possible. Pupils completing any of the prescribed courses of study will be presented with a diploma of graduation.

ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the different grades will not be required to undergo any severe examination, only such as will enable the examiner to decide whether the candidate is able to do the work of the proposed grade.

Those applying for admission to the High School should come prepared to pass an examination in practical arithmetic, spelling, geography, English grammar, and United States history.

Pupils will find it to their interest to be present at the opening of the term, as any delay is largely detrimental to success. Pupils are received at any time, however, and placed in classes suitable to their attainments.

EXPENSES.

Tuition is free to resident pupils. Non-resident pupils are charged per term, in advance as follows:

High School Dept.	$5.00 per term.
Grammar "	4.50 " "
Primary "	3.50 " "

Twelve weeks constitute a term in payment of tuition. All tuition must be paid within ten days after the student's admission to the school, to the Director, who will give a receipt for the same.

Good board and lodging can be procured at from $2.00 to 4.00, and rooms at from .50 to $1.25 per week.

Many students, by clubbing together and boarding themselves, materially reduce their expenses. Rooms can always be procured at very reasonable rates.

APPARATUS.

The High School is furnished with Cyclopedias, Histories and dictionaries as books of reference, which are always at the pupils' service. The recitations in Natural Philosophy and Chemistry are accompanied by illustrations and experiments with apparatus, chemicals, &c.

The High School is well supplied with philosophical and chemical apparatus. Students are taught to perform experiments in these branches. The Library contains about 600 volumes, from which pupils are permitted to draw one book each week.

EXAMINATIONS.

In the Grammar and High School Grades written examinations will be held at the close of each month's advance work. A record of the daily recitation will be kept and an average of the two will constitute a pupil's position in his studies.

A standing of 90 per cent. in each study pursued is required. Students upon completing a study in the High School and passing a satisfactory examination therein, will receive a certificate to that effect.

Any pupil absent from a regular examination is marked zero. This cannot be made up afterwards unless the absence was caused by sickness or excused by the Supt. Any further information may be obtained by applying to the superintendent, either personally or by letter.

CALENDAR.

1880 Sept. 4—Examination of Candidates for admission.
" " 6—Fall Term begins.
" Dec. 24—Fall Term closes; general exhibition; Holiday vacation of 10 days.
1881 Jan. 3—Winter Term begins.
" March 24—Winter Term closes; Public Examination; Junior exhibition; vacation of 1 week begins.
" April 3—Spring Term begins.
" June 23—Spring Term closes; Graduating exercises of the Class of '81.

TEACHERS' CLASS.

A teachers' class will be organized at the commencement of the fall term and continue eight weeks, or longer if it is found desirable. An opportunity will be given for reviewing the common branches, and there will be daily lectures upon the Theory and Practice of Teaching, including talks upon the best methods of teaching the different studies found in our common schools, School Government, Object Lessons, Art of Questioning, Common Errors in Teaching, Organization of District Schools, Relation of Teacher and Parent, and such other topics as may be found desirable.

The teachers' class will be under the immediate direction of the Superintendent, whose experience in Michigan State Teachers' Institutes eminently qualifies him for this work.

The tuition for this course is the same as for the regular High School studies.

MISCELLANEOUS

A full corps of teachers has been selected with special reference to experience and qualifications.

The established success of the Tecumseh Schools and the favorable auspices for the coming year, lead the School Board to expect a liberal share of the public patronage.

Copies of the annual circular of the Tecumseh Public Schools for 1880-81, containing in addition to the foregoing items, the names of officers and teachers, courses of study, rules and regulations, may be had by addressing the director, S. C. Stacy.

Hudson Post: A terrific hail storm passed over a strip of country last Friday afternoon, inflicting heavy damages. The strip that the heaviest losses occurred in seems to be from one-half to three-fourths of a mile wide.—The storm traveled in an easterly direction, bearing toward the south. It passed about two miles north from town, knocking down oats and damaging corn; but it did not seem to reach the height of its power till about three miles further east, where the damage seems to be the most severe, although we hear of a large amount of crops being destroyed in Dover. Four miles east of here the windows of the west side of Harry Meyers' house were nearly all destroyed, as were those of Mrs. Mills. Oats which before bore promise of forty bushels per acre will not now yield five, and will not pay for the harvesting. The corn crop in the line of the storm is ruined. Several birds were found dead, and we learn that Sidney McNutt found a crane in a field with both wings broken from the effects of the storm.

Shelbyville, Ind., Daily Republican, July 9th, 1880. "Burt Robbins, who exhibited his Great Allied Shows here to-day, has everything connected with his show systemized in such a way as to please his patrons and all with whom he has dealings. His show is entirely free from the usual mob of gamblers, pickpockets, blacklegs and three-card-monte men who follow in the wake of most other shows, Mr. Robbins having two or more government detectives in his employ constantly, who are quick to note any such individuals who prey on society."

Cincinnati Enquirer: The show proved first class, and well worthy the patronage so generously bestowed, the canvass being crowded both afternoon and evening, during its stay in the city. We congratulate the manager, Mr. Robbins upon his success in catering to the amusement loving public, for it was fully up to the advertised promise. Every special feature being presented in a style and manner artistic and pleasing.

People living outside of Detroit who can't conveniently visit the city may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a card stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure any customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our home experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may have the selection of a

Write plain and full name and address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF
DRY GOODS,
2 & 3 Opera House Building,
DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Well directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 49 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs.
Buffalo, New York.

THE CORNER GROCERY!
WILSON McCLURE
Is the place to buy your
Teas, Coffees, Spices,
Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,
CIGARS AND TOBACCOS.
And a general variety of
CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES
Everything New, Neat and Clean.
Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,
SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,
GO TO THE
LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY
Satisfaction Guaranteed.
J. R. HIALEY.

ESTATE OF ISAAC COLLINS,

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, the 31st day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Isaac Collins, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Mary Ann Collins, widow of said deceased, praying for the Probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters of administration on said estate, with the will annexed, be granted to Francis M. Oakley or some other suitable person, there being no executor in said will named.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 30th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. Raleigh, Probate Register. 31-4

Ague Cure

Is a purely vegetable bitter and powerful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, languid, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, deafness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. AYER'S AGUE CURE thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

For Liver Complaints, AYER'S AGUE CURE, by direct action on the liver and biliary apparatus, drives out the poisons which produce these complaints, and stimulates the system to a vigorous, healthy condition.

We warrant it when taken according to directions.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $95.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Agents Wanted for SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY & HOLMAN'S PICTORIAL BIBLES. NEW. Address, for circulars, A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Phila.

ELMIRA COLLEGE.
This college is thoroughly furnished for giving a superior education in Collegiate and Eclectic Courses of Study, and also in Music and Art. By reason of its endowment its charges are unusually moderate. Send for catalogue to REV. A. W. COWLES, D.D., Pres., Elmira, N. Y.

MALT
THE NEW FOOD
Malt Bitters Company
MEDICINE
BITTERS

DO not confound this Matchless Renovator of Feeble and Exhausted Constitutions with violent cathartics, cheap decoctions of vile drugs, and ruinous intoxicants innocently labeled "bitters." MALT BITTERS appeal to popular confidence, because prepared from Unfermented Malt, Hops, and Quinine, and precious ingredients, according to the process of Liebig and are richer in the elements that restore to permanent health the Weak, Convalescent, Consumptive, Over-worked, Nervous, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Bilious, and Fickle in Appetite, than all other forms of Malt or Medicine. The genuine are plainly signed by the company. Sold everywhere. MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

The BEST HEALTH AND STRENGTH RESTORER EVER USED.

So perfect is the composition of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC that no disease can long exist where it is used. If you have Dyspepsia, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bowel, Kidney, or Liver Disorder, or if you need a mild stimulant, or appetizer, the TONIC is just the medicine for you, as it is highly curative and invigorating but never intoxicating. Try a 50c. bottle. Your druggist can supply you.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensions now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 125, Washington, D. C.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.
THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!
IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.
For Sale by all Grocers.
American Ultramarine Works,
55 Maiden Lane, New York.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.
A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

AT KIES BROTHERS,
(Successors to W. J. Kies.)
Grand Cost Sale of
CLOTHING, CLOTHING,
For one week, in order to make room for
FALL GOODS
Now being made expressly for our trade.
Look at these Prices:

$15.00	Suits	reduced	to	$12.00.
13.50	"	"	"	11.00.
12.00	"	"	"	10.00.
10.00	"	"	"	8.00.
2.50	Dusters	"	"	1.75.
1.25	"	"	"	85.

All we ask is that you will take the trouble to come and see our bargains.
KIES BROS.,
One Price Clothiers,
HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

BAXTER
Can Boot any one in the County.
BAXTER
Can shoe any lady of any age
BAXTER
Can and will suit everyone on
BOOTS AND SHOES!
I have just received the first fall invoice of Heavy and Fine MEN'S BOOTS.
Call for the
Rockland Ditching Boot,
At Lee's old stand.
BAXTER.

I Have 12 Milk Safes
That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.
A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,
EVERY DAY AT
JAMES LOWRY'S
GROCERY STORE.
ALSO ALL KINDS OF
Groceries and Provisions.
CALL AND SEE THE
CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

PAY UP.

All persons indebted to Dr. R. B. House, whose accounts have been of more than three months standing, will confer a favor by calling and settling the same and thereby save a personal visitation from the collector.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.

If the person who borrowed my wheelbarrow during my absence and without permission from any man, does not return the same without delay, it will be regarded as a case of intentional larceny and treated accordingly. B. L. BAXTER.

Tecumseh, August 4, 1880.

FARM FOR SALE.

On account of failing health, I offer my farm for sale, containing 50 acres, a good orchard, fruit of all kinds, permanent supply of best of well and cistern water, very pleasant location. For particulars inquire on the premises, one mile north of Ridgeway. JOHN BECKLEY.

FOR SALE.

I have a quantity of half gallon tin cans suitable for canning corn or other vegetables, for sale cheap.

Z. S. TAYLOR.

Tecumseh, August 4, 1880.

HEADQUARTERS Co. C, 1st Reg't M.S.T.
TECUMSEH, Aug. 2, 1880.

General Order No. 7.

The company will leave for camp on the morning train on Monday, Aug. 9th, 1880. Every member of the company will report at the Armory on that morning at 6:30 o'clock sharp. A failure to so report will render the member liable to the penalties imposed in Sec. 72, State Laws.

R. B. HOUSE,
Capt. Commanding Company.

FOUND.

On July 3d, 1880, a small sum of money in a pocket book. The same can be obtained by paying the charges. Apply at HERALD OFFICE.

TOWNSHIP CAUCUS.

A caucus will be held in the Council Building in the village of Tecumseh, on Friday, Aug. 6th, 1880, at 3 o'clock P.M., to choose six delegates to attend the Democratic County Convention to be held at Adrian on Saturday, Aug. 7th, 1880; and also six delegates to attend the Representative Convention hereafter to be called. All citizens, irrespective of past party differences who favor the election of General Hancock, are invited to join in this caucus.

BY ORDER OF TOWN COMMITTEE.

FARM HAND WANTED.

A good farm hand can find employment by inquiring at the HERALD OFFICE.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

B. L. Baxter is stopping at Deerfield most of the time now attending to his landed interests in that vicinity.

A Card.

We desire to express our thanks to our friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us at the death of our dear little Charlie.

MRS. CYNTHIA A. HOAG,
MR. & MRS. G. W. SMITH.

BROKE JAIL.

Four Prisoners Escaped from the Adrian Jail last Tuesday Night.

Sheriff Cairns was awakened last Wednesday morning to learn that four of his prisoners had escaped during the night. They were Butler of Morenci for poisoning a horse; Wm. Thurston, of Palmyra; Austin and Rowell for burglarizing Baker's safe.

They escaped from their cells to the corridor, by removing a bar of iron from the door and then they built a fire under the stone of the window sill and cracked it by throwing on cold water. They then removed the brick from a space large enough to allow a person's body to pass through.

A reward of $50 each for the return of Austin, Rowell, Butler and Thurston is offered by the county.

FIRE.

Last Sunday morning about 6 o'clock the sound and peaceful slumbers of the citizens of Tecumseh were disturbed by the ringing of the fire bell. The barn of Charles Burridge was found to be in flames and by the time the engine commenced to throw, the barn was nearly burned down. The pony that was in the barn was rescued just in time and with some difficulty. As to the origin of the fire no one knows to a certainty, but every one is of the opinion that it was the work of some tramp or fire fiend. The officers, just after the fire saw a tramp making good time over the ties toward Adrian, and they immediately arrested and locked him up on suspicion, but he was released after dinner as nothing could be proved against him. It is said that the congregations at the several churches were much larger than usual.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. AUG. 5, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

THE circus is coming.

L. E. MERCHANT, of Salamanca, N. Y., gave us a short call on Thursday last.

THE Democratic county convention will be held at Adrian next Saturday Aug. 7.

MISS RACHEL MOSHER, of Springville was in town yesterday and gave us a call.

PETER PHELPS makes just the right kind of a messenger boy for Newberry Satterthwaite.

MISS ELLA CLEMENTS, of Ann Arbor, has been the guest of the Misses McCowen for a few days.

TOM PHELAN'S departure from Tecumseh last Saturday afternoon was somewhat hurried and embarassing.

EVERY farmer who comes into town with a load of wheat is immediately pounced upon by 7 or 8 wheat buyers.

THE first car of Red Cedar posts ever brought to town was received Aug. 2, by S. W. Temple, direct from the south.

N. BAILEY threshed for Geo. Hanford 1,050 bushels of wheat in one day, and the next forenoon 400 bushels in four hours without a stop. Who can beat that?

UNCLE BILL NIXON'S birth-day came round last Sunday, and according to the usual custom, the drum corps boys came out with him for a little serenade on Monday evening.

PROF. Q. H. GRASER of Bryan, O., is in town a few days, stopping with W. H. Sink. He has been a professor in the State Medical College of Kansas, and is an honorary member of many scientific societies.

SUPT. Z. C. SPENCER of the Battle Creek schools and Supt. E. B. Fairfield of the Tecumseh schools will be associate conductors in the State Teachers' Institute in Bay and Midland counties August 16 & 27.

GEO. HANFORD is the richest man in our community. He had 2,500 bushels of wheat, and it averaged 32 bushels per acre. It is needless to say that he feels first rate, and brought the HERALD boys a watermelon.

GEO. A. KIES has removed to Tecumseh and has entered into partnership with his brother, Will, in the clothing business. The new firm is a strong one. Geo. has many acquaintances here who will gladly welcome him to Tecumseh. We call attention to the business announcement of the new firm elsewhere.

The Raisin Valley Reunion Association will hold its seventeenth annual meeting on the Seminary grounds on Friday afternoon, August 13th, 1880. Literary exercises will commence promptly at three o'clock P. M., at the close of which dinner will be served in the grove. An oration will be delivered by James Sinclair, and a poem by Celia Jones. An interesting reunion is anticipated.

JOHNNY ORR last Friday as he was entering his home missed his footing and his foot slipped from off the porch so that it sprained his ankle. He had his ankle set by a physician and it is not known but that it cracked the bone at the same time, as the symptoms are more serious than those of a sprained ankle. We hope that it will not keep him in the house much longer or that the bone was fractured.

LAST Sunday morning a report was circulated that a man supposed to be Simmons had been seen down on Kneeland's flats. A force of about 40 men were soon at the flats. They decided to surround them and then all come together in the center; and so they did but no Simmons could they find, and the crowd then dispersed as quickly as it assembled. It is believed by some that a man is lurking around the flats and that it may be Simmons, as the cellars of the houses in the vicinity have all been visited lately, and a good many provisions stolen.

THE party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Al. Brewer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mills and daughter, Misses Warner, Alice Wimple, Augusta Hall, Anna Sutton, Minnie Sutton and Emma Satterthwaite, returned from their trip to Duluth the first part of the week. When in going they arrived at Detroit they found their boat, the Winslow, a day late, so they remained in Detroit at the expense of the company during the day. Tuesday they started for their lake trip, but ere long they were all sea sick on account of the roughness of the lake. About 5 o'clock P. M. the pin of the wheel of the steamer was broken so that the steamer had to be towed back to Detroit and placed in the dry dock for repairs. Some of the party at this time decided not to wait for the Winslow, but took the City of Cleveland. The remaining ones, Wednesday morning, started again and by night time reached Port Huron where they remained until morning, and then went through the Sault by daylight. The journey was pleasant from beginning to end, and was considerably so through the kindness of the officers of the boat.

GREEN VS. RED.

Two Exciting Games in which the Tecumsehs did Themselves Credit.

The Green Stockings of South Bend arrived here Friday and immediately after dinner they proceeded to the base ball grounds, where they were about to meet the Tecumsehs for the first time upon the diamond. A large crowd had filled the grand stand and the grounds, and every one was deeply interested in the game. As many thought that the Tecumsehs had met their match. The South Bend boys looked finely; they were all heavy and well built, and elicited considerable praise.

Finally at 2:50 the game was called by umpire W. W. Frazer, with the Tecumsehs at the bat. The 1st innings was a good one for both nines. Bostwick picked up the bat for the Tecumsehs but failed to reach 1st on a hit to Johnson. Shaughnessy very expeditiously took his base on wild pitching by Kurtz, and came in from 3d on a passed ball by Peak. Tray also took 1st on balls. Root followed with an out on a fly to Kerner. Chapman then sent Tray home and skipped to 1st on a buzzing safe hit to c. f.—Freeman scored the third out, leaving Chapman on 1st base.

The Greens then came in from the field, but failed to do as well as the Tecumsehs at the bat. Peak dropped the bat on a fly to Chapman. Rockstroh made 2d on a high fly to l. f.—Johnson then scratched his first base on three strikes and a passed ball by Tray. Barr was out at 1st by a grounder to Eccles. Rockstroh scoring the first run for the Greens. Lynch sent them to the field on three strikes.

The 2d innings was a white wash for both nines. McKinney, Anderson and Eccles retiring on three strikes for the Reds. In this innings an excellent play was made by Tray and McKinney. Asire was on 3d when Kurtz knocked a base hit to l. f. and attempted to make home on it, but by an excellent throw by McKinney to Tray, Asire was out, as Tray caught him just as he jumped for the home plate.

The 3d innings gave the Tecumsehs two more runs and the South Bends one, which made it evident that the Tecumsehs by careful playing had a fair chance of winning the game.—Shaughnessy and Bostwick scored the runs, Tray, Root and Chapman the outs. Peak gave the Greens a run, but by some neat and quick fielding by the Reds, Rockstroh, Johnson and Barr followed without reaching a base.

The 4th innings did not change the score of either nine. "Dad" and Jim pitching and catching out three successive men.

The 5th innings was another goose egg for both. Tray and Bostwick in this innings, by a fine play, caught Kurtz at 2d, while directly afterwards Shaughnessy and Chapman drew forth applause for a neat play at 1st in putting Peak out.

The 6th innings was a whitewash for both. Then followed the innings which settled the game. The excitement at this point of the game was intense and the 7th inning made it run wild. McKinney easily took the first base on a hot whizzer through Johnson. Anderson sent him to 2nd on a safe hit. Eccles sent the boys along another base on a good bat to r. f.—Here came the crisis, three men on bases and Floyd Bostwick at the bat. But the first ball that Kurtz put thro' Bostwick knocked for the luckiest and one of the hottest base hits to l. f. of the game. The boys on the bases started and not one of them stopped until they reached the home plate, and Bostwick making his 3rd bag, amid the clash and din of breaking umbrellas and false teeth. Shaughnessy soon put Bostwick home and himself on 1st by a cloud cleaving base hit to l. f., but was caught at 2nd by Rockstroh. Tray and Root were out at 1st. Then the Green Stockings, considerably rattled, came in and soon took the field again, without a run.—The game now stood 8 to 2 in favor of Tecumseh.

The last two innings the Tecumsehs batted Kurtz hard and secured five runs. The Green Stockings securing one. The game was finished the score standing 13 to 3 in favor of Tecumseh. Umpire Frazer umpired the game to the satisfaction of both nines in a very fair and close manner.

The Tecumsehs made five errors and the Green Stockings 13. Both nines did some heavy batting; the Green Stockings hitting Shaughnessy for nine base hits, and the Reds batting Kurtz for ten. Peak hurt his fingers by catching a wild throw by Kurtz during the game, but both Peak and Kurtz played well.

SECOND GAME.

The interest awakened by the first game drew a large crowd together to witness the second. The South Benders put the Tecumsehs to the bat, and Barney Clark, of Adrian, as "empire." The innings resulted in a whitewash for both nines. The game looked as if it was to be a hard contested one by both nines, as they all played with vim.

The second innings was a goose egg for Tecumseh, but Kurtz scored a run for the Green Stockings. The 3rd, 4th and 5th innings didn't score a run for either nine. At the beginning of the 3rd Shaughnessy had to stop pitching on account of his shoulder, which has been in a bad condition for two or three weeks. McKinney took the pitcher's stand, Shaughnessy playing 1st, Chapman s. s., and Anderson l. f.

During these three innings both nines did laudable work, while the enthusiasm of the spectators increased and burst forth several times in praise of fine plays. The Greens hit some heavy bats, while the Tecumsehs fielded them in a faultless manner.—Chapman fielding two hot grounders to 1st, and Freeman freezing on to a high fly of Kerners in c. f. in good style.

Then came the decisive inning. Tecumseh up to this failing to score a run, while the Green Stockings had one. Anderson picked up the bat and by a safe hit, and wild throw by Lynch, reached the 3rd base. Eccles followed with a hot grass cutter, sending Anderson home and himself to 1st. Bostwick stepped up then and by a whizzing bat through Johnson, put Eccles on 2nd and himself at the 1st bag. Shaughnessy quickly sent Eccles to 3rd, while he took 1st on a grounder to Johnson, who put Bostwick out at 2nd. Here every spectator with breathless anxiety sat rigid in their seats. But Jim Tray walked up to the bat and with a strong swing sent a streaking bager through Asire, which opened up the gates of pandemonium and put Eccles and Shaughnessy home. Tray coming around and scoring a run on some of the wildest kind of throwing by the rattled Green Stockings. The Reds went back to the field with the score 4 to 1. A decided change.

During th 7th innings the Greens made one run. Then came the eighth an innings that evidently showed that despite the confidence placed in the umpire, Clark, if there was any at this stage of the game, that he was not the upright and honest man that he was supposed to be. But, on the other hand, by his decisions, he revealed that he was umpiring the game to beat the Tecumsehs. Many of his decisions in the first part of the game aroused considerable suspicion, and when in the eighth innings he gave the Green Stockings three runs on a foul the suspicions of his chicanery became supplemented with a belief. This was such a foolish decision on the part of Clark that not even the South Bend boys, whom he favored, would uphold him. The captain of their nine said it was a foul and told the base runners to return to their bases; but they run in nevertheless at the nod of Clark.—The game at the end of this innings stood 6 to 6. The next was a whitewash for both.

This necessitated the tenth innings. Tecumseh went to bat and was whitewashed, through another spiteful decision of Clark's. Then the Green Stockings came in from the field, and when two men were out and a man on 3rd base, Rockstroh went to bat and made a good hit which brought in Kerner, with Peak out at 3rd. This decided the game. The score under the supervision and correction of Clark being 6 to 7 in favor of the Greens.

The Green Stockings left for their home on the evening train and promised the Tecumsehs that they would play them two more games at South Bend. The nine made many friends in Tecumseh by their genial and gentlemanly manners and would be welcomed in Tecumseh at any time again.

The Tecumsehs played under the disadvantage also of being compelled to put a new man in Shaughnessy's position, which according to the South Bend boys, lost the game for the Tecumseh's, notwithstanding Clark.

THE old folks as well as the boys and girls will find some interesting reading on the eighth page this week.

—Now is the time to hand in your coal orders to S. W. Temple.

TESTIMONIAL.

I deem it a privilege to speak a few words in favor of the Eureka Salve. I bruised my finger badly, was very painful; tried arnica and other remedies which did no good. I had no relief until I applied Eureka Salve. Its effect was truly wonderful. In six hours the pain was all gone and my finger was soon cured. I had but little faith in it until I tried it. I would advise the faithless to make a trial of it and save pain and expense.

W. H. SINK.

Tecumseh, Mich.

TRADE NOTICE.

We are glad to give notice to our friends that we control a substantial trade extending over 20 townships, and that for years our trade has been steadily increasing. With our large trade, and long experience, with our large roomy store, (the best in the county,) and our small expenses compared with our large trade, we have advantages worthy your notice. This fall we shall leave no stone unturned to exceed our very large trade of last year, and are now increasing our stock of Dry Goods, Clothing and Boots and Shoes to its fullest capacity. It will pay you to call. Please come.

Respectfully,
F. H. Brown & Co., Blissfield.

—Splendid melons at J. Davidson's, to-day and Saturday.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new.

A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this yearis Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.

A. B. Cotton.

—Our Mr. Clement is now east having having a car load of Buggies made expressly for us, with our brand on every one, warranted. Come and see our stock if you do not buy.

Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—A Special offer for 30 days. One hundred and ten dollars will buy a good upright Piano. Warranted for five years at Adamson's.

—If you want a good porcelain and cylinder pump get it at the Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—Kennedy's circus don't make any difference with his prices on Implements.

—You can kill two birds with one stone Aug. 7th. There is to be a big mass meeting, pole raising, speakers from abroad will be here and one of the biggest sales of Buggies ever in Lenawee Co. Be sure to come to Blissfield Aug. 7 and have a good time. Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—Always bear in mind that Wm. Snedicor, Ridgeway, has pumps for sale.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres.

J. A. Eaton & Co,

—We have on hand all the time, about 25 buggies. Call at our warehouse and look over our stock.

Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—Champion Rubber Buckets for chain pumps at Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—The Hoosier Drill is the best in the market. For sale by Wm. Snedicor, Ridgeway.

—All kinds of Screen Doors and Windows of the best material, also all kinds of building material at

S. W. Temple's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Notice, a great sale of Wagons and Buggies at Blissfield Aug. 7, 1880. We will sell at auction and private sale, 40 Wagons and Buggies consisting of Milburn platform spring, open and top; Carriages Dayton, open and top; Syracuse open and top; Romeo open and top; and the A, B, and C, grades of Cincinnati buggies. If you intend purchasing a Buggy open or top come to our sale Aug. 7.

Williams, Clement & Co., Blissfield.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Chenille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

—You should see those immense melons at J. Davidson's.

—Farmers, look at those adjustable Fruit Ladders at Kennedy's.

—We shall offer bargain in Dress Goods, shawls and all summer goods for the next 30 days in order to make room for fall stock.

J. A. Eaton & Co.,

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.

Brown, the Photographer.

—Come and see the circus and don't forget to call at Kennedy's.

—A full line of drills at Kennedy's.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

—Wanted—To trade a Granite Monument for a good horse. Apply to L. A. Davis, Tecumseh Steam Granite and Marble Works, Tecumseh.

ATTENTION FARMERS.

Alvah Raymond has tried one of the "Springer Wheel Harrow and Cultivators," sold by Slayton & Son, and says "it is the best tool I ever saw.—The man ought to have a pension who invented it."

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids.

A. B. Cotton.

DIED.

HOAG—In Tecumseh, July 27th of Cholera Infantum, Charlie S., infant son of L. E. and Cynthia A. Hoag, aged 10 months and 21 days.

"Little feet that never trod,
Grassy meadow, or daisied sod,
Found the path that leads to God."

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, Aug. 4, 1880.

Aten, Mr. Frank	Martin, W. E.
Brown, W. L.	McFall, Willie
Coller, L. C.	Ritz, Benjamin
Hamilton, C. S.	Sutton, George
Hunn, Walter C.	Tyler, A. D.
Miller, Mrs. Claris

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

Ridgeway.

Remaining unclaimed in the Post Office at Ridgeway, Lenawee County, Mich., Aug. 1, 1880.

Cooper & Roe	Kistler, Leonard
Dutton, C. E.	McRea, J. C.
Gould, Lewis	Smith, Washington
Harper, Nelson	White, John
Heath, Conway & Co-6	Weston, T. W.
Ingrim, Samuel

Persons calling for the above letters will please say "advertised."

PETER SHARP, P.M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, Aug. 5, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending July 28, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show an increase of 5,468 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

34 steers	1260	4.65	17 steers	1230	$4.60
17 steers	1237	4.65	17 steers	1211	4.55
18 steers	1345	3.70	6 steers	1091	4.50

Sheep—The receipts for the week show an increase of 4,900 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

114 Mich. lambs	65	5.60
113 Ohio do	59	5.80
22 Mich. bucks	140	3.00

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show a decrease of 1,720 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

88	180	5.00	55	250	5.25
157	162	4.75	136	202	5.10
42	152	4.90	96	258	5.00

DETROIT MARKET.

Wednesday, Aug. 4, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 12 cars at 95c; do Aug. 7,000 bu at 95¼; do September, 1,000 bu at 95c; do October, 64,000 bu at 95c.

Feed—Bran, $10.50@11.50; middlings $15 per ton.

Barley—$1.50@1.75 per central.

Rye—60@75c.

Apples—$1.50@2.00 per bbl.

Butter—14@17c per lb.

Beans—City picked, $1.40 per bu.

Cheese—9½@10c per lb.

Eggs—Fresh, 10c per doz.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@11c. Shoulders, 6½c. Breakfast bacon, 9½c. Dried beef, 13c per lb.

Potatoes—$1.50@1.70 per bbl.

Corn—43c per bu.

Oats—32@34½c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 2070 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 3650 lbs.
EGGS—Shipped 31 crates, 65 bbls.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 2,100
WOOL—Shipped 1 car.
GRAIN—Shipped 1 car.
MILL FEED—Shipped 4 cars.
LIVE STOCK—Shipped 2 cars.
STAVES—Shipped 2 cars.

Apples, ₩ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ₩ ℔	5 @	7
Butter, ₩ ℔	10@	13
Barley, ₩ bushel	45@	55
Beans, ₩ bushel	1,00@	1.30
Buckwheat, ₩ bushel	.50@	.60
Buckwheat Flour, ₩ hundred	3,25@	3,60
Beef—dressed, ₩ hundred	450 @	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins, ₩ ℔	@	10
Corn in ear	28@	30
Corn,—shelled ₩ bushel	45@	48
Clover Seed	3.50 @	4.00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₩ dozen	@	8
Flour, ₩ barrel	6.00@	7.00
Hogs Dressed, ₩ cwt	@	5.50
Hogs Live ₩ lb	3 80@	3 85
Hay ₩ ton	9.00@	8.00
Hides, ₩ ℔	@	6½
Honey, ₩ ℔	@	15
Ham, ₩ ℔	@	9
Lard, ₩ ℔	@	8
Oats, ₩ bushel	25 @	30
Onions, ₩ bushel	1.50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	30 @	70
Salt, ₩ barrel	@	1.50
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1.25
Timothy Seed, ₩ bushel	@	3.00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ₩ cord	4.00@	4 00
Wheat, White, ₩ bushel	@	90
Wheat, Red, ₩ bushel	@	92
Wool, ₩ ℔	30@	38

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

J. F. JENKINS, N. G.
L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec.

TECUMSEH REFORM CLUB. NO. 2.

Regular Meetings Monday evenings at Seven o'clock.

JAMES MOIR, President.
G. C. FOSTER, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 12 Mail.	No. 14 Express.	No. 48 Accom.
Jackson	6 30 a m	2 30 p m	1 50 p m
Napoleon	7 10 "	2 53 "	2 35 "
Norvell	7 14 "	3 05 "	2 59 "
Manchester	7 30 "	3 25 "	3 33 "
Clinton	7 38 "	3 40 "	3 16 "
Tecumseh	7 45 "	3 50 "	4 40 "
Adrian	8 20 "	4 25 "	5 00 "
Detroit	10 35 "	6 15 "	.....
Toledo	9 50 "	5 25 "	.....

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 11. Mail.	No. 13. Express.	No. 45. Accom.
Detroit	7 50 am	6 40 pm	.....
Toledo	11 10 "	8 35 "	.....
Adrian	12 01 p.m	9 20 "	6 10 am
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 18 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 26 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 50 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't
F. N. BLODGETT, Detroit Div. Sup't

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the U. S.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A. M.
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit ..... 3 30 P. M.

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A. M.
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M.

Office hours from 7 A. M. to 8 P. M. Sundays from 9 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

INFLUENCE OF ODORS UPON HEALTH.

It is not only related of the blind that they learn to distinguish colors by the touch, but in the case of one girl, both blind and deaf, personality and relationship were discerned by scent, as she distinguished the gloves belonging to a brother and sister among a miscellaneous heap. It has been suggested that animals, whose homing instinct, as it is called, and whose powers of smelling are both so remarkable, are guided in great measure by the smells of places. They are often carried away by night, or shut up in a way which prevents them seeing the road by which they are conducted, yet doubtless the succession of odors, to which they are keenly sensitive, are stamped on their memory as ineffaceable as a succession of landscapes would be on ours.

The ancients laid great stress on sweet and subtle odors as they considered them as acting up, and quickening the intellectual faculties of man. We are all conversant with the reviving power of pungent and aromatic smells in cases of sudden weakness; and there are others which have equally as strong a soothing and quieting influence, as hops and bulbs used for swellings and acute pain. There is nothing more suggestive of balmy slumbers than the faint sweetness of "everlasting" flowers, associated as they are with the still twilight of the year, the aerial, dimly lighted autumnal landscape, and the low winds wafting their odors over the long levels of the bare fields.

In every crowded thoroughfare or close alley may be seen the injurious effects of bad scents and vitiated air on the general tone of the system, and by means of this, on the mind. One may lose the perception of these by being hourly accustomed to breathe the foul atmosphere, but what a change there is, if one is brought suddenly into a fresh breezy air. The cobwebs seem swept from the heavy brain, the heart is lightened and one involuntarily draws a long, free respiration, full of the buoyancy of hope.

A bad odor is in reality a warning of danger. There are dead or decaying substances, and infinitesimal forms of animal life in the dust, and even scented particles which the sensitive lungs and nostrils would fain reject. As Huxley has told us, an open wound is quickly inflamed and festered by having these brought in contact with it by the air, and it is therefore of the highest importance that sores, cuts and burns should be kept bandaged. The lungs and skin are also affected most injuriously by these, although it may not be at once apparent that such is the case.

Great care ought to be taken that nothing soiled or producing bad odors, should be left in a bed-chamber or sick room, as the invalid and the sleeper cannot resist the evil effects as a person in active life might. Nor should any water be used for drinking which is left in a bed-room, as a deposit of impure particles is formed in it by the breathing of the persons sleeping in it. The same deposit of impurities takes place through the pores of the skin, which necessitates daily bathing, constant airing of clothes, and a change from the garments of the night to those of the day. The breath of fresh air, which one so instinctively seeks immediately after leaving one's room in the morning, in inwardly cleansing and as much needed as a bath to give tone and freshness to the system. It is not a figure of speech alone by which we say "the breath of life," or "the the spirit which God breathes into man," for both soul and body rejoice in the strong, glad respiration of an innocent and healthy human being, and both suffer from its disorder and weakness.—Arthur's Home Magazine.

MEDICAL USE OF SALT.

In many cases of disordered stomach a teaspoonful of salt is a certain cure. In the violent internal aching, termed cholic, add a teaspoonful of salt to a pint of cold water; drink it and go to bed; it is one of the speediest remedies known. The same will revive a person who seems almost dead from receiving a heavy fall. In an apoplectic fit no time should be lost in pouring down salt and water, if sufficient sensibility remain to admit of swallowing; if not, the head must be sponged with cold water until the senses return, when salt will completely restore the patient from his lethargy. In a fit the feet should be placed in warm water, with mustard added, and the legs briskly rubbed, all bandages removed from the neck, and a cool apartment procured, if possible. In many cases of severe bleeding at the lungs, and when other remedies failed, Dr. Rush found that two teaspoonfuls of salt completely stayed the blood. In case of a bite from a mad dog, wash the part with brine for an hour, and then bind on some salt with a rag. In toothache, warm salt and water held to the part, and renewed two or three times, will relieve it in most cases. If the gums are affected, wash the mouth with brine. If the teeth be covered with tartar, wash them twice a day with salt and water.—Med. Journal.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Battle Creek has a sportsmen's club with 100 members.

Saginaw river lumber shovers get 40 cents per hour.

The Lapeer county soldiers and sailors will hold a reunion at Lapeer, August 11.

Mrs. A. M. Shepard, one of the most esteemed ladies of Brouson, died on the 29th ult.

The Western Union Telegraph company will put up another wire between Detroit and Port Huron.

The wheat crop in the vicinity of Bangor is turning out greatly in excess of the farmers' expectation.

Twelve thousand wooden bowls were shipped from the Ludington bowl factory during one week of July.

The safe in J. B. Garland's store, at Clio, was blown open on the night of the 28th ult., and $150 taken therefrom.

Neil Dickensheets, of Almer, Tuscola county, got an average of 40 bush. of Clawson wheat per acre from 11½ acres of land.

The Ann Arbor presbyterians have called Rev. Richard H. Steele, of New Brunswick, N. J., to come and preach for them.

The name of the Charlotte Cornet band has been changed to the "Charlotte City band," and it has been organised under the state laws.

Messrs. George T. Smith and W. H. Dickey, of Jackson go to Europe to introduce the Smith middlings purifier to the English millers.

The paving of Main street, Jackson, has been completed, and it is said the work is well done, at a cost that is not begrudged by the general public.

The Manistee mills will probably cut 224,600,000 feet of lumber, and 433,350,000 shingles, this season. The cut up to July 1 was 76,271,000 feet of lumber and 152,485,000 shingles.

Martha Burdon, of Gagetown, Tuscola county, offers a reward of $50 for satisfactory information of Richard Burdon, aged 33 years, who mysteriously disappeared July 8.

The government is about to buy more Jackson wagons for the Indians. It is bound to give Lo good wagons.—A good wagon will sell for enough to get a back load of powder and balls.

Several prominent wagon-making firms in this state are making a specialty of wagons for farm and road use, with tires much wider than usual.—They claim that a team can handle a heavier load on such a wagon, and of course such tires are better for the roads.

There are 101 manufacturing establishments in Adrian.

G. M. Tabor has retired from the editorship of the Ionia National.

A Grand Rapids judge actually fined a man $23 for pounding a chromo pedler.

Bishop Bowman will dedicate the reconstructed Port Huron methodist church, August 8.

An excursion from Kalamazoo to Dakota and return, for $31.50, is being organized.

Will Hollister, of Port Huron, becomes the Chicago & Grand Trunk station agent at Battle Creek.

One Frank Johnson, of Battle Creek has been arrested and fined $10 for whipping his grandfather.

The Rochester Woolen Mills are running on double time in order to supply the local demand for work.

An Adventist camp-meeting is to be held at Alma, beginning August 5 and lasting until August 10.

The work of laying iron on the southern end of the Marquette and Mackinac railroad has begun at Point St. Ignace.

A fish hatchery has been established at Petoskey.

Lewis Cornwell, of Mt. Morris, has a farm of 1,200 acres, on which he raised 200 acres of very heavy wheat this season.

The Jackson Citizen denounces Gd. river as a nuisance, choked with weeds and garbage, and but little better than an open sewer.

Grounds have been bought at Richmond on which to locate a race course, fair buildings, etc., and a fair will be held there this fall.

The Gale Manufacturing company, of Albion offer one of their first-class plows to the lad who can do the best job of plowing at the Berrien county fair.

Thieves entered the barn of Ed. White of Hamilton township, Cass county, and stole four sets of harness and some other articles, Wednesday night. No trace of the thieves or property.

There is still some squirming in the rural districts of Michigan about the present school superintendency system. Many demand a change from the township superintendency, but do not know what would be better. All seem to agree substantially that no more ignorant superintendents could be obtained than are many of those now in office.

ASK the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Merourial Diseased Patient, how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite—they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Burn, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivalled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or biliousness, and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purgative and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY for Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD,

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors,
Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. O. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World.
Interest paid on Savings Deposits.
LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.
Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

'Cub' Berdan,

Publisher of

Orchestra, Band & Sheet Music,

And dealer in ordinary and fine

Violins, Bows, Cornets, Clarionets, Guitars, Banjos, Accordeons, Cellos, Double Basses, Drums—everything in the music line.

"One Night in a Ball Room."

The best Book of Dance Music published for one Violin. Price, $1.00.

Piano Spreads from $3 to $15.

Send to me for any piece of music, no matter where you see it.

A full set of Band Instruments, 2 Eb, 2 Bb, 2 alto, tenor, baritone, Eb bass and Eb bass; bell up; patent piston valves; warranted, for $130.

I also have Band Instruments for professional bands to select from, including Corns and Dupont, Henry Pourcelle, Paris, Gunckel, Paris, and the genuine Distin of London. Send for catalogue.

Address, O. F. BERDAN,
72 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY SALE.

THE Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee—In Chancery.

Luke Wood, Complainant,
vs.
Hiram J. Snell, Elizabeth F. Snell and Mary J. James, Defendants.

In pursuance and by virtue of a decree rendered by said court in this cause on the 30th day of May, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, Charles L. Hall, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, will sell at public auction at the front door of Dean's Opera House (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for said county is held) on Toledo street in the city of Adrian, in said county, on the 14th day of August, A.D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day the following premises described in said decree, viz: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: All that part of block number six (6) of Hewitt's addition to said village of Tecumseh which is included within the following boundary, viz: Beginning at the point of intersection of the west line of Evans street with the south line of Logan street in said village, said point of beginning being at the same time at the north east corner of said block number six; thence running south on the said west line of Evans street sixty-four feet, to land of C. Albaugh (or at least in his occupancy as a pump manufactory); thence west on the north line of land of C. Albaugh and occupied by him as aforesaid, seventy-six feet to the north west corner thereof; thence south on the west line of said Albaugh's said land twenty-six feet to a parcel of land conveyed by said Hiram J. Snell and wife to J. Gilchrist and known as the livery stable property; thence west on the north line of said land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Gilchrist sixty-eight feet to the north west corner of the same; thence south on the west line of said Gilchrist land fifty-four and one-half feet to the south west corner thereof; thence west fifty-four feet to land of B. J. Bidwell; thence north on east line of said Bidwell's land nine rods to the south line of Logan street aforesaid; thence east on the south line of said Logan street twelve rods to the place of beginning.

Dated July 1st, 1880.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.
WILLIS MUMFORD, Solicitor for Compl't. July1

1880.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED

"Studying the subject objectively and from the educational point of view—seeking to provide that which, taken altogether, will be of the most service to the largest number—I long ago concluded that, if I could have but one work for a public library, I would select a complete set of Harper's Monthly."—CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr.

Its contents are contributed by the most eminent authors and artists of Europe and America, while the long experience of its publishers has made them thoroughly conversant with the desires of the public which they will spare no effort to gratify.

The Volumes of the Magazine begin with the Number for June and December of each year. When no time is specified, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to begin with the current Number.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

A complete set of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, comprising 59 Volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express, freight at expense of purchaser, on receipt of $2 21 per volume. Single volumes, by mail, postpaid, $2 00. Cloth cases, for binding, 58 cents, by mail, postpaid.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Weekly

ILLUSTRATED.

This periodical has always, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind. The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment, and refinement.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S WEEKLY, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twenty-three Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN,

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Buchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit, in Chancery, Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County, in Chancery.

Caroline Lentz, Complainant,
vs.
Gottlieb Lentz, Defendant.

Before Charles L. Hall, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners (or said county, at the city of Adrian, the 26th day of July, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file that the defendant Gottlieb Lentz is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but that he now resides in the State of Indiana. On motion of Wm. L. Greenly, solicitor, and C. A. Sacer and J. A. Stacy, of counsel for complainant, it is ordered that the said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complaint in this cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the Tecumseh HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of the order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.
WM. L. GREENLY, Solicitor for Complainant.
C. A. & J. A. STACY, of Counsel for Compl't. july29

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

BY virtue of an order of the Probate Judge of the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, made on the 26th day of July, A.D. 1880, licensing me as administrator of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased, to sell the right, title, and interest of which said deceased died seized in and to the lands hereinafter described, I will, on the 11th day of September, A.D. 1880, at the office of the undersigned in the village of Tecumseh in said county and State, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, sell at public vendue all the interest and title of which said deceased died seized, in that parcel of land situate in the township of Franklin, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, known and described as the west half of the north east quarter of section twenty-nine, town five south of range three east, containing eighty acres more or less, which sale will also be made subject to a mortgage on said land given by said deceased and his wife to Lucius Lilley, and subject to the right of dower of the widow of deceased, the particulars of which mortgage and the terms of sale will be published at and before said sale.

Dated July 27th, 1880.

EDWIN B. WOOD, Administrator of Estate of Henry Tripp, Deceased.
jul29

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of Mary Sones, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Mary Sones, late of the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 13th day of September, 1880, and 14th day of December, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, on each of said days, six months from the 14th day of June, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

CHARLES W. CULBERTSON,
AUSTIN G. HALL,
Commissioners.
july29

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for county of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Abbie Griswold, late of the township of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 27th day of August, 1880, and January 19th, 1881, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, six months from the 19th day of July, 1880, are allowed by the said Court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated July 24th, 1880.

WM. C. FITZSIMMONS,
SEATON W. ANDERSON,
Commissioners.
jul29

1880.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

This popular periodical is pre-eminently a journal for the household.

Every Number furnishes the latest information in regard to Fashion in dress and ornament, the newest and most approved patterns, with descriptive articles derived from authentic and original sources; while its Stories, Poems and Essays on Social and Domestic Topics, give variety to its contents.

The Volumes of the Bazar begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S BAZAR, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twelve Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street — HENRY McCLURE, Tecumseh, Mich.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

BUTTER PACKING.

The secret of keeping butter sweet for a considerable time is to make a first-rate article, and then to keep it from absorbing odors from surrounding objects. Milk is strong absorbent and its "sense of smell" is very acute. In summer good pastures should be provided, and rich and succulent grasses and plenty of pure water. If the pasture is scant and grown up with weeds, the butter will often have a bitter taste, caused by the cows feeding on weeds. Impure water will also affect the quality. While the ill effects may not be perceptible in freshly-made butter, it is sure to show itself after the butter has attained age. The utensils used in the dairy must be scrupulous clean and the atmosphere of the milk-room free from impurities. Having satisfied yourself that you have got a good article of butter, procure a jar of suitable size and put in a churning of butter, on the top of which put a damp cloth and cover with an inch of salt. When you have another churning ready, remove the cloth, put in your butter, and replace the cloth and salt. The butter should be packed solid, as the air is much easier excluded than when in rolls. Continue the above process until the jar is filled within an inch or two of the top; put on the cloth and fill it with salt. Take a box larger and four inches deeper than the jar, in the bottom of which place two inches of salt, put in the jar, and fill up all around the sides and over the top of the jar with salt, and set the whole in a cool place until wanted. Butter put up in this way will keep sweet a long time and cannot readily be told from freshly-made butter.—Farmers' Advocate.

DISPOSING OF CHICKENS.

With few exceptions the best time to dispose of chickens is as soon as they are large enough for the gridiron or frying-pan. They will sell for more than they will after they have attained their full growth. The earlier they are hatched and of a size fit for market the higher will be the price they command. Spring chickens properly rank as luxuries, and luxuries are in greater demand and bring better prices than substantial articles of food. By marketing chickens early in the season much trouble is avoided in the care of them and in many cases large losses by diseases are saved. Much feed is also saved, and this is no small item when large flocks of birds are kept on a farm. The demand for Spring chickens is rarely met in any of our large cities.

The poorest time of the entire year to send poultry to market is the early part of the Winter, though singularly enough this is the time usually selected by the majority of farmers. In nearly every great market in the country there is a vast amount of poultry during the weeks that Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years' day occur. Of course a large amount of poultry is consumed at these times, but the supply almost invariably far exceeds the demand. Prices rule very low and much stock is carried over till it brings hardly enough to pay the cost of transportation and sale.—Agricultural Department Times.

GIVE THE BOYS TOOLS.

Almost all boys are naturally mechanics. The constructive and imitative faculties are developed, in part, at a very early age. All boys are not capable of being developed into good, practical, working mechanics, but most of them show their bent that way. There are few cases in which the boy has no competent idea of the production of a fabricated result from inorganic material, but such cases are rare. Given the proper encouragement and the means, and many boys whose mechanical aptness is allowed to run to waste, or is diverted from its natural course, would become good workmen, useful, producing members of the industrial community.

The mechanical boy ought to have a shop of his own. Let it be the attic, or an unused room, or a place in the barn or the woodshed. Give him a place and tools. Let him have a good pocket knife, gimlets, chisels, gouges, planes, cutting nippers, saws, a foot rule, and materials to work. Let the boy have a chance. If he is a mechanic it will come out, and he will do himself credit. If he fails he is to follow some calling that does not demand mechanical skill.—Boston Journal of Commerce.

A dairy house at Christiana, Norway, has established an agency at St Paul for the shipment of Minnesota butter, cheese and other food products to Norway. This is the result of a shipment to that country from Minnesota last Spring, and it is thought may result in the establishment of a large trade.

All who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard

LINSEED OIL FOR PEAR BLIGHT.

The number of cases of reported success in the treatment of pear trees affected with the blight, are of sufficient importance to stimulate future experiments. Many remedies have had more credit than they merited, simply because they were used just as the disease was passing away, and it is possible that among the many applications of linseed oil, some coincidences of the kind may have taken place, which are widely reported, while failures are forgotten. But the greater the number of instances of success, the more confident we become of the value of the remedy. Among successful cases recently noticed, are those given by H. Chenworth of Jefferson county, Kentucky, at a horticultural meeting. He had an orchard of the leading popular sorts, which, soon after beginning to bear, were attacked with blight. The diseased parts were cut away till several entire trees were consigned to the brush heap. He then began to use linseed oil. It was tried first on a Bartlett mutilated with blight and cutting. The oil was applied with a paint brush to stem and branches, as high as the arm could reach. New shoots shot forth, and little blight was afterwards seen on this tree. Mr. C. says he has now used the oil remedy for ten years on his pear trees, and has not lost a tree in that time, except a few of little value which he did not treat. Fortunately, there does not now appear to be opportunities to test the value of this remedy extensively, as the blight, so prevalent a few years ago, has nearly passed away. It may be well to remark, in allusion to the remedy of cutting off the diseased limbs, that it often entirely fails by not cutting at least two feet below all appearance of disease.—Country Gentleman.

SHRINKAGE OF WHEAT.

In order to ascertain the shrinkage which wheat undergoes from evaporation, when held in a bin over winter, a very interesting experiment has been tried on the college farm. About six months ago a long sack was prepared and filled with 200 pounds of winter wheat, accurately weighed. In November 12, 1879, this was placed in a grain bin in the barn, and, in order that the grain in the sack might fairly represent the average of that in the bin—the bin held about 150 bushels—the sack of wheat was sunk in the grain as far as possible—say to an average depth of about two feet. In this position it has remained six months, or until May 12, when it was brought forth and again weighed; this second weighing showed a slight increase on that of six months before, the weight being 200 pounds, plus a fraction of one pound. This result was most unexpected to us, and we can only conclude from it that, during such seasons as those of 1879-80, wheat shrinks by evaporation none at all; the shrinkage so often complained of by millers and others, doubtless comes chiefly from "rattage," leaks in the granary, and other like obvious sources of waste. The slight increase in weight of this sack of grain, is perhaps attributable to a slight variation in the scales used in weighing. It is an interesting fact, that this same sack, when exposed to the rays of the sun at a temperature of 95 degrees, from 11.30 A. M., till 3 P. M., shrunk exactly one half pound.—Prof. Shelton.

Kidney-Wort Always Cures.

East Wakefield Depot, N. H., March 4, '80. Messrs. Wells, Richardson, & Co. Gentlemen—Permit me to say a word in favor of Kidney-Wort. My mother has been afflicted with Kidney Disease for a number of years. Last spring she was so bad as to necessitate her taking Spirits Nitre at least three times a day—had a most alarming pain in her side, also much numbness. After taking one box of Kidney-Wort the pain and numbness disappeared. Her appetite improved at once, and she has not taken a drop of Spirits Nitre since. I advise all who need such a medicine to give it a trial.

MRS. W. H. PARKS.

It often happens so. A farmer of Zealand, Mich., has refused to sell his wheat for three years past, because he considered the prices to low. The prospect of another large crop throughout the country frightened him into a resolution to sell. But on taking it from the granery the wheat was discovered to be musty and wormy, and buyers refused to buy it at any price.

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in dispair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

"Hands wanted on boys' pants," is the daily advertisement in the newspapers. 'Twas always thus from childhood's hour.

This cut represents the Hoe of the

STRAYER DRILL.

Each Hoe spreading the grain over a space

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a 9-Hoed Drill there is

27 INCHES

Of ground covered with grain,

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

Of ground that other Drills cover, thereby equalizing the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a depth gauge on each Hoe so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the field.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

To the Acre by using such a Hoe than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

N. C. ARNOLD, Agent,
Tecumseh, Mich.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT.

Grain, Flour, Feed and Coal.

SLAYTON & SON

Are still at the old stand with a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled. Mohawk Valley Clipper (steel.)

"Leader" Spring Tooth Harrow.
Elwood, Robbins and Buckeye
CULTIVATORS.
"Springer" Spring Tooth Harrow, (on wheels.)

GRAIN DRILLS. {Buckeye. Farmer's Friend. Triumph.
THRESHERS, {The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines.

Rare Bargains in

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Lime, Water Lime, Salt, Cal. Plaster and Plastering Hair.

If you want anything in our line call and get prices before you buy.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale.)

Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.
DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a la... YELLOW EYES, SALLOW ... EXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, is the result of a comp... LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND BILIOUS COMPOUND is a knowledge... cure for the entire system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingre... makes it an infallible remedy ... VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying ... BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to POSITIVELY CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

DR. S. D. HOWE, CHICAGO, Dec. 18, 1876.

DEAR SIR—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of derieving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic, their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Kidney, Liver, Bright's and all Urinary Diseases, Dropsy, and all Diseases of the Urinary Bladder.

Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF
CALLING CARDS.
At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Champion Drills,
Missouri Drills,
Myers' Wind Mills,
Champion Fruit Ladders,
Gregg Sulky for Plows,
Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,
Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,
Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,
Gale Fallow Cultivators,
Kala'zoo Spring Tooth Harrow,
Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,
A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,
Garr Scott Engines,
Garr Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,
Standard Mowers,
Royce Reapers,
Meadow King Mowers,
Grand Rapids Small Tools.

USBORNE BLOCK,
TECUMSEH, - - - MICH.

THE LITERARY Revolution.

The most successful revolution of the century, and to American readers of books, the most important. Only books of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are low beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate and demonstrate these truths, we send the following books, all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named:

Macaulay's

Life of Frederick the Great. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Carlyle's

Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Light of Asia,

By Edwin Arnold. Former price, $1.50. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.

Thos. Hughes's

Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print, brevier type; price three cents.

John Stuart Mills's

Chapters on Socialism. Essays of exceeding interest and importance. Price three cents.

Baron Munchausen.

His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Burgeoise type; price five cents.

Mary Queen of Scots'

Life, by Lamertine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Vicar of Wakefield.

By Oliver Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

Bourgeoise type, leaded; beautiful print; price six cents.

Private Theatricals.

By author of "Sparrowgrass Papers." Small pica type, leaded; price two cents.

Stories and Ballads.

For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.

Leaves from the Diary

Of an Old Lawyer. Short stories of thrilling, laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.

Booksellers

Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH. VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR

CAMPAIGN GOODS

of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply

Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c,

We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.

We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a

Present of a $100 Gold Watch

—OR—

NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.

Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the

U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Seasickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 168 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN)

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS,

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

THE MOST POPULAR AND BEST PATRONIZED

SHOW ON THE ROAD!

Tecumseh, Monday, August 16th, 1880.

BURR ROBBINS'

GREAT AMERICAN AND GERMAN ALLIED SHOWS!

CONSISTING OF A SUPERB

TRIPLE CIRCUS,

Monster Menagerie,

MUSEUM AND AVIARY!

Coupled with the Great Free Allegorical and Spectacular Tournament and Multitudinous Free Exhibition.

VAST FIELD OF TENTS,

Myriads of Wonders!

1500 STRANGE

WILD ANIMALS,

BEASTS AND BIRDS!

THE GREAT DOUBLE MENAGARIE, CACES

Of Animate and Inanimate Wonders nowhere else exhibited, and peculiar only to this Show.

The Only Den

Of Performing Flesh Eating Hyenas!

Open in the Street. Only ones ever exhibited.

Performing Elephants!

LIONS AND TIGERS,

LIVING SEA MONSTERS!

An Aviary of Ornithological Specimens replete with every known specie of Rare and Strange Birds, Insects and Reptiles of every known character, plumage and clime. A Museum of Living Curiosities, Living Phenomena, and Strange Vagaries.

M'e Leon in the Den of Lions,

HERR BROOKS, in the Den of Savage Hyenas,

OPEN IN THE PUBLIC STREET.

In a separate Mammoth Tent, and without extra charge will be Exhibited the Combined

Triple Circus!

In this department Competition is challenged to the world. MORE ARTISTS than any other Show traveling. Female Gymnasts, Trapezists, and Equestrians. The perfect essence of Arenic Art demonstrated. Every leading act in the ring duplicated in friendly contests by rival champions of merit. ONE HUNDRED Male and Female Performers, Fifty trained Horses.

Four Famed Clowns,

FIVE CHAMPION LADY RIDERS!

3 CHAMPION BARE-BACK RIDERS,

Two Juvenile Equestrians, Double Somersault Gymnasts, Two Troupes of Acrobats, the Great German Atletes, the Great Female Calisthenists,

Lions, Tigers, Dromedaries, Ostriches,

ZEBRAS, SEA MONSTERS, STRANGE REPTILES AND RARE BIRDS.

1000 MEN, HORSES, AND ANIMATED MARVELS. The most refulgent, artistic and elaborate pagent ever witnessed in this Country.

DON'T FAIL TO WITNESS THE GRAND STREET PARADE & TOURNAMENT.

THE GRAND PAGEANT

An Endless Cavalcade of Knights and Ladies in armor mounted on beautiful steeds, caparisoned and accoutred, the entire retinue gorgeously decorated and painted in the most elaborate style, with Biblical Illustrations and characteristic scriptural events of Mythical and Classical Designs. Monster Golden cars and chariots have been expressly built for this purpose, refulgent in glittering decorations, and ornamented with designs and pictures of historical events and celebrities of the Revolution of '76, Living Groups and statues, representing Industry, Commerce, Civilization, the Army and Navy, the Goddess of Liberty. The Golden Car of Europe containing the world famous cornet band of Twenty Musicians.

SCENES OF SPLENDOR!

Wild Animals Loose in the Streets. Immense Golden Tableau Cars drawn by Elephants, Camels, etc.; a Procession of Dwarf Ponies.

The World's Greatest Exhibition

Presented under many tents in its entirety, forming a scene of brilliant and dazzling magnificence. One ticket admits to all.

One Ticket, admitting to entire Show, 50 cts. Children under 9 yrs., 25 cts.

NOTICE!—This show does not permit or countenance Gambling or Liquor Selling about the Show Grounds. A special U. S. Detective is employed for the protection of visitors.

Get in town Early! Sure to be in Time! The Parade starts at 10 A. M.

Two Performances, afternoon and evening, at 1 and 7 o'clock.

DON'T FORGET THE DATE. MONDAY, AUGUST 16, 1880.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.—NO 12. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 12 1880. WHOLE NO. 1549.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety, I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

OF

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

Over 30,000 Now in Use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE,

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

AROUND THE COUNTY.

CAMBRIDGE.

The harvest month of July is passed with its hot and sultry days, with many fertilizing showers, made the work of securing the grain in good order, rather uneven in its general course. Now we see the well filled barns, with large and bountiful stacks, on most every plantation, also the several thousand bushels of wheat now threshed. Most every one is slightly disappointed, for the grain has turned out many more bushels than the fondest anticipations had looked for. On many fields which have been tilled 30 or 40 years, have given a larger yield this season than at any other time.—We can truly say there is more grain grown in this town this year than at any previous season, quite a number of farmers having had from fifty to over one hundred acres of wheat each.

With the produce of the lands we have a few of the natives, who claim a right by inheritance, and are not of much benefit. One farmer, whose residence is in the west part of the town, on lands where the Indian wigwams and camp fires were most numerous fifty years ago, in harvesting his 130 acres of wheat, which was mostly cut with a Wood harvester. Among the many thousand sheaves there was killed fourteen snakes which had from four to twelve rattles each. They are not very welcome natives.

Corn, potatoes, peaches, grapes and apples give a cheerful promise of a luxuriant and bountiful supply. We are pleased to say that among the variety of unexcelled good things there is a general time of health on every section, which helps to fill the measure of good will and contentment.

Shall we omit to say one word about the generous reception at the party of Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Tilton's, at Tecumseh, August 5th. The lady was the first one married in this county, 53 years ago, and her husband's birth day just passed, 77 years of age. With the visitors was Gen. J. W. Brown and Col. S. F. Spofford, of DesMoines, with a large number of pioneer friends of the county. There were five who had been residents here over 50 years, twelve over 40 years. Long shall we remember the kindly greeting, the sumptuous entertainment, the lawn social amid ten thousand admired and beautiful flowers.

BROOKLYN.

We congratulate ourselves on being favorites of fate. Tornadoes and hailstorms have skipped up as yet, but a mild type of insanity regarding camping-out and picnics prevails largely.—I imagine the census man will record three tents to one puddle; and to get any idea of Sabbath-school attendance he must visit Wampler or Sand lake and inspect the dinner tables. Every day that the clouds are not dripping the children demand a ride, which necessitates an escort of larger growth.

On Wednesday A. P. Cook's horses took a sudden aversion to parasols, and I have concluded that the next time I ride out with nineteen little folks there will be mules and less nervousness.

Friday nearly proved to be an unlucky day for Willie Phillips and Charlie Furgeson. They went upon the wheat in the freight house, while a car was loading and were drawn into the funnel. But for the presence of Mr. Cash and a Manchester gentleman who heard a cry they would have been killed. It took three men to pull them out and some time to clear mouths, ears and eyes of wheat. They were a pair of serious minded youngsters when rescued, and have given up tunnelling.

Doctor Porter and wife have gone to Petoskey for a few days, and will leave Brooklyn and locate in New York city the first of October.

PEARLIE.

FRANKLIN.

The temperance meeting on Friday evening last was not as largely attended as was hoped, but a township organization was effected, as follows:

Chairman, Rev. E. P. Peirce; Secretary, S. A. Beers; Treasurer, Edward Conlin, and a chairman for auxiliary organizations in each school district throughout the township. Revs. Bigelow and Conley, of Tecumseh, were present by invitation and made stiring speeches, and no little enthusiasm was awakened. As the association is not intended to conflict with political party affiliation it is hoped every temperance man will identify himself with the movement and support only pronounced temperance men for the legislature next winter.

Township Supt. of Schools, E. T. DeLapp, has appointed a meeting at the Paragon school house, on Saturday, 14th inst., at 9 A. M., for the examination of candidates for teachers of our schools.

Burt Crittenden now weighs little less than a ton. They have another heir that will "bang her hair" when a little older. All doing well at last accounts.

Rev. E. P. Peirce's oldest son met with quite a serious accident on Monday; by falling from a high load of wood at Tecumseh, injuring his head considerably, rendering him unconscious for some time, but no serious consequences are apprehended at present.

RIDGEWAY.

Rev. J. W. Donaldson is visiting in the neighborhood.

Sid Clarkson, of Manchester, spent Sunday at his old home.

Cass Miller and family of Howell are visiting his relatives in Macon.

Jno. Pattison left last week for a visit to old England, and his many friends wish him a pleasant voyage and safe return.

Eugene Spencer who has been spending several weeks with his Aunt, Mrs. Asa Russell, left for his home in Connecticut this week.

The Republican caucus will be held at G. W. Jackson's wagon shop on the 16th at 7 o'clock P. M.

Mrs. Adam Linn, who has been a long sufferer from lingering consumption, died on Thursday of last week.—The funeral took place the next day at 2 P. M., from the M. E. church; discourse by Rev. Mr. Swank of the Christian Church.

Cecil Clark is replacing the old biler of his East mill with a new one.

Our B. B. club go to East Milan on Thursday. The boys expect to be ready to play the balance of the season, and your cor. would be pleased to see them meet the Raisin nine.

Ridgeway and Clinton will hold a Union Quarterly meeting next Sunday in the grove at Macon, (Pennington's corners.) Parties wishing transportation from here are requested to leave their names with G. P. Waring or Dewitt Arner, on Friday evening at the social.

The church social managers have announced a lawn social for to-morrow Friday evening, at G. W. Jackson's.

"Nix" says in last week's HERALD that James Pocklington is doing the mason work on the Christian church; nix its Frank instead of Jim.

Work on the Detroit and Butler grade is progressing finely. A large gang of men and teams are at work on the Coats' farm, near the red school house, under the direction of Mr. Pearson, foreman. This same gang have finished the grade across the farm of John Underwood and part way across John Britton's. Another gang are at work on the Kelly farm, near Wm. Mesler's, of which Mr. Breen is foreman.

Mr. Scovill has been working up the right of way for the T. & M. thro' our township for a week past, and so far as we are able to learn has met with encouraging success. Two lines have been projected, the first through the village, near the residence of Sam. Rappleye, and intersecting the Detroit & Butler at John Britton's, and the other follows the old town line and crosses the Butler road a half mile farther North.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

LAVERN WHEELER has a new plan of making lambriquins, by painting flowers on a satin background. Call at his house, west of the M. E. church and see a sample.

THE REFORM SCHOOL.

Work has been commenced upon the new Reform School in Adrian. In a late issue of the Times we gather a few items about the site and the progress of the work.

James Donough has the contract for erecting the buildings, and F. P. Thompson has been appointed superintendent by the board of contract.

The location of the buildings is spoken of with greatest praise by all who have seen the grounds. Forty acres have been deeded to the state, comprising the lot on which Mr. Medick's house and outbuildings stand, and the two lots to the north, embracing about twelve acres of timbered lands.

Two cottages are to be erected this season. These cottages are to be used for the teaching of domestic arts for which the school is especially founded. They will contain dining rooms, kitchens, laundries, bed rooms, etc.

The buildings will be at least three in number a[illegible] face to the east; they are to [illegible] in the lot north of where M[illegible] house stands. They will [illegible] on a high rise of ground, fo[illegible] hundred feet from the highway. In the center the main building will stand; this will be built next season. It will be of brick and stone. There will be one cottage on the north of this main building, and another on the south.

The view from this point is very beautiful and imposing. The spires of the Methodist, Plymouth and German Catholic churches, the Central school building, Masonic Temple, and other buildings, can be seen, and these, with the forest of trees, make a handsome scene. There is ample room on the lot for three more buildings and the board have had constantly in view the future needs of the institution.

Lenawee County Grange.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Lenawee County Grange will be held at Woodstock Grange Hall, on Thursday, Aug. 19th, 1880. Addresses will be delivered by Worthy State Lecturer C. L. Whitney and Hon. C. E. Mickley.

Program of Meetings.—Short sessions in fifth degree at 11 a. m. Adjourn to grove where a picnic dinner will be served, which will be followed by speaking, in which Bros. Whitney and Mickley will divide the time.—The speaking will be interspersed with good music. At the close of the speaking a meeting at the Hall for hearing reports from Subordinate Granges, for the purpose of a general conference upon the "good of the order." This part of the session will be in the 4th degree. At the close of this session the fifth degree will be conferred upon all who desire it and are eligible.

The public generally are cordially invited to the out-door meeting in the grove. Come out and hear these men talk. Entertainment will be furnished those who come from a distance.

G. B. HORTON, Master.

JAS. COOK, Secretary.

Temperance Convention.

The prohibitionists met in convention at Adrian on the 30th ult. It was a county convention to consider the proposed amendment to the State constitution. Rev. Mr. Conley was chosen temporary chairman. The delegates from Tecumseh were, E. Williamson, Chas. E. Conley, A. J. Bigelow, J. H. Osborne. The following resolutions were adopted:

1. That this convention is in full sympathy with the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; hence we have made them an integral part of this convention by the enrollment of their names as members. All other temperance organizations are invited to join with us.

2. That we heartily endorse the platform of the red ribbon state convention and reaffirm the principles there asserted, and pledge our hearty and continued co-operation thereto.

3. That we as a convention will support no man as candidate for the state legislature who will not publicly express himself in favor of submitting the constitutional amendment to the people.

Another resolution was passed which favored having mass meetings in Tecumseh, Hudson and Morenci previous to the elections.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine

For September contains, as usual, a rich treat of choice literature for home reading. There are some highly interesting and instructive articles; excellent serial and short stories, sketches and essays, and poems of rare merit; and the number abounds with embelishments.

Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N.Y.

IT is said by those who know that the Burr Robbins' circus is one of the best travelling.

GLEANINGS FROM THE COUNTY PRESS.

Adrian Times: Underneath some hieroglyphics on a hotel register in Blissfield, under date of Saturday last, appears the following necessary note: "The above is meant for W. T. B. Schermerhorn." That note was the kindly act of a friend, and saved the hotel clerk from an insane asylum.

Deerfield Record: A young man, we did not learn his name, who drove up to the new bridge on River street, Tuesday, where he was compelled to unhitch his horse and lead it over on the sidewalk bridge and pull his buggy over on the unfinished road bridge, was kicked insensible while hitching up his horse again. He soon recovered and his firs words were, "What kind of a town is this, anyway?"

Hudson Gazette: The Hillsdale four-oared crew have now disbanded. They have never been beaten, and have an unspotted record and a wheel-barrow load of trophies. Terwilliger and Van Valkenburg have each 13 elegant gold badges, worth many hundred dollars, and Wilson and Beckhardt have nearly as many. The former two pulled in a few pair-oared races, and therefore got a few more prizes than the latter two.

Clinton News: Some eight or ten dogs in this village have been poisoned during the past week, and efforts have been made to poison as many more. While it is a fact that there are some worthless curs here, still it is a cowardly act for anyone to go around poisoning them. Several harmless pets have been killed, which belonged to little children who prized them highly, while some snapping, snarling dogs, which ought to be killed, have escaped. If you want to kill dogs, pick out only those which are a public nuisance, and then shoot them.

Adrian Press: We have been shown a couple of pieces of the boiler which exploded in Ogden the other day. The iron appears to be flaky and rotten, and breaks readily under blows from a hammer when placed on an anvil. These pieces are in possession of Mr. Underhill, boiler maker of this city. He took a piece of new boiler iron and by persistent hammering was unable to break it, the metal bending under the blows. The boiler had been patched by Mr. Underhill and this patch, together with the iron to which it was riveted, was found intact. Two of the truck wheels of the engine were still missing at last accounts.

Adrian Press: Samuel Billinger, of Dover, went out hunting woodchucks last Tuesday and succeeded in murdering one which he stuffed in a pail, and climbing over a fence, poked his gun over but first, with the results usual and in such cases made and provided. The gun went off and so did the man off the fence. Billinger had his thumb over the muzzle, the woodchuck was an old "hefty" fellow and the pail containing him tumbled down and hit the hammer of the shooting-iron. It responded promptly and tore off the ball of Mr. Billinger's thumb; a shot struck him in the eye, another in the temple and other points contagious to the knowledge-box. Dr. R. Stephenson looked after the wounded man and thinks it probable that he may save the eye, the sight not having been destroyed. Altogether it was a lively day for woodchucks.

Blissfield Advance: While out driving, Friday, Mr. W. J. Clement had the misfortune to severely hurt the cap of his knee. The horse became frightened at a dog that ran out at him, and jumping, kicked his heels through the dash-board and struck Mr. Clement under the knee-cap, lifting it from its position and crushing the bone. Dr. Scriber removed several particles of bone, bandaged the wound, and William is now walking about with the aid of a "stick." He considers himself fortunate in not having the bones of his entire knee broken.

Adrian Times: All the jail-breakers but Rowell have been captured. Butler was secured about eight o'clock, yesterday morning, in the woods near Morenci. It was supposed that Rowell was in custody at Wauseon, Ohio, a dispatch to that effect having been received from the marshal of that place. But, though the man captured answers to Rowell's description, he is not the right man.

The officers speak very highly of the conduct of the citizens of Morenci, who turned out en masse and assisted in the chase.

Deputy sheriff Merritt also captured a horse thief, with the stolen horse and buggy, near Morey's corners. The rig was stolen from Charlotte; the thief and property were turned over to a deputy sheriff from Jackson.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

OUT OF TUNE.

BY STELLA C. ALLEN.

All through this life of mine,
Through months and years of time,
Borne on an alien breeze,
Low 'neath the whispering trees—
Came that sweet minor chord,
Played out of tune.

In this faint heart of mine,
To-day and for all time,
Is a great surging flood
Turns in my veins the blood—
Pains that sad minor chord
Played out of tune.

Deep in this soul of mine,
Moved not for space or time
Fearing the world's cold scorn,
Living, yet all unborn,
Lies that great minor chord,
Played out of tune.

TWICE BURIED.

Half way from Leadville to the plains—half way, and by a new trail running away into the southwest and down along the canyon of the Platte; half way only, and my horse worn, my food gone, and night close at hand. Night in February—death, cold.

I wrapped my blanket yet closer about my shoulders and urged my steed forward through the gloaming.

"Curse my luck!" I muttered. "Except for black Dan's threat I would have gone by the stage in comfort. And yet, to have braved his gang would have been certain destruction! I'll warrant they've ambushed the night coach, intending to catch me. But I've slipped them this time, and Uncle Sam has the proof that he wants at last. Three days more, my rascals, and you'll jump these mountains or wear handcuffs, if I reach Pueblo alive!"

I shook Charlie's reins to hasten his speed, and whistled cheerily to Don, my great St. Bernard.

"We must reach Johnson's ranch on the Platte, old friends, or sleep out, and it's too cold for that," I muttered.

I was returning from a search for certain desperadoes wanted in the courts of Pueblo. The cutthroats had hidden in the mining camps about Leadville, and my search had been a long one. Finding them at last, however and the proof of their crimes with them, I was about to return and make arrangements for their arrest, when by some unknown means they learned who I was, and I fled. Fled, pursued by the wrath of the worst man between the Gunnison and Denver—Black Dan. Had he found me my life would not have been worth the toss of a card. I must reach the settlement quickly and return with a force in order to capture my game, and that without delay.

In the gloaming of the morning I had begun my perilous horseback journey; in the gloaming of the evening I was continuing it. No soul had met me along the wagon trail and I believed that I had tricked my enemies.

The blackness of the canyon crept up, the narrow trail ran down, and among masses of bowlders, across patches of snow, and again along the bare earth, I followed with watchful eye the indistinct path until, just at the very verge of the last steep decent that should carry me into the river gulch itself, I halted for a moment to rest my weary horse.

"Only a little further, Charlie," said I, dismounting and patting his drooping head; "a couple of miles more, and we'll strike supper and bed. You've done well, old boy, and saved me——"

A sudden fierce growl from my dog, as he sprung toward the shadow of the pines behind me, a single glance of light, a ringing report, and without a moan I threw my hands quivering into the air, whirled heavily away from my horse, and fell. Black Dan had found me!

* * * * * *

Slowly and with great pain, consciousness returned—consciousness, for my brain was still alive, but not personality, for of my body I new nothing.

What had happened?

Laboriously my mind traveled through the mists of death that still surrounded it. Slowly one idea followed another until at last came the knowledge that I sought. I had been waylaid and shot.

Yes, I remembered now! Remembered the cry of my dog, the ring of a rifle, the sheet of flame, the blow of the ball, and then—nothingness!

I had been shot and was dead!

And yet not dead, for pain revived, and dead men feel no pain. I was shot but not dead. And so came at last the consciousness of matter. I still lived.

I sought to rise, but I could not, for I was bound; bound hand and feet, arms and legs, body, neck and head, fingers, lips and eyelids, even; bound, yet not with cords!

Where was I? What was the trouble?

Nearer and still nearer came the truth, as I groaned in spirit and struggled to gain knowledge of myself; nearer and still nearer, until, with a mighty effort, throwing off all lethargy, I made one desperate attempt to rise; then the damp odor of new-broken earth filled my nostrils, the weight of newly-turned earth pressed upon my heart, the clinging bonds of newly-dug earth bound me, and with a wild cry of horror and dispair I recognized my situation—I was buried alive.

I did not faint at first—life was too dear—but lay simply deadened, crushed by the blow, the loose mold admitting air for my respiration, my poor stunned brain rolling these words up and down: "Buried alive! Buried alive!" until from sheer madness and loss of desire knowledge fled a second time.

And then it was the tongue of my dog which awakened me. Don dug me out and lapped me back to life again.

As the dull grey of the winter's morning dawned, with moans I dragged my stiffened limbs from their narrow bed, and crept trembling down the little trail toward the river, the blood oozing from the rifle wounds in my head, my eyes wild and fierce, my heart panting, my life half gone.

As I thought Black Dan must have followed and ambushed me, then, supposing me slain, he had the grace to seek to bury me. It was owing to his haste or his carlessness that my dog had been able to paw the loose dirt from my grave and save me. If I could reach Johnson's ranch I might live; If not I had been saved but to die a second time, for a fierce storm was brewing along the mountain tops above my head. My horse was gone, my rifle, pistols and knife, gone; only the dog remained, and, faithful to the last, followed as I slowly and painfully trod the descending trail toward the river.

Suddenly, amid a wild roar of wind and creaking of trees and whirl of freezing snow, the storm burst, and in its fury swept me from my feet, and rolled me crying and shouting, far down the canyon side, until a great bowlder caught and held me. Then it raged on.

Fierce and relentless the wild wind tore through the wilder forest, pitiless the cold snow fell, and except I had dragged my broken, bruised body into a crevasse of the rock-ledge before me I had died where I laid. Then even blacker than ever fell the storm, and raged unceasingly through all the slow hours of the day, until night came a second time to cast its pall upon the scene. And as the darkness crept up from the east, my last friend, my dog, who all day had laid at my feet, deserted me, speeding away through the shadows and snow. I was alone.

And so, faint, wounded, cold despairing, as the moments grew life flickered and when at last midnight broke my lamp went out. Again I lay unconscious.

All night the gale continued, and not until the dawn of the second day did it cease when the newly-fallen snow lay deep and white over all.

Within the crevasse of the rock, sheltered from the touch of the cold white death and beneath it, I lay motionless; above me the storm had spread a shroud so thick that no ray of light penetrated to my tomb. Half-frozen, in a dreamless, painless sleep, the forerunner of a swift-coming rest, a mere wreck of a man, I was stretched on a rock, and the glint of the sunshine among the pines or the tread of the wild beasts of the forest overhead mattered naught to me. When my eyes opened they beheld nothing, when my hands were out-stretched they touched only the stone and the snow, when my tongue cried out no ear listened. Again I was entomed, and this time by an enemy more relentless than Black Dan even, by hands more stern and pitiless than his Fate and the storms of the mountain had combined against me. I was buried a second time, but now with death for a companion!

I knew that I could not escape, and the very thought quieted me.

There was no struggle, no moaning, no agony; only a dull recklessness and want of care for life that betokened the depth of dispair. I was dying. Slowly the moments passed. My thoughts were few and simple—thoughts of fire and wood, thoughts of home and friends and comfort, thoughts of things warm and bright, but even these were fading and my mind was wearily wrapping itself in the cloak of annihilation, and my body was fast sinking toward inanition when a bit of snow fell upon my upturned face.

Had it been fire it could not have aroused me more quickly.

The next instant more fell, and still more, and then light began to gleam, and I heard the hurried scrape of feet mingled with low whining.

Don had returned and was digging me out.

The revulsion of feeling was terrific; a moment before I had laid passive in a tomb, longing for death; now I fought and tore at the loosening snow like a madman, wild with the thought of life.

Nearer and nearer came the rescuing feet, deeper grew the pile of snow beneath me, brighter grew the light above. The whining was mingled with growls now. Don had friends to aid him. The barrier was but three feet thick—two—one, it was gone!

and, even as I breathed the free air of heaven and my heart leaped within me and my lips uttered a glad cry, a dozen pairs of great hollow eyes buried into mine, a dozen gaunt forms crouched before me gnashing their gleaming fangs—I had been rescued by a pack of mountain wolves. For a single instant I surveyed my enemies—I weak, wounded and unarmed; they strong, hungry and ferocious as those to one, and then, sprang into their midst.

It was an act of a madman, but I was mad. Death should tear me limb from limb now, and with bare hands, I clutched at the first gray monster before me and grasped his shaggy throat as with bands of steel, seeking to throttle hi

Then the entire pack with demoniacle howls hurled themselves upon me.

The struggle was short. I felt the hot breath of the brutes in my face, their red mouths yawned upon me; their strong claws tore my buckskin shirt; their teeth snapped, when suddenly a great white something was hurled from the bank of the snow above into the midst of the meelee. A half-dozen dark forms followed. Wild shouts, mingled with pistol shots and the heavy blows, broke upon my ears, the red blood of my assailants dyed the spotless snow; their hideous eyes faded from before me, and falling backward, I felt myself caught by strong arms, and the well-known voice of old Johnson cried, "Saved, thank God!"

Aye, saved! and this time for life. My trusty dog had found the ranch, and arousing the men by his strange actions they had followed him in the early morning to where I was hidden, arriving at the spot just in the supreme moment of need. I was saved, and five days later confronted Black Dan before the bar of the Criminal Court in Pueblo, and had the satisfaction of hearing sentence passed upon him, while he trembled as he stared at the man whom he had buried among the peaks of the Rockys.

Neither duty nor pleasure will ever again call me along the canyon of the Platte.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C.A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

It is hardly in order to brag of our large Michigan wheat farms while there are Californians present. Mr J Fennell of that State is reported to have 26,000 acres of wheat this year in a body. Threshing commenced on June 22, and will not be finished before the first of September.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

Boots made of horse-hide are now being manufactured in Germany for the use of sailors of the navy department. The quarters of the horse are skinned, and the flesh carefully scraped off, so as to render the leather soft and pliable, while still remaining to a large extent water-proof.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

The Department of Agriculture reports the number of hogs in the country this year as 35,036,100; last year, 34,700,200, and in 1878 at 32,262,500.—At this rate of increase there will by and by be a pig apiece for the whole population.

The Central Michigan Agricultural Society will hold its fair at Lansing beginning September 27 and continuing five days. The Eastern Michigan Agricultural Society holds its fair at Ypsilanti, beginning September 21 and continuing four days.

The locomotives used on the rail roads of the United States are doing the work of over 26,000,000 horses, while the census of 1870 aggregate horses of all ages at less than 9,000,000.

The farmers in the southern part of St. Clair county, this state, say that the potatoe crop is rotting badly, and that it will hardly amount to anything.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought fowest figures.

Chicago Street. HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh, · · Michigan.

I Have 12 Milk Safes

That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.

A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE, Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Hesson's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. B. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN YEADEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery, U. S. Scrivener in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

CURRY & BOOTS, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, [illegible] Store in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

9 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM: with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Very few hens lay at the point of death.

The baby is musical because he has arrived at the bandage.

They dress expensively who go the lawyer for their suits.

Brick tiles—hats worn by inebriated young men.

The English call our elevated roads "overhead lines."

The frog is an emblem of hope; he is eternally springing.

Sparking across a garden fence admits of a good deal being said on both sides.

After all, it was a girl, and not a boy who "stood on the burning deck"—it was Cassie B. Anca.

A mechanic wants to know if the company for the making of artificial limbs is a joint stock one.

The Boston Transcript has discovered that we meet a great many warm friends during the heated term.

One man has threatened to whip another. "Well," said the other, "a bull can whip a philosopher."

When you ask some single ladies how old they are, their rage is manifest.

"Constituency thou art a jewel," remarks the candidate when he is returned to office.

The baker's business should be profitable; a good part of his stock is rising while he sleeps.

The conductor who divided his collections with the company claimed that it was a fare arrangement.

An Illinois girl's toast—"The young men of America—Their arms our support, our arms their reward; fall in, men, fall in."

An elderly maiden lady, hearing it remarked that matches were made in heaven, remarked that she didn't care a cent how soon she went there.

Josh Billings says: "Give the devil his due, reads well enough in a proverb; but what will become of me if this arrangement is carried out?"

A great many dramatic writers are coming out with plays these days—coming out of managers' offices with the plays under their arms.

An epicure requested his landlord to get him a spare-rib. The inn-keeper declared he had none but a crooked rib, which he should be glad enough to spare.

Multum in parvo!—American Ball-Blue is declared by expert housewives to be a little blue giant of many accomplishments for laundry use.

McFlannery heard a gentleman say of another that he had a too benign countenance, and remarked: "A 2 be 9 countenance! Phwat a face, to be sure!"

A gentlemen advertises that his portrait (in oils) has been stolen. There is nothing remarkable about this, tho' for every one is having his likeness taken nowadays.

The word "dear" is one of the greatest inventions in the English language. Every married man can say "my dear wife" and no one can tell just exactly what he means.

"In the sentence, 'John strikes William,'" remarked a school teacher, "what is the object of strikes?" "Higher wages and less work," promptly replied the intelligent youth.

Ft. Atkinson, Wis., Union, May 5, 1880.—"Burr Robbins' Great Allied Shows exhibited in this place on Tuesday last, to one of the largest and best pleased crowds that was ever drawn out by a circus, giving entire satisfaction to all."

The Bone and Muscle producing Malt, the Nerve-quieting Hop, the superb Malarial antidote Quinine, and other precious ingredients, combined without fermentation, are the ingredients of "Malt Bitters," prepared by the Malt Bitters Company.

ALL who contemplate patronizing that excellent preparatory school, the Michigan Military Academy, should send to Colonel Rogers for the new catalogue. Address him at Orchard Lake, Mich.

THE Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake entered during the last year 97 Cadets, representing ten States. To secure such patronage in three years proves that only thorough work is done there.

Thousands of soldiers and heirs are entitled to Pensions with payment from date of discharge or death, if applied for before July 1, 1880. Wound, accidental injury or disease entitles to a Pension. Bounty and back pay collected. Increase of Pension secured. This firm established in 1866. Address, enclosing stamp, EDSON BROS., U. S. Claim Attorneys, 711 G Street, Washington, D. C.

CADETS FOR WEST POINT.

Mr. Willits the Representative in Congress in this the 2d district, has received notice to appoint a candidate for the cadetship at West Point, belonging to this district for the term commencing June 1881. Up to this date he has received thirteen applications for the place. The appointment will be made after a competitive examination by a board of gentlemen to be selected by Mr. Willits, said examination to be held at Monroe, the latter part of August. Notice of the time and place will be given hereafter.

The cadet must be an actual resident of this district; must be between the ages of 17 and 22; must be of a perfectly sound physical constitution, without defective organs of any kind. He must also pass a thorough examination in reading, writing, orthography, arithmetic, grammar, English composition, geography—particularly that of the Western Hemisphere; history—particularly United States history beginning with the colonization of this country. In all these the examination will be critical and exhaustive, as the standard at West Point is very high and the chances for rejection are very great.

An Honest Medicine Free of Charge.

Of all medicines advertised to cure any affection of the Throat, Chest or Lungs, we know of none we can recommend so highly as DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, Tickling in the Throat, loss of voice, etc. This medicine does positively cure, and that where everything else has failed. No medicine can show one-half so many positive and permanent cures as have already been affected by this truly wonderful remedy. For Asthma and Bronchitis it is a perfect specific, curing the worst cases in the shortest time possible. Trial bottles free. Regular size 1.00. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh Mich.

WE clip the following from the South Bend Register. Mr. Peak was the catcher of the Green Stockings in their games at Tecumseh and many persons in Tecumseh regret the accident and hope that it may not oblige him to withdraw from base ball altogether:

Henry Peak was painfully injured by an accident at the Studebaker wagon works, this morning. He was putting a stick through the jointer side of a universal wood-worker, and being a little crooked it turned and drew his hand against the knives which mutilated his left thumb so that it had to be amputated close to the hand. The bone, from the base to the end was almost entirely cut out of the thumb, leaving nothing but a thin strip of flesh. The accident will probably compel Henry to withdraw as catcher of the Green Stockings.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

FROM the Ashland, Neb., Bee: Every one will unite with us in saying it is the best show ever in Ashland. The street procession rivals in grandeur and brilliancy any show we have had for the past ten years. Mr. Robbins has been in the business a life time. He has made money and invested it. His circus and menagerie is his pride. He would not have a poor performance at any price. His party is composed of as fine gentlemen as can be found in any business house in Nebraska. We believe Burr Robbins' show is the best on the road.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

THE Burlington Hawkeye man, who always has a kind word for the young ladies, says: "Yes, daughter, you should go somewhere this summer. You cannot stay home during warm weather and live. To be sure, your mother, who hasn't been out of town since she was married, can stand it, but then she is old-fashioned and does not know any better, and besides she has fun enough doing the washing and ironing. By all means go. Get a linen duster and a basket and go at once."

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all inds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve guaranteed to give perfect satisfac- in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED

BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Washed Grapes Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended: I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. R. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "it is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABON, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?

BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best

KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR, that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., 161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yard corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

L. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich. Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Workmanship, Great Durability, Easy Running, Large Capacity, Immeasurably in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for easily superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual guard and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Power. 19 Years of Free Patents and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry, Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear compact type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 3 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $9.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $8.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Æsop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, Tribune Building, New York.

JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

AGENCIES: Boston, H. L. Hastings; Philadelphia, Leary & Co.; Cincinnati, Robert Clarke & Co.; Indianapolis, Bowen, Stewart & Co.; Cleveland, Ingham, Clarke & Co.; Toledo, Brown, Eager & Co.; Chicago, Alden & Chadwick; in smaller towns, the leading Bookseller, only one in a place

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

Issued Every Thursday Morn'g

BY S. G. STACY.

Office in the New Herald Block, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One year, Cash in advance, ... $1.50
Six Months, ... 75
Four Months, ... 50
Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.
Special notices, double rates.
Marriages, Births and Death Notices free.
Rates on General Advertising, or extra contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondence solicited on subjects of general interest, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith, a name to accompany all communications, will be required.

Entered at the post office at Tecumseh, Michigan, as SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG 12, 1880.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican State Convention for the nomination of a State ticket, was held in Jackson on Thursday last, and proved to be one of the most exciting conventions ever held in the State. The contest for the governorship was a very hot one, the four leading candidates on the first ballot being Palmer, Rich, Beal and Jerome, "Farmer" Rich having a slight lead. On the fourth ballot Jerome received 318 votes and the nomination. The balance of the ticket was made up as follows:

For Lieut.-Gov.—Morgan S. Crosby.

For Secretary of State—William Jenney.

For State Treasurer—Benjamin D. Pritchard.

For Commissioner of State Land Office—James M. Neasmith.

For Auditor General—W. Irving Latimer.

With the exception of lieutenant governor, these all were renominations, and they were a fit acknowledgment of faithful services.

The ticket gives satisfaction to the Republicans and is very generally regarded as a strong one.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MR. JEROME.

Hon. David Howell Jerome is a native of Michigan, having been born at Detroit, on the 17th day of November, 1829. On the death of his father, which occurred when Mr. Jerome was an infant, his mother returned to central New York, but returned in 1843, and settled in St. Clair county, where Mr. Jerome was educated. In 1853 he went to California, and engaged in mining, but returned to Michigan in 1854, and embarked in business at Saginaw City, where he has resided ever since, and is now the senior member of the hardware firm of D. H. Jerome & Co. In 1862 he was authorized by Gov. Blair to raise the regiment apportioned to the Sixth Congressional district, and was commissioned commandant of camp, with the rank of colonel, to prepare the regiment for the field. In 1865 he was appointed on the State military board, of which he continued a member and president until the year 1873. In 1862 he was elected to the State Senate and served six years. During his entire senatorial career he was chairman of the important committee on State affairs. In 1875 he was appointed one of the commissioners to prepare a new State constitution. At present Mr. Jerome is president of the Saginaw Valley & St. Louis railroad, and of the Saginaw street railroad company. He is also a member of the board of Indian commissioners and a trustee of the Michigan military academy. Religiously he is an Episcopalian, and has been a vestryman in the Episcopal church for twenty-three years.

WILLITS WINS THE PRIZE.

The Republican Congressional Convention was held at Adrian on Tuesday last, and was called to order by T. S. Applegate, chairman of the Congressional committee, who nominated as temporary chairman Col. H. S. Dean, of Washtenaw county. On taking the chair, Col. Dean made a few brief and appropriate remarks.

Andrew Winchester, of Hillsdale county, was appointed temporary secretary.

The following were appointed committee on credentials: H. D. Platt, of Washtenaw county; C. M. Rowe, of Monroe; T. S. Applegate, of Lenawee; T. Landon, of Hillsdale.

On motion, the following committee on permanent organization was appointed: E. P. Allen, Washtenaw; C. R. Miller, Lenawee; John M. Osborne, Hillsdale; I. R. Grosvenor, Monroe.

On motion, the convention adjourned till 2 o'clock P. M.

The afternoon session commenced with a large attendance of spectators, the gallery being filled, and all the seats not occupied by delegates were early taken possession of.

The committee on credentials made their report, and it was accepted and adopted.

The committee on permanent organization recommended the following officers:

President—H. S. Dean, of Washtenaw.

Vice Presidents—Alonzo Hewitt, Hillsdale; M. J. Howe, Monroe; Harvey Bennett, Washtenaw; H. Sword, Lenawee.

Secretary—Andrew Winchester, Hillsdale.

The report was adopted.

On motion it was ordered that the secretary should call the roll of counties, and that the vote of each county should be announced by the chairman of the delegation.

Dr. Rynd, of this county, and Edwin Willits and Gen. Spaulding, of Monroe, were placed in nomination.

A ballot was then ordered and resulted as follows:

Edwin Willits	38
Charles Rynd	16
Gen. George Spaulding	10

Hillsdale county gave 15 votes for Willits; Lenawee, 16 votes for Rynd and 5 for Willits; Monroe, 10 for Spaulding and 2 for Willits; Washtenaw, 16 for Willits.

The nomination is a very fortunate one for the Democrats. If they display good sense at their convention on the 24th inst. they can nominate a candidate who will carry this Congressional district.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Democracy met in convention at Adrian last Saturday, to appoint delegates to the Congressional and State Conventions.

Col. Eldredge was chosen president of the convention, and G. C. Palmer, of Ridgeway, secretary. Tecumseh was represented by H. H. Keyser, Frank Davidson, W. R. Wooden, W. D. Robbins, A. P. Coddington and J. F. N. Bowen. The following delegates were chosen from the first district:

Congressional—J. V. Judson, Raisin; H. B. Hathaway, Blissfield; E. C. Van Vleet, Ridgeway; R. Robinson, Palmyra; Casper Reudy, Riga; A. P. Coddington, Tecumseh.

State—J. F. Bliven, Blissfield; W. R. Wooden, Tecumseh; B. L. Hicks, Ogden; J. E. McCollum, Clinton; B. F. DePuy, Macon; Benjamin Cannon, Deerfield.

DR. TANNER'S FAST.

The remarkable feat of Dr. Henry S. Tanner in abstaining entirely from food for forty days has been watched with great interest, not only by the general public but also by professional physicians and scientists, and the most remarkable part of the affair is his rapid recovery at the conclusion of his fast.

Dr. Tanner's experience has shaken a good many medical theories on the effects of fasting, which will give rise to learned discussion on these topics for some time to come. Dr. Tanner too has thoroughly advertised himself, which was likely one object he had in view in undertaking the fast. The Monday's New York Herald gives this account of his diet during the twenty-four hours succeeding the end of his fast:

The Herald left Dr. Tanner eating at ten o'clock on Saturday night. Between twelve and one o'clock yesterday morning he chewed his third beefsteak, rejecting the fibre, and after drinking an ounce of Hungarian wine ate two pieces of milk toast, not weighed. At half past three he drank four ounces of milk, and at four o'clock he repeated this dose. At a quarter to eight he drank an ounce of wine and at eight another ounce and asked for stewed oysters. Between seven and ten o'clock he drank six ounces of wine, and at ten o'clock began to eat beefsteak and potatoes that had been stewed in milk. He finished this meal, swallowing all the fibre, forty minutes later and then drank more wine. Again he called for oysters, but did not insist, as his watchers warned him that oysters are not much eaten in New York in August. His attention was diverted from his food by a ring at the doorbell and the entrance of Dr. Lawson A. Long, of the Erie County Medical Society, who said he had come to offer his apologies for the scepticism with which he had looked upon the fast. "It is wonderful," he said. "If I had had my way yesterday I should have given you at first something light and soothing, perhaps a solution of gum arabic and milk, with two parts of water. The entire medical profession would have agreed with me in administering only the lightest possible food at the outset."

At a quarter to twelve Mr. Albert Metz, the publisher, called with the proof sheets of Dr. Robert A. Gunn's biography of Dr. Tanner, and the latter spent half an hour in giving the sheets his final revision and approval, saying meantime, "Look at my skin, see how I am building up." He drank another ounce of Hungarian wine, and read telegrams of congratulation and telegraphic invitations from the seaside landlords who desired him to accept their hospitalities.

At noon Dr. Gunn, who had recovered from the indisposition that prostrated him on Saturday, ascended to Dr. Tanner's room and weighed him. The scales indicated 126½.

"Wonderful!" Dr. Gunn exclaimed. "His weight at noon yesterday was 121½. Now it is 126½—a gain of five pounds in twenty-four hours. It is wonderful."

Dr. Tanner kept on eating, but at half-past-twelve began to complain of sore jaws. This was his first growl.

A Missouri woman keeps up a bar in her house for her husband to patronize, and in this way keeps him at home, besides getting all his money.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

An Honest Fast.

Cincinnati Enquirer.—From the telegraphic account of the quantity of beef, watermelon, apples, milk, wine, &c., consumed by Dr. Tanner yesterday, it is clear that the forty days' fast was honest.

Spanish Laborers at the South.

Philadelphia Times, (Ind.)—Since the census has been taken the anxiety to get the colored man out of the South into the North seems to have subsided. Spanish laborers are going to Louisiana to take the places left vacant by the colored people who went away last year.

A Sad Omission.

New York World, (Dem.)—Despite the wonderful perfection to which lithography and similar processes for the reproduction in fac-simile of documents have been brought, we fail to find in any of the numerous lives of General Garfield that have thus far been inflicted on a credulous public any copy of the General's $5,000 opinion as to the merits of the DeGolyer pavement.

No Farmer Need Apply.

Detroit Free Press, (Dem.)—The fine words which the Republicans have had in their platforms and speeches for the great agricultural interest have been repeated so often that they have lost their charm. There was a time when the farmers of the State were content to be noticed in this way, but they have found out that the old adage is true that "fine words butter no parsnips." They have found that Republican love for agriculture is expended wholly during political campaigns and is regarded as a full equivalent for the votes of the farmers. They have found that the government of the State and its Congressional representation are regarded as the exclusive property of the politicians, and that the politician's estimate of the farmer's duty is that it is attend to his farm and keep the politicians in office.

The Follies of Organs.

North American, (Rep.)—Republicans are very foolish who try to make capital for their party by assailing the character of General Hancock. They do more harm than good all the time. They are friends of the bird from whom intelligent Republicans will pray to be saved. A good many foolish things have been said about General's Hancock's letter to General Sherman in the winter of 1876. Now that the full text of that letter has been published, exactly how foolish those things were is made apparent. Zealous but indiscreet adherents of Garfield and Arthur cannot be impressed too strongly with the fact that General Hancock's record is simply unassailable. They waste powder and shot when they train their batteries against the weak points of an enemy's defenses, not against those which are invulnerable.

Tanner's Remarkable Fast.

Detroit Evening News.—Dr. Tanner's rapid recovery is no less wonderful than the tremendous endurance he exhibited during his fast. He has eaten something every hour since his fast closed on Saturday at noon, and altho' he utterly disregarded the advice of his anxious medical attendants regarding his diet, he is as lively as a cricket and had gained by six o'clock last evening, in a period of thirty hours, eight and a half pounds. This shows that his eating since Saturday noon has been positively gluttonous, in the face of the fact that all the "authorities" maintain that the utmost abstemiousness is essential in persons recovering from starvation. His doctors declare that "his recovery is very remarkable," and indeed the whole experience with him contradicts all their preconceived notions, which they have solemnly given to the world as "demonstrated knowledge," and upon the basis of which they have been dosing and purging, and bleeding and coddling mankind for generations.

Hancock's Great Letter.

New York Sun, (Ind.)—Gen. Hancock's much talked of letter to Gen. Sherman, bearing date Dec. 28, 1876, has at last been given to the public. It is an off-hand production, evidently the General's own in every part.—Whatever may be said of the authorship of other documents, this, beyond doubt, is his; and we unhesitatingly pronounce it the most excellent and extraordinary letter on the Constitution, on law, and on public military and civil duties ever written by an American General.

It is in full harmony with the simple, plain, but transcendent constitutional principles enunciated in the Sun of the same date.

No fair man, after reading it, can say it is not a patriotic letter.

The solution which this letter sets forth as applicable to the complicated situation of the time is the perception of a clear, steady head, and stands in striking contrast with the confusion of ideas and the timidity which then possessed the Democrats in Congress.

Hancock, the Constitution, and the Law: that is the ticket.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

The Great Triennial Conclave at Chicago—Quarters in that City of the Michigan Commanderies.

The great triennial conclave of Knights Templar at Chicago next week, will be the largest gathering of the kind ever seen on this continent. In the street parade which is to take place on Tuesday, Aug. 17, there will be upwards of 50,000 Sir Knights in line. On the evening of that day there will be a grand reception, musicale and dansante in the exposition building, given to the visiting Sir Knights and their ladies, by Apollo, Chicago and St. Bernard commanderies of Chicago.

On the following Wednesday morning the competitive prize drill for valuable prizes will take place at the Chicago jockey club park. There will be numerous contestants in this drill. In similar contests at the past two conclaves Detroit commandery has come off with the highest honors over all competitors. It is not known whether they will enter the lists this year as some of the members think they could gracefully decline to contest, under the circumstances. They may, however, appear on the field at the proper time.

Many Michigan commanderies will be present at the conclave, and take part in the procession. The quarters of these Michigan commanderies in Chicago will be as follows: Detroit, No. 1, Detroit, Grand Pacific; Eureka, No. 3, Hillsdale, Atlantic; Peninsular, No. 8, Kalamazoo, Gault House; Jacobs, No. 10, Coldwater, Windsor; St. Bernard, No. 16, East Saginaw, Palmer; Columbia, No. 18, Sturgis, Commercial; Corunna, No. 21, Corunna, Atlantic; Lansing, No. 28, Lansing, Ogden; Three Rivers, No. 29, Three Rivers, Commercial; Pontiac, No. 2, Pontiac, Revere; Adrian, No. 4, Adrian, Tremont; Port Huron, No. 7, Port Huron, St. Caroline's Court; Jackson, No. 9, Jackson, Washington; Ionia, No. 11, Ionia, Commercial; Genesee Valley, No. 14, Flint, Gault House; Marshall, No. 17, Marshall, Commercial; Monroe, No. 19, Monroe, Hotel Brunswick; Muskegon, No. 22, Muskegon, Burke's; Bay City, No. 26, Bay City, Avenue House; Lake Superior, No. 20, Marquette, Burdick.

IX COT (not painted, White Duck) $2.

Makes a perfect bed. No mattress or pillows required. Better than a hammock, as it fits the body as pleasantly, and lies straight. Folded or opened instantly. Self-fastening. It is just the thing for hotels, offices, cottages, camp-meetings, sportsmen, &c. Good for the lawn, piazza, or "coolest place in the house." Splendid for invalids or children. Sent on receipt of price or C.O.D. For 50 cts. extra, with order, I will prepay express to any R.R. station east of Mississippi River and north of Mason and Dixon's Line. For 75 cts., in Minn., Mo. and Iowa.

HERMON W. LADD, 108 Fulton Street, Boston; 207 Canal St., New York; 165 North Second St., Philadelphia; 64 Market St., Chicago. SEND FOR CIRCULARS.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

THE CORNER GROCERY,

—OF—

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

A general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

☞ Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Clinton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

N. W. AYER & SON
ADVERTISING AGENTS
TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA
Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.
Receive Advertisements for this Paper, at Lowest Cash Rates.
ESTIMATES free for Newspaper Advertising.
Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't

AT KIES BROTHERS,

(Successors to W. J. Kies.)

Grand Cost Sale of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

For one week, in order to make room for

FALL GOODS

Now being made expressly for our trade.

Look at these Prices:

$15.00	Suits	reduced to	$12.00.
13.50	"	" "	11.00.
12.00	"	" "	10.00.
10.00	"	" "	8.00.
2.50	Dusters	" "	1.75.
1.25	"	" "	85.

All we ask is that you will take the trouble to come and see our bargains.

KIES BROS.,

One Price Clothiers,

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

BAXTER

Can Boot any one in the County.

BAXTER

Can shoe any lady of any age

BAXTER

Can and will suit everyone on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

I have just received the first fall invoice of Heavy and Fine MEN'S BOOTS.

Call for the

Rockland Ditching Boot,

At Lee's old stand.

BAXTER.

I Have 12 Milk Safes

That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.

A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

Is hereby given that for the purpose of making an examination of all persons who may offer themselves as candidates for teachers of the schools of this township, the Township Superintendent of Schools thereof will hold a public meeting at the Central School Building, Tecumseh, August 23d, commencing at 9 o'clock A. M.

Dated this 9th day of August, 1880.

CHARLES E. CONLEY,
Township Superintendent of Schools.

FOUND.

A pocket book, on Pearl street, between B. J. Bidwell's and Slayton's Furniture Factory. Call and prove property at

A. W. SLAYTON'S STORE.

NOTICE.

The regular examination of teachers for the township of Raisin will be held on Aug. 21, 1880, in the Kelly District, or District No. 2. Teachers are requested to furnish themselves with paper and pencils and be present at 9 A. M.

A. L. ARNER, Superintendent.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Two good farm horses. For price and terms apply at the office of the undersigned at the Globe Mills, Tecumseh. WM. HAYDEN.

PAY UP.

All persons indebted to Dr. R. B. House, whose accounts have been of more than three months standing, will confer a favor by calling and settling the same and thereby save a personal visitation from the collector.

FARM FOR SALE.

On account of failing health, I offer my farm for sale, containing 50 acres, a good orchard, fruit of all kinds, permanent supply of best of well and cistern water, very pleasant location. For particulars inquire on the premises, one mile north of Ridgeway. JOHN BECKLEY.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

$80 a month and commission to sell our goods to dealers. Boy and girl wanted in each town. Send 20c for circulars and boss outfit, best in the world. Lyndale Novelty Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets,

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

You can kill two birds with one stone on the 25th. Help the Fire Department, and have a fine trip to Put-In-Bay.

WM. LOVETT, of Raisin, came to this county fifty years ago this summer, the season when his father settled on the old Raisin farm. Mr. Lovett says the first reaper used in this section was purchased in the summer of 1849 by "Uncle Sammy Satterthwaite," and the second one was bought by himself and his brother John in 1850. They were the McCormick reaper. For several seasons the McCormick and Manny machines were the only ones in the market.

Good Company—Number Eleven.

Good Company, Number Eleven, opens with Notes of Travel by Charles Dudley Warner, at the end of which he throws the charm of his style about an account of the immense Chicago stock-yards in a way to delight the new Porkopolis. An idea of the prevailing Southern diet and the obstacles to introducing improved methods in cooking is given in an account of personal experience by Mrs. Helen Campbell. Octave Thanet has the "Romance of a Medicine Bottle," and there is a full allowance of stories by Ellen W. Olney, L. K. Black, Mabel S. Emery and David Ker; also contributions from B. F. DeCosta, Mrs. Edward Ashley Walker and J. B. T. Marsh; and several shorter sketches.

EXCURSION TO PUT-IN-BAY.

On Wednesday, Aug. 25th, the Tecumseh Fire Department will give an excursion to Put-In-Bay, going by rail to Toledo and thence by the steamer Chief Justice Waite to the Island.—The Fire Department have for some time been desirous of purchasing uniforms, and they have finally concluded to adopt this plan of raising the funds for that purpose. The time selected is an excellent one, as the farmers will be over their hurry and residents of the village are not particularly busy at this season of the year. A special train has been chartered so there will be no crowding. Tickets will be sold from Clinton and Tecumseh, and the fare will be only $2.00 for the round trip. The train will leave at 6 o'clock A. M. and return about ten in the evening. Fuller particulars next week. We hope to see this excursion well patronized, and have no doubt whatever but what it will be.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. AUG. 12, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

CIRCUS next MONDAY.

LET everybody turn out to the circus next Monday.

THE Adrian Press will issue a daily edition from now until after election.

SAM RAPPLEYE will please accept our best bow for a basket of very fine apples.

THERE have been nearly 1,000 barrels of early apples shipped from Monroe this season.

THE Democratic State Convention to choose a state and electoral ticket meets in Detroit to-day.

THE Tecumseh base ball club will go to Hillsdale on Friday to play a game with the Hillsdales.

PROF. FAIRFIELD, of this village, will conduct a teacher's institute at Middleville, Barry co., Aug. 30—September 3d.

IT is a generally admitted fact that a few hundred dollars pension proves a powerful and efficient medicine for some species of disease.

B. J. BIDWELL has bought and placed in his front yard a large and costly fountain. It adds considerable to the appearance of his already beautiful yard.

LET up, take a rest, trot out the horses and the family carriage, and with your uncles and your cousins and your aunts come to the circus next Monday. You will never regret it.

Ann Arbor Democrat: Four hundred and sixty-four couple got married in Lenawee county during the fiscal year just ended. What a fine beginning for divorces next year.

IT has been said that "fortune knocks at least once at every man's door." A friend of ours suggests that he goes to the back door of some people, and does not knock very loud either.

MR. AND MRS. W. A. WHITNEY, of Adrian, have decided to take up their residence in Detroit. We regret to have them leave Lenawee county, but suppose they will occasionally visit their old friends.

MARSHALL has succeeded in raising $70,000 in aid of the Toledo and Milwaukee railroad, and it puzzles the average Battle Creekites how, or by what means that town can raise $40,000 for the same purpose. Tally one for Marshall.

A GAY sewing machine agent located in Adrian, and, under supposition of being unmarried, a young lady maintained a flirtation with him some time before his wife discovered what was going on. Then there was a row, a tribunal of three, and a solemn promise.

THE Free Press, without full returns from every county in the State, estimates the probable population of Michigan as being in round numbers 1,005,000. It says under the next Congressional apportionment Michigan will assuredly gain an additional member.

TEMPERANCE meeting for the purpose of organization relative to the constitutional amendment, at the M. E. church lecture room, Friday evening, Aug. 13th, at 7:30 o'clock. All temperance people, no matter what their relative views may be are invited to be present.

THE Macon Grange meeting on Friday afternoon and evening, Aug. 13th, at Grange Hall, will be addressed by State Lecturer C. L. Whitney and Chas. E. Mickley. Special meeting in the afternoon. All Grangers Invited. Public meeting in the evening to which all are invited.

Clinton News: Complaint reaches us that three Tecumseh chaps and their girls mutilated furniture, and otherwise misbehaved themselves, while stopping at the Clinton House last Sunday night.

Why don't you lay the blame where it belongs, to the three Saline boys and three Clinton girls?

THE 13th annual reunion of the 18th Michigan volunteer infantry will be held at Palmyra, on Thursday, Aug. 26. Dr. Rynd, of Adrian, will deliver the oration. All trains will stop at Palmyra on that day. The citizens of Palmyra are making arrangements to entertain all who come, and it is unnecessary to add that the welcome will be hearty.

As the first circus of the season will visit Tecumseh next Monday we have no doubt the attendance will be large. And if the notices of the press are any criterion to judge from the show is certainly a first-class one in every respect. The advance agent had favorable notices by the bushel, a liberal supply of which was given to our readers last week.

THE Jackson Citizen says that one of the brightest spots in that entire city is a flower garden inside the prison walls, cultivated by Thomas Kidd, a life convict, but a young man much liked by all the officers of the prison. He sells bouquets to pay the expenses of seeds and plants, and the warden allows him to work in it when not engaged in his occupation of cook.

Go to Put-In-Bay on the 25th.

GIVE the Fire Department a lift on the 25th inst by going on their excursion.

THE Prohibitionists will hold a county convention at Adrian to-morrow.

THE walls of Harry Lee's new store on Chicago street are progressing apace.

THE Democrats held a large and enthusiastic meeting at Blissfield last Saturday.

THE Alumni Reunion of the Raisin Valley Seminary will take place to-morrow afternoon.

FRANK DEUEL has presented us with a copy of the Cherokee, Iowa, Free Press. Thanks.

PERLEY BILLS, of this village, is enjoying an extended visit with his children in Gratiot county.

THE first excursion of the season to Put-In-Bay will be given on the 25th of August by the Tecumseh Fire Department.

GEN. J. W. BROWN is making Tecumseh his home for a few weeks this summer. He is boarding with his old friend W. H. Sink.

THE Republicans will hold their convention to nominate county officers on the 23d inst., and the Democrats will hold theirs on the 28th.

WHILE spending a few hours in Jackson one day last week waiting for a train, we met and had a pleasant visit with Hon. C. A. Gower, Supt. of Public Instruction.

CYRUS W. WELLS has been sojourning at Kewanee, Ill., for a few days and now goes to Grinnell, Iowa, for a time. A postal from him states that he is enjoying himself hugely.

P. R. ADAMS came to Tecumseh fifty years ago on the 26th day of July last, and for the first few weeks of his residence here he boarded with Musgrove Evans in the same dwelling where he now lives.

CHAS. BURRIDGE has fitted up a commodious suit of rooms over Ed. Merritt's store and up the same flight of stairs with his law office to use as a Justice office. The arrangement will be a very convenient one.

L. F. WHEELER has been spending a few days at Sand Lake, and while there he made a large addition to his stock of stereoscopic views about the lake. He has a large number of these views now on hand for sale.

THE Adrian Times has a horticultural curiosity on file in their office, or else the proof reader has blundered:

"J. M. Randall has brought a small branch of a cherry tree to this office. The best think about this branch is that it contains twenty-four luscious peaches of the "Randall's early red" variety."

DURING a brief visit at Clinton the other day we made Bro. Clough of the News a short call. He is very pleasantly situated now in his new quarters; and business seems to be good with him. He has the neatest country printing office we know of for a town of that size.

Co. "C" left town last Monday over forty strong for the Kalamazoo encampment. In addition to the company officers and privates Tecumseh sent also three staff officers of the 1st Regiment, viz: Col. W. C. Fitzsimmons, Ass't Surgeon C. M. Woodward, and Adj. Willis Merritt. They met the Monroe and Adrian companies at Adrian and proceeded directly to Kalamazoo.

THE Detroit, Butler & St. Louis railroad company have filed a petition in the Wayne circuit court, asking for the appointment of three appraisers to fix upon the price to be paid certain property holders in Springwells, Ecorse, Romulus and Taylor townships, Wayne county, for damages in taking the right of way through their premises, said owners and the railroad company having failed to agree upon what was deemed equitable by both parties.

MR. LONG has taken exception to the item in the HERALD, of July 22d, in regard to his trouble at Sink's Hotel in Monroe, claiming that the item has done him injustice. We intended no offense to any one and published the item in good faith, having obtained our information from a resident of Monroe who claimed to know the details of the occurrence. It was evidently an unfortunate affair, and it is probably better for all parties concerned that it be given no further publicity.

Adrian Times: A three-story unoccupied wooden building in Hudson, owned by John Stevenson, and formerly used as a factory, was destroyed by fire Tuesday. The building was set on fire last week, but no damage was done at the time, as the flames when discovered had gained no great headway. Last night, however, the incendiary accomplished his purpose. The factory is situated in the rear of Eaton's furniture store, and had the sparks been communicated to surrounding buildings a valuable business block might have been destroyed. Prompt and efficient work by the fire department prevented this. The building destroyed was not very valuable and contained no machinery or goods. The loss is less than $100.

HAVE you heeded the "Seasonable Warning" given by the village Health Committee?

THE timber is on the ground to build a new bridge over the paper mill flume in Brownsville.

THE political pot is beginning to bubble, and by the first of September the campaign will be well under way.

J. D. ROBBINS left home last Monday to take a business position in a wholesale jewelry house in Cleveland, Ohio.

W. H. CHAPMAN, of Deep River, Conn., brother of L. A. Chapman, of this village, is stopping in town for a few days.

WILL BASS, of Lawrence, Van Buren county, has been visiting friends in Tecumseh and Raisin during the past week.

THE committee having the Fireman's Excursion in charge have began work with a will and are bound to make it a success.

QUARTERLY meeting at the M. E. church next Sunday. Preaching by the Presiding Elder Rev. W. H. Shier, morning and evening.

MISS ADDIE LEONARD, of Connersville, Ind., and Miss Clare Stock, of Toledo, Ohio, are the guests of Miss Frank Bryan for a few days.

HON. E. P. ALLEN, of Ypsilanti, one of the most eloquent orators of Michigan, will address the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity at the Republican Rally, on Thursday evening, Aug. 19th.

THE Northern Lenawee Farmers' Club will meet next Saturday afternoon. The topics for discussion will be "Butter and Bread Making," also music and miscellaneous questions and answers.

The population St. Clair county is 45,136; that of St. Joseph is 26,701. These figures added to those already published make the total population of the State, excepting Charlevoix county, stand at 1,637,398.

E. B. VAN VALKENBURG of the Hillsdale four-oared crew, goes to Ludington to engage in business. John D. Wilson has turned farmer, and the other members of the crew have gone back to their old avocations.

A. J. MCFALL, of Hudson, has rented the Keyser building, two doors east of the HERALD building, and will keep a lunch room, restaurant and confectionery store therein. He proposes to keep a first class restaurant on the temperance plan, as no intoxicating liquors will be sold.

MR. AND MRS. WM. TILTON gave a select pioneer party at their home in this village last Thursday afternoon. All the oldest settlers in this vicinity were present, and also Gen. Brown of Toledo, Sumner Spofford of Des Moines, and F. A. Dewey of Cambridge. It was a very enjoyable gathering.

SHOULD any one miss old junk about this time let them not cherish bitter thoughts of mankind and meditate plans of revenge. Circus day is coming and the youth who cannot glean enough old metal to raise the wind for a ticket will never get a good grip on this world's goods. Give the boys a chance.

WE are in receipt of the premium list for the seventh annual fair of the Union Exhibition and Driving Park Association of Morenci. The fair will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 8, 9 and 10, 1880, and the present indications are that it will be the most successful exhibition ever given by the association.

WITH its next issue, Prof. W. H. Payne of the state university will assume the chief editorial management of the Educational Weekly, Chicago, the most influential and widely read educational journal in the West. The readers of this well-known paper are to be congratulated. Prof. Payne has proved himself to be one of the foremost of modern educators.

C. L. WHITNEY, grand lecturer of the State Grange, announces appointments in this county, as follows: Aug. 9th, Adrian grange; 10th, Palmyra grange; 11th, Jasper grange; 13th, Macon grange; 14th, Madison grange; 16th, Rollin grange; 17th, Rome grange; 18th, Springfield grange; 19th county grange at Woodstock; 20th, Morenci; 21st, Weston grange.

Adrian Times: There are at least two sides to the story of the family troubles of Rev. Ira C. Billman. His statement, and he claims to be able to furnish abundant proof thereof, is to the effect that for thirteen years he has been the victim of the ungovernable temper of Mrs. Billman, and that she has frequently inflicted personal chastisement on him. He could live so no longer, and told her so.

HEMAN HAND, of Macon, lost a horse last evening in a rather singular manner. He started for home early in the evening by way of Brownville and when going over the paper mill bridge the horse suddenly took fright and started on a run. As he left the north end of the bridge he shied to the right and struck the end of the railing on the bridge over the race with such force that the rail penetrated his breast, and produced death within a few moments.

—Farmers, look at this statement from Wth. Bradley, of Franklin: "I have given the Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow and the Mounted Spring Tooth Harrow a fair and honest trial, and I prefer the Kalamazoo Harrow at the same price. Have bought one of Kennedy & Hayden."

—Farmers, look at these adjustable Fruit Ladders at Kennedy's.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new. A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over. A. B. Cotton.

—A Special offer for 30 days. One hundred and ten dollars will buy a good upright Piano. Warranted for five years at Adamson's.

—If you want a good porcelain and cylinder pump get it at the Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—Kennedy's circus don't make any difference with his prices on Implements.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres. J. A. Eaton & Co.

—Champion Rubber Buckets for chain pumps at Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—All kinds of Screen Doors and Windows of the best material, also all kinds of building material at S. W. Temple's.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Kelly's Barbed Fence Wire, at Kennedy & Hayden's.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—The cheapest wagon in the market also the best at Kennedy & Hayden's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Chenille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

—A better cultivator than the Standard has not yet been made. For sale by Kennedy & Hayden.

—The "Star" and "Myers" Wind Mills at Kennedy & Hayden's.

BLACK SILKS AND CASSIMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

TRADE NOTICE.

We are glad to give notice to our friends that we control a substantial trade extending over 20 townships, and that for years our trade has been steadily increasing. With our large trade, and long experience, with our large roomy store, (the best in the county,) and our small expenses compared with our large trade, we have advantages worthy your notice. This fall we shall leave no stone unturned to exceed our very large trade of last year, and are now increasing our stock of Dry Goods, Clothing and Boots and Shoes to its fullest capacity. It will pay you to call. Please come.

Respectfully,
F. H. Brown & Co., Blissfield.

—Now is the time to hand in your coal orders to S. W. Temple.

—A full line of drills at Kennedy's.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

CHILLED PLOWS,

Warranted to plow in any soil, either sticky or hard, from $2,00 to $5,00 below any other make of same quality at Clinton Foundry. Ground points for all leading plows $4,50 per dozen at Clinton Foundry.

D. Woodward.

—We shall offer bargain in Dress Goods, shawls and all summer goods for the next 30 days in order to make room for fall stock.

J. A. Eaton & Co.,

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.

Brown, the Photographer.

—Come and see the circus and don't forget to call at Kennedy's.

—D. Jones is opening up a large invoice of imported and domestic cloths for the fall trade. Call and examine.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids. A. B. Cotton.

DIED.

SWARTHOUT.—Died at the residence of her son-in-law, Wm. P. Hicks, in Clinton, Aug. 4, 1880, Mrs. Clarinda Swarthout, aged, 85 years and 6 months.

"We bent to-day o'er a cofined form,
And our tears fell softly down;
We looked our last on the aged face,
With its look of peace, its patient grace,
And hair like a silver crown.

We touched our own to the clay-cold hand
From life's long labor at rest;
And among the blossoms, white and sweet,
We noted a bunch of golden wheat,
Clasped close to the silent breast.

The blossoms whispered of fadeless bloom,
Of a land where fall no tears;
The ripe wheat told the toil and care,
The patient waiting, the trusting prayer,
The garnered good of the years."

COLFAX—At the residence of Dr. I. S. Hamilton, Aug. 6, Wm. Colfax. The deceased was an earnest and consistent member of the Baptist Church of this village. It is not known that he had a relative on this continent. The expense and care of his last illness were borne almost entirely by his old employer and family, Dr. I. S. Hamilton. Funeral sermon by his pastor, Rev. C. E. Conley.

MARRIED.

MOSHER—WARD—On the 10th inst., at the residence of the groom in Springville, by Rev. H. Shepard, of Tecumseh, Mr. Thomas H. Mosher, of Springville, and Miss Lou Ward, of Milan, O.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, Aug. 11, 1880:

Crane, Colton	Maloy, Miss Emma
Monroe, Lewis	Parker, Elias E.
Mark, Charles	Schoonmaker, J. B.
May, Mrs. B. C.	Winslow, Lewis

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, Aug. 12, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending Aug. 4, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 2,854 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

30 steers	1495	4.80	13 steers	1176	$4.27½
32 steers	1245	4.60	32 steers	1345	4.75
16 steers	1267	4.50	17 steers	1053	3.87½

Sheep—The receipts for the week show an increase of 2,400 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

54 Mich. lambs			67	3.10
137 Ohio do			82	5.25
34 Mich. sheep			114	4.25

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show an increase of 6,113 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

61	185	5.00	65	184	4.65
103	240	5.10	50	258	5.10

DETROIT MARKET.

Tuesday, Aug. 10, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 6 cars at $1; do Aug. 2,000 bu at 97c; do October, 11,000 bu at 95½c.

Feed—Bran, $11.50@12; middlings, $14.50@15 per ton.

Butter—14@18c per lb.

Beans—City picked, $1.48 per bu.

Cheese—9¼@10c per lb.

Apples—$1.50@1.75 per bbl.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@11c. Shoulders, 6¾@7c. Bacon, 10@10½c. Dried beef, 12@13c per lb.

Corn—42c per bu.

Oats—31½@35c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 2190 bbls.
EGGS—Shipped 23 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 3068 lbs.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 18055 lbs.
LUMBER—Shipped 2 cars.
MILL FEED—Shipped 2 cars.
GRAIN—Shipped 2 cars
LIVE STOCK—Shipped 8 cars.

Apples, ₩ Barrel	1 75@	2 00
Apples, dried, ₩ ℔	5 @	7
Butter, ₩ ℔	12@	14
Barley, ₩ bushel	45@	55
Beans, ₩ bushel	1 00@	1 60
Buckwheat, ₩ bushel	30@	60
Buckwheat Flour, ₩ hundred	3,25@	3,60
Beef—dressed, ₩ hundred	450@	5 00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ₩ lb	@	10
Corn in ear	28@	30
Corn,—shelled ₩ bushel	40@	48
Clover Seed	3.50@	4.00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₩ dozen	@	8
Flour, ₩ barrel	6,00@	7,00
Hogs Dressed, ₩ cwt	@	5,00
Hogs Live ₩ lb	3 50@	3 85
Hay ₩ ton	6,00@	8,00
Hides, ₩ ℔	@	6½
Honey, ₩ ℔	@	18
Ham, ₩ ℔	@	9
Lard, ₩ ℔	@	8
Oats, ₩ bushel	25@	30
Onions, ₩ bushel	1.50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	50@	70
Salt, ₩ barrel	@	1,50
Sheep Pelts	50@	1,25
Timothy Seed, ₩ bushel	@	2,00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ₩ cord	4.00@	4 00
Wheat, White, ₩ bushel	@	90
Wheat, Red, ₩ bushel	@	92
Wool, ₩ ℔	30@	38

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening, at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

J. F. JENKINS N. G.
L. A. CHAPMAN, Sec.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

STATIONS.	No. 45. Mail.	No. 47 Express.	No. 49. Accom.
Jackson	6 30 a.m.	2 50 p.m.	3 30 p.m.
Napoleon	7 10 "	3 38 "	4 23 "
Norvell	7 19 "	3 46 "	4 35 "
Manchester	7 43 "	4 20 "	5 15 "
Clinton	7 55 "	4 30 "	5 40 "
Tecumseh	8 10 "	4 52 "	6 00 "
Adrian	10 55 "	5 15 "
Detroit	9 00 "	6 20 "
Toledo

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

STATIONS.	No. 44. Mail.	No. 48. Express.	No. 46. Accom.
Detroit	7 50 a.m.	5 45 p.m.
Toledo	11 10 "	8 25 "
Adrian	12 01 p.m.	9 20 "	8 10 a.m.
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	8 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 06 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvell	1 15 "	10 45 "	9 05 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 30 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't.
S. L. BLODGETT, Detroit Div. Sup't.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the U. S.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan,

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A.M.
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 M.
Eastern and Detroit ..... 3 30 P.M.

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 1 30 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A.M.
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A.M. 9 57 P.M.

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A.M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P.M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,
TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

FOR THE HERALD.

HOW TO INDUCE FEEBLE HEALTH AND EARLY DEATH.

1. Cultivate practical unbelief in all sanitary regulations.

2. Let no act of your daily life contradict that belief.

3. Feed on wilted cucumbers and lurch on green apples.

4. Keep an abundance of decaying vegetable matter in the cellar,—the butter and milk will absorb their odors of death and convey them to the human stomach and blood which is the life of man.

5. See that all kitchen slops are carefully emptied in one spot just outside the door, or directly under the chamber window.

6. Be careful not to ventilate the sleeping apartments.

7. Use no dried earth or other disinfectants in the water closets or elsewhere about the house.

8. Discard regularity in rising, retiring, eating—laugh at such things.

9. Avoid the bath.

10. When warm sit in drafts of cold air.

11. Wear cotton garments next the person twelve months in the year.

12. Drink freely of ice water when heated from exertion—"cool off" afterwards.

13. Work right along beyond your strength.

14. Avoid quiet restfulness on Sunday. Keep under excitement till after midnight and begin work Monday morning in spite of headache and fatigue.

15. Drink intoxicants moderately—or any other way.

16. Like to do wrong generally and always do as you like.

Many other rules might be given, but the careful observance of these will be sufficient to break even vigorous constitutions; besides, other ways will suggest themselves to those taking this course of life, so that there is nothing to fear.

Good health will soon begin to yield to this treatment, and before long the wrecking couch of death will be exchanged for the quiet of the grave.

DISINFECT YOUR PREMISES.

It is firmly believed that timely attention to the warnings and suggestions of the Health Committee of the Common Council has prevented disease and saved life in this village. It is therefore with great confidence that the appeal is again made to the people to defend themselves against the fruitful causes of disease and death which lurk in and about every neglected privy-vault and cess-pool.

The excessive heat and moisture of the summer have promoted decay and putrefaction to an unusual degree, thus increasing the danger in every family. It would therefore seem to be the imperative duty of every householder to take steps for the immediate and thorough disinfection of his entire premises, including privy-vaults, drains, pools, barn-yards, pig-styes, cellars and all other damp and unwholesome places in and about the dwelling.

The surest, cheapest and speediest way to accomplish this most desirable result, is to cover privy-vaults and other depositories of similar character with a coating of dry earth at least three inches thick. This done, copperas water should be sprinkled in and about such places at least twice per week during the next two months. In order that no one may be without the means of complying with this urgent request, the Health Committee have provided copperas to be issued FREE OF COST to those who desire it.

Application for copperas should be made to Mr. W. E. Gray, at the Council Building, and all are earnestly requested to procure and use it immediately and freely about their dwellings.

HENRY SMITH,
CHAS. BURRIDGE,
JERRY ROOT,
Health Committee.

P. S. McKINNON, Clerk.

Let Up—Take a Rest!

If you want to start on a very cheap and enjoyable tour in July, to Niagara, the 1,000 Islands, the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, White and Franconia Mountains, Boston, Newport, New York, up the Hudson, Saratoga, and return over the best route, stopping when and where you want to, with all expenses paid, and no "extras," write to

H. F. EBERTS, Excur'n Agt.,
Canada S'n R'y, Detroit, Mich.

In some of the new and northern counties of the State the boards of supervisors are making appropriations to secure a suitable representation of the county products at the coming State Fair. This is a shrewd thing to do. If the money is judiciously expended it will bring back to the county much more than the original appropriation through the free advertising of the county's advantages which such an exhibition will secure.

If you are troubled with Lame Back or diseased Kidneys, try Hill's Buchu.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Muskegon city census, 11,300; county, 26,541.

A new saw mill is being erected at Muskegon by John Torrent.

Brenson has $1,000 worth of street paving, well under way.

Co. A, M. S. T., of Ann Arbor, netted $200 by their excursion to Detroit.

There is much complaint about foot rot in sheep at Goodell's, in St. Clair county.

The foundation of the new L. S. & M. S. depot at Hillsdale is nearly ready for the superstructure.

There were 6,000 people present at the Petoskey camp meeting one day last week.

Only about 167,000 pounds of wool have been purchased at Ann Arbor this season.

Wm. Hitchcock, an old pioneer of Barry county has been gathered to his fathers.

Charley Miller, of Hastings, lost two fingers by a "Yankee whittler," Tuesday.

Mrs. Newton Simmons, of Battle Creek, is nursing a broken arm, received by falling down stairs.

Funds have been obtained to push the extension of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad to Pontiac immediately.

Dallas Wood was rendered unconscious for several minutes by lightning which struck his house at Bangor a few days since.

The Brighton Citizen says the new St. Paul's church at Brighton will be the prettiest church building in Livingston county.

E. S. Fitch, of Saginaw, a dealer in refuse salt, has begun the publication of a paper devoted to the interests of salt as a fertilizer.

C. C. Reed, superintendent of the Michigan Central telegraph, has accepted the position of superintendent of the Jackson telephone system.

The oddfellows' picnic of Matteson lake, Branch county, on Wednesday of last week, was attended by over 3000 people.

James Livermore, of Bangor, was seriously cut and bruised a day or two ago by being thrown from his wagon while his team was indulging in a runaway.

Charles Spencer had a leg broken and received serious internal injuries by a falling tree in Nottawa township, Isabella county. It is feared his injuries will prove fatal.

A contract for the erection of two structures of the new State Reform School for girls, at Adrian, has been given to James Denough, of that city, at $25,500.

The Saginaw valley is in danger of being carted off to Chicago. Joshua Tuthill has begun shipping sawdust from Saginaw to the Garden City, and if it pays—

Mrs. M. Louise Thayer, wife of Hon. Artemus Thayer of Flint, died Tuesday of last week after a long illness.—She was a lady of large literary ability active in benevolent work, and had resided in Flint over 40 years.

Worthless $3 bills on the extinct Colonial Bank of Canada, at Toronto, are circulating in and about Port Huron. These bills are printed from the genuine plates, but the bank is out of existence.

The Ionia National says that Hiram Johnson, of Montcalm county, had a whole flock of sheep nearly annihilated by the cars a few nights ago; 43 were killed outright and the balance of the flock of 110 more or less injured.

The regents of the University have appointed Dr. H. C. Allen, formerly of Detroit, as professor of materia medica in the Homeopathic college, vice S. A. Jones, resigned; and Dr. H. R. Arndt, of Grand Rapids, as lecturer on therapeutics of gynecology and obstetrics.

A. G. Conger's grist mill at Litchfield was destroyed by an incendiary fire, Tuesday night; no insurance. J. E. Howland loses about $5,000, and Jacob Conger $1,500 on mill. A. G. Conger's loss was wholly on stock. The fire was first discovered about two o'clock in the morning.

During the emancipation celebration in Calvin township, Cass county, on Wednesday, an employe of Samuel K. Merritt, of Williamsville, drove a team belonging to Mr. Merritt into the lake to water, and, getting into the quicksand, both horses and wagon disappeared. Mr. Merritt had refused $400 for the team only a day or two before.

During the violent rain storm of the 1st, in the southern part of Barry county, fences and trees were blown down in every direction, windows were broken, the country deluged with rain, and the following losses sustained by fire through lightning: Wm. L. Brown, of Prairieville, two wheat stacks burned; John Carnie, of Hope, a barn, a hay and a straw stack burned, losing his entire wheat crop with the barn; W. Baker, of Assyria, barn and wheat crop burned.

ASK the recovered Dyspeptics, Bilious Sufferers, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite — they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, SICK HEADACHE, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Burn, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivalled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of MINERAL or any injurious mineral substance, but is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venereal Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors,
Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 1879.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY SALE.

THE Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee—In Chancery.

Luke Wood, Complainant,
vs.
Hiram J. Snell, Elizabeth F. Snell and Mary J. James, Defendants.

In pursuance and by virtue of a decree rendered by said court in this cause on the 26th day of May, A.D. 1880, I, the subscriber, Charles L. Hall, a Circuit Court Commissioner in and for Lenawee county, Michigan, will sell at public auction at the front door of Dean's Opera House (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for said county is held) on Toledo street in the city of Adrian, in said county, on the 14th day of August, A.D. 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day the following premises described in said decree, viz: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, in the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, and described as follows, to wit: All that part of block number six (6) of Hewitt's addition to said village of Tecumseh which is included within the following boundary, viz: Beginning at the point of intersection of the west line of Evans street with the south line of Logan street in said village, such point of beginning being at the same time at the north east corner of said block number six; thence running south on the said west line of Evans street, sixty-four feet, to land of C. Albaugh (or at least in his occupancy as a pump manufactory); thence west on the north line of land of C. Albaugh and occupied by him as aforesaid, seventy-six feet to the north west corner thereof; thence south on the west line of said Albaugh's said land twenty-six feet to a parcel of land conveyed by said Hiram J. Snell and wife to J. Gilchrist, and known as the livery stable property; thence west on the north line of said land so as aforesaid conveyed to said Gilchrist sixty-eight feet to the north west corner of the same; thence south on the west line of said Gilchrist land fifty-four and one-half feet to the south west corner thereof; thence west fifty-four feet to land of B. J. Bidwell; thence north on east line of said Bidwell's land nine rods to the south line of Logan street aforesaid; thence east on the south line of said Logan street twelve rods to the place of beginning.

Dated July 1st, 1880.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

WILLIS MERRITT, Solicitor for Compl't. july1

ESTATE OF ISAAC COLLINS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, the 31st day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Isaac Collins, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Mary Ann Collins, widow of said deceased, praying for the Probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters of administration on said estate, with the will annexed, be granted to Francis M. Oakley or some other suitable person, there being no executor in said will named.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 30th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. aug. 5

THE BEST REMEDY FOR Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered which, as they contain no curative qualities can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.

Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,
55 Maiden Lane, New York.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit, In Chancery, Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County, in Chancery.

Carolina Lentz, Complainant,
vs.
Gotlieb Lentz, Defendant.

Before Charles L. Hall, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the city of Adrian, the 25th day of July, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file, that the defendant Gotlieb Lentz is not a resident of the State of Michigan, but that he now resides in the State of Indiana. On motion of Wm. L. Greenly, Solicitor, and L. A. Stacy and J. A. Stacy of counsel for complainant, it is ordered that the said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or in default thereof, that the bill of complaint in this cause be taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, once in each week, or that a copy of this order be personally served on said defendant, at least twenty days before the time herein fixed for his appearance.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

WM. L. GREENLY, Solicitor for Complainant.
L. A. & J. A. STACY, of Counsel for Compl't.
july29

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

BY virtue of an order of the Probate Judge of the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, made on the 20th day of July, A.D. 1880, licensing me as administrator of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased, to sell the right, title and interest of which said deceased died seized in and to the lands hereinafter described, I will on the 11th day of September, A.D. 1880, at the office of the undersigned in the village of Tecumseh in said county and State, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, sell at public vendue all the interest and title of which said deceased died seized, in that parcel of land situate in the township of Franklin, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, known and described as the west half of the north east quarter of section twenty-nine, town five south of range three east, containing eighty acres more or less, which will also be made subject to a mortgage on said land given by said deceased and his wife to Lucius Lilley, and subject to the right of dower of the widow of deceased, the particulars of which mortgage and the terms of sale will be published at and before said sale.

Dated July 27th, 1880.

EDWIN B. WOOD, Administrator of Estate of Henry Tripp, Deceased.
jul29

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of Mary Sones, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Mary Sones, late of the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 15th day of September, 1880, and 14th day of December, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon on each of said days, six months from the 14th day of June, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

CHARLES W. CULBERTSON,
AUSTIN G. HALL,
july30 Commissioners.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for county of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Abbie Griswold, late of the township of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 27th day of August, 1880, and January 19th, 1881, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, six months from the 19th day of July, 1880, are allowed by the said Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated July 24th, 1880.

WM. C. FITZSIMMONS,
SEATON W. ANDERSON,
Commissioners.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $55.75. New Pianos, $195 to $1,600.—Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Agents Wanted for SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY & HOLMAN'S NEW PICTORIAL BIBLES. Address, for circulars, A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Phila.

ELMIRA COLLEGE.

This college is thoroughly furnished for giving a superior education in Collegiate and Eclectic Courses of Study, and also in Music and Art. By reason of its endowment its charges are unusually moderate. Send for catalogue to REV. A. W. COWLES, D.D., Pres., Elmira, N. Y.

MALT THE NEW FOOD

Malt Bitters Company

MEDICINE BITTERS

Do not confound this Matchless Renovator of Feeble and Exhausted Constitutions with violent cathartics, cheap decoctions of vile drugs, and ruinous intoxicants innocently labeled "bitters." MALT BITTERS appeal to popular confidence because prepared from Unfermented Malt, Hops, and Quinine, and precious ingredients, according to the process of Liebig and are richer in the elements that restore to permanent health the Wan, Convalescent, Consumptive, Over-worked, Nervous, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Bilious, and Fickle in Appetite, than all other forms of Malt or Medicine. The genuine are plainly signed by the company. Sold everywhere. MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

The BEST HEALTH AND STRENGTH RESTORER EVER USED.

So perfect is the composition of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC that no disease can long exist where it is used. If you have Dyspepsia, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bowel, Kidney, or Liver Disorder, or if you need a mild stimulant or appetizer, the TONIC is just the medicine for you, as it is highly curative and invigorating but never intoxicating. Try a 50c. bottle. Your druggist can supply you.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D.C.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN.

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

HOW TO COOK GREEN CORN.

HOT CORN.—The colored cooks of the South believe that green corn is much more wholesome and nutritious when cooked with the husks on; it is certainly much sweeter than when entirely stripped of its covering. Select full ears, but see that the grains are tender and full of milk; strip off the outer husks and remove all the silk; put the corn into a pot of boiling water and boil it fast until tender, about twenty minutes; then drain the ears and serve them in a covered dish or folded in a napkin. Before eating, each ear should be buttered and seasoned with pepper and salt. When hot corn is not served on the cob the grains should be seasoned with salt and pepper, mixed with butter, and heated before they are placed on the table.

MOCK OYSTERS.—Grate enough green corn to fill a pint measure, add to it two tablespoonfuls of butter, the yolks of four eggs beaten smooth, and enough of flour to make a stiff batter; season the batter with salt and pepper, and drop it by the teaspoonful into smoking hot fat; as soon as the mock oysters thus formed are light brown, take them out of the fat with a skimmer and lay them on brown paper for a moment to free them from grease; serve them on a napkin.

SUCCOTASH.—Cut the grain from 10 full-grown tender ears of corn, mix them with one quart of shelled lima beans, boil them till tender in plenty of well salted boiling water, and then drain them in a colander; meantime beat two eggs smooth, put them into a saucepan with the succotash and 2 tablespoonfuls of butter, season it to taste with salt and pepper, and heat it thoroughly; serve it in a covered dish. A cup of sweet cream is sometimes used instead of the eggs and butter; or a small piece of salt pork or bacon is boiled in the succotash.

DRIED SWEET CORN.—Boil the corn as directed in the receipt for hot corn; as soon as it can be handled, take off the husks and cut the grains from the cobs with a sharp knife. Spread them on a sheet of cotton batting, and dry them in the mouth of a cool oven or in the hot sun. When the corn is thoroughly dry, put it in paper bags and keep it in a dry place. When wanted for use, soak it over night in water, and then boil it for five minutes in water and milk; season it with salt and pepper, add a little butter, and serve it hot.

GREEN CORN RAGOUT.—Cut a pound of fresh pork in pieces an inch square, fry it brown in the bottom of a saucepan, add to it six large ripe tomatoes peeled and sliced, and the grains cut from six ears of corn, cover these ingredients with boiling water, season the ragout highly with salt, pepper and sweet red pepper, and cook it slowly for half an hour; serve it hot with toast or fried bread.

Ham or bacon cut in half-inch dice and fried, may be substituted for the pork in the above dish. In fact, corn cooked in combination with any meat and highly seasoned makes a palatable dish.

There is hardly an American farm or homestead where this delicious vegetable is not abundant, and it can be made as enjoyable a dish as it is wholesome, abundant and cheap. We advise our farmers' wives not to confine themselves to boiled corn, but to try these combinations for the purpose of varying their list of Summer dishes.—Christian Union.

POISON IVY.

Dr. J. M. Warp, in the Medical Record, makes another addition to the already extensive list of remedies for poisoning by Rhus radicans, or "poison ivy." He recommends the profession to use, in all cases of poisoning by this plant, Labarraque's solution of chloride of soda. "The acid poison," he remarks, "requires an alkaline antidote, and this solution meets the indication fully. When the skin is unbroken it may be used clear three or four times a day, or in other cases diluted with three to six parts of water. After giving this remedy a trial no one will be disposed to try anything else. It is one of the most valuable external agents known to the profession, and yet seldom appreciated and but rarely employed. It will sustain its reputation as a local application in erysipelas, burns and scalds."—Floral Cabinet.

A Great Chicago Enterprise.

The Laboratory for the manufacture of Electric Bitters is one of Chicago's greatest enterprises, giving employment to a large number of hands. The extensive sale already attained for this wonderful remedy is astonishing.—Wherever once introduced and becomes known, it is almost impossible to supply the demand, because of their true merit—curing where all others fail—and at a reasonable price (fifty cents). Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

Mr. Richard Drum has on his farm near Lansing a Transcendent crab-apple tree bending under an extraordinary load of fruit. A twig two and a half inches in length had 16 perfect apples weighing 18 ounces.

A BLAST AGAINST FENCES.

Mr. George M. Whitaker, in his lecture on 'Neglected Trifles,' makes the following reference to fences: In New Hampshire the original cost of the fences is equal to twice the value of all the stock in the State, including horses, and the annual tax upon the farms for repairs of fences would nearly wipe out all the State tax in one year. The Connecticut farmers pay one million dollars annually for the maintenance of fences, and farms are offered in market for less money than would be required in building the fences which surround and divide them. With such facts in view, people in many places are beginning to see that fences are too costly, as frequently unnecessary, while their removal often improves the appearance of the town.

One of the pleasantest features of the landscape at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, is the entire absence of roadside fences against cultivated fields and mowing lands, and so well does the idea of dispensing with fences take hold of the farmers in the immediate vicinity of the College, that many of them are following the example set by the early founders of that institution, and are laying their own grounds open to the highway, thus adding much to the beauty of the landscape, besides saving a great bill of expense to themselves. One of the first things which the rich feel is necessary for their country homes is, that the view should extend over the landscape without the ugly interruption of a fence. This natural feeling is shared also by those who are not rich, but, like many other things which exist simply from the prejudices of habit, it has therefore been considered impossible to realize. To-day, however, by the slow process of generations, civilized men have become so imbued with a love of order and law, that the fence should disappear from the landscape as the draw bridge and moat have disappeared from the modern mansion.

IT IS TIME.

The Regulation of Medical Practice is now attracting attention in many of the states. Too long all attempts at legislation in this direction were merely the strifes of various sects for endorsement or for prominence.

But at last the cry of the human has prevailed. The people came to realize that the matter concerned them far more than it does the rival doctors.—The overflow of quackery was making itself felt in peril to the public health. For the time the question whether this or that system should be legalized or authenticated was bid stand back, in obeyance to that more universal claim that any or all who attempted medical practice or professed medical skill should be able to show that somewhere or somehow they had received a course of instruction. Doctors of all schools have so far accorded to these demands that in several of the states laws have been passed which require that any one who assumes the title of doctor of medicine and offers services as one skilled to treat human diseases should register his name and the place and date of graduation. It is a step in the right direction. It will shut out many pretenders, and will lead to a closer discrimination on the part of the public between those institutions which have high rank and those which have very doubtful claims to thoroughness. Medicine has become so definite a science that society will more and more claim exact tests of ability, and evidences not merely of a diploma, but of a high order of education.

SHADE TREES.

The maple is one of the best shade trees for city growth. It is not affected a particle by the extremes of heat and cold. It forms a beautiful head, with clean, glossy foliage, smooth bark, is free from all insects, and has a rapid growth. In five years, in a good soil, it makes a fine, symmetrical head, with gracefully sweeping branches, and affords a dense shade. The American tulip-tree is also very choice. Its great elegance of habit, and striking beauty of leaf and blossom recommend it to any one who has an eye to fine proportions. It requires a deep soil, with plenty of room to expand freely on all sides. It will not bear removing when large; but small trees grow rapidly when transplanted into a deep soil.—L. P. Mason.

Permanently Cured of Piles.

Hon. G. H. Rice, late R. R. Commissioner of Vermont, writes:

MILTON, VT., Sept. 16.

I have been a great sufferer from Piles, having had it in its blind phase for years. About two years ago, when the disease began to assume a bleeding form, I tried "Kidney-Wort," and used about a half dozen packages, which I believe effected a permanent cure.—From my own experience and that of others I am acquainted with, I became satisfied that the Kidney-Wort possessed remarkable virtues, and probably should have purchased an interest in its sale had I been possessed of sufficient means.

Truly Yours, G. H. RICE.

This cut represents the Hoe of the

STRAYER DRILL.

Each Hoe spreading the grain over a space

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a 9-Hoed Drill there is

27 INCHES

Of ground covered with grain,

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

Of ground that other Drills cover, thereby equalizing the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a depth gauge on each Hoe so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the field.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

To the Acre by using such a Hoe than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

N. C. ARNOLD, Agent,
Tecumseh, Mich.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT.
Grain, Flour, Feed and Coal.

SLAYTON & SON

Are still at the old stand with a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS,

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled. Mohawk Valley Clipper (steel.)

"Leader" Spring Tooth Harrow.
Elwood, Robbins and Buckeye
CULTIVATORS.
"Springer" Spring Tooth Harrow, (on wheels.)

GRAIN DRILLS. { Buckeye. Farmer's Friend. Triumph.
THRESHERS, { The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines.

Rare Bargains in

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Lime, Water Lime, Salt, Cal. Plaster and Plastering Hair.

If you want anything in our line call and get prices before you buy.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale,)
Write at once to
E. B. SMITH & CO.
DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for ALLAYING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

PATENTS.

P. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures,

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY" CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. GRAY, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1875, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Gravel, Kidney, Liver and Bladder Diseases.

Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF
CALLING CARDS.
At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Champion Drills,
Missouri Drills,
Myers' Wind Mills,
Champion Fruit Ladders,
Gregg Sulky for Plows,
Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,
Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,
Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,
Gale Fallow Cultivators,
Kala'zoo Spring Tooth Harrow,
Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,
A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,
Garr Scott Engines,
Garr Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,
Standard Mowers,
Royce Reapers,
Meadow King Mowers,
Grand Rapids Small Tools.

USBORNE BLOCK,
TECUMSEH, - - MICH.

THE LITERARY Revolution.

The most successful revolution of the century, and to American readers of books, the most important. Only books of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are low beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate and demonstrate these truths, we send the following books, all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named.

Macaulay's
Life of Frederick the Great. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Carlyle's
Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Light of Asia,
By Edwin Arnold. Former price, $1.50. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.

Thos. Hughes's
Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print, brevier type; price three cents.

John Stuart Mills's
Chapters on Socialism. Essays of exceeding interest and importance. Price three cents.

Baron Munchausen.
His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Burgeoise type; price five cents.

Mary Queen of Scots'
Life, by Lamertine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Vicar of Wakefield.
By Oliver Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.
Bourgeoise type, leaded; beautiful print; price six cents.

Private Theatricals.
By author of "Sparrowgrass Papers." Small pica type, leaded; price two cents.

Stories and Ballads.
For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.

Leaves from the Diary
Of an Old Lawyer. Short stories of thrilling, laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.

Booksellers
Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH. VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR

CAMPAIGN GOODS

of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply

Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c,

We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.

We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a

Present of a $100 Gold Watch

—OR—

NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.

Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the

U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT.

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Sea-sickness and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

DR. S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 169 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN!

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.
T. CUMMINS.
Builder of Fancy and Staple
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,
SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

THE MOST POPULAR AND BEST PATRONIZED

SHOW ON THE ROAD!

Tecumseh, Monday, August 16th, 1880.

BURR ROBBINS'

GREAT AMERICAN AND GERMAN ALLIED SHOWS!

CONSISTING OF A SUPERB

TRIPLE CIRCUS,

Monster Menagerie,

MUSEUM AND AVIARY!

Coupled with the Great Free Allegorical and Spectacular Tournament and Multitudinous Free Exhibition.

VAST FIELD OF TENTS,

Myriads of Wonders!

1,500 STRANGE

WILD ANIMALS,

BEASTS AND BIRDS!

THE GREAT DOUBLE MENAGARIE, CAGES

Of Animate and Inanimate Wonders nowhere else exhibited, and peculiar only to this Show.

The Only Den

Of Performing Flesh Eating Hyenas!

Open in the Street. Only ones ever exhibited.

Performing Elephants!

LIONS AND TIGERS,

LIVING SEA MONSTERS!

An Aviary of Ornithological Specimens replete with every known specie of Rare and Strange Birds, Insects and Reptiles of every known character, plumage and clime. A Museum of Living Curiosities, Living Phenomena, and Strange Vagaries.

M'e Leon in the Den of Lions,

HERR BROOKS, in the Den of Savage Hyenas,

OPEN IN THE PUBLIC STREET.

In a separate Mammoth Tent, and without extra charge will be Exhibited the Combined

Triple Circus!

In this department Competition is challenged to the world. MORE ARTISTS than any other show traveling. Female Gymnasts, Trapezists, and Equestrians. The perfect essence of Arenic Art demonstrated. Every leading act in the ring duplicated in friendly contests by rival champions of merit. ONE HUNDRED Male and Female Performers, Fifty trained Horses.

Four Famed Clowns,

FIVE CHAMPION LADY RIDERS!

3 CHAMPION BARE-BACK RIDERS,

Two Juvenile Equestrians, Double Somersault Gymnasts, Two Troupes of Acrobats, the Great German Atletes, the Great Female Calisthenists,

Lions, Tigers, Dromedaries, Ostriches,

ZEBRAS, SEA MONSTERS, STRANGE REPTILES AND RARE BIRDS.

1000 MEN, HORSES, AND ANIMATED MARVELS. The most refulgent, artistic and elaborate pagent ever witnessed in this Country.

DON'T FAIL TO WITNESS THE GRAND STREET PARADE & TOURNAMENT.

THE GRAND PAGEANT

An Endless Cavalcade of Knights and Ladies in armor mounted on beautiful steeds, caparisoned and accoutred, the entire retinue gorgeously decorated and painted in the most elaborate style, with Biblical Illustrations and characteristic scriptural events of Mythical and Classical Designs. Monster Golden cars and chariots have been expressly built for this purpose, refulgent in glittering decorations, and ornamented with designs and pictures of historical events and celebrities of the Revolution of '76, Living Groups and statues, representing Industry, Commerce, Civilization, the Army and Navy, the Goddess of Liberty. The Golden Car of Europe containing the world famous cornet band of Twenty Musicians.

SCENES OF SPLENDOR!

Wild Animals Loose in the Streets. Immense Golden Tableau Cars drawn by Elephants, Camels, etc.; a Procession of Dwarf Ponies.

The World's Greatest Exhibition

Presented under many tents in its entirety, forming a scene of brilliant and dazzling magnificence. One ticket admits to all.

One Ticket, admitting to entire Show, 50 cts. Children under 9 yrs., 25 cts.

NOTICE!—This show does not permit or countenance Gambling or Liquor Selling about the Show Grounds. A special U. S. Detective is employed for the protection of visitors.

Get in town Early! Sure to be in Time! The Parade starts at 10 A. M.

Two Performances, afternoon and evening, at 1 and 7 o'clock.

DON'T FORGET THE DATE. MONDAY, AUGUST 16, 1880.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI. NO. 13. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 19, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1550.

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT?

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

Over 30,000

Now in Use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE,

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. McCOWEN.

AROUND THE COUNTY

FRANKLIN.

Mrs. M. S. Wann, daughter of Rev. J. Vincent arrived at Tipton on Wednesday last from Kansas, where she went with her family some time since, hoping thereby to regain her health which had become considerably impaired, but received little benefit, decided to return here where she will remain some time with her parents.

Rev. E. P. Peirce found in the M. E. Church last Monday morning, a gent's duster which the owner can easily identify by a young ladies photo found in the pocket.

From present indications the next census will show a large increase in the Crittenden population of this township, having already scored two within a week, from which a thorough mathematician can complete the probable total. This time Well's family produce a fine boy. Next.

Our farmers are marketing considerable of their wheat crop, believing that it will not command a higher price for some time at least. A good rain would greatly facilitate plowing for the fall crop.

Many are wishing the railroad (that we hope to secure) was completed, which would save twelve miles drive on each load marketed, and many are the daily inquiries as to the prospect of securing it, "but we give it up" for the present, but hope for the future.

Many of our citizens have gone to the farmers' picnic at Devil's lake, and will doubtless feel repaid.

We regret very much to announce that our band that had become the pride of the town, are in danger of sharing the fate of many similar organizations where one or two of the members adopt the "rule or run policy," and disband just when their services will be in greatest demand, and no little indignation is expressed by outsiders at the course pursued by some of the members, we withold names for the present hoping the matter will yet be harmonized.

RIDGEWAY.

A hickory pole has been raised and Hancock and English unfurled to the breeze.

George Wilkins is very sick at this writing from an attack of billous fever.

The Rev. A. B. Wood is expected to be in the pulpit next Sunday.

The East Milans vs. Ridgeway B.B. game comes off on the Ridgeway grounds next Saturday.

The lawn social at Jackson's last Friday night was a very enjoyable affair and netted the management a nice sum.

Uncle Dan Tuttle died last Friday and was buried on Saturday, and Ridgeway looses another old settler thereby.

Mrs. Henry Pilbeam, a daughter of John Cheever, aged 23, died on Wednesday morning 18th.

A township temperance convention will be held at the M. E. Church in this village on the 25th inst, for the purpose of perfecting the organization in the township—a central committee, to consist of one man or woman from each school district. Don't forget this.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

The Adrian Times of last evening says:

The name of Hon. W. H. Waldby, of this city, has been prominently mentioned as Democratic candidate for Congress from this congressional district. Hearing rumors that he had desired to be counted out of the contest, a representative of the Times interviewed the gentleman to-day and ascertained that such was the fact. He has never been a candidate in the sense of seeking the nomination, but hosts of friends have persisted in asking him to take the position on the ticket, and he has had the matter under consideration. Now his decision is final; he is not and will not be, under any consideration, a candidate. The state of his health and his large business interests forbid it. Had he consented to have been a candidate he would have been unanimously nominated by the convention.

Democrats generally will regret Mr. Waldby's decision and not a few Republicans will regret it also.

Adrian Times: The jail-breakers who were recaptured say that Rowell, who is still at large, proposed on the night of the escape, to go into the sheriff's room, gag and if necessary, murder him. But his companions discountenanced the scheme. If it had been carried out, it is probable some of the prisoners would have stayed right there in the sheriff's room; it would doubtless have taken some time to remove the dead bodies.

BRIGADE ENCAMPMENT.

Camp Chandler a Scene of Sport and Hard Work—How Co. 'C', 1st Regiment Enjoyed the Camp.

Tecumseh's boys in blue, Co. C, 1st Reg. assembled at the armory at 7 o'clock on the morning of the 9th, arrayed in blue shirts and their regulation uniforms; all ready to start for Kalamazoo for a weeks encampment. They left on the morning train, via. Adrian, meeting Co. D of Monroe at the Junction. At Adrian the Adrian boys joined them and a special train carried them along to White Pigeon, the Coldwater co. having been taken aboard. It was afternoon by this time and the boys were overjoyed when the conductor sang out "20 minutes for refreshments" at White Pigeon. The boys immediately filled the depot crowding around the lunch stand with piteous cries for coffee and sandwiches. The waiter girls set out all their newly baked pies and cakes and emptied every plate, and still the hungry boys called for more, but more there was none, not even a crumb for a stray mouse. The boys then resumed their cars while they were carried along to Kalamazoo, where they arrived about 2:30. They immediately commenced their march to the camp, through the shady streets of the city, lined on both sides with residences finely trimmed with the national colors. They soon reached the fair grounds, the site of the camp, about a mile from the business portion of the town. Here they were designated to their respective streets and ordered to stack arms which they cheerfully did, and repaired to the dining tent. After dinner they pitched their tents and fixed up their quarters. The tents were pitched in a large level field adjoining the fair grounds which was used as a parade ground. The 1st Reg. had its quarters between the 2nd and 3rd, the company commanders having separate quarters at the end of the street upon which their company was camped, while the regimental quarters were back of the companies' officers' quarters where they could overlook all that was going on.

Co's. C and G, of Jackson formed one street while the Monroe Co. backed Co. C. A more pleasant position could not have been obtained the Jackson boys were a lot of jolly, friendly fellows, and the two companies together made one of the liveliest jovial streets of the whole brigade quarters. The calls were as follows:

Reville, at sunrise.
Fatigue, at 6:00 a. m.
Breakfast, at 6:30 a. m.
Sick, at 7 a. m.
First Sergeant's, 7:30 a. m.
Guard mounting, at 8:00 a. m.
Com'y or Battalion drill, at 9 a. m.
Re-call, at 11:30 a. m.
Dinner, at 12:00 m.
Battalion Drill, at 3:00 p. m.
Re-call, at 5:00 p. m.
Supper, at 5:30 p. m.
Regimental dress parades, 6:15 to 7:15 p. m.
Retreat, at sunset.
Tattoo, at 9:30 p. m.
Taps, at 10:30 p. m.

Some persons may think that this routine was easy, but not so. In the morning they were marched out in fatigué dress for company drill which was exceedingly tiresome and warm, then after a lunch on a cracker they were soon marched out again in full dress for battalion drill which was on some days unendurable. Co. C seemed to stand it, but every day a number of men from other companies dropped to the ground from exhaustion and heat. After this they had supper then came dress parade which consisted in forming a line and standing during the reading of the orders.

Will Eccles of Co. C, was taken to the hospital on Tuesday, lame with the rheumatism. Fred Knight was also transferred there. The boys received the best of treatment from the surgeons. Although Will was unable to participate in any of the drills, yet he was so that he could be around and enjoy the better part of camp life.

Co. C was always in good spirits and in the evening after dress parade the jests and merry laugh could be heard afar, while the quartette aided by an excellent quartette of Jackson furnished music. It seemed as if the darker it grew the more the merriment increased until every one tired out with the day's duties and the night's rolics lay down upon his tick and wrapped his blanket about him to be awakened at sunrise. Here was a scene that was heart rending to behold. A company of boys pulled out of their tents at 5:30, tired and weak, each with a countenance as haggard as an Andersonvilleite to be marched away to the sutler's tent, where a great array of greasy dishes on long tables was spread, presided over, at first until common decency sickened at the sight by the dirtiest of sable gods, distributing bread piled upon their long, bare, reeking arms, rice that was filled with worms, meat that was known to be rotten before cooking. What a sight for a hungry soldier in embryo? But the blame for this condition of things must not be thrown upon the officers as they did all that they could to ameliorate the deplorable state.

The citizens of Kalamazoo had prepared excellent accommodations for washing and furnishing drinking water, and Co. C was admirably entertained by the young gentlemen and ladies of Kalamazoo. The 1st Reg. was heartily cheered on all drills and parades, and was especially noticed for its proficiency. Col. Fitzsimmons, Adj. Merritt, and Surgeon Woodward won the esteem of all, in addition to the 1st Reg. for their marked ability. No matter what regiment a sick man belonged to he called for Dr. Woodward and the doctor always kindly did all he could.

Friday was the big day when the sham battle took place. The Governor reviewed the troops that day and the next morning when he expressed his gratification at the fine appearance of the troops. The sham battle was as near a reality as possible and the forty thousand people who witnessed it pronounced it a grand success. Co. C. was here given a prominent part as they were detailed as skirmishers and the Co. to capture the enemy's colors. They did it but it was after a hot double quick through a 40 acre corn field for which no glory arising from a mimic battle could compensate. Again Co. C did herself credit at the target shoot. The team was picked out of men who had not shot a rifle for over a year, but nevertheless they made a score that was far above the average.

The camp was broken Saturday morning when the boys with many a sad shake left friends whom they had made during their camp. The Lake Shore road furnished a special train all the way home and flew along at the rate of 60 miles an hour arriving home at 8 o'clock.

Capt. House and Lieut's. Lawrence and Cummins kept the company in good spirits and did their best for the boys' comfort.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

They Meet in Convention and Nominate a Worthy and Strong Ticket.

Last Saturday the prohibitionists for Lenawee Co. convened at Dean's Opera House, Adrian for the purpose of nominating state and county officers. Bad weather kept many from attending still there was a good attendance of hard workers. Z. Cook was chosen chairman. The different committees were appointed and while they were completing their work several delegates expressed their views as regards the making of nominations now or waiting until parties had made theirs.

The following resolutions were adopted:

The resolutions endorse the platform adopted by the National convention, and its candidates, Neal and Thompson; it resolves that the party will not cease its efforts until prohibition shall succeed in Michigan; resolution 4 denounces the license system; 5 the party pledges itself not to support men who are not in sympathy with prohibition; 6 and 7 declare in favor of nominating a county ticket, and request the nominees to make an active canvass.

The chosen delegates to the State convention to be held at Jackson Sept. 1st were Wm. Archer, Palmyra; E.G. Walker, Palmyra; C. A. French, Ogden; P. W. Adams, Tecumseh; J. H. Osborn, Tecumseh; Walter Jones, Raisin; Zacharias Cook, Raisin; I.W. McKeever, Adrian; D. H. Spencer, Adrian; U. R. Evans, Adrian; E. Van Sandt, S. C. Blinn, Deerfield; Wm. Smith, Franklin; J. K. Johnson, Adrian; Mr. Beebe, Franklin; Wm. Westgate, Raisin; W. H. Moore, Miles Wilcox, Palmyra; L. Wilmuth, Ogden; W. Wing, Rollin; M. E. Hayne, Rome; Porter Beal, Rollin; A. H. P. Wilson, Clayton; A. Stephenson, Seneca; G. C. Haskins, Dover; O. Wiley, Medina; John Crabbs, Seneca; Austin Barker, Seneca; —Cleveland, Dover; — Derbyshire, Rollin; S. B. Osgood, Medina. Of these delegates the six first named from each representative district are the regular delegates, and the others are the alternates.

The county officers and state representatives nominated were as follows:

State senator—P. W. Adams, Tecumseh.
Sheriff—J. H. Osborn, Tecumseh.
Register of deeds—D. L. Blackstone, Adrian.
County clerk—William H. Moore, Palmyra.
County treasurer—Horace Sayles, Palmyra.
County surveyor—Wallace Page, Rollin.
Prosecuting attorney—Wallace Westerman, Adrian.
Coroners—Oliver P. Brown, J. D. Cleveland.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The following nominations were made for representatives in the state legislature:

First District—John H. Archer, Palmyra.
Second District—Wm. Benson, Adrian.
Third District—A. H. P. Wilson, Clayton.

From the above nominations it can be seen that the prohibitionists have at last put their shoulder to the wheel and mean to push it forward, the nominees are all highly respectable citizens, and give a strength to the party that it has long lacked.

Although a few delegates were inclined to maintain the usual customary allegiance to the other parties, the majority of the convention were in favor of placing the party in this county on its own merits and serve the party as they ought by nominating and working for an essentially prohibition ticket. They were wise in so doing, as in this way and no other can they gain strength and accomplish their purpose.

THE SHAM BATTLE.

The Jackson Patriot, in its report of the Kalamazoo encampment has this account of the sham fight, in which Co. C of Tecumseh took so conspicuous a part.

"In all the original reports of the sham battle at Kalamazoo published, one of the most important features is overlooked, presumably because it was not set down on the original plan, but came about from the inspiration of the moment. On advancing from the hills and while screened from observation by an intervening fence, Co. C, of the First regiment, under the command of Capt. House, was detached, with the consent of Gen. Withington and making a detour through a cornfield to the south of the grounds gained the rear of brigade headquarters. With a sudden dash they were within their precincts, securing as trophies the two brigade colors from the front of the General's tent, and would have carried off the gattling gun had there been a place to get it through the fence. They were discovered by the defenders of the camp, but too late for a successful effort, for the recapture of the flags, and when the engagement closed and the men marched back to quarters the gallant Tecumseh boys presented their trophies to Col. Fitzsimmons amid the cheers of their comrades of the First."

WHOLESALE HEADQUARTERS FOR CAMPAIGN GOODS.

We are prepared to supply clubs, dealers, agents or individuals with caps, capes, torches, Flags, Banners, Badges, Portraits, &c., at the lowest cash rates. We have the best English Banting Flags, from $5 to $75 each. Best sewed muslin Flags from $2 to $18 each. Printed American muslin Flags from 50 cents to $1.50 a gross. Fine Silk Flags, 5x7, for $30. Caps of any color oil cloth, $4 per dozen. Capes, any color oil cloth, $4.50 per doz. Torches, $12 to $25 per 100. Fine campaign Badges, printed on ribbon, with portraits of nominees, and gilt pins, 25c each, or $1.50 per doz. Crayon Portrait of candidates, President and Vice President on one card, heroic size, on fine tinted paper, 22x28, 25 cts each, or $1.25 per doz. We have 25 different styles of Badges for coat, from 10 cts to 25 cts each. Agents wishing to engage in the sale of our goods can make $5 to $20 a day. One agent sold $45 worth in one day—making $30 clear. Any agent or dealer sending us $5 to $25, we will send a selection of goods that they can clear from 3 to 4 times these amounts. We want agents in every town or county to sell our goods, and we can furnish profitable and permanent employment to all who wish it. Take an agency now and send $5, $10, or $25 at once for a selection of goods you can make 300 per cent. on, and sell to every family. Send now and go to work at once. Address U. S. Manufacturing Co., 116 Smithfield St., Pittsburg, Pa. Cut this out and write to us.

Adrian Times: Lenawee county is represented on the democrat state ticket by Alderman Stearns, who is named for secretary of state. Seriously speaking, this nominee is as well fitted to discharge his duties of the office, for which he is named as any of his fellow nominees, and could he be elected would doubtless make an excellent secretary of state.

THE population of California is 863,000, a gain of 303,000 since 1870.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

A GAME OF CHESS.

They strolled upon the beach so long
He missed the train, belated;
And so they played a game of chess
For pastime, while he waited.

It must have been a charming one,
For both seemed quite entranced,
Save a Castle and a Knight,
Where as the White Queen captured.

I cannot tell, who lost or won,
Because it is related
Although the game was only drawn,
The players both were mated.

RAISIN VALLEY SEMINARY.

Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the Reunion Association—Oration, Poem, Picnic Dinner, Etc.

The regular meeting of the Reunion Association of the Raisin Valley Seminary was held last Friday afternoon. The weather was beautiful and the attendance large. In addition to the attendance from Raisin and the adjoining towns, several graduates were present from other counties and other States.

At 3 o'clock P. M. the Seminary hall was filled and the audience was called to order by the President, Aaron Taylor, who after a few well chosen words of welcome introduced the orator of the day, Mr. Jas. A. Sinclair, of Hanover. Next followed a poem entitled "Joy and Grief," by Miss Celia Jones, of Raisin.

They were both productions of more than ordinary merit, and through the courtesy of Mr. Sinclair we are enabled to give our readers the oration in full.

THE ORATION.

Great streams frequently have their origin in hidden sources from whence they flow quietly on their way until reinforced by the many rills and affluents they become the commerce bearing streams of the world. The great currents of events are not dissimilar in their working. The edict of creation, "Subdue and have dominion," contained a principle to be evolved down through the ages. Every revolution only lifts the scales from the eyes of struggling humanity, to allow a clearer vision of the work to be done—thrones totter and topple—crowns crumble—still man survives animated by the thought of the coming millennium when he shall not do violence to his manhood in doing homage to his king, nor violate law in rendering worship to his God.

The appearance of the Quaker, in the world's great drama of human advancement in an age when every artery beat and nerve of humanity tingled at the thought of emancipation from scholasticism, priest-craft and kingly despotism, is but a logical sequence of cause and effect.

The multiplication of books made possible by the invention and application of the art of printing gave to man the means of personal investigation, opening up a new sphere of thought whose horizon is infinity. The intellect, endeavoring to assert its right to occupy this vast domain, is attracted to the infinite.

Conscience, which had hitherto been enslaved by the tenets of the Romish Church, and quieted by the indulgence of the Pope, arises from its lethargy and refuses further homage to the Roman see. The burning of the bull of Leo X. by Luther was but the signal for a general awaking. Prince and peasant alike threw of the galling yoke during the frenzy of a bigoted church for conscience sake. These with the democratic revolution of Cromwell were but events reaching to the climax of popular freedom. This in an age intensely religious reached its utmost in the religious society of Friends. The appearance of which marks an era in the history of the race as it stamps the time when a people dared to claim freedom in all things in which conscience should be the guide.

This people with a faith founded on the voice of God in the soul—with a creed that embraced within the sphere of its beneficence every human being aimed at the establishment of a universal democratic religion, which should be the "Bearer of freedom's holy light, Breaker of slavery's chain and rod; the foe of all that pains the sight, or wounds the generous ear of God."

The founder of this society, the pure minded Fox, and the sagacious Penn, were consistent in extremes—battling for fact and principle rather than fancy and dogma they firmly guarded their own without imposing on others. Persecuted at home and abroad by papist and by protestant they continued to plead liberty of conscience, freedom of mind, and man's equality. A plea by misery unrepelled. Unawed by pomp or power, that seest a man in prince or peasant, slave or lord, pale priest or swarthy artisan. This plea urged in this royal throne of kings.—This sceptred isle, this other Eden demi-paradise, which contained with much that was bad all that was best and noblest of the older civilizations as far as the principle of civil freedom was concerned—was more this blessed spot, this realm—this England would contain; and the principle in accordance with advance of empire was borne westward. The same breeze that wafted the austere Puritan to Plymouth Rock, bore the humane Quaker to the shores of the Delaware and Schuylkill to try the holy experiment of founding a state on man's equality and God's supremacy.

True the puritan had planned as much in Massachusetts, but in his zeal for creed he persecuted all who dared to hold opinions differing from his own, while it is the peculiar glory of the Quaker that when he was reviled he reviled not again and granted to all the liberty he asked for himself. That the right of private judgment in matters of religion as advocated by this sect is a vital one and essential to christianity is proved by its adoption in various branches of the christian church, and strange as it may seem it is exercised to-day in its broadest fullness where but two centuries ago life itself paid the penalty of the claim proving in this case as in all others that blood of martyrs does but water and nourish the plant it is intended to destroy.

Of no other colony can it be said, that they met the Indian as men and suffered nothing from the meeting; what other colony dared to trust the treaty of its peace to the fickle word of the treacherous native? The treaty of Penn's alone is unsullied by oath and unstained by blood. A fitting sequel to the red man's pledge of living in peace with the children of Penn as long as sun and moon should endure.

Under such auspices as these, unhampered by kingly prerogative or priestly benediction, enjoying almost the paramount of freedom, political, intellectual and religious liberty, they become a prosperous and happy people and the apostolic church of American independence. The axes that fell the forest that they might build a city of habitation rang out at once the knell of superstitious tyranny and the anthem of a broader freedom. The charter that contained the promise of enjoyment of their rights, left the right of government in the hands of the governed, and asked as the only requisite for holding office a faith in Christ, while every man of whatever creed who believed in Almighty God had entrusted to him that inestimable of all freemen the power of the ballot. Thus did the commonwealth of Pennsylvania embody in and reflect from itself the present glory of the American people. This sect, united by the cohesive principle of the inner light have always acted as a unit in questions that effected the public weal. In the revolution this people stood together in support of the colonies. In the rebellion they threw the phalanx of its forces in support of the Union. In other political questions they have acted with the same sagacity. No where in their creed do they tolerate dishonest repudiation, nor allow the idea to obtain that the seller should share equally with the toiler in the benefits which accrue from well directed toil.

But it is in their religion that they gain the distinction of being a peculiar people, holding the inner light to be the heavenly to every man, and this to be the channel through which God makes known his requirements.—They adjure the necessity of priest and through the medium of the spirit drink from the fountain of God's goodness. Denying the doctrine of form the early Friends communed in silence; crucifying pride they adopted a garb of somber hue and unobtrusive plainness, and adorned their conversation with what Longfellow eulogises in his Evangeline as the "thee and thou of the Quakers." Thus these iconoclasts owning all the essentials of emancipation from the thralldom of error and sin, stripped from christianity many superstitious usuages that dimmed the lustre of its glory and detracted from its power. Lives that owned a broad humanity and pleaded love of man for man, pleaded eloquently for faith in God. With such catholicity of creed their religion finds employment in broad schemes of philanthropy, carrying out in spirit the letter of the doctrine "I was a hungered and ye gave me meat, I was thirsty and ye gave me drink, I was a stranger and ye took me in, naked and ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me, I was in prison and ye came unto me."

Where ever the oppressor's rod is felt there the Quaker claims the right to be present to resist the oppressor and to relieve the oppressed. When in our own country there were four millions of a race whose only crime was of having been born under a tropical sun this society warmly urged our noble Lincoln to draught that immortal paper, The Emancipation Proclamation, which broke at once the fetters and shackles that bound them, and set the captive millions free.

No sooner was this accomplished than the beneficent Quaker sought to break the chain of ignorance and superstition by establishing schools for their culture, and sending them teachers to raise them from the vileness of slavish servitude to the dignity of American citizenship and intelligent manhood.

Having a faith, which holds the brotherhood of the race, they instinctively bear witness against the shedding of man's blood by man. Believing war to be an evil they advocate the beating of swords into plow shares and spears into prunning hooks, and submitting of adverse claims of one nation against another to peaceful arbitration under the influence of christian civilization, that this is no longer a question of speculation is warranted by the glory that surrounds the bloodless victory of Geneva where the intelligence of Europe and America contended for the principle of right. On the plan of intellectual culture Quakerism stands in the fore-front. The advice of Wm. Penn to his wife, on leaving England for America, live sparingly until my debts are paid, and as to the children let their learning be liberal, is indicative of the sect, and the principal followed out is exhibited in their schools which are every where recognized as the best of their grade.

Among these stands our own Alma Mater of whom we can say her mission is not to proselyte, not to make Quakers out of men and women but to lay firmly the corner-stone of a cultured character upon which to build the noble edifice of an honest, intelligent manhood and womanhood and give to the world men and women capable of doing its honest work, and displaying in their lives the broadness of that creed that was heralded by angels and is essentially Quaker—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

After the poem a committee of five ladies and five gentlemen was appointed to report nominations of orator and poet for the coming year, viz: Clement Lester, Geo. Willets, Will Lowe, Arthur Over, Lynn Brown, Anna Sutton, Allie Green, Lena Stanley, Libbie Mead, Libbie Glenn.

The company then repaired to the tables in the grove where an hour was passed in discussing the edibles which had been prepared for the occasion.—This part of the program was well planned and very nicely carried out. After refreshments the Alumni repaired again to the Hall and elected their officers for the ensuing year and the company then dispersed.

POINTS IN ETIQUETTE.

Say "good-by, not "good morning."

Upon leaving a room, one bow sh'ld include all.

Never wait over fifteen minutes for a tardy guest.

Upon introduction enter at once into conversation.

A note requires as prompt an answer as a spoken question.

Regrets in reply to invitations sh'ld contain a reason therefor.

Strangers arriving should notify friends by card or by their presence.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

A Nebraska Indian contrived to swallow a lot of dynamite and now he can stand around the corners and call a white man anything he chooses without being kicked for his insolence. They're shy of jarring him even.

Chicago Ahead.

All the world now looks up to Chicago as the great western metropolis of America, being far ahead of all competing cities; but none the less so, in its line, is Electric Bitters. From their real intrinsic value they have advanced to the front, and are now far ahead of all other remedies, positively curing where everything else fails. To try them is to be convinced. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents per bottle.

A smooth bore—a life insurance agent.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by teps of thousands.

The Bone and Muscle producing Malt, the Nerve-quieting Hop, the superb Malarial antidote Quinine, and other precious ingredients, combined without fermentation, are the ingredients of "Malt Bitters," prepared by the Malt Bitters Company.

Hill's Buchu is guaranteed by Druggists to give satisfaction in any case of Kidney Complaint.

The rule that the old ladies favor: the you-knit rule.

In making wills, some are left out and some are left tin.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HALEY.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are reconvinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY,

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes.

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. - - Michigan.

I Have 12 Milk Safes

That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.

A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. E. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE, W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. G. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. GRAYBIL, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Hessen's clothing store.

S. H. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace. Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. MCKINNEY, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 6, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Hessen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Unborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DEMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Hessen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAN, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

CURRY & BOOTS, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Haselton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haines & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

2 TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

7 A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

9 TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

23 BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

24 A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

25 VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick, in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Prest.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Little boy—"Want of food."

Modern style: Murderers will out.

The festive sea son—Jack ashore.

Well posted—The Western Union.

"Two for assent"—A bridal couple.

Paper padding serves to build up waist places.

Perspiration never rains, it simply pores.

The mule always puts his best foot backward.

Schoolmaster—"What makes the tower of Pisa lean?"

Do you speak Persian English, or broken French?

The life of the washerwoman is a series of sudden events.

A very popular shade for the summer is the shade of the trees.

Don't despise the lowly. The under jaw does all the work.

Don't insult a poor man. His muscles may be well developed.

No photographer can carry on his business without a little sun.

A German critic speaks of the "preponderance of the half-educated.

Farmers have learned that it takes the best of soil to raise a mortgage.

Why should the nose occupy its present position if it was not made for a scenter?

A man's slippers are made for comfort and a woman's to show her colored stockings.

Some one inquires: "Where have all the ladies' belts gone?" Gone to waist, long ago.

Taking Time by the forelock is all very well until the bald-headed Time comes along.

A Rochester woman has flogged a cornet player. She didn't believe in a kiss for a blow.

It is well enough to say "Take things as they come," but suppose they don't come.

The undertaker is eager to let a man down just as soon as the doctor gives him up.

The world owes no man a living, but it gives him a good breakfast just before he is hanged.

The Italians have a proverb which runs, "Let us have florins and we shall have cousins."

The backbone of the summer is supposed to be broken and it is now living on its cartilages.

Let he who regrets the loss of time make proper use of that which is to come in the future.

A woman cannot become a successful lawer. She is too fond of giving her opinion without pay.

The most disagreeable position in this vale of tears is that of pitcher in an unsuccessful base-ball nine.

A little boy tamed an alligator, and the reptile began to like the little fellow not, however, until the little fellow was all gone.

A Massachusetts minister closed his sermon, preached to the children with: "Boys, love your country, your God and your girl!"

Perhaps it is wicked to go fishing Sunday, but if the fish are wicked enough to bite on Sunday they ought to suffer for it.

When a man keeps on talking to you after he has said "a word to the wise is sufficient," the time to take summary vengeance has arrived.

There's no special style of engraving engagement rings. A spider's web with a fly in it is a pretty device.—Either party may be the spider.

The man who leaves two-thirds of a cigar in a dark nook on the front door stoop when he goes to see his girl will make a thrifty husband.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all inds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

A CRUEL HOAX.

Last evening, just before sundown, a gentleman who was sitting by his window on North B street, casually remarked:

"There goes the woman that George Brown's dead gone on."

His wife, who was in a back room getting supper ready, dropped a plate on the floor, stumbled over the baby, and ran like a quarter horse to the window with:

"Where? where? tell me quick!"

"The one with the long cloak—just at the corner."

Then the woman at the window said in tones of deep disgust:

"Why, that's Brown's wife."

"Yes, exactly," remarked the brutal husband, quietly.

Then the disappointed woman went back and got the supper ready, but her usually sweet disposition was soured for the entire evening.

Facts that We Know.

If you are suffering with a severe cough, cold, asthma, bronchitis, consumption, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, or any affection of the throat or lungs, we know that DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY will give you immediate relief. We know of hundreds of cases it has completely cured, and that where all other medicines had failed. No other remedy can show one-half as many permanent cures. Now to give you satisfactory proof that Dr. King's New Discovery will cure you of Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, severe Coughs and Colds, Hoarseness, or any Throat or Lung Diseases, if you will call at M. Wright & Son's Drug store you can get a trial bottle free of cost, or a regular size bottle for $1.00.

WISE WORDS.

To live long it is necessary to live slowly.

Advancing or resisting, we still go on—by and by to go off.

We hand folks over to God's mercy but show none ourselves.

There are calumnies against which even innocence loses courage.

Better be upright and want, than wicked and have superabundance.

Industry need not wish, and he who lives upon hope will die fasting.

There is nothing in the universe that I fear except that I may not know all my duty or may fail to do it.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

It is said the bottle kills fifty persons where the sun kills one. This is because the bottle has a chance day and night, while the sun gets its work in only during the day.

Envied Beauty.

What is more handsome than a nice bright, clear complexion, showing the beauties of perfect health? All can enjoy these advantages by using Electric Bitters. Impure blood, and all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are speedily cured. For nervousness and attendant ailments, they are a never failing remedy, and positively cure where all others fail. Try the Electric Bitters and be convinced of their wonderful merits. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

To ascertain the momentum of a mad bull—multiply his weight by his horns, and that by the square root of the tin pan fastened to his tail. The quotient will be the answer.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Love is to domestic life what butter is to bread, it possesses little nourishment in itself, but gives substantials a grand relish, without which they would swallow mighty hard.

Multum in parvo!—American Ball-Blue is declared by expert housewives to be a little blue giant of many accomplishments for laundry use.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will pay $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Endorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO. PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

Dr. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. R. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "It is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABON, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?

BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculi, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A GENERAL INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., (61 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Sturton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Speed and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

35 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and mongrel imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED

by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry, Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,

AT THE

HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6,25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 5 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $3.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Aesop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 50 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $4 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. Tribune Building, New York.

AGENCIES: Boston, H. L. Hastings; Philadelphia, Leary & Co.; Cincinnati, Robert Clarke & Co. Indianapolis, Bowen, Stewart & Co.; Cleveland, Ingham, Clarke & Co.; Toledo, Brown Eager & Co.; Chicago, Alden & Chadwick; in smaller towns, the leading Bookseller, only one in a place

THE TECUMSEH HERALD,

Issued Every Thursday Evening

BY S. C. STACY.

Office in the New HERALD BUILDING, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

One year (if paid in advance) $1.50

Six Months 75

Twenty-five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES:

Business Locals, Ten cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births, and Death Notices free.

Rates on General Advertising, or terms contracts, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE:

Correspondence solicited. Invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG 19, 1880.

THE STATE DEMOCRACY.

A Large Gathering and a Good Ticket Nomisated.

The delegates to the Democratic State Convention met last Thursday in the Detroit Opera House. The house was elegantly trimmed and an unusual attendance present.

In the foreneon Col. Wilkins was chosen chairman and committees appointed, when the convention adjourned for dinner. The delegates from Lenawee county were J. F. Bliviu, W. R. Wooden, B. L. Hicks, B. Cannon, J. E. McCollum, B. F. DePuy, Joseph A. Baker, N. B. Eldridge, W. S. Gardner, Franklin Perkins, J. A. Dunbar, D. A. Bixby, O. Pierce, N. Pierce, N. Poucher, W. T. B. Schermerhorn, W. Stearns, J. W. Hall, Galusha Case.

After dinner nominations were made for the several offices. The names of Frederick M. Holloway, of Hillsdale county; Col. N. B. Eldridge, of Lenawee county; Col. G. P. Sanford, of Lansing, were presented for nomination for the office of Governor.

After these names were presented an informal ballot was taken on Governor, resulting as follows:

Frederick M. Holloway	344
G. P. Sanford	188
N. B. Eldredge	20
G. V. N. Lothrop	2

The nomination of Holloway was then made unanimous.

The other nominations were:

E. H. Thomson, of Genessee county, for Lieutenant Governor.

Willard Stearns, of Adrian, for Secretary of State.

I. M. Weston, of Muskegon, for State Treasurer.

H. P. Henderson, of Ingham county, for Attorney General.

Richard Moore, of Clinton county, for Auditor General.

Col. James I. David, of Wayne county, for Commissioner of the State Land Office.

Zelotes Truesdale, of Oakland, for Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Albert Crane, of Washtenaw, for Member of the Board of Education.

Peter White, of Marquette, and Archibald McDonnell, of Bay, for electors at large.

The district electors chosen were as follows:

1. William Foxen, Wayne.
2. Hiram J. Beakes, Washtenaw.
3. James S. Upton, Calhoun.
4. Germaine A. Mason, Kalamazoo.
5. Horace B. Peck, Allegan.
6. Jerome Eddy, Genesee.
7. William Mills, Sanilac.
8. William R. March, Bay.
9. James Dempsey, Manistee.

The nomination of Col. Holloway is a peculiarly strong one, and the balance of the ticket is creditable. We present below a brief biographical sketch of the nominee for governor:

Frederick Madison Holloway, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was born in Bristol, Ontario county, New York, January 18, 1815. At the age of 9 he removed with his father's family to Genesee County, where he acquired a sound common school education, attending the district school in winter and aiding his father on the farm in the summer. At the age of 16 he engaged in teaching, but finding the confinement injurious to his health he abandoned the occupation in 1833 and came to Michigan with his father. They settled at first in what was then known as Whiteford, Michigan, but now as Sylvania, Ohio; and Mr. Holloway soon finding his health restored commenced work as a carpenter and joiner, which occupation he followed until 1836. In 1838 he removed to Tecumseh, and in 1840 to Jonesville, where he lived for ten years, when he was chosen Register of Deeds of Hillsdale County. In the spring of 1851 he removed to Hillsdale and in 1852 purchased the farm which he has worked ever since, though he did not take up his residence on it until some years after the purchase.

As a farmer, Colonel Holloway has a reputation, as wide as the State, for capacity, judgment, thrift and energy. He has given particular attention to the breeding of fine stock, in which he has been remarkably successful.—In 1853 he was chosen Secretary of the Hillsdale Agricultural Society, and has held that position ever since, with the exception of two years. The society is confessedly one of the most successful and prosperous in the State, and the excellence of its annual exhibition is admitted to be mainly due to Colonel Holloway's ability as an organizer, and his faithful and unwearied attention to all the details upon which the success of such an enterprise depends.

In 1853 Colonel Holloway was appointed Postmaster and held the position for nine years; but he has never held any other public office. He has been a prominent Trustee of Hillsdale College since its foundation, and is still an influential member of the board. He is also a member of the Executive Committee of the State Grange, and was one of the originators of the grange movement in Hillsdale County. He was a candidate for Auditor General in 1874 and again in 1876, and received a vote which was a very flattering indication of his popularity. He has, as his enthusiastic nomination attests, the confidence of the people; and as he is the peculiar representative of a class which has been too much neglected by nominating conventions, his nomination opens a campaign which the Republicans will find no easy one.

DAVID DAVIS ON HANCOCK.

A Patriot who may be Trusted in any Crisis.

BLOOMINGDALE, ILL., Aug. 4, '80.

MY DEAR SIR: The training and the habits of my life naturally lead me to prefer civilians to soldiers for the great civil trusts. But as parties are organized, voters must choose between the candidates they present, or stand aloof, indifferent or neutral, which no good citizen ought to do at a Presidential election.

I have no hesitation in supporting Gen. Hancock, for the best of all reasons, to my mind, because his election will put an end to sectional strife and to sectional parties, and will revive a patriotic sentiment all over the land, which political leaders and factions, for sinister ends, have sought to prevent. There can be no permanent prosperity without pacification.

Great as were the achievements of Gen. Hancock in war, his conduct in peace, when in command of Louisana and Texas in 1867, was still greater, and justly commends him to the confidence of the country. That was a time when passion ruled in the public councils and military power was exerted to silence civil authority. The temptation was strong to sail with the rushing current, for an inflamed partizan opinion was too ready to condone excesses and to applaud oppression.

Gen. Hancock's order No. 40, in assuming charge of the Fifth Military District, announced "The right of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, the liberty of the press, the freedom of speech, the natural rights of persons, and the rights of property must be respected."

These principles are the basis of free government, and the proclamation of them by Gen. Hancock stands out in striking contrast with the action of his superior, who soon after rebuked and drove him from that command for uttering sentiments worthy of all honor. The soldier clothed with extraordinary power voluntarily uncovered before the civil authority, sheathed his sword, testified his fidelity to the Constitution, and set an example of obedience to law which will pass into history as his proudest claim to distinction.

The man who in the midst of the excitements of that stormy period was cool enough to see his duty clearly, and courageous enough to execute it firmly, may be well trusted in any crisis. His letter to Gen. Sherman, recently brought to light, lifts Gen. Hancock far above the past appreciation of his civil ability. It marks him as one of the wisest of his time, with a statesman's grasp of mind, and with the integrity of a patriot, whom no sense of expediency could swerve from his honest convictions.

Long and unchecked possession of power by any party leads to extravagance, corruption and loose practices. After twenty years of domination, by the Republicans, chronic abuses have become fastened on the public service, like barnacles on the bottom of a stranded ship.

There is no hope of reform by leaders who have created a system of maladministration, and who are interested in perpetuating its evils. Nothing short of the sternest remedy gives any promise of effective reform, and the first step toward it is in a change of rulers. The government must be got out of the ruts in which it has too long been run. New blood must be infused into the management of public affairs before relief can be expected. The people demand change, and, being in earnest, they are likely to be gratified. Very sincerely,

DAVID DAVIS.

JAMES E. HARVEY, Esq., Washington City.

THE committee in charge of the excursion to Put-in-Bay, which will come off next Wednesday, are very sanguine of the success of the affair.—A large number of tickets have already been disposed of, and there will undoubtedly be a large crowd. The tickets have been reduced in price to $1.75, which will make it a very cheap excursion.

LEON DUTTON probably thinks that a tin pan is the best time piece made.

LINCOLN'S OPINION OF HANCOCK.

A correspondent of the Lancaster Intelligencer gives the following anecdote, as told him by Mr. James McDougal, a prominent Republican of Baltimore:

When Mr. Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation—I believe that was the occasion—a deputation of citizens from Baltimore went on to Washington to congratulate him. Mr. McDougal was one of the number.

"Take seats, boys, take seats!" exclaimed Mr. Lincoln, as he rang the bell for chairs to be brought in.

The visitors sat down and spent nearly an hour in conversation. Presently the subject of Generals came up, and various opinions were expressed as to who was the ablest officer on our side. When a great many opinions had been given, Mr. Lincoln said:

"Gentlemen, in my judgment you have not struck the right man yet."

And of course all were anxious to hear him name the man, and asked him to do so. He said:

"It is Gen. Hancock."

The countenances of his visitors expressed their surprise, and one of them ventured to say that he feared Hancock was too rash.

"Yes," said Mr. Lincoln, "so some of the older Generals have said to me, and I have said to them that I have watched Gen. Hancock's conduct very carefully, and I have found that when he goes into action he achieves his purpose and comes out with a smaller list of casualties than any of them.—Bold he is, but not rash. Why, gentlemen, do you know what his record was at West Point?"

And Mr. Lincoln went to his bookshelf, and taking down an army register showed the position in which Hancock had graduated, and that, furthermore, in a class that was one of the most distinguished that had ever graduated at the Military Academy. Continuing to speak of him in the highest terms, he further said:

"I tell you, gentlemen, that if his life and strength are spared, I believe that Gen. Hancock is destined to be one of the most distinguished men of the age. Why, when I go down in the morning to open my mail—and I arise at 4 o'clock—I declare that I do it in fear and trembling, lest I may hear that Hancock has been killed or wounded."

MICHIGAN SCHOOL LAW.

The following rulings and decisions have been made by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction:

1. A district meeting, annual or special, cannot legally vote upon the wages to be paid a teacher, and if such a vote be taken, it must be considered merely as advisory, and not binding upon the board. It is the exclusive right and duty of the board to estimate the amount of taxes necessary to be raised for the support of the school, to report the same to the supervisors for assessment, to hire teachers, and to fix their compensation.

2. The only action an annual meeting may take which can affect the hiring of teachers is to decide upon the sex of teachers to be employed, and the length of time school shall be maintained above the minimum prescribed by law.

3. It is legal for a district board to make a contract with a teacher at a time previous to the annual meeting, and such contract will be valid and binding upon the district, provided the annual meeting does not vote for the employment of a teacher of different sex from the one contracted with, or that the school be maintained a shorter period (not less, however, than the minimum prescribed by law), than is named in the contract. In case such action is taken by the annual meeting, the contract will be rendered void.

ONE GOOD EFFECT.

The Detroit Evening News speaks a few sensible words anent the effect of the grand conclave at Chicago:

"The gathering of the Knights Templar at Chicago this week will have one good effect upon the whole country outside of the benefits to the order. It will bring from every state in the Union men of all parties and all political predilections, who are leaders in the business and society of their respective communities. There, will meet in the fraternity of the order Republicans of Michigan and Iowa with Democrats of Georgia and Alabama. The former will discover that the latter is not the bloodthirsty negro-killer that he imagined him, and the southerner will find out that his northern confrere is a very good sort of fellow after all. A week of such friendly intercourse will begin personal friendships across the line of sections that cannot but have the effect of assuaging partisan and sectional animosities, which are born and fostered only in ignorance and provincialism.

THE Springville Band will give a table picnic on the South side of Sand Lake on Saturday of next week, Aug. 28th. All are respectfully invited to be present and have a good social time.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street — HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

AT KIES BROTHERS,

(Successors to W. J. Kies.)

Grand Cost Sale of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

For one week, in order to make room for

FALL GOODS

Now being made expressly for our trade.

Look at these Prices:

$15.00	Suits	reduced	to	$12.00.
13.50	"	"	"	11.00.
12.00	"	"	"	10.00.
10.00	"	"	"	8.00.
2.50	Dusters	"	"	1.75.
1.25	"	"	"	85.

All we ask is that you will take the trouble to come and see our bargains.

KIES BROS.,

One Price Clothiers,

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

BAXTER

Can Boot any one in the County.

BAXTER

Can shoe any lady of any age

BAXTER

Can and will suit everyone on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

I have just received the first fall invoice of Heavy and Fine MEN'S BOOTS.

Call for the

Rockland Ditching Boot,

At Lee's old stand.

BAXTER.

I Have 12 Milk Safes

That must be sold at once to make room for our Fall Stock of Furniture. Call and see them, will close them out cheap.

A. W. SLAYTON.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

FOR SALE.

A good farm horse. Inquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOR SALE.

A fine Crown Jewel Coal Stove, No. 25. Apply at the Blanchard house in this village to MRS. E. P. BACON.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republican electors of Tecumseh are requested to meet at the Council rooms in this village, Friday afternoon, the 20th day of August, A. D. 1880, at half past two o'clock, to choose six delegates to attend the Republican County Convention, to be held at Adrian, August 23d next, in pursuance to the call made by the Republican County Committee.

Tecumseh, August 16th, 1880.

WILLIS MERRITT,
Chairman Town Committee.

CAUCUS.

The Democratic electors of Raisin township are requested to meet at the Town House on Friday, August 27th, at 7 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of selecting delegates to the County Convention to be held in Adrian on the 28th inst., and for the transaction of other important business. A full attendance is desired.

BY ORDER OF TOWN COMMITTEE.

NOTICE.

Is hereby given that for the purpose of making an examination of all persons who may offer themselves as candidates for teachers of the schools of this township, the Township Superintendent of Schools thereof will hold a public meeting at the Central School Building, Tecumseh, August 23d, commencing at 9 o'clock A. M.

Dated this 9th day of August, 1880.

CHARLES E. CONLEY,
Township Superintendent of Schools.

NOTICE.

The regular examination of teachers for the township of Raisin will be held on Aug. 21, 1880, in the Kelly District, or District No. 2. Teachers are requested to furnish themselves with paper and pencils and be present at 9 A. M.

A. L. ARNER, Superintendent.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Two good farm horses. For price and terms apply at the office of the undersigned at the Globe Mills, Tecumseh. WM. HAYDEN.

PAY UP.

All persons indebted to Dr. R. B. House, whose accounts have been of more than three months standing, will confer a favor by calling and settling the same and thereby save a personal visitation from the collector.

FARM FOR SALE.

On account of failing health, I offer my farm for sale, containing 50 acres, a good orchard, fruit of all kinds, permanent supply of best of well and cistern water, very pleasant location. For particulars inquire on the premises, one mile north of Ridgeway. JOHN BECKLEY.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON
is the only agent at Tecumseh for
Genuine Warner Corsets.
Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

BURR ROBBINS' circus exhibited here last Monday afternoon and evening to two large audiences, and it is no flattery to say that it was an entertainment of far more than ordinary merit. The collection of animals was a good one, and the exhibition in the arena was excellent from first to last, and more than all else the managers and employees were honorable and gentlemanly in all their business deal. No card monte men or other gamblers were allowed with the show and hence it was entirely free from the petty anoyances which generally follow after and accompany all entertainments of the circus character. We never saw as little rowdyism in town on a "circus day" before.

THE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

Preparations for the Soldiers' and Sailors' Reunion to be held here on Saturday next are progressing finely, and we have no doubt that there will be a large and interesting meeting.—The formal exercises will be held in the Opera House commencing at 12:30 P. M., when the following program will be presented:

Prayer—Rev. C. E. Conley.
Music.
Welcoming Address—By President Fitzsimmons.
Music.
Oration—By B. F. Graves.
Business Session.

At two o'clock P. M. the company will repair to Armory Hall where a banquet will be served. Comrade C. M. Woodward will act as Marshal of the Day. Citizens generally are invited to attend the exercises at the Opera House, but the banquet at Armory Hall will be for the exclusive benefit of the members of the County Association.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. AUG. 19, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

MISS GROVE, of Coldwater, is the guest of Miss Lizzie Hicks.

MR AND MRS. FRANK OSBORN have gone to Chicago this week.

A. B. COTTON's branch store at Manchester is doing a good business.

MISS JENNIE STEVENS, of Ypsilanti is visiting her friends in Tecumseh.

DR. A. F. TUTTLE, of Clinton, favored us with a short call last Tuesday.

ARE you getting ready to go to the Excursion next Wednesday? If not, why not?

MISSES MARY & LIBBIE JOHNSON, of Monroe, are spending a few days in Tecumseh.

REPUBLICAN meeting this evening at the Opera House. Speech by Hon. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti.

THE indications are very favorable for a splendid turn-out to the Fireman's Excursion on the 25th.

THERE is more summer pleasure traveling from this vicinity during the present season than ever before.

THE Adrian papers state that a large delegation of Ex-Soldiers from that city will attend the reunion here next Saturday.

THE shade trees on the streets have all been trimmed so that the street lamps are discernible from one block to another.

LAY aside $1,75 from your week's wages on Saturday and then buy a ticket for the Fireman's excursion on Wednesday next.

WM. H. ARNER, of Ridgeway, raised a fine Hancock pole in front of his residence last Saturday evening and flung a banner to the breeze.

EVERY one's nose, who attended the encampment, was exceedingly red on their return and are now going through the peeling process.

A COMMITTEE will meet at the Opera House at 10 A. M. to-morrow, to decorate the hall preparatory to the Soldiers' reunion on Saturday.

D. B. AYRES, of Brooklyn, was circulating around among his Tecumseh acquaintances last Monday, and of course he called on the HERALD.

NEWS from Devil's lake this morning states that there was a tremendous crowd at the Farmers' picnic yesterday, there being at least ten thousand people present.

BURR ROBBINS' circus exhibited here last Monday and was fully up to what he advertises. It was noticable for the general good behavior and manners of its various followers.

THE Tecumseh B. B. C. played the Hillsdale boys last week. The game resulting in an easy victory for Tecumseh by a score of 26 to 5. The "big four" played with the Hillsdales.

WE acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the Morenci Fair, which will be held Sept. 8th, 9th and 10th. We shall endeavor to arrange our business so as to be present.

ELLIOT GRAY started for Ireland yesterday morning, where he will probably remain during the balance of the summer. He will sail Saturday next on the "Empire City" of the Inman line.

THE "Prohibs" have got the biggest man in the county for Sheriff, Mr. J. H. Osborn. He will make a heavy run. If he should be elected then woe to the poor offenders whom he may pounce upon.

THE annual farmers' picnic was held at Devil's Lake yesterday, and the County Grange hold their summer meeting at the Grange Hall in Woodstock to-day. The HERALD has sent a reporter to both meetings.

Co. C, while at Kalamazoo were visited by Hudson Conkling, Mrs. O. B. DeWolf, Miss May DeWolf, Jas. Aten and Elliot Grey. Ell was there making preparations for his trip to Ireland which he entered upon last Wednesday.

WHEN the boys of Co. C were returning from encampment Miss Mockridge, with a party of young ladies met them at Coldwater, at the depot, and presented each with a fine button hole bouquet.

LAVERN IDE has accepted a position as clerk in the post office in the place of Bert Catlin who intends to go to Detroit to attend the Medical College of that city this fall. Vern starts in well and will undoubtedly prove an efficient clerk.

THE Adrian Daily Press is a very neat six column folio sheet, ably edited, and a credit to the party. Altho' started for the campaign we hope the venture may prove remunerative enough to warrant the proprietor in keeping it up regularly.

HANK LANCASTER will give a harvest party at Evan's Lake Hotel, on Thursday evening of next week, Aug. 26th. Hank knows how to get up a good dance, and he will undoubtedly have a good crowd. The music will be given by Gray Bros.' full band, and the bill will be only $1,50.

DR. TANNER's pills are quite plenty in the market now.

THE prohibition party have got a fine start in this county any how.

E. C. SMITH and wife, of Toledo, O. spent last Sabbath with their Tecumseh friends.

THE celebrated trotter St. Julian has been purchased by W. H. Vanderbilt for $50,000.

REV. C. C. SINK of Marshall was in town a few days last week, the guest of his brother, W. H. Sink.

MISS ETTA WILSON has been spending a few days with friends in Albion. She returned last Monday.

SEVERAL Tecumseh Sir Knights, as well as other people are taking in the Chicago Conclave this week.

A NEW grand stand will be erected soon on Lawrence Park in Adrian, where the County Fair will be held.

THE Odd Fellows of Adrian are having a beautiful portrait of the late E. L. Clark painted to adorn their Lodge room.

E. B. WOOD Esq., has been rusticating at Devils lake for the past 10 days. He is expected home the last of this week.

THE Blissfield Fire Company gave an excursion to Put-in-Bay last week which added a handsome sum to the company's treasury.

ATTENTION is called to the advertisement of the Michigan Military Academy which appears in another column of this paper.

HARRY SNELL returned home from Greenville last Saturday on a visit to recuperate from a serious illness that has confined him for a few past weeks.

DR. PERKINS, of Springville, and Bert Catlin made themselves quite useful in rendering assistance during the operation upon Freddie Cole's foot.

THE Orangemen of Tecumseh were quite successful in their supper. A large number was present and the festivities were prolonged until a late hour.

THE Junior B. B. C. of Tecumseh succeeded in beating the Ridgeway boys last week. Ridgeway people were much pleased with the demeanor and behavior of the boys.

M. P. BROWN, of this village, will attend the Photographers' Convention to be held next week at Chicago. He leaves the last of this week and will not return until the last of next week.

A SOCIAL party for the benefit of the Springville Band will be held at Ayres Bros.' Hall, on Friday evening of next week, Aug. 27th. Music by Teachout & Purchase's Band. Dance Tickets 65 cents; supper at the Groger House, 60 cents.

A SAD accident happened at the Raisin Valley Seminary the other day by which a little son of Prof. Test, six years of age, fractured his arm. He fell from the table in the grove which had been placed there for the reunion dinner the day before and broke his left arm.

Deerfield Record: Adrian's Long Branch is at Grand Lake; Blissfield's people vacationize at Petoskey; Tecumseh and Clintonites visit during the heated season at Sand Lake; and Hudsonians wander out for a rest to Devil's Lake. But where, Oh! where, do Deerfield people go when it is so terribly, awfully, warm?

THE nomination of P. W. Adams for Senator on the prohibition ticket is a happy one. Mr. Adams is one of our most respected citizens, a worthy farmer and a prominent member of the granger organization. In the event of his election he would make an excellent member of the State Senate, and a safe and careful legislator.

AT the Branch county fair, to be held at Coldwater on the 21st 22d, 23d and 24th of September, a novel feature will be political speeches on each day of the fair except the first, by able representatives of each of the different parties, at 2:30 p. m. The greenbackers will hold forth on the 22d, the democrats on the 23d, and the republicans on the 24th.

THE Prohibitionists made some excellent nominations at their convention last week. Tecumseh is represented on the ticket by two good men: P. W. Adams for Senator and J. H. Osborn for Sheriff, both of which are decidedly strong nominations. Our prohibition friends have set an excellent example for the other parties to follow.

WE had the pleasure of calls last Tuesday forenoon from the following young ladies, who happened in just in time to see our Taylor press in operation: Misses Mary and Libbie Johnson, of Monroe; Miss Stevens, of Ypsilanti; Misses Bond and Egabroad, of Dundee; and Miss Jennie and Anna Frazer and Cora Kilburn, of Tecumseh.

MRS. B. S. EMMET, furnishes us with a copy of the Summit County Leader. It is volume one, number one, of a new paper just started at Breckenridge, Colo. Summit county is one of the richest mining counties in Colorado. Last February Breckenridge contained 200 inhabitants; its population now numbers 2,500. Its growth this summer rivals that of Leadville.

R. L. MCCONNELL has gone to Marquette to superintend an iron mine.

CHARLES POUCHER, of Adrian, met with a serious accident Tuesday while attending the funeral of Geo. Scott, at Cambridge.

MISSES MAGGIE MCCONNELL and Jennie McCousell of Toledo are enjoying a trip around the lakes and the beauties of Petoskey.

THE Junior club of Ridgeway desire to publicly extend their thanks to the Junior B. B. club of Tecumseh for their gentlemanly conduct during their stay in Ridgeway.

JUSTICE MCKINNON has returned from his trip down the St. Lawrence feeling much invigorated and ready to dispence justice again as before.

THE train going west over the main line last Monday evening was over an hour late. The train contained fourteen coaches and was drawn by two locomotives.

A. M. BANNISTER, a resident of Jackson and chief engineer of the Kankakee, Cool City and Waukegan R. R., is spending a few days in Tecumsee as the guest of Col. Fitzsimmons.

Blissfield Advance: How is it about Rynd being nominated for State Senator, Mr. Times? He would make an excellent candidate, and he wants some experience, you know, before he goes to Congress.

Hudson Post: The apple crop bids simply enormous this fall. I stroll through the orchard of Amos Ames, of this township, to-day this week, and our eyes were gratified by seeing trees literally loaded down, and with smooth, perfect fruit; and Mr. Ames' orchard is not an exception to many others.

THE B. B. Ass'n at their last meeting concluded not to retain Tom Shaughnessy any longer as pitcher of the nine. Tom's arm for a number of weeks has been increasing in its lameness so that it was impossible for him to pitch nine consecutive innings.—Tom has left many friends in Tecumseh who hope that a rest will restore the full use of his arm so that he may be able to take the diamond.

Blissfield Advance: Capt. M. P. Long, Register of Deeds, is a candidate for re-election. The Republican party prides itself on being the friend of the soldier, and that party can here find an opportunity to befriend a true soldier of the war of the rebellion. Capt. Long was a member of the 3d Michigan Infantry, and was so badly wounded that he was confined to his bed for five years, and is not now in sound health. Give him a lift, boys.

Adrian Press: Constable Smith, Wednesday morning, found Andrew Wiley on the depot platform. Andrew had walked all the way from Cincinnati, he said, and was much fatigued, which accounted for the horizontal position in which he was found. He was a stranger and Smith took him in. Before Justice Lamb, Wiley said he was anxious to go to Chicago, but afterward recollected that he came to work on the Butler railroad. He said he had imbibed nothing intoxicating for years, but it was evident to the court that he was a drunken tramp, and the Squire gave him four months at Ionia.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Fred Cole Loses his Foot by the Cars.

Yesterday noon as the noon train was crossing Chicago street the usual crowd of small boys was congregated there waiting to jump on the train and ride to the depot. Among the number was a 14 year old son of Mr. Cole of Brownville, Fred by name. He attempted to jump upon the front end of the baggage car but he missed his footing and fell, his foot laying on the track in such a position that the car wheel passed over his instep. He immediately commenced to cry and some persons near by picked him up and carried him to Doctor Catlin's office. Doctor Peters was also called and together they laid the groaning boy upon a couch to examine the extent of the injury. All the bones of the foot were crushed and the flesh mangled horribly so that amputation of his foot was necessary. The boys father was called and told what had to be done and he finally told the surgeons to proceed. They administered anaesthetics and commenced operations. It was soon over, the part of the foot below the instep and in front of the heel was amputated. In doing it in this way the heel was left, so that it will serve as a good stub in walking.

It was remarked to Supt. Blodgett last Friday night that the Tecumseh people wanted trains to run slow through the streets in order to enable the boys to jump on, whereupon he replied that one or two of them would have to be run over before they would learn to keep away from a moving train.

It seems that the sad warning soon came and now it is to be hoped, that we shall no longer see a crowd of small boys running after the trains endeavoring to jump on. It is painful that such a bright little boy as Fred should be thus crippled, but he may still be thankful that he saved his leg.

THE PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

EDITOR HERALD:

The temperance convention held in Adrian on the 30th ult., was not a convention of third party prohibitionists, as might be inferred from your reference to it in the last issue of your paper; but it was in the interest of the proposed prohibitory amendment to the constitution of the State. Hence it was composed of temperance men from all political parties. The meeting was harmonious, and an earnest and determined spirit characterised all of the deliberations.

A County Central Committee was raised, composed of a chairman, secretary and treasurer, and one member from each township. The gentlemen honored with places upon this committee are as follows:

J. H. Osborn, Tecumseh, chairman.
Rev. C. E. Conley, " secretary.
Z. Cook, Raisin, treasurer.
Dr. George Howell, Macon.
G. W. Jackson, Ridgeway.
Dr. — Newcomb, Blissfield.
Leander Wade, Riga.
Elisha Luke, Ogden.
E. Walker, Palmyra.
Waller Jones, Raisin.
P. B. Swick, Tecumseh.
W. S. Kimball, Clinton.
Rev. E. P. Pierce, Franklin.
J. B. Stevenson, Cambridge.
Rev. M. E. Hayne, Rome.
A. Van Ostrand, Dover.
Rev. J. Horton, Seneca.
Jacob Horton, Medina.
Noah Brown, Hudson.
Porter Beal, Rollin.
Alonzo Smith, Woodstock.
J. Pattison, Adrian.
Prof. A. Lowrie, Adrian City.
C. E. Mitchell, Madison.
C. Quick, Fairfield.

At least three general county mass meetings were ordered to be held at Tecumseh, Morenci and Hudson, respectively.

The mass meeting for Tecumseh is set down for the 3d of September. At 10:30 A. M. there will be a grand procession through the streets under the command of Col. W. C. Fitzsimmons, of this place. Celebrated speakers have been invited to be present. It is expected that this will be the largest gathering ever known in Lenawee county. All the friends of humanity in this and surrounding townships are requested to be present with their teams and families to take part in the procession.

Tecumseh township, at a meeting held in the lecture room of the M. E. Church, last Friday eve., effected its organization by the election of a township central committee, as follows:

Chairman—P. B. Swick.
Secretary—C. Brownell.
Treasurer—E. Strang.
Committeemen—P. W. Adams, Rev. Wm. Grandy, J. P. Slayton, A. P. Coddington, Albert Waring, Judson DePuy, J. S. Kinney, E. Hand, Sr.

The following Finance Committee was also raised, viz:—E, Williamson, C. K. Spafford, J. S. Kinney.

The county and township committees propose to make this the hottest temperance campaign ever known in Lenawee County.

C. E. CONLEY,
Sec. Co. Central Com.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, MICH., Council Room, Aug. 16, 1880.

Regular meeting of Council.

Present—President Fitzsimmons, Messrs. Burridge, Mills, Root and the Recorder.

Bills presented and referred to the Finance Committee:

Wilcox Bros., 2 bbls. oil	$11 52
John McConnell, labor in Cemetery	29 79

Said committee, with consent of the Council, immediately report in writing and recommend the payment of the above bills as presented.

The report was adopted and orders directed to be drawn for the several amounts.

On further motion, the council adjourned.

P. S. MCKINNON, Recorder.

THOS. H. MOSHER, ESQ., of Springville, has been kept pretty busy during the past few days receiving the congratulations of his friends. By consulting our last week's matrimonial column people will find out the reason why.

—Birdsell Monitor Jr. Clover Huller at E. V. DePuy's.

VICTOR CLOVER HULLERS.

I am agent for the sale of these Clover Hullers in Tecumseh and vicinity. Persons wishing to purchase are requested to examine one of the machines which I have stored in the rear of Raymond's foundry in Tecumseh.

L. A. Mudgett.

—Farmers who are going to buy Drills call and see the Baker screw feed at E. V. DePuy's.

—Read Alva Raymond's testimonial for the "Springer Wheel Harrow" after having tried the "Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow":

"Having purchased of Messrs Slayton & Son a "Springer Spring Tooth Harrow and Cultivator" I have no hesitancy in saying it is the best tool I ever saw for preparing ground for seed. It takes the place of both Cultivator and Harrow. It pulverizes hard ground better than anything I ever used, leaving it in splendid condition.

Alva Raymond."

—The new Shoe Drill, at E. V. DePuy's.

—Farmers, look at this statement from Wm. Bradley, of Franklin: "I have given the Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow and the Mounted Spring Tooth Harrow a fair and honest trial, and I prefer the Kalamazoo Harrow at the same price. Have bought one of Kennedy & Hayden."

—Farmers, look at those adjustable Fruit Ladders at Kennedy's.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths, Holland & Opaque window curtains, Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains, Lambrequin Trimmings—all new,

A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's MacKinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.

A. B. Cotton.

—A Special offer for 30 days. One hundred and ten dollars will buy a good upright Piano. Warranted for five years at Adamson's.

—If you want a good porcelain and cylinder pump get it at the Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres.

J. A. Eaton & Co.

—Champion Rubber Buckets for chain pumps at Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

COAL! COAL!

All sizes of hard coal for this month, Delivered in the corporation, per ton $6.80. S. W. TEMPLE.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids.

A. B. Cotton.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate to sell should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For terms apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

—Wrapping paper of all kinds at the HERALD OFFICE.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Cheneille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

—A full line of drills at Kennedy's.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

CHILLED PLOWS,

Warranted to plow in any soil, either sticky or hard, from $2,00 to $5,00 below any other make of same quality at Clinton Foundry. Ground points for all leading plows $4,50 per dozen at Clinton Foundry.

D. Woodward.

—We shall offer bargain in Dress Goods, shawls and all summer goods for the next 30 days in order to make room for fall stock.

J. A. Eaton & Co.,

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.

Brown, the Photographer.

—D. Jones is opening up a large invoice of imported and domestic cloths for the fall trade. Call and examine.

—The South Bend Chilled Plow is fast taking the lead. Sold by

E. V. DePuy.

DIED.

SNELL—In this village, on August 12th, 1880, Augusta, only daughter of Charles Snell, aged 11 months and 12 days.

JONES—In this village, at the residence of her son Henry L. Jones, Almeria Jone aged 61 years. The remains were transported to Francisville, Ind., for burial.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 16, I. O. O. F.

[illegible]

C. H. WOODWORTH, Secretary.

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. & M. S. Railroad.

[illegible]

CHAS. E. PARK, Gen'l Pass. Agent.

F. P. KENDALL, General Ticket Agent.

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan.

[illegible]

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Tilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Enhanced.

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDERS' MATERIAL.

Shop on the old Blaylock Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot.

TECUMSEH - MICHIGAN.

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM CANTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Cummings, and would respectfully invite the attention to call and see him, as he intends to sell cheap for cash or good paying customers.

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Choice Family Groceries,

WHICH HE OFFERS AT

VERY LOW FIGURES

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Worden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

CAUSES OF PERIODIC FEVERS.

The study of the causes of diseases, not only in reference to treatment, but with a view to their prevention, is now recognized as one of the chief principles of medical science. It is also recognized that the time spent in study and understanding what is known, in this Department, [illegible] the treatment of [illegible] even by all art by itself. But the study of the causes of disease belongs to within the domain of [illegible] Nature. The objects and [illegible] is the division of labor, but it is [illegible] that some appreciation of certain [illegible] Thus, we discover where origin is always and wholly without the body. There are others which are invariably within the body. As our division has precisely this distinction of "miasma." It is generally agreed that the exciting cause of chills and fever, of intermittent fever, or remittent fever, or all that class of ailments associated under the name "malaria" in the proper technical sense, is dependent upon an infective particle [illegible] and conditions of system may invite the disease, but it will never originate or be alive in the system unless it has been generated by influences from without. A chill may occur from fear or that cause, and be repeated; but, if it be the usual "chill and fever," it arises from exposure to some external influence which has excited it. The entity has not been discovered. We know very much of its whereabouts, of the conditions of its productivity, of its modus operandi; but have never yet caught the vagabond infective. Lancisi and Salisbury thought he had found it in the species of palmella plantellia. Later still, Prof. Klebs, of Prague, claims to have detected the cause in a bacteroid fungus to which he has given the name Bacillus malariæ. The more general view is that it is not dependent upon any one plant or species, but is a result of complicated conditions attending the decomposition of vegetable matter. We suspect that the great desideratum is to find out how we may avoid these forced and unnatural decompositions. We shall never succeed in doing this so long as we turn up soil without consideration by a proper treatment and vegetation; or so long as we drain off watercourses without studying the soil drainage, back water, overflow, etc. Interrupted processes of Nature and stagnant water and watercourses have, made by art of man and man's device, is a breach of Nature's laws, of which this is one of the notable results. We have recently had occasion to study a typical case. Round Brook, New Jersey, has had a notable reputation as a healthy town. Like all towns founded by Brooks, the very circumstance affords facilities for producing disease. Various improvements, excavations, and road changes have occurred in the last few years. The little inland we used to see in the stream has become a part of a island. The former roadbed is now submerged. The raising of a dam has increased the area of overflow of lands. Various little complications have changed the channel of the stream and its waters are diffused intermittently, according to the caprice of man, the sun, and the weather. If we had sought for conditions under which to institute a malarial experiment, we think we could not have chosen a better experimental station. The disturbance of natural drainage, growth, and decomposition has been gradually going on, until this year a crisis has been reached. The drynesse of April and May gave unusual elevation of water and land. The weather for August is to be eminently favorable for the production of this noted malarial miasma. So long as it could be kept covered by water and low-lying vegetation lost, it awaited the slow of fermenting energy of its great component, some of the more alarming citizens, with a brief experience last year and with fuller knowledge of what such evils formed, succeeded last spring in indicting the nuisance before a grand jury. But nothing was done, until the dryness, the hot sun, and the heavy subsequent rains did the business. Round Brook is in affliction. It has the signs so good that it furnishes us a most beautiful nosological study. Even the pond lilies and other large leaved plants, provided as shields and helps, are dying. It is the best approach we have seen to that picture of malaria in the Lazzaroni. We are glad it is so pronounced, for the remedy is sure to come. The demonstration is too complete for cavil. The evil, we believe, will be corrected and result in a blessing. For, with its natural drainage restored and a few other evils remedied, the water will become a help to the landscape and the beautiful rolling fields again be rejoiced in by the sons of health. But in the year 1880 let no one delude himself or herself with the idea that such evils can be ignored, or that small towns can grow while nursing the pets of the doctor, the druggist, and the undertaker.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

The University examinations begin September 15.

Cholera is likely to have a new hotel before Christmas.

Port St. Ignace is increasing in importance and population every day.

The [illegible] has done well in Bliss Lake, Jackson county, one night last week.

Owen Hoag, of Bedford, Monroe county, shot his brother Leander in the temple.

[illegible] the Home of Correction.

The Morgan daily Chronicle has now circulated a full year, and still lives well.

A hop and malt bitters factory is to be established at Detroit with a capital of $100,000.

John C. Alger's grocery at Sturgis was robbed of a small amount on the night of the 12th.

A veterinary infirmary has been established near Lansing, and sick horses have cause to rejoice.

Neil Connell, of Brockway, St. Clair county, is 116 years old, and can hoe still walk a mile and a half quite sprightly.

A subscription of $50 has been raised with which to purchase a monument for the late Rev. Fr. Van Erp, of Ann Arbor.

William Griffith, of West Bay City, was killed in a mill at Bradford's lake on the 18th by being caught by a machinery belt.

The Ann Arbor Episcopalians are to demolish their present chapel, and will build a new, one worth $6,000, also a new parsonage worth $3,000.

A Saginaw woman pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness, but witnesses swore she was not drunk, and the court declared her not guilty.

The Charlotte Leader says that several of the best bicyclers in the United States are there practicing for the race to be given at that place on the 21st.

Mr. Perry, of Webbervillé, is very ill and it is feared he cannot recover.

There was a soldier's reunion at Lapeer last Thursday with 200 veterans present.

A very successful soldiers' reunion was held at Hillsdale on Thursday last.

Liberal subscriptions have been made at Montague toward the proposed flax, horse shoe, etc.

Mrs. Benjamin, of Lansing, who took a dose of poison a day or two ago, has died from the effects.

There is a fine yield of oats in Hillsdale county, but it is asserted that the berry is light and not well filled.

Greenville men are now subscribing toward the fund for building the Grand Rapids, Greenville & Bay City railroad.

Twelve Muskegon muskrats are now camping out at Moon lake, with two grim chaperons along to keep the rabbits away.

Another threshing machine mishap. Thomas Simmerville and a hand were by incensed by one, near Flat Rock, last week.

Two thousand watermelons reached Kalamazoo the same day that the state troops did. Active skirmishing began before breakfast, and by midnight there was firing all along the line.

In the two little match between Capt. A. H. Bogardus champion wing shot of the world, and C. G. Jewett, of Howell, shot at Howell on Thursday last, Bogardus killed 97 pigeons and Jewett 94.

Mr. Alva Butler, one of the pioneer settlers of Troy, Oakland county, drowned himself in a well on the farm of his son, Samuel Butler, a few days ago. She was very old, low spirited, and imagined she was very poor.

Joseph Kunz, of Alpena, won the Bagley medal at the target shoot at Camp Chandler, Kalamazoo, Thursday last, scoring 44 out of the possible 50. The shoot occurred on Friday.

Alonzo Cheadenough, of Toledo, has bought 20,000 acres of land in Mackinaw and Chippewa counties, of the estate of the late Franklin Moore of Detroit. The purchase price was $98,745 cash.

James Richards, a farmer living in Superior township, Washtenaw county was knocked down at the door of his own house, Thursday night, and robbed of $200 which he had hidden on the premises. He had $120 on his person, which the robbers did not find.

Certain parties at Saline called a special school meeting to censure the school board for re-engaging the present superintendent, who had filled the position for the past two years. After working hard for many days they persuaded nine voters out of 260 to say that the Board might have done better. Just before adjourning, however, a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered the board for their impartial action in engaging the corps of teachers, closing with cheers for the superintendent.

Simmons Liver Regulator

[illegible]

J. H. Zeilin & Co. Druggists, Sole Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia.

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Pimple to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Diaphragm.
It gives vitality in place of latitude, cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and disorders caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful extractor, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—King of the Blood.

IT CURES IN THE MOST DESCRIPTION as it does upon the foundation of the trouble—the blood—eradicating the foes that lurk in the blood, it includes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, ROSE BUDS, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It cures the CONSTIPATION in the early stages, and frequently cures it when advanced.

It cures DYSPEPSIA and DANDRUFF without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASES.

It cures in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Mercurial Diseases and Mercury Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

Many testimonials, more further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Question on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 32 doses, or six for $5 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, rather than do other a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and save trouble.

S. LANDON, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN payable at Dunkirk in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

LEVI J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 1879.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY SALE.

[illegible]

ESTATE OF ISAAC COLLINS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

[illegible]

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and as other eminently merit the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the usual mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as the careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!
HELPS BLEACHING and
GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,
55 Maiden Lane, New York.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, [illegible]

[illegible]

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

[illegible]

EDWIN B. WOOD, Administrator of Estate of Henry Trip, Deceased.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of [illegible], deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Mary Bond, late of the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 18th day of September, 1880, and 8th day of December, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon on each of said days, six months from the 8th day of June, 1880, are allowed for the said creditors to present their claims for examination and adjustment.

CHARLES W. CULBERTSON,
AUSTIN G. RAGLE,
Commissioners.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN the matter of the estate of Anna Grinwald, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for county of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Anna Grinwald, late of the township of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 8th day of August, 1880, and January 10th, 1881, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, six months from the 10th day of July, 1880, are allowed for the said Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated, July 10th, 1880.

WM. C. FITZSIMMONS,
SILAS W. ANDERSON,
Commissioners.

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, [illegible] and shipped, only $55. New Pianos $125 to $1,000. Illustrated catalogue free. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Agents Wanted for Satan's Burning Dictionary & HOLMAN'S NEW PICTORIAL BIBLES. Address, for circulars, A. J. Holman & Co., Phila.

ELMIRA COLLEGE.

This college is thoroughly furnished for giving a superior education in Collegiate and Eclectic Courses of Study, and also in Music and Art. By reason of its endowment its charges are unusually moderate. Send for catalogue to REV. A. W. COWLES, D.D., Pres., Elmira, N. Y.

MALT THE NEW FOOD

Malt Bitters Company

MEDICINE BITTERS

Do not confound this Matchless Renovator of Feeble and Exhausted Constitutions with violent cathartics, cheap decoctions of vile drugs, and rubious intoxicants innocently labeled "Bitters." MALT BITTERS appeal to popular confidence because prepared from Unfermented Malt, Hops, and Quinine, and precious ingredients, according to the process of Liebig and are richer in the elements that restore to permanent health the Weak Convalescent, Consumptive, Over-worked, Nervous, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Bilious, and Fever-bitten invalid, as shown by Medical Journals. The genuine are plainly stamped by the company. Sold everywhere. MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

The BEST HEALTH AND STRENGTH RESTORER EVER USED.

So perfect is the composition of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC that no disease can long exist where it is used. If you have Dyspepsia, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bowel, Kidney, or Liver Disorder, or if you need a mild stimulant or appetizer, the TONIC is just the medicine for you, as it is highly curative and invigorating but never intoxicating. Try a 50c. bottle. Your druggist can supply you.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D. C.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN,

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD BREAD.

The first requisite to good bread is good flour. If the very best seems too expensive, make up the difference in cost by eating less cake. With really delicious bread you will do this naturally, and almost unconsciously.

In the country, where fresh yeast from breweries is out of the question, the first process must be making yeast, and it is well to begin there and know every step of your way. The commercial yeast cakes must form a basis, from them it is easy to make the potato yeast, which is perhaps the simplest and best of several good forms of soft yeast. Dry yeast cake used directly will not make bread of the first quality. For the yeast, soak three yeast cakes in a cup of tepid water, while six or eight fair sized potatoes are boiling. When they are soft put the potatoes with a quart of water in which they were boiled, through a colander, and add a teaspoonful of salt and two of sugar, when tepid, add the yeast cakes, rubbed with a spoon to a smooth paste, and place the whole in a stone jar, and keep the contents at blood heat for twelve hours, when a lively effervescence should have taken place. The yeast will be in perfect condition the next day, and will remain good for ten days or more if kept in a good cellar.

Many New England housekeepers make a great mistake in setting their sponge over night. One secret of good bread is that every stage of the process must be complete and rapid.—Every moment of waiting means deterioration. At the precise moment when the sponge is fully light the bread should be kneaded, and the process of rising ought not to be more than three hours at most. Set your sponge, then, as early in the morning as you like, by taking in the bowl or basin kept for the purpose (and you will soon learn just how high in it the sponge should rise) two quarts of sifted flour. Make a hole in the middle with the stirring spoon; pour in half a pint of soft yeast, first thoroughly stirring it from the bottom, then mixing with the flour; add tepid water, stirring constantly, until a smooth, stiff batter is formed, which stir and beat vigorously with the spoon for at least five minutes after it is perfectly mixed. Cover lightly, and set in a warm place, until thoroughly light, almost foaming; but be sure not to delay the kneading until it begins to subside.

Sift the flour, say six quarts, in a pan, make a hole in the middle, pour in the sponge; add a pinch of salt, and, dexterously mingling the flour with the soft sponge by the hand, gradually add a quart of warm milk or tepid water, quickly incorporating the whole into a smooth, even mass. Cover the kneading board with flour, place upon it the dough, which must not be soft enough to stick or stiff enough to make much resistance to pressure, and knead vigorously and long. Half an hour's energetic kneading is not too much for a family baking. By that time the bread should be elastic, free from stickiness, and disposed to rise in blisters. Cover with a soft bread-cloth folded to four thicknesses, and set it where a temperature of about blood-heat will be maintained. In two hours it will be risen to fully twice its volume. Place it again upon the board; divide with the hands (which may be floured, or better, buttered) a portion of the size which you wish for your loaves, remembering that it will rise again half as much more; lightly mold it into a smooth, shapely loaf, with as little handling as possible, and place it in a well greased pan. Set the loaves back in their warm corner for half an hour, when they should be very light and show signs of cracking. Bake at once in a hot oven, with a steady heat, from forty-five minutes to an hour, according to the size of the loaves. Take immediately from the pans and wrap in soft, fresh linen until cold.

A portion of the dough will make a pan of delicious biscuits by adding a piece of butter as large as an egg to sufficient dough for a small loaf, mixing it lightly but thoroughly, and molding into small rounds set a little distance apart in the pan. They will soon close up the space, and should rise to twice their first height. The swift, sure tough which makes the work easy, rapid and confident will come with practice; but the necessary practice may come only with patience and determination.—Christian Union.

The shipment of wheat from this country to Europe was remarkably large a short time since, but it has been arrested by the high rates demanded for ocean freight. At one time last week 19½ cents was demanded from New York to Liverpool, while the charge from Chicago to New York by lake or canal was only 12½ cents. But the excessive demands of transporters quickly work their own defeat, and the demand for freight-room no longer equals the supply, so that a reduction of rates is expected.

Better to have loved a short girl than never to have loved a tall.

WHAT TO DO WITH TOMATOES.

Take ten large tomatoes, put them into a pan, and pour scalding water over them and cut out all the hard or unripe portion; then cut through and take out the seeds. Boil an onion and mash it fine; add it to the tomatoes, with pepper and salt to your taste, and a piece of butter as large as a hen's egg. Put them on to stew in an earthen pipkin, and let them simmer two hours. A quarter of an hour before dinner is ready add four or five table spoonsful of grated bread, and let it stew till ready to serve.

Wash half a peck of tomatoes, put them in a saucepan with a half-pint of boiling water; cover, closely, and put on the stove to boil; as soon as the water boils, set the saucepan back to simmer for half an hour, then with the potato-masher, pass the tomatoes through the colander, leaving the skins and any unripe, lumpy parts. Season with a desert spoonful of salt, a salt spoonful of white peper, as much cayenne as you can take on the end of a pen-knife, a finely chopped onion, a tablespoonful of beef drippings; let them stew for two hours. Ten or fifteen minutes before serving add a tablespoonful of finely-chopped parsely and a tablespoonful of butter. If necessary they can be thickened with a rolled soda cracker.

This recipe is good for about a gallon of ripe tomatoes, and is as simple as it is excellent: Don't wash the tomatoes, unless they have soil on them. Wipe quite clean. Do not use overripe fruit. With a needle prick the tomatoe in two or three places. Place tomatoes, whole, in a jar, putting in a layer of salt, and then one of tomatoes whole. Let it thus stay for a week. When ready, take out the tomatoes and mix with the salt two tablespoonfuls of mustard, four ounces of ground ginger, four ounces of roughly broken pepper, one ounce of cloves, and six onions finely sliced. Replace tomatoes as before, and pour cold vinegar over the whole. No boiling of vinegar necessary.

BOY FARMERS.

Years ago the boys and girls were treated much as though they existed without feelings. In our treatment of them we must give them an interest in the farm where they can make at least their spending-money; but it would be better to give them a still larger interest and teach them the value of self-reliance in obliging them to support themselves. Provide them with evening amusements at the fireside, and allow them to spend their own money. My eldest son's eyes troubled him while at school, obliging him to leave; and since then I have given him the exclusive charge of the hens. I know nothing about them except that he gets good returns. Next year he will take charge of the sheep. I shall purchase for him improved breeds, and he is to have what he can make. If he looses, I desire that he shall have all his failures before he is of age. I bought for him last year a boar and sow of the Essex breed, and he raised a good litter of pigs, which he sold at a good advance on any in the neighborhood. While pigs of the ordinary breeds were a drug in the market, his found a ready sale at an advanced price. Thus again you see the advantage to farmers of raising superior stock or crops.—Josiah Quincy.

Letter From Rev. S. Morgan.

Rev. Stillman Morgan, long time known as a missionary among the mountains of Vermont, by reason of exposure at his age, (73,) contracted catarrh, rheumatism, kidney complaints, and intermittent pulse. In a letter dated Bristol, Aug. 25, 1873, expressing his gratitude for the relief experienced he says:—"These diseases became chronic. My right wrist was growing out of shape and was weak and painful. I have taken one package of your medicine and now I feel well all over me. Mr. Morgan further states that his wife had been a great sufferer from similar complaints, and that the medicine was doing more for her than any other ever tried.

Mr. E. A. Roby, of Kent county this state, sends the Germaintown Telegraph, the following recipe for wax for grafting, recommended by the State Pomological Society:—1 pound rosin, 1 pound tallow; remove from stove after heating and let cool until a scum forms; then add one teaspoonful spirits of turpentine, replace on stove and add 7 oz of a mixture two parts of alcohol and one part water, stirring briskly; take care the alcohol does not inflame, as it will if too hot; stir until of the consistency of honey; keep close and use with a brush. If after keeping it gets hard, use more turpentine and alcohol and water. It soon becomes hard and unchanged, except growing.

Bread-Crumb Griddle Cakes.—One half pint of bread crumbs, one pint of flour, one egg, a piece of lard or shortening the size of a walnut. Make this to the consistency of batter, by stirring in sour milk in which a half teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved.

This cut represents the Hoe of the

STRAYER DRILL.

Each Hoe spreading the grain over a space

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a 9-Hoed Drill there is

27 INCHES

Of ground covered with grain,

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

Of ground that other Drills cover, thereby equalizing the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a depth gauge on each Hoe so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the field.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

To the Acre by using such a Hoe than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

N. C. ARNOLD, Agent,
Tecumseh, Mich.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT.
Grain, Flour, Feed and Coal.

SLAYTON & SON

Are still at the old stand with a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

PLOWS The Wiard Chilled. Mohawk Valley Clipper (steel.)

"Leader" Spring Tooth Harrow.
Elwood, Robbins and Buckeye
CULTIVATORS.
"Springer" Spring Tooth Harrow, (on wheels.)

GRAIN DRILLS. { Buckeye. Farmer's Friend. Triumph.
THRESHERS, { The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines.
Rare Bargains in

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Lime, Water Lime, Salt, Cal. Plaster and Plastering Hair.

If you want anything in our line call and get prices before you buy.

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING
In the line of
BOOKS
Blank Books, Binding or Stationery
That You Cannot Get
AT HOME
(Retail or Wholesale,)
Write at once to
E. B. SMITH & CO.
DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is a failure.

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, and CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaining LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND ANTI-BILIOUS COMPOUND is acknowledged as a sure cure for the enfeebled system.

Possessing "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy for VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by

DR. S. D. HOWE,

The Great Consumption Doctor of New York, PROPRIETOR OF THE

Arabian Medicines,

Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.

Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills,

The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY" CURE CONSUMPTION.

TESTIMONY

Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.

DR. S. D. HOWE,

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1876, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.

Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.

The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.

Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle Pills, 25 cents per Box.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE

A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.

Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.

For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.

For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD
DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take,

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist recommends it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

SEE NEW STYLES OF
CALLING CARDS.
At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN

DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Champion Drills,
Missouri Drills,
Myers' Wind Mills,
Champion Fruit Ladders,
Gregg Sulky for Plows,
Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,
Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,
Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,
Gale Fallow Cultivators,
Kala'zoo Spring Tooth Harrow,
Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,
A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,
Garr Scott Engines,
Garr Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,
Standard Mowers,
Royce Reapers,
Meadow King Mowers,
Grand Rapids Small Tools.

USBORNE BLOCK,
TECUMSEH, - - MICH.

THE LITERARY
Revolution.

The most successful revolution of the century, and to American readers of books, the most important. Only books of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are low beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate and demonstrate these truths, we send the following books, all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named:

Macaulay's
Life of Frederick the Great. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Carlyle's
Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Light of Asia.
By Edwin Arnold. Former price, $1.50. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.

Thos. Hughes's
Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print, brevier type; price three cents.

John Stuart Mills's
Chapters on Socialism. Essays of exceeding interest and importance. Price three cents.

Baron Munchausen.
His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Burgeoise type; price five cents.

Mary Queen of Scots'
Life, by Lamertine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.

Vicar of Wakefield.
By Olive Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.
Bourgeoise type, leaded; beautiful print; price six cents.

Private Theatricals.
By author of "Sparrowgrass Papers." Small pica type, leaded; price two cents.

Stories and Ballads.
For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.

Leaves from the Diary
Of an Old Lawyer. Short stories of thrilling, laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.

Booksellers
Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH. VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.

HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!

WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR

CAMPAIGN GOODS

of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply

Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c,

We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.

We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a

Present of a $100 Gold Watch

—OR—

NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.

Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the

U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.

DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates—It is Cathartic and Tonic.

TRY IT.

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR

To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its un-healthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Jaundice, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Headache, Bowel Complaints, Seasickness, and other Disorders.

The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It Purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.

The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public, for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

S. T. W. SANFORD, M.D., 168 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN!

Carriage Factory!

Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.

T. CUMMINS,

Builder of Fancy and Staple

CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,

SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

PLEADING AT THE BAR.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

Stop That Cough.

If you are suffering with a Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, or any affection of the Throat or lungs, use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. This is the great remedy that is causing so much excitement by its wonderful cures, curing thousands of hopeless cases. Over one million bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery have been used within the last year, and have given perfect satisfaction in every instance. We can unhesitatingly say that this is really the only sure cure for throat and lung affections, and can cheerfully recommend it to all. Call and get a trial bottle free of cost, or a regular size for $1.00. M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C.A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

The Bone and Muscle producing Malt, the Nerve-quieting Hop, the superb Malarial antidote Quinine, and other precious ingredients, combined without fermentation, are the ingredients of "Malt Bitters," prepared by the Malt Bitters Company.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe. Kidney and Liver Cure.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining unclaimed for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, Aug. 13, 1880.

Allen, Miss Chastina	McGaffy, Mrs. Mary
Briggs, John	Merrit, S. O.
Emerson, L. C.	Wilcox, Horace
Falling, Mrs. Matilda	Willet, Lewis

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised"

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, Aug. 19, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending Aug. 11, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 5,310 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

13 steers	1379	4.60	48 steers	1427	$4.70
32 steers	1364	4.65	20 steers	1170	4.30

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 11,900 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

215 Mich. sheep			88	5.90
99 Mich. sheep			88	4.95

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show a decrease of 4,105 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

125	179	4.35	240	215	5.30
193	184	4.95	84	274	4.80

DETROIT MARKET.

Wednesday, Aug. 18, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 96½c per bu.

Feed—Bran, $11.50@12; middlings, $14.50@15 per ton.

Butter—16@17c per lb.

Beans—City picked $1.50 per bu.

Cheese—11½@12c per lb.

Apples—$1.50@1.75 per bbl.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@11c. Shoulders, 6½@7c. Bacon, 10@10½c. Dried beef, 12@13c per lb.

Corn—44c per bu.

Oats—34@35c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 1831 bbls.
EGGS—Shipped 21 bbls.
BUTTER—Shipped 2040 lbs.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 13940 lbs.
MILL FEED—Shipped 1 car.
GRAIN—Shipped 8 cars.
LIVE STOCK—Shipped 1 car.
STAVES—Shipped 2 cars.
WOOL—Shipped 2 cars.

Apples, ₩ Barrel	1.75@	2.00
Apples, dried	5@	7
Butter, ₩ lb	12@	14
Barley, ₩ bushel	45@	55
Beans, ₩ bushel	1.00@	1.30
Buckwheat, ₩ bushel	.50@	.60
Buckwheat Flour, ₩ hundred	3.25@	3.50
Beef,—dressed, ₩ hundred	450@	5.00
Beef Hides	@	9
Calf Skins ₩ lb	@	10
Corn in ear	28@	30
Corn,—shelled ₩ bushel	43@	48
Clover Seed	4.00@	5.00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ₩ dozen	@	8
Flour, ₩ barrel	6.00@	7.00
Hogs Dressed, ₩ cwt	@	5.00
Hogs Live ₩ lb	3.80@	5
Hay ₩ ton	8.00@	9
Hides, ₩ lb	@	9½
Honey, ₩ lb		14
Ham, ₩ lb	@
Lard, ₩ lb	@	8
Oats, ₩ bushel	25@	30
Onions, ₩ bushel	1.50@	2.00
Potatoes, ₩ bushel	30@	70
Salt, ₩ barrel	@	1.40
Sheep Pelts	50@	1.25
Timothy Seed, ₩ bushel	@	3.00
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ₩ cord	4.00@	4.00
Wheat, White, ₩ bushel	@	88
Wheat Red, ₩ bushel	@	90
Wool, ₩ lb	30@	38

Home School for Boys, the

Michigan Military Academy

Offers superior facilities for obtaining a good English or Classical education. Location unsurpassed in beauty and healthfulness. Full corps of competent teachers.

Fall term begins September 15.

For catalogue or further information, address the superintendent.

COL. J. S. ROGERS, ORCHARD LAKE, MICH.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

$80 a month and commission to sell our goods to dealers. Boy and girl wanted in each town. Send 20c for circulars and base outfit, best in the world. Lyndale Novelty Co. Minneapolis, Minn.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines,
Reapers and Mowers,
Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

THE CORNER GROCERY!

—OF—

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

☞ Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

N. W. AYER & SON
ADVERTISING AGENTS
TIMES BUILDING PHILADELPHIA
Cor. Chestnut and Eighth Sts.
Receive Advertisements for this Paper.
ESTIMATES at Lowest Cash Rates free for Newspaper Advertising.
Send 25c. for AYER & SON'S MANUAL

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited.

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers.)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

☞ Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on

THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS,

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect; if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will remove the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?

Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?

Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a pack'age at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and

One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors,

Burlington, Vt.

WARNER'S SAFE BITTERS

It is the best Blood Purifier, and stimulates every function to more healthful action, and is thus a benefit in all diseases.

In eliminating the impurities of the blood, the natural and necessary result is the cure of Scrofulous and other Skin Eruptions and Diseases, such as Cancers, Tetters and other Sores.

Dyspepsia, Weakness of the Stomach, Constipation, Dizziness, General Debility, etc., are cured by the Safe Bitters. It is unequaled as an appetizer and regulator tonic.

It is a medicine which should be in every family, and which, wherever used, will save the payment of many doctors' bills.

Bottles of two sizes; prices, 50 cents and $1.00.

☞ Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

☞ Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

IX COT (not painted, White Duck) $2.

Make a perfect bed. No mattress or pillows required. Better than a hammock, as it fits the body as pleasantly, and lies straight. Folded or opened instantly. Self-fastening. It is just the thing for hotels, offices, cottages, camp-meetings, sportsmen, &c. Good for the lawn, piazza, or "coolest place in the house." Splendid for invalids or children. Sent on receipt of price or C.O.D. For 50 cts. extra, with order, I will prepay express to any R.R. station east of Mississippi River and north of Mason and Dixon's Line. For 75 cts., in Minn., Mo. and Iowa.

HERMON W. LADD, 103 Fulton Street, Boston; 207 Canal St., New York; 165 North Second St., Philadelphia; 94 Market St., Chicago. SEND FOR CIRCULARS.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh [illegible]pton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn.

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN TONIC BLOOD PURIFIER

DIFFERS from all other preparations in its IMMEDIATE action upon the Liver, Kidneys and Blood.

Composed of the choicest Herbs, Roots and Extracts. Cures Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Cancers, Cancerous Humors, Pimples on the Face, Scurvey, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, Malarial Fevers etc.

For "Nervous Debility," "Lost Vitality," "Urinary Diseases," and "Broken Down Constitutions," "I challenge the 19th century" to produce its equal.

Every Bottle is Worth its Weight in Gold

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN MILK CURE,

The only Medicine of the Kind in the World.

A Substitute for Cod Liver Oil.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Bleeding-Lungs, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, leading to Consumption. Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Cures Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Malarial Fevers, Sick Head-Aches, Chills and Fever, Constipation, &c. Price 25 cents per box.

SMOKE

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN

CATARRH AND ASTHMA CURE.

An infallable cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and Asthma. Sweetens the breath and produces the most delightful sensation while, and after smoking it. Try it. Price 50 cents per box.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,

122 Liberty St., New York.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.

(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED.

HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 25 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc. The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

G. T. Lewis & Menzies Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

CENTAUR

LINIMENT

always Cures and never Disappoints The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

USED ALL THE YEAR ROUND!

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA,

—FOR—

LIVER COMPLAINT

—AND—

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 20 years, and has proved to be the best preparation in the market for Sick Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Pimples on the Face, and all Diseases from a disordered Liver or an impure state of the blood. Thousands of our best people take it and give it to their children. Physicians prescribe it daily. Those who use it once recommend it to others. It is entirely vegetable, and cannot hurt the most delicate constitution. It is one of the best medicines in use for regulating the Bowels. It is sold by all responsable druggists at one dollar a quart bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers.

DETROIT, MICH. AMHERSTBURG, ONT.

1880.

Harper's Young People

ILLUSTRATED.

The evils of sensational literature for the young are all well known, and the want of an antidote has long been felt. This is supplied by HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, a beautifully illustrated weekly journal, which is equally devoid of the objectionable features of sensational juvenile literature and of that moralizing tone which repels the youthful reader.

The volumes of the Young People begin with the first Number published in November of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

INDUCEMENTS FOR 1880 ONLY.

☞ Thirteen Numbers of HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE will be furnished to every yearly subscriber to HARPER'S WEEKLY for 1880; or, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE and HARPER'S WEEKLY will be sent to any address for one year, commencing with the first Number of HARPER'S WEEKLY, for January, 1880, on receipt of $5 00 for the two Periodicals.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Weekly.

ILLUSTRATED.

This periodical has always, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind.

The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment, and refinement.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S WEEKLY, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twenty-three Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

This popular periodical is pre-eminently a journal for the household.

Every Number furnishes the latest information in regard to Fashion in dress and ornament, the newest and most approved patterns, with descriptive articles derived from authentic and original sources; while its Stories, Poems and Essays on Social and Domestic Topics, give variety to its columns.

The Volumes of the Bazar begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S BAZAR, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twelves Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

"Studying the subject objectively and from the educational point of view—seeking to provide that which, taken altogether, will be of the most service to the largest number—I long ago concluded that, if I could have but one work for a public library, I would select a complete set of Harper's Monthly."—CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr.

Its contents are contributed by the most eminent authors and artists of Europe and America, while the long experience of its publishers has made them thoroughly conversant with the desires of the public, which they will spare no effort to gratify.

The Volumes of the Magazine begin with the Number for June and December of each year. When no time is specified, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to begin with the current Number.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 50

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

A complete set of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, comprising 50 Volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express, freight at expense of purchaser, on receipt of $2 25 per volume. Single volumes, by mail, postpaid, $3 00. Cloth cases, for binding, 88 cents, by mail, postpaid.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.--NO. 14. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 26, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1551.

Over 30,000 Now in Use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE,

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to all others as 5 to 1. STRONG & McNAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. MC COWEN,

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT!

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand.

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS REUNION.

They Reunite in a Hearty Way—An Excellent Oration by B. F. Graves—The Dinner a Prominent Feature.

Last Saturday morning the veterans of the late war began to arrive, to pass a day in a social visit with their old comrades, to strengthen the old bonds of friendship and to refresh their memories. By noon a fair representation was present who formed into line, with the old bullet ridden colors flying, and the drum and fife at the head and proceeded to the depot. Here, upon the arrival of the train, their ranks were enlarged by comrades from the West and South.

They then marched to the Opera House, which the ladies of Tecumseh had gaily trimmed with flags and bunting of the national colors. The meeting was called to order by W. C. Fitzsimmons, President. Music was the first thing in order by Uncle Bill and his drum corps.

Prayer—Rev. C. E. Conley.

Address of Welcome—W. C. Fitzsimmons.

Yankee Doodle—Band.

Oration—B. F. Graves.

Music—Band.

Benediction—Rev. Wm. Grandy.

We give the oration and welcoming address in full below:

ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

Soldiers and Sailors of Lenawee County:—As President of your Association, I take pleasure in tendering to you a most cordial welcome to this village, and the scenes which here surround you. And in coming here, comrades, you come to a place not unknown in the military history of the State.

Tecumseh has furnished many gallant and distinguished soldiers. Never are there wars or rumors of wars that she does not send forth strong men to do battle. The silent dust of her heroic sons reposes on many well-fought fields. It sleeps upon the plains of Mexico, upon the rocky sides of the far Sierras, and upon the hillsides and in the valleys of the South.

To the homes of such as these we welcome you to-day.

But comrades, why is it that in these piping times of peace, when our country is at profound peace with all the world, with no present sign of interruption; why is it that under such circumstances you re-assemple year by year and keep alive the associations of the past?

Is it that you would revive the bitterness and rancor that led to the great conflict in which you were all engaged? No. Is it in the interest, or on behalf of any political party, any sect or faction? Heaven forbid. You come together to strengthen those friendships and associtions formed long ago under the old flag, and at the cannon's mouth. You come here to pledge anew your fealty to the "government of the people by the people and for the people," and to swear again that that government shall not perish from the earth.

You come with malice toward none, and with charity for all, but to proclaim to all the world that the blood of Lincoln and of your four hundred thousand comrades shall not have been shed in vain. You come from your farms and your workshops, from your counting rooms and your offices in the garb of plain but honored citizens unaccompanied by any of the "pomp and circumstance of war," and yet it may be said without egotism, and without flattery of the men of old Lenawee, that "no soldiers firmer, braver, ever trod the field of fame."

You come here, not as Democrats, not as Republicans, not as the followers of any political party as such; but simply as American citizens who love your country, and in whose defense against all foes, whether foreign or domestic, you are ready to bear arms again.

To have been a soldier of this great Republic, struggling for the perpetuity of free government among men is to have held a post of honor worthy of record in the annals of time. And the fact of having done service against your country's enemies is a richer legacy to bequeath to your children, and to your children's children than all the wealth of Ormus or of Ind.

Comrades, the loyal hearts of our people swell with pride that you sho'd have selected Tecumseh as your place of meeting. Fair hands have decked these Halls with patriotic emblems; and again in the name of the good people of Tecumseh, I bid you welcome.

ORATION BY B. F. GRAVES.

Mr. President, Comrades, Ladies and Gentlemen:—Fifteen years have passed since the events terminated that made us comrades, and as we gather together again to welcome each other and commemorate the deeds of valor of the heroes of the late war, the scenes of that great conflict come crowding back upon our memory and we recall without hesitancy the time when we left home, friends and fireside to battle for a country and a country's cause; and it is in commemoration of that scene and those that followed in after years that we have come together to-day. Fifteen years of peace and prosperity have carried us so far by the passions and prejudices of that early date that to-day we can look back upon the causes that led to that great conflict of four years and review them with unbiased thought.

With the seeds of a free government that were sown by the kind hands of our forefathers, were also scattered the seeds that led to the discord and commotion of that eventful time; for the Mayflower's hull had hardly touched the rocky bound coast of New England with her freight of humanity that were seeking the free air of a new country where God might be worshiped without the fear of potentates, before there also landed at Jamestown, Virginia, a Dutch brig, and with her came to the free soil of America a new theory, inconsistent and antagonistic to the one for which the Pilgrim Fathers had forsaken home and friends to enjoy—the one "that all were created free and equal," endowed with political and religious rights that were sacred equally to all, and the other, that a portion of the human family gifted with a thirst of freedom, a soul, thought and mind should be subjected and forever enslaved by the other portion upon the false and dangerous theory that he who wore the dusky skin had no rights either civil or political; and thus did the two great principles, one of equal rights, and the other the enslavement of man find their origin, and for centuries did they continue to expand; and the magnitude of this domain was sufficient for each, and as each was developed by their supporters in the great work of settling and equalizing the wilderness of this great continent, they developed great interests in common, and neither conscious of the fatal tendencies of the other, began the race for supremacy, and as time rolled on this race became the bone of contention in our midst. And as the contest went on both in our legislative halls and the press throughout the country, it became evident to all that one or the other must be annihilated. Many consciencious men who had given the matter careful thought came to the conclusion that slavery was not only a great, but a growing evil, contrary in its nature to all the institutions of a free government; while upon the other hand, very many perhaps conscienciously believed that the institution of slavery was one sanctioned at least by the controller of our destinies, and not antagonistic with our institutions of government. And for years, while the common interests of our forefathers were the difficulties with the mother country, and the establishment of the institutions of a firm government upon this continent was in progress, no thought was given to the conflicting institutions that were growing up in our midst; and the South went on, step by step, each day more firmly fixing the institution of slavery as one of the fundamental principles of her institutions. And the North looked on with a jealous eye, with forebodings and misgivings as to the ultimate result; many looking upon its gradual acquisitions and growth in strength as a sure symptom of discord and trouble in future; for every one who knew the nature of the institution of slavery, and was not directly or indirectly interested in building up or perpetuating it, were convinced that its theories and practical operations were antagonistic in its every feature to our principles of freedom, and so we traveled on in the smoke of the conflict, our vision obstructed as to the final result until the conflict came. Could those who controlled the affairs of our nation have forseen and realized the fact that conflict between two great fundamental principles would surely destroy the peace of the nation, and that the ultimate result would be the annihilation of one or the other, the sorrow, the tears, the woe, the blood, and the destruction of that great conflict might have been avoided. But it came with that gigantic proportion that the English language hardly contains words fit to express it; and you who participated in it, and those upon whom the scars still remain, all have a vivid memory of that sanguinary conflict. The alacrity with which our brethren rushed to the support of the peoples' rights, and assumed the position of a nation's defenders needs no favorable comment from us. Suffice it to say, it is yet remembered by a grateful people; and while the American people have in a great measure rewarded liberally the defenders of their flag, yet, there dwells among us a certain class who would have this nation pursue a niggardly policy towards the soldiers, and among this class we often hear the remark that this government pays her soldiers more liberally than any nation on earth. While to a certain extent this may be true, yet it must be remembered that that nation does not exist that with one blast of the bugle as in 1861, called from the plow, the work-shops, the counter and the desk, a million of men who left lucrative positions, and of which the pay as soldiers consisted of but a small per cent, and whose valor and fidelity to the principles for which they fought is unparalleled in the annals of history. No Benedict Arnold was found among their ranks, and they were ready at a moments warning to surrender their life upon the altar of their country. How recollections of the past crowd upon us under the circumstances that we find ourselves in today. What a vast number of subjects are suggested to dwell upon? The gathering together of vast hordes of men who had never thought of war, much less had they ever prepared for it. The battle fields, the prison, slavery, freedom, the old flags, the march, life, death; all these and many more present themselves for reflection; and the recollection of prison life comes to us tinged with sadness; and the scenes enacted in Libby, Royster and Pemberton in Richmond, and Andersonville, Savanna, Milan and Salisbury prisons, are yet fresh in the recollections of many of you. In the timber but a short distance from Andersonville lie buried seventeen thousand brave men who famished in its stockades; and near each of the other prisons named will be found little mounds of earth that tell the number that perished within their walls from hunger alone. And as we pass the subject, we can only add that the treatment of our people while prisoners in the hands of the South is only equalled by the historical accounts of transactions in the dark ages, or by barbarians who make no pretence to civilization. Of the battle fields, the bivouac, the hospital, the field, the march, I can say but little; time forbids. But history has engraved upon her pages the fact that the world never knew a braver soldiery with undaunted courage, and a high sense of right, and with a firm determination to rescue the government from the hands of traitors. They battled for our country as none can but those who battle for justice, right, and the principles dear to all common humanity; and as a result we see four millions of people taken from fetters and the lash and given the rights of freedom. Certainly no nation ever fought for a higher or a better principle, and succeeded in more firmly establishing it. And let me say to those who to-day enjoy the boon for which they fought, and for which three hundred and fifty thousand of them died upon the bloody field of battle, and hundreds of thousands of them returned maimed and wounded among us, begrudge them not, stint them not, for as the years go by they fall by the wayside; and the time is not far distant when they will join their comrades who have gone before; and when they shall all have disappeared, the great superstructure our forefathers laid the foundation for, and our soldiery in the late war gave their blood to more firmly cement and preserve, shall live on and on and continue as it now is, the brightest star in the firmament of nations. Therefore, I say for the few short years they remain with us, show them at least that you are grateful for the sacrifice they gave. Select for them the brightest spots within the borders of the nation they fought so well to preserve; consecrate to their use the best institutions you have; and when you find one in need give him a small parcel of this broad domain, and help him to construct a home and fireside, that he may spend the rest of his days in peace and happiness; be at least half as faithful to him as he was to you. It seems like a dream since the time we bade our friends good bye and marched away to the tented field and the watch-fire light. We cannot live it over, but it may come to us in the form of another war based upon other issues and principles, for we are yet in our infancy as a nation, and those who laid down their lives that this might be a whole nation, are entitled to our grateful remembrance, and my heart goes out in recollection of those days. In the early years of this century a great battle was fought on the plains of the Danube. A charge upon the Austrian center gave the victory to the French, and the success of the contest was largely attributed to the bravery of one of the French subjects, and ever after upon the assembling of his brigade the name of Latnos DeSurge was first called, when a veteran sergeant stepped to the front and proclaimed, "Died upon the field of honor." And while we call to mind their grand and noble deeds we will to-day in one unanimous expression accord to them the same place upon the muster roll of time that the French brigade gave to her brave hero, "Died upon the field of honor."

The past comes back to us like a picture from the pen of a gifted artist, and the grand old army marches in review as it takes its place upon the battle field, we hear the booming of the mighty cannon, the shrieks of the shell, and the whistle of the bullets, the neighing of the steed as he carries his master in the hottest of the conflict to be penetrated, perhaps, by an enemy's bullet; we look about us and see the stalwart forms of brave men going down before the hail storm of lead that fills the air.

On the right and on the left our comrades fall, and the cold sweat gathers upon their brows, and their breath comes shorter and shorter until the final gasp closes the scene to them.—Above, and around, the battle rages, every moment adding carnage, death and destruction to the scene, and woe and tears to the hundreds of households all over our land; the smoke of the conflict thickens and settles over the field like the darkness of night.—We look again, and the struggle is over, and as we survey the field, we find as the only evidence of the fierce conflict of yesterday, the resting place of the heroes who fell that the cause might triumph.

We all join in rejoicing that the war drums throb no longer, and the battle flags are furled, and we look forward with joy and hope to the time when the people of this whole nation shall be one in heart, one in the desire for freedom, prosperity and national union, "shall see that the darkness thro' which we have travelled, was a part of that stern but beneficent discipline by which the great dispenser of events has been leading us on to a higher and nobler national life."

The time since the arms were stacked and the banners were furled has been occupied by the most of us in the pursuit of wealth and happiness; and I say that the country has witnessed in our soldiery since the war a transaction unparalleled in history; the returning to their farms, stores, work shops and professions of a million of men who at once assumed their former places in society, and amongst their fellow men, as though they had never been subjected to the baneful influence of four years of soldier life; and while there are many things about the camp life of a soldier that has a tendency to unfit them, to a certain extent as useful members of society, yet the good moral sense of the average American soldier has kept him from this degeneracy. And at the present time, many responsible positions of profit and trust are filled by men who once wore the blue, and many of them have attained the highest positions within the gift of the people; and the standard bearer of each of the great political parties to-day was taken from them.

And in conclusion, by way of encouragement, let me say, we have attained an exalted position among men; and let us labor to maintain it, so that when the time shall come for us to join those who have gone before, that it may be said that we not only made good soldiers, but better citizens, and that we lived not in vain.

A business meeting was held afterwards. The Association decided that the next meeting should be held at Morenci on the last Wednesday of August, 1881.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Dr. Wyman, Blissfield.

Vice President—Chas. Bidwell, Tecumseh.

Secretary—Willard Stearns, Adrian.

Treasurer—Geo. Conkling.

Votes of thanks were extended to W. C. Fitzsimmons, Opera House Association, Ladies of Tecumseh, and S. C. Stacy for their free services in contributing to the success of the meeting.

Dinner was then announced. Once more they formed twos and proceeded to Sink's Hotel to partake of a splendid dinner that was awaiting them.—After this they disbanded, most of the comrades departing on the afternoon train.

The meeting was a success, there being over a hundred comrades present. The literary exercises were excellent and well received.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

OUR BABY.

[illegible]

For the Herald.

IN A THIEVES' DEN.

BY A NEW YORK DETECTIVE.

A gentleman who had lost a valuable watch and chain on a west side street car, stated to me that he was sure he could identify the thief if he had an opportunity to do so. I suggested to him a place where thieves of all classes were wont to gather to witness dog and cock fights, about once a week. He stated his willingness to accompany me on the next night, and having instructed him not to take any of his valuables with him, we parted.

The next evening he came to the office at the appointed time, and having secured two tickets of admission, through a friend, we presented ourselves at the door, and giving the countersign, entered a long dark hallway which led us to a rear room on the ground floor occupied by a well known sporting character as a liquor saloon, commonly called a "Bucket shop;" a place where enough vile whiskey can be had for five cents to kill a whole family.

A motley throng had already collected, although the "fun" was not to come off for an hour yet. Some were setting at a table playing cards; others were standing in a group discussing the merits of their respective dogs, (this was the dog night) while others were throwing dice for draughts of the poison which was passed in through a wicket in the partition which separated the room we was in from the saloon proper. I saw a few very respectable looking young men there, but they were the exception, as nearly all of the "company" bore traces of dissipation, disease and crime. They were truly a hard looking lot of men.

Of course they did not know me, as I had taken the precaution to guard against being recognized, for had they for a moment suspected me, I fear this sketch would never have been written, as they were a class of men who knew no law and being present in overpowering numbers, would not have hesitated to take advantage of our being in the minority and of getting "even" with a d——d detective. As we stood contemplating the scene being enacted before us, a small bell began ringing violently, when some one said, "the cops" are on us. You would have laughed to see the instant change which came over the assemblage at the intimation that the police were upon them. They were all ready to take an instant departure, but the noise was soon explained by the proprietor, who had gone out to investigate it and had found two very much intoxicated patrons of the establishment trying to gain an entrance by ringing the "signal" bell.

This bell is used only by the outlookers who are stationed on the street to watch for an approaching police interference, and is used in time to enable the inmates to remove all evidences of the violation of the law, concerning these disgraceful and brutal pastimes.

After the interference had been explained, the crowd resumed their pleasures, and about a half an hour after this occurence the announcement was made that the "fight" would come off. The gentleman with me had scrutinized every new comer closely, but as yet he had not put in an appearance.

A large trap door was raised and about seventy-five men decended the stairs into a dark cellar, where a faint light could be seen at the farther end. We followed the rest, and as soon as the foremost one had passed forward he turned up the light and then lit two other jets near by. A wooden ring had been constructed where the fight was to occur, which was about ten feet in diameter, and three feet deep. Several kennels stood in the rear near the stairs, where the dogs were confined until needed. they seemed to understand what was expected of them, for they were continually snapping at each other in a very ferocious manner. Previous to the first fight, which was between a New Jersey dog and a New York dog, the articles of agreement which were to govern all fights were read, and after a few other preliminary arrangements were completed the two dogs were brought forth. Their owners had them tightly by the chains for a moment to allow time for a change to wager on the result, or examine their antagonists, then make their bets. When all was ready the dogs were placed in the enclosure and as the watch started go. They flew at each other and both succeeded in getting a good grip on the other. In a moment they were covered with blood, while their bodies were lacerated in a frightful manner. The battle raged for nearly a half an hour, when the New Jersey dog caught his antagonist by the throat and soon ended the fight by choking him to death.

As soon as the result was announced, the air became blue with curses from those who had lost their money; some claimed the fight on the score of a foul while others insisted that the whole thing was a put up job, and for a moment I thought the affair would end in a general fight, but things cooled down after a time, and the next "battle" was proceeded with. I need not describe this, or the two subsequent ones which followed, as one was as brutal as the other, with the exception of a few details.

While the third fight was in progress, five new comers were admitted into the cellar, and one proved to be the pickpocket who had so kindly relieved my friend of his watch two days before: to arrest him there was out of the question, so I decided to wait until the "mill" was over, and when outside take him into custody. About two o'clock the next morning the affair came to an end, and we managed to be the first ones out in the street, and in about five minutes the one we wanted came out with two companions and started up street. As they were going in the same direction as the station house, lock up I permitted them to walk undisturbed until they had started to turn into another street, when I arrested him and took him to the station house, where my friend made a complaint against him. On the way to the station house I noticed a slight movement which the prisoner made with his left hand, and at the same moment saw a wad of yellow paper fall in the gutter: my friend stopped and soon recovered the it: it proved to be a package of pawn-tickets as I had suspected, and when we reached the station house I examined it and among the lot found one calling for a gold watch and chain.

The next morning we proceeded to the pawn office indicated on the ticket where my friend gave a description of his property and when the goods were procured, fully identified them. The culprit was tried, convicted and sentenced to five years imprisonment.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C. A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Invaluable for Piles and Kidney Diseases.

SWANTON, VT., Sept. 19.

"I suffered greatly for years from Piles, and tried various remedies for for relief without success until I used Kidney-Wort. If the disease shows symptoms of return, as has been the case, I have never failed to check it by the use of this medicine! I have a son about eleven years old who had for years uniformly wet his bed nights, and all the prescriptions of different physicians were inaffectual in checking it. I was assured by a physician "Kidney-Wort" was just the medicine to cure him, and sure enough, a trial was completely successful. I regard the medicine invaluable for piles and Kidney diseases."

SAMUEL BULLARD.

A little five year old friend, who was always allowed to choose the prettiest kitten for his pet before the other nurslings were drowned, was taken to his mother's sick room the other morning to see two tiny, new, twin babes. He looked reflectively from one to the other for a minute or two, then poking his chubby finger into the cheek of the plumplest baby, he said decidedly, "save this one."

KILLED BY HIS MOTHER.

Some fifteen years ago a young Austrian left home to seek his fortune in America. He left a large family of younger brothers and sisters to be reared by his mother, an energetic woman, who kept a small country hotel. The young man settled in America, [illegible] and after fifteen years' work, as the future was worth to him. As he did not know how or [illegible] he did not correspond with his family, and the latter believed him dead. In the spring of 1861 he determined to return to his country, and share the wealth with his family. He converted his gold into drafts upon the chief banking house of Vienna, and sailed from New York, arriving in Washington, the surprise his arrival would cause his folks at home. He reached Vienna without accident, and his drafts cashed, and left at once for his native village. As was natural after an absence of fifteen years, which he had spent in the mines of California, no one recognized him. He finally made himself known, and spread before his two brothers the handsome roll of bills of which he was the owner, and which he would share with them and their mother. The latter had now removed to a village about a hundred miles away, where she kept an inn. After a couple of days of rest with his brothers, the traveler resolved to visit his mother, incognito. It was arranged he should not reveal his identity until his brothers should join him.

The Austro-American made his appearance at his mother's hotel. When he saw the old woman he could scarcely forbear discovering himself to her. But he managed to conceal his relationship, of which, of course, the woman was in total ignorance. The pair had various long talks during the day. When night came, before retiring, he called her to the room that had been assigned to him, stating that he had an important secret to communicate to her. Then he told her that he had in his possession a large sum of money and begged her to take charge of it, as he deemed it imprudent to keep it in his room, particularly as the latter could not be locked. The woman hesitated a moment, saying that she had no place in the house where the money would be perfectly safe; but she finally consented to receive it. When the stranger counted over 300,000 florins in bank notes, a sum such as she had never dreamed of, she again declined to assume the responsibility.

But, as he insisted, she at last took the money and disappeared. What passed within the brain of that wretched woman during that night is more readily imagined than described. Upon reaching her bedroom she hid the treasure under the mattress. But the temptation to look at the enormous roll of bills was too strong for her, and she spread the bills out on the table.—The sight of money so excited her that she became mad, and, jumping from her seat, she took a razor from her bureau drawers, and stealing up to the room where her son was fast asleep, cut his throat from ear to ear, killing him almost instantly. She then put the razor in her son's hand, so as to make it look as though he had committed suicide. Next morning her sons arrived and inquired for the stranger. She sent them up to his room, saying he had not yet come to breakfast.

They found him dead, and yells of despair filled the house. The mother, like all the other persons in the house, went up stairs, feigning to be utterly ignorant of the cause of the disturbance. She then learned that the murdered man was her son. The effect that startling intelligence had upon her mind need not be told.

"My son?" she exclaimed. "Kill me, my children, kill me! It is I who murdered him!"

The woman became a raving maniac, and was sent to a lunatic asylum.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good.—I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

A WORKINGMAN."

Multum in parvo;—American Bali-Blue is declared by expert housewives to be a little blue giant of many accomplishments for laundry use.

How to Get Rich.

The great secret of obtaining riches, is first to practice economy, and as good old "Deacon Snyder," says, "It used to worry the life out of me to pay enormous doctor's bills, but now I have "struck it rich." Health and happiness reign supreme in our little household, and all simply because we use no other medicine but Electric Bitters and only costs fifty cents a bottle. Sold by C. A Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

STRAYER DRILL.

Light draft operating the lines of the

THREE INCHES WIDE,

So that in a field of Drill there is

27 INCHES

of ground covered with grain.

THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT

of ground that round Drills cover, thereby equalizing the seed as well as the strength of the ground. We make a deep furrow on each flat so that each row is put in a proper depth, an advantage over all other Drills in the land.

Hundreds of the best farmers in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana will testify that

More Wheat Can Be Raised

By the Aid of the Strayer Drill than any other. Farmers will please examine the Strayer Drill before purchasing.

N. C. ARNOLD, Agent,
Tecumseh, Mich.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEPOT.

Grain, Flour, Feed and Coal.

SLAYTON & SON

Are still at the old stand with a complete line of

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

PLOWS The Wizard Chilled, Mohawk Valley Clipper (steel.)

"Leader" Spring Tooth Harrow.

Elwood, Robbins and Buckeye

CULTIVATORS.

"Springer" Spring Tooth Harrow, (on wheels.)

GRAIN DRILLS. Buckeye. Farmer's Friend. Triumph.

THRESHERS, The "Vibrator," and The "Buffalo Pitts."

Portable and Traction Thresher Engines.

Rare Bargains in

Carriages, Platform, Spring and Lumber Wagons,

Lime, Water Lime, Salt, Cal. Plaster and Plastering Hair.

If you want anything in our line call and get prices before you buy

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING In the line of

BOOKS

Blank Books, Binding or Stationery

That You Cannot Get

AT HOME

(Retail or Wholesale.)

Write at once to

E. B. SMITH & CO.

DETROIT, MICH.

HOW TO ATTAIN SUCCESS.

Without health, life is [illegible]

YELLOW EYES, SALLOW COMPLEXION, LOSS OF APPETITE, DYSPEPSIA, SICK-HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, is the result of a complaint of the LIVER. MARCEAU'S LIVER AND BILIOUS COMPOUND is a known [illegible] cure for the [illegible]

POSITIVELY "CASCARA SAGRADA," with other meritorious ingredients, makes it an infallible remedy [illegible] VITALIZING THE CIRCULATION, purifying the BLOOD, and restoring to PERFECT HEALTH the enfeebled system. 75 cents per bottle.

Town's Bronchial Syrup cures all Lung, Throat and Chest diseases. 75 cents per bottle.

FARRAND, WILLIAMS & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Detroit, Agents.

PATENTS.

F. A. Lehmann, Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Washington, D. C. All business connected with Patents, whether before the Patent Office or the Courts, promptly attended to. No charge made unless a patent is secured. Send for circular.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK.

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. . . Michigan.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in HERALD Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. M. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Justice of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U. S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

IMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. IMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood and Iron Turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tiffany Improved Patent Drain Tile Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co, with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality. Office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

CURRY & BOOTS, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and staves, racked hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros, Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs, Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Saloon Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Pres't.

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Sweet home—The bee-hive.

"Two for assent"—a bridal couple.

A great hardship—an iron steamer.

Even the laziest boy can catch a licking.

The girl who shakes her cheeks thinks it is better to mark the miss than miss the mark.

"How sad!" exclaimed one blade of a pair of scissors to the other, "how sad! We only meet to sever."

The compositor who set up "pimpled chops" for "dimpled cheeks" did not look a bit natural in death.

New York refuses to let any one chip off a relic of her obelisk. Pretty stingy, that.

Some of the owners of $50 fans will cut over old sacks and cloaks for next winter's wear.

One hair in the hash will cause more hard feeling than seven mottoes on the wall can overcome.

What a pity the census was not taken during melon season, when half of our population is doubled up.

The mosquito who can't chew his way through the cloth netting ought to be compelled to bite old saw-bucks.

A lecture from Tanner wouldn't be half so good as a pudding. We all know that he held out, and that's enough of him.

Sitting-Bull never killed a white man in his life until he was taught how to play seven-up. He has been way up ever since.

A St. Louis coroner can hold three inquests and make a bill of $48 over a human finger found at the back door of a saloon.

Our ancestors, the monkeys, couldn't have been so ignorant after all. They were all educated in the higher branches.

The individual who saw a mouse fighting with a piece of Limburger cheese readily realized that the battle is not always to the strong.

"Hands wanted on boys' pants," is the daily advertisement in the newspapers. 'Twas always thus from childhood's hour.

An old farmer said of his clergyman, whose sermons lacked point, "He's a good man, but he will rake with th teeth upward!"

An Iowa wife who was suing for divorce proved that she had not had a penny of her own in thirteen years.—How she must have suffered for gum!

A Chicago paper has all at once discovered that the word "butter" cannot be found in the Bible. It will next marvel that the word "saloon" is also missing.

Men in this country who haven't anything better to do than to chase a half-starved fox around with horses and dogs, would make passable sill-posts for country corn cribs.

The farmer understands human nature who said: "If you want your boy to stay at home, don't bear too hard on the grindstone when he turns the crank."

The jewel of a servant girl is the one who hangs all her mistress' embroidered underwear on that portion of the line most conspicuous to the neighbors' eyes.

While a Louisville lawyer was in the act of cross-examining a woman who was on the witness stand, she exclaimed, "I'm a lady, and, by thunder, don't you forget."

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

A gentleman at one of the hotels spilt some milk on his coat and wondered if it would leave a grease spot.—"Grease spot?" queried the fellow boarder just opposite, "grease spot?—Well, I should say no. Rather look for chalk marks when it dries up."

Astonishing the World.

For a perfect renovation of exhausted and enfeebled constitutions, female weakness and decline, nothing so surely and speedily produces a permanent cure as does Electric Bitters. Their wonderful cures are astonishing the world. For Kidney or Urinary complaints they are a perfect specific. Do not give up in dispair, for Electric Bitters will positively cure, and that where everything else fails. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co., at 50 cents a bottle.

SELECT SAYINGS.

An idle reason lessens the weight of the good ones you gave before.—Swift.

Woman is like the reed which bends to every breeze, but not in the tempest.—Whately.

Properly thou hast no other knowledge but what thou has got by working.—Carlisle.

The truly great man is as apt to forgive as his power is able to revenge.—Sir Philip Sidney.

Let your will lead whither necessity would drive, and you will always preserve your liberty.—Locke.

Old truths are always new to us if they come with the smell of heaven upon them.—John Bunyan.

Our differences should be like mortar, which separates the bricks, that it binds together.—Boston Transcript.

Those who give not till they die, show that they would not then if they could keep it any longer.—Bishop Hall.

A passion for flowers is, I really think, the only one which long sickness leaves untouched with its chilling influence.—Mrs. Hemans.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

USEFUL MEMORANDA.

Morning's milk is richer than that of evening.

Wood ashes form a good lye for softening water.

Green bay leaves allay the inflammation of bee stings.

Old clothes should be saved to weave into door mats.

Apple pips impart a fine flavor to tarts and dumplings.

All linen pieces should be saved and kept for domestic purposes.

Kettles and stew pans should be washed outside as well as inside.

Soap-suds and soapy water supply the manure for garden soils.

Sage leaves in small quantities make an excellent addition to tea.

Lemon juice will allay the irritation caused by gnats and flies.

Stop That Cough.

If you are suffering with a Cough, Cold, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, or any affection of the Throat or lungs, use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. This is the great remedy that is causing so much excitement by its wonderful cures, curing thousands of hopeless cases. Over one million bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery have been used within the last year, and have given perfect satisfaction in every instance. We can unhesitatingly say that this is really the only sure cure for throat and lung affections, and can cheerfully recommend it to all. Call and get a trial bottle free of cost, or a regular size for $1.00. M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands."

The Bone and Muscle producing Malt, the Nerve-quieting Hop, the superb Malarial antidote Quinine, and other precious ingredients, combined without fermentation, are the ingredients of "Malt Bitters," prepared by the Malt Bitters Company.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure."

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all inds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will pay $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO.

PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT.—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. R. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "It is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGARON, of Berkshire, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY?

BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best

KIDNEY INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea, in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick-dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Kidneys, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water, particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A KIDNEY INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,

161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Planing Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Sluyter & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

—BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD—

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Threshing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thresher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM-ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

55 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a HIGH GUARANTEE for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and spurious imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED

by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS,

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry, Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6.25.

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the reproduction of this Great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, clear nonpareil type, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, wide margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 10. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 5 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols, $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $3.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Geikie's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Æsop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus., 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.50.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 35 cents.
Sayings, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth. If by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in fine editions and fine bindings, at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,

JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager. Tribune Building, New York.

AGENCIES: Boston, H. L. Hastings; Philadelphia, Leary & Co.; Cincinnati, Robert Clarke & Co.; Indianapolis, Bowen, Stewart & Co.; Cleveland, Ingham, Clarke & Co.; Toledo, Brown Enger & Co.; Chicago, Alden & Chadwick; in smaller towns, the leading Bookseller, only one in a place

THE TECUMSEH HERALD,

Issued Every Thursday Evening.

BY S. C. STACY.

Office in the New HERALD BUILDING, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One year. Cash in advance	$1.50
Six Months, " "	75
Four Months, " "	50

Twenty-Five cents will be added to the subscription price for every three months that payment is delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Business Locals, five cents per line for each insertion.

Special notices, fifty cents an inch for each insertion.

Marriages, Births, etc., free.

Rates on General Advertising, or long contracts made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondence from all parts are invaluable, provided not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG 26, 1880.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

The Democrats held their Congressional Convention on Tuesday last in the village of Manchester. Every county in the district was fully represented. The convention was called to order by W. H. Tallman, chairman, at eleven o'clock A. M., who nominated Thos. Howlitt as temporary chairman. Committees on permanent organization and credentials were appointed and a recess was taken until afternoon.

The convention reassembled at half past one o'clock. The report of committee on credentials was read and accepted. The committee on permanent organization presented the name of Col. F. M. Holloway, for President of the convention, and. Loran Sanford, of Washtenaw, H. R. Case, of Lenawee, Lewis Darrah, of Monroe and Thomas Howlett, of Hillsdale, for Vice-Presidents. Also Albert Crane, of Washtenaw, Henry Kurz, of Monroe, Geo. D. Moore, of Lenawee, and W. H. Tallman, of Hillsdale, for permanent Secretaries.

Col. Holloway on taking the chair began business by taking off his coat (the hall being excessively warm) and making a few vigorous remarks that were frequently interrupted with cheers. He congratulated the convention on the auspiciousness of the times, and said he had not seen such hope springing up in the breast of the Democracy since 1852. As at present, the Democratic party had always been the party of the Constitution, and the Northern Democracy during the war had done its share towards putting down the rebellion and preserving the Constitution. It would seem that on presenting the name of Hancock, the soldier who had presented his breast to all the storm of the war, the contest would be on the merits of the two parties and their candidates, but instead the Republicans persist in waving the bloody shirt.

In speaking of State politics he denounced the Republican Legislature for failing to reform the assessment and other law, and for imposing taxes on the people to publish statutes of no importance. There are too many laws—not for the lawyers—but for the farmer and the mechanic, and the people are ready for a change.

The nomination of a candidate was the next in order, and the name of Wm. H. Waldby, of Adrian, was presented by Albert Crane, of Washtenaw, H. J. Redfield, of Monroe, Thos. Howlett, of Hillsdale, and L. H. Salsbury, of Lenawee. No other name was presented to the convention, and on motion, Mr. Waldby was thereupon declared unanimously nominated by acclamation.

A telegram was immediately sent to Mr. Waldby, and his acceptance was received before the convention adjourned.

The nomination is generally regarded as the very strongest that could have been made. With zealous and well directed effort, the Democracy stand an even chance of carrying this Congressional district, and we have no doubt the fight will be a hot one.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican County Convention met at Adrian last Monday, and as there were several candidates for most of the offices, the attendance was large and the strife for position was animated.

G. P. Waring, of Ridgeway, was made temporary chairman, and made a few neat remarks upon taking the chair.

The usual committees were appointed and a recess was taken until after dinner.

Upon calling the convention to order in the afternoon, Geo. B. Horton was elected permanent chairman, and Cyrus Crandall, secretary. The convention then proceeded to the nomination of county officers.

For State Senator, the vote was divided between Brackley Shaw, A. D. Hall, Lucius Lilley, M. P. Stockwell, P. W. Adams and Dr. Newcomb. Mr. Shaw received 98 votes and the nomination.

Norman Geddes and Edwin Hadley were the candidates for Probate Judge. There was a hot contest on this office and several vigorous speeches were made in favor of each candidate. The ballot resulted as follows: Geddes, 86; Hadley, 72. And thereupon Mr. Geddes was declared nominated.

The candidates for Sheriff were six in number: Sayles, of Clayton, Chas. Bidwell, of Tecumseh, Wm. Jibb, of Seneca, John Britton, of Ridgeway, J. R. Bennett and W. R. Tayre, of Adrian City.

The ballot resulted: Bennett, 22; Bidwell, 33; Burch, 10; Britton, 11; Church, 2; Tayer, 49; Jibb, 12; Sayles

A formal ballot was then taken resulting: Bennett, 23; Bidwell, 38; Burch, 12; Britton, 10; Church, 2; Tayer, 62; Jibb, 9; Sayles, 6.

The vote resulting in no choice a second formal ballot was taken as follows: Bidwell, 33; Bennett, 13; Britton, 10; Burch, 3; Tayer, 55; Jibb, 6; McComb, 6.

The next ballot resulted: Bidwell, 39; Tayer, 55; McComb, 7; Jibb, 6; Britton, 4. And Bidwell was declared the nominee.

Mr. Bidwell will make a very strong run in this section of the county where he is known, and his nomination is well received here by all parties.

The ballot for register resulted as follows: Dolbear, 115; Nixon, 15; Long, 22; Welch, 15.

T. M. Hunter, of Adrian, was nominated for County Clerk after three ballots, his competitors being Briggs and Scarritt. Tom will please accept our congratulations. We believe he will make a good run and an efficient Clerk.

Willis Merritt, C. M. Weaver, R. A. Watts and C. L. Hall were placed in nomination for Prosecuting Attorney. Mr. Watts carried off the prize on the second ballot.

Geo. R. Cochran was renominated for Treasurer by acclamation.

Geo. Whitbeck and Frank Payne were nominated for Commissioners.

Dr. Morden and Dr. House were nominated for Coroners, and Jas. Blair for Surveyor.

This ticket as a whole is a creditable one, and there are some excellent names thereon, but considerable dissatisfaction is expressed with one or two of the nominations, and with pretty good reason.

FRANKLIN.

An important business change was consummated here Tuesday. Mr. Mansfield, of Adrian, entered into copartnership with Mr. Walter Hulett in the grocery business, and will soon bring his family here, and take charge of the business, which they propose to enlarge considerably, in fact to meet the demands of the public, comprising many articles not heretofore kept.—Mr. M. has had an extensive business experience and is a genial, upright gentleman, and from our acquaintance with the family, consider it no flattery to say they will prove valuable acquisitions to our town. Bud Hulett returns to Adrian to take charge of his father's business. May success attend him.

Albert J. Tuttle and Miss Adele Howard, of Cambridge, were married at the Baptist parsonage in Rome, on the 18th inst., and arrived at his father's last Sunday, and on Tuesday his parents gave a reception in honor of the happy pair, comprising many relatives of the family, among whom was an aunt of Mrs. Jerry Tuttle, Mrs. Kelly, of Boston, Mass., who is visiting friends in this community.

Rev. J. Vincent went to Detroit last week and remained over Sunday, consequently his pulpit was vacant.

A Democratic caucus will be held at Tuttle's Hall, on Friday next, at 7 P. M., to appoint delegates to the County convention at Adrian on the 28th inst.

The result of the Republican County convention last week appears to give general satisfaction to the party, notably so as regards the nominee for Sheriff. How about "the ring"?

RIDGEWAY.

Social Friday evening at Chas. Underwood's.

Mrs. Samuel Snedicor, who has been very sick, is slightly improved at this writing.

Jay Santus has been laid up for the past ten days from a spider's bite.

The East Milanders failed to come to time last Saturday. That 29 to 1 score seems to be too much for them.

Probably the worst mud hole between Ridgeway and Tecumseh is at Cecil Clark's corners.

Hen Palmer is busy now days trotting a bran new girl baby on his knee.

C. A. Sharp runs a flourishing peanut stand on our ball ground.

Wm. Barrett has a fine crop of grapes nearly ripe. He's got a big dog and the dorg is ripe now.

The Butler R. R. Co. ask Ridgeway to raise $2,500 for a depot at Britton's. Now if we have to put up any more R. R. bonus, would it not be policy to give it to the T. & M. and thereby secure that road? If one road is good, two would be better, and with a crossing at Britton's, all trains would be obliged to stop at that point. Think it over.

THE Democrats did another wise thing last Tuesday in nominating W. H. Waldby for Congress. He will make a strong run.

THE FOOL BECOMES WISE.

The appended article from the Evening News, an independent paper with a strong Republican bias, contains so much sound sense that we give it a place in the HERALD. There is no question but the Democrats are feeling well satisfied with the manner in which the campaign has been conducted thus far on their side.

"The capture of Ben Butler as their leader in Massachusetts and as their advocate elsewhere is not the only sign that the Democrats have at last happily lost that peculiarity for fatal blunders at the last moment, for which Gen. Grant once said they could always be depended on. From the very beginning of this campaign they were surrounded by dangers on every side, which, as their craft was already impeded by their unfortunate southern tow, made ruin and shipwreck all but certain. Yet they have steered clear of them all with marvelous skill.

By the nomination of a Union general with a record scarcely less brilliant than Grant's, they did much to rid themselves of the odor of secession and rebellion which always clung to their garments; by snubbing Tammany in the convention they saved themselves from the embarrassment of carrying the load of its infamies; by accepting the declination of Tilden they avoided that open war with Tammany which would have lost them New York in advance. Since the nominations they have been equally wise and equally lucky. Barnum has made a model national manager. Leaving the talking to Jewell, he has devoted himself to strengthening the party at every weak and vital point. He began by consolidating the opposition in Maine so that for practical purposes the Greenbackers and Democrats are one in that State. He has done a similar work in Massachusetts. In New York he never rested until with consummate tact, and without a visible sacrifice of dignity or principle he mollified the Tammany leaders and won them away from Kelly, so that the latter now sees that should he march out of camp, he would march alone. The Democracy in New York is as well united as it was in 1876.—With the single exception of the nomination of the ex-copperhead Landers, in Indiana, they have been very fortunate in their State nominations, at least in the doubtful States whose votes will decide the election. The nomination of ex-Governor English in Connecticut was worth five or six thousand votes more than any other Democrat they could have found in the State. He has never been beaten for any place he chose to run for, and feels perfectly confident of not being beaten this fall. The publication of Hancock's letter to Sherman, under circumstances that made it doubly effective, was another piece of pure good luck for which their canvass has been characterized.

On the other hand their opponents seem to have acquired the propensity for blundering which the Democrats lost. There are few candid Republicans who do not now, in private at least, concede that the nomination of Mr. Garfield was a grave mistake, particularly when there were such statesmen as Edmunds and Washburne and Sherman to pick from. Had the convention adjourned even for one hour pending that fatal 35th ballot, it would never have been completed in that way. The next blunder they made was in attempting to defend what was indefensible in Mr. Garfield's career. It would have been much better to have followed the example of the New York Times—the most intelligent, and certainly the most honest, as well as most influential Republican paper in the country—and ignored the personalities of the campaign altogether. The choice of Jewell as chairman was another error. It offended the Grant faction, which were quite ill-natured enough without that affront. Mr. Jewell does little except to illustrate by contrast what a magnificent campaigner the late Zachariah Chandler was. He seems to be devoting himself chiefly to his own aspirations or the Connecticut Senatorship, and does little for the party at large except to go about smilingly boasting of certain success. It was a mistake to attack the personal character of Gen. Hancock, which appeared only the brighter for every blow struck at it. It was a colossal blunder to attack his patriotism and to call for that letter to Sherman as evidence of his disloyalty; for when the letter appeared it did him so much credit that the Republican papers which were most vociferous in calling for it were so afraid of it that they have not yet published a line of it.

Indeed it would seem as if adversity had at last really sharpened the wits of the Democrats, while an unbroken series of good fortune and victory had made the Republicans reckless and imprudent. If the campaign is conducted to the end after the present fashion on both sides, there can be but one result."

THOS. B. GOULD, of Charlevoix, Mich., has been spending a few days among his old friends in Macon, where he formerly resided.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HALEY.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

ALL SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it cures readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

AT KIES BROTHERS,

(Successors to W. J. Kies.)

Grand Cost Sale of

CLOTHING, CLOTHING,

For one week, in order to make room for

FALL GOODS

Now being made expressly for our trade.

Look at these Prices:

$15.00	Suits	reduced	to	$12.00.
13.50	"	"	"	11.00.
12.00	"	"	"	10.00.
10.00	"	"	"	8.00.
2.50	Dusters	"	"	1.75.
1.25	"	"	"	85.

All we ask is that you will take the trouble to come and see our bargains.

KIES BROS.,

One Price Clothiers,

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

BAXTER

Can Boot any one in the County.

BAXTER

Can shoe any lady of any age.

BAXTER

Can and will suit everyone on

BOOTS AND SHOES!

I have just received the first fall invoice of Heavy and Fine MEN'S BOOTS.

Call for the

Rockland Ditching Boot,

At Lee's old stand.

BAXTER.

D. W. CLARK,

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. - - Michigan.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

ERS,
of HING, DS make r trade,
2.00.
1.00.
0.00.
3.00.
1.75.
85.
l take the bargains.
OS.,
iers,
SEH, M.
R County.
ay age one on HOES!
ice of Heavy
S.
Boot,
R K,
isions,
c. always on hand
re.
CORPORATION
Street,
chigan.
getables,
RY'S
E. visions.
SSWARE.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. AUG. 25, 1880.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

FOR SALE.

One new Lumber Wagon for sale cheap. Enquire of JOHN WHITENACK.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

A caucus will be held at the Council Building in Tecumseh on Friday, Aug. 27, at 8 o'clock P. M., to choose six delegates to attend the County Convention on Saturday, Aug. 28, and also to choose six delegates to a Representative Convention hereafter to be called.

BY ORDER OF TOWN COMMITTEE.

NOTICE.

The regular fall examination of teachers for the Township of Macon will be held at the Osborn school house, District No. 8, on Saturday, Sept. 4, commencing at 9:30 A. M. sharp. Directors will please notify teachers engaged.

F. MORLEY, Superintendent.

NOTICE.

To counteract false reports, we state by request that no "legally unqualified" teacher has been employed in District No. 1. F. MORLEY, Sup't.

LOST!

A ladies port-monaie, last evening, on Chicago street, between Joe Wilson's and C. H. Hopkins'. Person finding will be suitably rewarded by leaving the same at this office.

CLARINDA WALKER.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of District No. 7, of the Township of Tecumseh, for the election of School District Officers, and for the transaction of such other business as may lawfully come before it, will be held at the Central School Building on Monday, the 6th day of September, A. D. 1880, at 7 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dated this 26th day of August, 1880.

S. C. STACY, Director.

FOR SALE.

A good farm horse. Inquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

CAUCUS.

The Democratic electors of Raisin township are requested to meet at the Town House on Friday, August 27th, at 7 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of selecting delegates to the County Convention to be held in Adrian on the 28th inst., and for the transaction of other important business. A full attendance is desired.

BY ORDER OF TOWN COMMITTEE.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Two good farm horses. For price and terms apply at the office of the undersigned at the Globe Mills, Tecumseh. WM. HAYDEN.

FARM FOR SALE.

On account of failing health, I offer my farm for sale, containing 50 acres, a good orchard, fruit of all kinds, permanent supply of best of well and cistern water, very pleasant location. For particulars inquire on the premises, one mile north of Ridgeway. JOHN BECKLEY.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

CHEAP EXCURSION TO DETROIT.

On Tuesday, Aug. 31st, the Adrian Workingman's Association will give an Excursion to Detroit. The excursion will leave Adrian by railroad, connecting with steamers at Monroe. Round trip tickets only $1.25. Train will leave Adrian at 7:30 A. M. The "two graces," the two largest, fastest, safest, and best equipped excursion steamers on the great lakes, the Grace McMillan and Grace Grummond have been chartered exclusively for this excursion, and will convey the party from Monroe to Detroit, reaching that city but little after railroad schedule time, and giving visitors about half a day in the most beautiful city of the Northwest.

The exact time when the boats will leave Detroit, returning, will be announced on their upward trip. This is the best day of the great Michigan Saengerfest, and excursionists will have ample time to attend the grand matinee in the afternoon or visit the various sights of the city.

The officers of the chartered steamers guarantee that there shall be no delay at Monroe, and all who go will find this portion of the trip one of the pleasantest features of the day.

Arrangements have been made whereby round-trip tickets can be purchased at stations on the main line west to Adrian, and on the Jackson and Fayette branches to Lenawee Junction, for persons to connect with the excursion. This has been secured at great expense, for the sole accommodation of our friends in the county. No other excursion has ever given you this privilege.

Parties who prefer to travel by railroad through to Detroit can do so by the payment of fifty cents additional, making the round trip, to Detroit and return by railroad, only $1.75.

A TRAIN will run over the Jackson Branch to connect with the excursion train at Lenawee Junction next Tuesday morning.

WHILE driving about the country the other day, we stopped to see E. R. Hascall, and looked about his premises. His farm of eighty acres is now in fine condition, and the buildings are all in excellent repair. Owing to his ill health he is desirous of selling the place, and as it is a splendid farm for a home, only two and one-half miles distant from the village, we have no doubt he will soon find a purchaser.

GODEY'S Lady's Book for September, is a number full of attraction for those who, returning from seaside and mountain, find their pretty crisp dresses and finery of two months ago a faded, torn array of records of boating, climbing, croquet and summer pleasure. The pages are full of suggestive matter for a novel and full wardrobe.

THE September number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly is an admirable number and well calculated to sustain its well-deserved reputation.—The contents are remarkable for comprehensiveness, variety, instructiveness and entertainment. There are 128 quarto pages in each number, and over 100 illustrations; the present number has a handsome colored plate frontispiece, the subject being "The Bridegroom's Stirrup Cup of Andalusia. The price of a single copy is 25 c. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N.Y.

THE Republican rally last Thursday night was prevented from being held upon the street by the heavy rain storm. But Armory Hall was opened and the crowd soon filled it at the sound of the fife and drum. Mr. Allen discussed the record of the Democratic party, and made an appeal to the young men to join in the rank and file of the Republican party. A Garfield and Arthur club was organized after the meeting; a good list of members was obtained and then the meeting adjourned subject to the call of chairman Willis Merritt. Another meeting is to be called soon for the election of the officers of the club.

Card.

We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who aided and sympathized with us in our late affliction.

MR. AND MRS. S. ERSKINE.

New Departure.

Mr. A. J. McFall, late of Hudson, has leased the I. P. Keyser building, and has opened a very nice confectionery, tobacco and fruit store. He intends to run a place for the accommodation of the public. Meals and lunches served at all hours of the day and evening. Ice cream and oysters in their season, Mr. McFall comes to our place well recommended, and we trust he will get a good patronage, and if anyone wants to see a nice suit of rooms and everything in good order, call and see him.

Take Notice.

The undersigned, having been requested to act as Chief Marshal for the mass meeting on Sept. 3d, makes the following appointments of Assistant Marshals, with the request that any gentleman so appointed who cannot serve in that capacity will notify him at an early day.

L. Lilley, C. A. Slayton, C. M. Woodward, A. D. Lawrence, Willis Merritt, L. G. North, P. S. McKinnon, Fred Rosacrans, A. L. Brewer, T. C. Cummins, Chas. Bidwell, Jas. Elliott, B. P. Anderson, J. Davidson, W. F. Baxter, A. B. Cotton, P. J. Van Vleet, E. V. DePuy, C. L. Albaugh, A. A. Kennedy, Jas. Moir, H. W. Stevens, W. C. Jordan, John McKinney, W. R. Wooden, Wm. Waldron, Albert Waring.

W. C. FITZSIMMONS.

Tecumseh, Aug. 26, 1880.

Sad Accident.

Geo. Wilson, son of Joe Wilson, of this village, met with a serious accident yesterday. He has been for some time past taking care of S. C. Stacy's team, and when he went to the barn yesterday noon to feed the horses, one of them became frightened in some mysterious manner and kicked or knocked him down into the stall. Milan Wheeler's family, who were just eating dinner, heard a noise at the barn and ran out and found George lying in the stall insensible, with his head and face very badly cut and bruised. Drs. House, North and Jenkins were at once procured and dressed his wounds and he was taken home on a lounge. No bones are broken and hence his friends are hopeful of his recovery, although his condition is critical. It was a sad and mysterious affair. The horse is a very gentle one and George had taken care of her for several months. The boy is having the best of nursing by kind friends, and we sincerely hope and trust he may recover. The particulars of the accident are not known as George is not yet able to explain them. His symptoms this morning are very favorable.

Multum in parvo.—American Ball-Blue is declared by expert housewives to be a little blue giant of many accomplishments for laundry use.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

OSCAR HECK has taken a position as clerk in Tom Adamson's store.

TOM ADAMSON has got a patent preventative against curb-stone sitters.

DR. HINMAN, of Norvell, was in Tecumseh last Monday on a flying visit.

Hill's Buchu is a permanent cure for all diseases of the Urinary Organs.

A SURE way to break up a drought is to get up an excursion to Put-in-Bay.

About in the ratio that bread is the staff of life, is advertising the staff of business.

DEMOCRATIC caucus to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, at the Council Building.

CANINES seem to keep in pretty good humor this year, as we hear very little about mad dogs.

DR. STEWART has bought a lot on Maiden Lane and is preparing to build a residence thereon.

THE Misses Johnson, of Monroe, having spent a few weeks in visiting friends in Tecumseh, left for their home last Tuesday.

MISS ANNA CLARK, of Flint, is the guest of the Misses DeWolf. Miss Clark was a school mate of Miss Grace at Mt. Holyoke Seminary.

JAMES LLOYD BREZEE made his debut as an actor in Detroit last week, taking the leading character in Rosedale. The papers speak in very flattering terms of his success.

THERE will be a harvest dance at the Lake Ridge Hotel, on Friday eve. Sept. 3. Bill only $1.50. Marvin Davenport always gets up good parties, and he proposes that this one shall be a little better than any he has had yet.

J. H. BILLMYRE, of Raisin, is now marketing his peach crop, which will amount to probably 800 bushels. His peaches are of splendid quality and he keeps them on sale at Davidson's Brewer's, Clark's and Henry McClure's.

SEVERAL Adrian parties who attended the Reunion last Saturday dropped into the HERALD sanctum, among them B. F. Graves, the orator of the day, and W. Stearns, of the Adrian Press. The night work on the new daily Press does not seem to tannerize Bro. Stearns a particle.

THERE will be a meeting of the township committee in the interest of the constitutional amendment work at Reform Club Hall, on Friday eve. Aug. 27th, at 7½ o'clock. All citizens who are interested in this work are invited to be present. There will be speaking upon the subject by some of the workers.

WE attended the convention in Manchester last Tuesday, and while there called to see our friend Mat Blosser. We did not find him at home but found his office in excellent working order with Mr. Geo. H. Miles in charge, and we also had a nice little visit with P. S. Blosser, the father of the editor, who formerly lived in Tecumseh.

LAST Monday afternoon a party of young ladies and gentlemen hied away to a pleasant retreat in the grove of P. R. Adams, Esq., with lunch baskets, etc. necessary to picnicers.—The grove resounded with the merry voices of the jovial crowd until sunset, with the exception of lunch time, when the baskets were brought forth and emptied with considerable satisfaction.

THERE was a German picnic last Sunday in Tecumseh and everything went smoothly until the driver who brought over the Adrian people demanded a considerable of an advance of money before he would drive them back. They bounced him and procured another and then went home happy, while their first driver drove back an empty bus, all on account of unsuccessful bulldozing.

MR. T. T. ROMYEN has left at our office a late copy of the Cedar Falls, Iowa, Gazette, which contains this item. Mr. Ormsby will be remembered as a former resident of Tecumseh and a law partner of B. L. Baxter's:

E. S. Ormsby, a prominent citizen of Emmettsburg, writes Mrs. A. O. Abbott the sad intelligence of the death of their darling and only boy, last Sunday noon, from a pistol shot by his own hand. Cause unknown; but supposed to be from mental depression caused by overwork and heat, the day previous. He was about 16 years of age.

WE understand that Mr. Amos Stocking has given up his agency of the Continental Insurance Company, and that the business has been transferred to his daughter, Miss Fannie Stocking. In fact the work of the agency has devolved upon her almost wholly during the past two years, and hence she is well qualified for the position. John F. Murray, Esq., the State Agent of the Continental, recommended Miss Fannie to succeed her father, and the company have issued a commission of appointment to her. She is the first and only regularly appointed lady fire insurance agent in the State.

ON THE ROAD.

A Trip Through the Northwest Part of the County and Farmers' Picnics Without Number.

Last Tuesday evening we hitched up the team and started for Springville, intending to stay a few days with friends of the HERALD in Springville, Woodstock, Cambridge and Rollin, and to take in a few of the farmers' picnics to be held in the lake country last week.

Stopped over night with William Smith (Smith's Hotel) and next morning started for Devil's Lake. On the way we stopped to see F. I. Hinney. He seemed to be in good spirits, except that on account of putting up a brand new wind mill he could not go to the farmers' picnic. He says the sheep business is good and that his sheep averaged him $6.40 per head.

The next man on the road was C. W. Greenleaf. We got there a little too late for him; he had already started for the picnic, but this did not prevent my looking around his farm a little and seeing that it was in just as good condition as a farm could be. We saw him later in the day at the picnic.

As we were groping our way along trying to find out the nearest route to the lake, a familiar voice came up behind, and lo and behold it was Ben Laur, the man whom all stingy farmers stand in awe of during the railroad campaign. We had a good visit with him as also with many others at the picnic, which by the way was almost too much for the HERALD man; three quarters of a mile had to be traversed through the choicest of timber before even a tree could be found where the horses might be hitched, and then the question who was to stay and watch while the report was taken. A boy was chartered, and we found the hotel and vicinity fairly swarmed with people. Picnic particulars in another column.

In the evening we drove back to Elder Wooden's and stopped with him all night. The episode of breaking the pole to the buggy and how well "Billy" Niblack fixed it up, it might be well right here to skip. Uncle Wooden was in good spirits, having been to the picnic and a grange lecture all in one day.

But this was the day for the Grange picnic in Woodstock, and towards Woodstock Grange Hall we turned our steps, via Springville. Arrived there in due season, and besides getting a good report of the picnic, had a good visit with Loss Parsons, Mr. Ferrell and others. As the HERALD man was not a granger the dinner, etc., let out a little quicker than he anticipated, so we started as fast as possible for Uncle Alvin Osborn's, that we might get a few good pears and a little rest. The pears were forthcoming but not the rest. Uncle Alvin thought best that we should go over past Goose Lake, through Woodstock station and Kelly's Corners to Clark's Lake, where the farmers of Jackson county were holding their second annual farmers' picnic. Of course we did as Uncle Alvin said, everyone does, and went over. The exercises were through with before our arrival, but we found that this had been no small affair. It was estimated that over two thousand people had been there during the day, and at this time (5 P. M.) there was certainly quite a crowd. Thomas E. Barkworth, of Jackson, delivered the oration. The Addison (or "Coon Town," as Uncle "Alv" says) and Columbia bands were in attendance, and in the evening Smith & Lambert's band played for all to dance. Eagle's Point, as this ground is called, is controlled by J. L. Dellimater, who has been largely instrumental in the success of the picnic organization.

We stopped over night with Uncle Alvin and had a splendid good visit. He says he is going to the Democratic county convention sure, and hurrahs as loudly for Hancock as many a lad who has but just cast his virgin vote.

In the morning we came down to the Junction, took dinner with F. A. Dewey and then went over to Brooklyn, made A. P. Cook a short call, looked around the town a short time and then drove down to Allen Bros.; took a look and a taste at the mammoth peach orchard, and started for the last picnic at Sand Lake, where Geo. P. Wright and party are camped out for a few days. The Springville band was over and made the lake lively with very good music for so young a band.

From the lake, after calling on Decker and Penticost, we drove over to Springville, stopping over night with Fred Groger at the Springville House, and in the morning drove home, much pleased and invigorated by the trip and with good feelings toward our Western people in general.

Card of Thanks.

The thanks of the Lenawee County Soldiers and Sailors Association are most heartily tendered to the ladies of Tecumseh, who so hadsomely and appropriately decorated the Opera House for their meeting on the 21st.

BY ORDER OF COM.

THERE was some little skirmishing in the Republican caucus last Saturday in order to capture the delegation!

FIREMAN'S EXCURSION.

Sport for the Strong and Death for the Weak Ones.

Last Tuesday evening it commenced to rain and rained continually all night long until 7 o'clock A. M., and as a natural consequence the excursionists who assembled at the depot were not as numerous as was expected. Two coaches were sent to Clinton but they came back in the morning with only eight persons, and as many ice cream freezers filled with cream; and then at Tecumseh there were about 120 persons who clambered into seven coaches, each occupying two seats at least, so that the train when it pulled out looked decidedly light; but, we heard no one complain of not having room enough to sit down.

Although the crowd was small there was as much sport and vitality in it as there ever was in an excursion, and every one did what he pleased; slept if he was sleepy, sung and yelled if he felt like it.

At Chase's the crowd was swelled by the addition of twelve more, and then we were all ready and away we started again, and with only a few stops we soon reached Toledo. Here we unloaded ourselves, and the same misty sky and drizzling rain contributed to make things look cheerful, as in Tecumseh. But the crowd was not to be baffled by a cloudy sky and a little wind, so on to the steamer we went, where again we had as much room as we wanted. We soon got out and commenced steaming down the river with everybody in high spirits, but what a change came over those rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes when we were a few miles out of the river. The lake rolled and the boat pitched and the women trembled. It was a fearful time; immediately the buckets were brought and placed in convenient places, and no sooner were they brought than a head was over each one. It was heart rending to behold the gulps and sobs with which they parted with their last meal, it would rend the strings of an adamantine heart. But a scene that description cannot convey, was when a young couple, perhaps taking their first excursion trip together were both at the same time impelled towards the pail, and never before did a person hear such lamentable and loving appeals for help. It was thusly all the way, all the weaker sex were sick.

We arrived at the island about one o'clock, and were greatly relieved to get out. Grapes and other fruit were abundant, and the crowd passed the time until three o'clock in roaming about the island. Then the boat whistled and in a short time started, with no one left. The lake, coming back, was rougher than it was going which every one seemed to appreciate. But to the great comfort of those that were not sick, the sick ones had thrown up everything on the trip down, and were wise enough not to eat anything more until they reached Toledo.

We arrived in Toledo at six and waited there until a little after eight before the train started. We got in Tecumseh about 10 o'clock, and were glad to see home again.

The firemen did not feel any better than the others, as they lost about $75 on the excursion. The blame for this the Tecumseh people should receive, when they know that the boys are trying to raise funds to procure uniforms, a matter that effects the town as much as the fireman, and then not to patronize and aid them in their efforts is hardly fare. We hope that after this the firemen's efforts will be better appreciated, and that they may not, at least, lose money through the backwardness of our own citizens to patronize their undertakings.

TEMPERANCE MASS MEETING.

A grand temperance Mass Meeting and basket picnic will be held at Tecumseh, on Friday, Sept. 3d, 1880, commencing at 10:30 A. M., in the interest of the proposed amendment to the constitution of the State. The most imposing procession ever seen in Lenawee county will move through the streets under the command of Col. W. C. Fitzsimmons. A car of state, three or four brass bands, four horse teams, banners and flags will be prominent in the procession. Hon. C. S. Mosher and Prof. S. Dickie are expected to address the meeting. Let every neighborhood within ten miles of Tecumseh make up a four horse team and come with a load. Let every family come in the family carriage, so that the liquor trade may appreciate the strength of the temperance element of our county.

J. H. OSBORN, Chairman.
REV. C. E. CONLEY, Secretary.

VICTOR CLOVER HULLERS.

I am agent for the sale of these Clover Hullers in Tecumseh and vicinity. Persons wishing to purchase are requested to examine one of the machines which I have stored in the rear of Raymond's foundry in Tecumseh.

L. A. Mudgett.

—Farmers who are going to buy Drills call and see the Baker screw feed at E. V. DePuy's.

—Farmers, look at those adjustable Fruit Ladders at Kennedy's.

—Call and get prices on Dress Goods at Eaton's.

—Floor and table Oil Cloths,
Holland & Opaque window curtains,
Lace and Lappet Muslin curtains,
Lambrequin Trimmings—all new,
A. B. Cotton.

—If you wish to buy a nice Hammock call at J. A. Eaton & Co's.

—Everything new in Mitts and Parasols. A. B. Cotton.

—All of Dr. Warner's makes of Corsets. A. B. Cotton.

—Get this year's Mackinaw Hat.—No Hats carried over.
A. B. Cotton.

—A Special offer for 30 days. One hundred and ten dollars will buy a good upright Piano, Warranted for five years at Adamson's.

—If you want a good porcelain and cylinder pump get it at the Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

—Baker & Hall keep Kidney-wort, Hop Bitters, St. Jacobs Oil, and all other popular medicines always on hand.

—The only place to get pure Genoa Lime is at S. W. Temple's, also water lime and calcined plaster.

—We have just received a new stock of summer cassimeres.
J. A. Eaton & Co.

—Champion Rubber Buckets for chain pumps at Tecumseh Pump Shop of C. L. Albaugh.

COAL! COAL!

All sizes of hard coal for this month, Delivered in the corporation, per ton $6.80. S. W. TEMPLE.

—Stewart's "Alexandre" Kids.
A. B. Cotton.

—Baker & Hall have a full stock of Castor, Lard, Golden, and Black Engine Oils and Axle Grease for Reapers, Mowers and Threshing Machines.

—Granite Monuments and Headstones for sale cheap at the Tecumseh Steam Granite and marble works.

—Paris Green, London Purple and Persian Insect Powder for the bugs at Baker & Hall's.

—One of the best blood purifiers ever made is "King of the Blood." Sold by Druggists generally. Manufactured by D. Ransom Son & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

—Cheneille and Zephyr Shawls at Eaton's.

BLACK SILKS AND CASHMERES AT COTTON'S

—Fans, Japanese, Cotton and Silk Parasols at Eaton's.

—A full line of drills at Kennedy's.

—Full Stock of Ribbons and Ruchings at Eaton's.

CHILLED PLOWS,

Warranted to plow in any soil, either sticky or hard, from $2,00 to $5,00 below any other make of same quality at Clinton Foundry. Ground points for all leading plows $4,50 per dozen at Clinton Foundry.

D. Woodward.

—We shall offer bargain in Dress Goods, shawls and all summer goods for the next 30 days in order to make room for fall stock.
J. A. Eaton & Co.,

—Wagon making and repairing cheaply and promptly executed at A Watterson's wagon shop on Pearl st. Griffith's old stand.

—Secure better pictures, and oblige us, by bringing in the little ones in the morning. We go to Clinton every Friday.
Brown, the Photographer.

—D. Jones is opening up a large invoice of imported and domestic cloths for the fall trade. Call and examine.

—The South Bend Chilled Plow is fast taking the lead. Sold by E. V. DePuy.

—Birdsell Monitor Jr. Clover Huller at E. V. DePuy's.

—Read Alva Raymond's testimonial for the "Springer Wheel Harrow" after having tried the "Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow":

"Having purchased of Messrs. Slayton & Son a "Springer Spring Tooth Harrow and Cultivator" I have no hesitancy in saying it is the best tool I ever saw for preparing ground for seed. It takes the place of both Cultivator and Harrow. It pulverizes hard ground better than anything I ever used, leaving it in splendid condition.
Alva Raymond."

—The new Shoe Drill, at
E. V. DePuy's.

DIED.

ERSKINE—At the parents' residence in this village on the 19th inst., of cholera infantum, James Floyd Erskine, aged two months.

The burial services were held at the house on Friday afternoon, the 20th inst. The little casket, covered with beautiful flowers, was conveyed to its final resting place in the mother's arms.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

TECUMSEH LODGE, NO. 14, I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS every Tuesday Evening at their Lodge Room over Brewer's Store, Chicago Street.

L. S. CHAPMAN, Sec. J. F. JENKINS, N. G

Railroad Time Tables.

L. S. and M. S. RAILROAD.

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations.	No. 16 Mail.	No. 18 Express.	No. 44 Accom.
Jackson	6 50 am	7 30 pm	1 [illegible] pm
Napoleon		7 55 "	2 55 "
Norvel		8 05 "	3 05 "
Manchester	7 38 "	8 38 "	3 36 "
Clinton	7 44 "	8 40 "	3 48 "
Tecumseh	8 07 "	8 56 "	4 10 "
Adrian	8 33 "	9 22 "	4 36 "
Detroit	10 30 "	9 15 "
Toledo	9 50 "	5 25 "

TRAINS GOING NORTH

Stations.	No. 15 Mail.	No. 17 Express.	No. 43 Accom.
Detroit	7 50 am	6 40 pm
Toledo	10 10 "	8 25 "
Adrian	12 01 pm	9 29 "	5 10 am
Tecumseh	12 31 "	9 57 "	6 25 "
Clinton	12 41 "	10 07 "	7 30 "
Manchester	1 00 "	10 30 "	8 25 "
Norvel	1 13 "	10 45 "	8 65 "
Napoleon	1 25 "	10 55 "	9 25 "
Jackson	1 50 "	11 20 "	10 20 "

CHARLES PAINE, Gen. Sup't

P. S. BLODGETT, Detroit Div. Sup't.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Coupon tickets can now be procured at this station over best routes, to all principal cities in the U. S.

N. S. SATTERTHWAITE, Ticket Agent

Post Office, Tecumseh, Michigan.

MAILS CLOSE.

Eastern and Detroit—morning mail ..... 7 30 A. M
Northern and Detroit, via Jackson ..... 12 00 M
Eastern and Detroit ..... 5 00 P. M

OVERLAND.

Tipton, Springville, Cambridge & Brooklyn, Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays. 1 00 "
Ridgeway—daily ..... 1 30 "
Lake Ridge, daily ..... 1 30 "
Macon, Friday ..... 12 00 M.

ARRIVALS.

Northern Mail ..... 7 45 A. M
Eastern Mail ..... 12 31 A. M. 9 57 P. M

Office hours from 7 A. M., to 8 P. M. Sundays from 10 to 10 30 A. M.

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M

STEWART'S DENTAL ROOMS,

In Lilley & Wright's New Block.

Dental Work Solicited

H. L. STEWART.

Samuel McClure

(Successor to McClure Brothers)

Manufacturer of and Dealer in

Sash, Doors & Blinds,

And all kinds of

MOULDINGS AND BRACKETS.

Shop in the old Slayton Planing Mill, near R. R. Depot,

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN

GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS.

WILLIAM GASTON

Having purchased the stock of Groceries lately owned by H. C. Conkling, and

Having Largely Added Thereto,

Would respectfully invite his old friends to call and see him in the Richard Block, where he will show you a fine assortment of

Choice Family Groceries,

Which he is offering for sale at

VERY LOW FIGURES.

I have removed my

BLACKSMITH SHOP,

To the old stand of J. H. Mills,

On Logan Street,

Opposite Hayden's Warehouse, where I have better facilities than ever for doing good work.

Horse Shoeing a specialty

ED. ROWLAND.

P. B. SWICK,

Manufacturer of

Light & Heavy Harness

And Dealer in

Trunks, Whips, Robes, Blankets,

And all articles kept for sale in a first-class Horse Furniture Store.

Good Work! Low Prices!

Call and see him, one door south of Joe Wooden's Meat Market, Railroad street,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

SANITARY SCIENCE.

THE INFLUENCE OF ODORS.

Every person or thing is surrounded by certain odors, of which they are generally unconscious, because their other senses of sight and hearing are far more delicately trained and frequently used. The pleasure of what we see and hear so far outbalance the pains they afford us such quick and fresh sensations of delight, and they are so necessary for every act of our lives, that the less intense senses of touch and smell often lie latent, or at least unnoticed. Their reports to the brain, like letters from a correspondent from whom by experience we have learned to expect nothing of importance, are thrown aside unread or with but a careless glance, while every faculty of heart and brain is aroused by the tidings which the eye and ear convey through the swift nerve messengers to the sensitive and living consciousness of man.

It is very far otherwise when these communications are cut off by defect and disease. When the mind sits alone in the darkened chambers of the brain, how intense is its listening, how delicate its hearing! But if not only darkness, but silence is its destiny, how eagerly it creeps to the other and lower gateways of the soul to gain some tidings from the outside world of life and motion.

It is not only related of the blind that they learn to distinguish colors by the touch, but in the case of one girl, both blind and deaf, personality and relationship were discerned by scent, as she distinguished the gloves belonging to a brother and sister among a miscellaneous heap. It has been suggested that animals, whose homing instinct, as it is called, and whose powers of smelling are both so remarkable, are guided in great measure by the smells of places. They are often carried away by night or shut in a way which prevents them seeing the road by which they are conducted, yet doubtless the successions of odors, to which they are keenly sensitive, are stamped on their memory as ineffaceably as a succession of landscapes would be on ours.

The ancients laid great stress on sweet and subtle odors as they considered them as acting up, and quickening the intellectual faculties of man. We are all conversant with the reviving power of pungent and aromatic smells in cases of sudden weakness;—and there are others which have equally as strong a soothing and quieting influence, as hops and bulbs used for swellings and acute pain. There is nothing more suggestive of balmy slumbers than the faint sweetness of "everlasting" flowers, associated as they are with the still twilight of the year, the aerial, dimly lighted autumnal landscape, and the low winds wafting their odors over the long levels of the bare fields.

In every crowded thoroughfare or close alley may be seen the injurious effects of bad scents and vitiated air on the general tone of the system, and by means of this on the mind. One may lose the perception of these by being hourly accustomed to breath the foul atmosphere, but what a change there is, if one is brought suddenly into a fresh, breezy air. The cobwebs seem swept from the heavy brain, the heart is lightened and one involuntarily draws a long, free respiration, full of the buoyancy of hope.

A bad odor is in reality a warning of danger. There are dead or decaying substances, and infinitesimal forms of animal life in the dust, and evil scented particles which the sensitive lungs and nostrils would fain reject. As Huxley has told us, an open wound is quickly inflamed and festered from having these brought in contact with it by the air, and it is therefore of the highest importance that sores, cuts and burns should be kept bandaged. The lungs and skin are also affected most injuriously by these, although it may not be at once apparent that such is the case.

Great care ought to be taken that nothing soiled or producing bad odors should be left in a bed chamber or sick-room, as the invalid and the sleeper cannot resist the evil effects as a person in active life might. Nor should any water be used for drinking which is left in a bed-room, as a deposit of impure particles is formed in it by the breathing of the persons sleeping in it. The same deposit of impurities takes place through the pores of the skin, which necessitates daily bathing, constant airing of clothes and a change from the garments of the night to those of the day. The breath of fresh air, which one so instinctively seeks immediately after leaving one's room in the morning, is inwardly cleansing, and as much needed as the bath to give tone and freshness to the system. It is not a figure of speech alone by which we say "the breath of life," or the "spirit which God breathes into man," for both soul and body rejoice in the strong, glad respiration of an innocent and healthy human being, and both suffer from its disorder and weakness.—Arthur's Home Magazine.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Sturgis cries for a band.

Fruit raising in Clare county is no longer a matter of doubt.

The ladies' band of Caro furnishes excellent music.

Corn in the west part of Branch co will not be more than half a crop.

The fruit crop in Midland County will be large this year.

The Methodist church of Sturgis have put in place a new bell which cost $[illegible].

The wife of Dr. Follet, one of the first settlers of Sturgis died on the 14th inst.

Lydia Blakeman, of Deckerville, died from the effects of a rattlesnake bite, one day last week.

Daniel Adams lost his house and contents, at Fenton, by a $2,500 fire, on Monday night; insured for $1,500.

The latest novelty in Jonesville was a watermelon party at the residence of Miss Rosa Gage. It was a fine affair.

A house belonging to Geo. M. Bodley, at Battle Creek, was blown down last Thursday.

It is estimated that there is 1,900,000,000 feet of pine timber standing in the forests of Clare county.

It is said of the oat crop about Rochester that the straw is abundant, while the grain is light.

Greenville Independent: Grain threshing is in progress. Yields vary; but in general the yield this year is much behind.

A new station has been established on the Big Rapids branch, eight miles this side of Big Rapids, to be known as Rodney.

Hon. Hugh McCurdy, of Corunna, was elected senior warden by the triennial conclave of Knights Templar in Chicago last Thursday.

Edwin Bingham was fatally shot at Kingsley, near Traverse city, Thursday afternoon. His father is Dr. Bingham, of Grand Rapids.

Harrison, Clare county, is to have a bakery with all modern improvements; but it has not risen to the dignity of having a newspaper.

The wheat crop this year in St. Joseph county is claimed to exceed in quantity the crop of last year, and makes a better quality and larger yield of flour.

J. F. Newton, of St. Louis, has a peach orchard which was planted five years ago, and from which he will this year harvest 200 bushels of fine peaches.

The champion Hillsdale four having disbanded, they now send out a junior four who will take the same name, and it is hoped will maintain the same reputation.

The farmers of Pavillion township, Kalamazoo county are cutting their corn. The dry weather has caused this early work, as it is thought the corn will ripen best in the shocks.

Fred Medhes, of Maple Valley township, Montcalm county, whose barn was struck by lightning one night last week was severely burned while attempting to save his property.

J. N. Underhill, a young farmer of Lasalle township, Monroe co., having suddenly gone crazy with the idea that he was called to preach instead of plowing, has been taken to the Insane Asylum at Pontiac.

The new residence of O. M. Brownson, of Evart, fast approaching completion, was damaged $150 by lightning, Wednesday night, the second stroke it has sustained inside of three months.

Fred Powers, who has been in jail at Lapeer for some time, charged with firing a pistol at Miss Remer, was arraigned before the circuit court Thursday, pleaded guilty and discharged on suspended sentence.

A young man who lives in Owosso, had his left hand awed off at the wrist while working in Drury's sawmill at Bennington, last week. He slipped when the carriage was gigged back, and threw out his hand, to save himself.

Egbert Munson, a well-known farmer residing a short distance north of Shepardsville, Clinton county, and another man named Robert Corpé, were instantly killed by lightning on Thursday morning, while standing under a tree.

The Democratic pole at Ludington, which stood up 140 feet in the air, was struck by lightning on Saturday last, and broken off 30 ft. from the ground. The top crashed through a livery stable, and the stump was shivered. The party still lives, however.

While playing with some other boys and a revolver on Thursday last, a 14 years old son of Stephen Boudrie, was shot in the head. Although the ball entered the nose and lodged in the back part of the neck, the wound is not considered dangerous.

Hezekiah Deyroff, living a short distance east of Davis, Macomb co. lost a barn and shed filled with hay and grain, burned by lightning on Thursday; loss about $1,500, partly insured. The Methodist church two miles south of the village, also suffered slightly from lightning.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

ASK the recovered Dyspeptic, Bilious Sufferer, Victims of Fever and Ague, the Mercurial Diseased Patient how they recovered Health, Cheerful Spirits and Good Appetite — they will tell you by taking

Simmons Liver Regulator

For DYSPEPSIA, CONSTIPATION, Jaundice, Bilious Attacks, Sick Headache, Colic, Depression of Spirits, Sour Stomach, Heat, Earth, &c.

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

This unrivalled Southern remedy is warranted not to contain a single particle of Mercury, or any injurious mineral substance, and is

PURELY VEGETABLE.

If you feel drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or "biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as to take

Simmons Liver Regulator.

It is given with safety and the happiest results to the most delicate infant. It takes the place of quinine and bitters of every kind. It is the cheapest purest and best family medicine in the world.

J. H. Zeilin & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Children CRY FOR Pitcher's Castoria.

Mothers like, and Physicians recommend it.

IT IS NOT NARCOTIC.

CENTAUR LINIMENTS; the World's great Pain-Relieving remedies. They heal, soothe and cure Burns, Wounds, Weak Back and Rheumatism upon Man, and Sprains, Galls, and Lameness upon Beasts. Cheap, quick and reliable.

K. B.

KING OF THE BLOOD.

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It radicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or $6 to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK

OF W. C. FITZSIMMONS & CO.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

Deposits Received, Collections Made And Money Loaned.

DRAFTS DRAWN which are Available in all the principal Cities of the World. Interest paid on Savings Deposits.

LEON J. DUTTON, Cashier.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 1879.

Hardwick Granite Co.

L. A. DAVIS, Western Manager.

Office and Works at

TECUMSEH, - MICHIGAN.

JAPANESE NAPKINS.

A fine assortment now in stock at the HERALD OFFICE. Just the thing for wedding receptions, and private parties. Sold by the dozen or hundred at reasonable figures. Call and see them

LEGAL NOTICES.

ESTATE OF ISAAC COLLINS,

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, the 31st day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Isaac Collins, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Mary Ann Collins, widow of said deceased, praying for the Probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that letters of administration on said estate, with the will annexed, be granted to Frazer McCauley or some other suitable person, there being no executor in said will named.

Therefore it is ordered, That Monday, the 30th day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. Briggs, Probate Register. aug. 5

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

AMERICAN

BALL BLUE.

THIS IS THE BEST BLUEING IN USE!

IT IS NOT POISONOUS!

HELPS BLEACHING and GIVES A BEAUTIFUL TINT.

For Sale by all Grocers.

American Ultramarine Works,

55 Maiden Lane, New York.

THE CORNER GROCERY

—OF—

WILSON McCLURE

Is the place to buy your

Teas, Coffees, Spices,

Canned Fruits and Baking Powders,

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS,

And a general variety of

CHOICE FAMILY GROCERIES

Everything New, Neat and Clean.

Highest market price paid for Butter and Eggs.

P. J. WELLING,

Proprietor of the Tecumseh

General Repair Shop,

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Sewing Machines, Reapers and Mowers, Clothes Wringers,

And all kinds of METAL WORK promptly repaired.

SAW FILING A SPECIALTY.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CHANCERY NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, First Judicial Circuit, in Chancery, Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County, in Chancery.

Caroline Lentz, Complainant,
vs.
Gottlieb Lentz, Defendant.

Before Charles L. Hall, one of the Circuit Court Commissioners for said county, at the city of Adrian, the 26th day of July, A.D. 1880.

It satisfactorily appearing by affidavit on file that the defendant Gottlieb Lentz is not a resident of the state of Michigan, but that he now resides in the state of Indiana. On motion of Wm. L. Greenly, solicitor, and C. A. Stacy and T. A. Stacy of counsel for complainant, it is ordered that the said defendant appear in this cause within three months from the date of this order, or the demand therein, that the bill of complaint in the cause taken as confessed by said defendant. It is further ordered, that within twenty days from the date hereof, said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper published in the village of Tecumseh, in said county of Lenawee, for six successive weeks, or in each week, or that a copy of the order be personally served on said defendant. It is further ordered that said defendant be allowed twenty days before the time herein, and for the service.

CHARLES L. HALL,
Circuit Court Commissioner.

WM. L. GREENLY, Solicitor for Complainant.
C. A. & J. A. STACY, of Counsel for Complt.
july29

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

BY virtue of an order of the Probate Judge, of the county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, made on the 26th day of July, A.D. 1880, licensing me as administrator of the estate of Henry Tripp, deceased, to sell the right, title and interest of which said deceased died seized in and to the lands hereinafter described, I will, on the 11th day of September, A.D. 1880, at the office of the undersigned in the village of Tecumseh in said county and State, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, sell at public vendue all the interest and title of which said deceased died seized, in that parcel of land situate in the township of Franklin, county of Lenawee and State of Michigan, known and described as the west half of the north east quarter of section twenty-nine, town five south of range three east, containing eighty acres more or less, which sale will also be made subject to a mortgage on said land given by said deceased and his wife to Lucius Lilley, and subject to the right of dower of the widow of deceased, the particulars of which mortgage and the terms of sale will be published at and before said sale.

Dated July 27th, 1880.

EDWIN R. WOOD, Administrator of Estate of Henry Tripp, Deceased.

jul29

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of Mary Sones, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Mary Sones, late of the township of Macon, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 15th day of September, 1880, and 14th day of December, 1880, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon on each of said days, six months from the 14th day of June, 1880, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

CHARLES W. CULBERTSON,
AUSTIN G. HALL,
Commissioners.

july29

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN the matter of the estate of Abbie Griswold, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for county of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Abbie Griswold, late of the township of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 27th day of August, 1880, and January 27th, 1881, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, six months from the 12th day of July, 1880, are allowed by the said Court for the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated July 24th, 1880.

WM. C. FITZSIMMONS,
SEATON W. ANDERSON,
Commissioners

17 STOP ORGANS Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, only $95.75. New Pianos $195 to $1,600.—Midsummer offer. Address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, N. J.

Agents Wanted for SMITH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY & HOLMAN'S NEW PICTORIAL BIBLES. Address, for circulars, A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Phila.

ELMIRA COLLEGE.

This college is thoroughly furnished for giving a superior education in Collegiate and Eclectic Courses of Study, and also in Music and Art. By reason of its endowment its charges are unusually moderate. Send for catalogue to REV. A. W. COWLES, D.D., Pres., Elmira, N. Y.

MALT THE NEW FOOD MEDICINE BITTERS

DO not confound this Matchless Renovator of Feeble and Exhausted Constitutions with violent cathartics, cheap decoctions of vile drugs, and ruinous intoxicants innocently labeled "bitters." MALT BITTERS appeal to popular confidence because prepared from Unfermented Malt, Hops, and Quinine, and precious ingredients, according to the process of Liebig and are richer in the elements that restore to permanent health the Weak, Convalescent, Consumptive, Over-worked, Nervous, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Bilious, and Fickle in Appetite, than all other forms of Malt or Medicine. The genuine are plainly signed by the company. Sold everywhere. MALT BITTERS CO., Boston, Mass.

The BEST HEALTH AND STRENGTH RESTORER EVER USED.

So perfect is the composition of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC that no disease can long exist where it is used. If you have Dyspepsia, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bowel, Kidney, or Liver Disorder, or if you need a mild stimulant, or appetizer, the TONIC is just the medicine for you, as it is highly curative and invigorating but never intoxicating. Try a 50c. bottle. Your druggist can supply you.

PENSIONS.

New laws. Thousands entitled. Every soldier even slightly disabled, by wounds, disease, or accident, entitled to pension, dating back to day of discharge. Even the loss of a finger or toe, entitles to pension. Also all widows and dependent parents, and minors entitled. Time limited. Apply at once. Many pensioners now entitled to increase. Bounty yet due to thousands. Land cases settled. Patents procured for inventors. Fees fixed by law. Send two stamps for new laws, blanks and instructions to E. H. GELSTON & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, Lock Box 725, Washington, D. C.

A. B. PARK,

DRY GOODS DEALER

ADRIAN,

Bought heavily before the advance in Dry Goods, and can offer extra inducements to Dry Goods buyers.

SHAWLS A SPECIALTY.

New Stock of Fine Hosiery, Gloves, Ruchings and Neckwear.

BARGAINS IN BLACK SILKS.

PATTERN PAPER.

We have in stock, at the HERALD office, a heavy grade of Manilla paper. It is put up in rolls and can be cut in strips of any length desired. Just the thing for patterns.

NOTIC S.

RY NOTICE.
AN, First Judicial Circuit, ending in the Circuit Court
nery.
tz, Complainant,
vs.
atz, Defendant.
l, one of the Circuit Court county, at the city of Adri-
A.D. 1880.
ing by affidavit on file that the new residence
On motion of Wm. L.
A. Stacy and J. A. Stacy, it is ordered that the abing cause within three of this order, or the defen-complaint in this cause said defendant. It is fur-twenty days from the date under a notice of this order
CONNER Hyatt, a new Technical in said
six successive weeks, sub-of the order to pro-
Hatch, at Jonesville, Hillsdays from the date
hereof, and for his costs.
CHARLES L. HALY,
Circuit Court Commissioner,
Solicitor for Complainant.
Of Counsel for Complt. dy29

ATOR'S SALE. of the Probate Judge of wee and State of Michigan, of July, A.D. 1880, licensing
the estate of Henry Tripp, ght, title and interest of seized in and to the lands will, on the 11th day of the office of the undersigusch in said county and the forenoon, sell at public and title of which said deat parcel of land situate in in, county of Lenawee and wn and described as the east quarter of section south of range three east, more or less, subject
ject to a mortgage on said sed and his wife to Lucius the right of dower of the particulars of which mort-le will be published at and WOOD, Administrator of Henry Tripp, Deceased.

NERS' NOTICE.
the estate of Mary Sones,
ng been appointed by the nty of Lenawee, to receive, examine and unds against the estate of ownship of Macon, Lena-ceased, hereby give notice
at purpose at the office of village of Tecumseh, Len-
on the 15th day of Sep-ly of December, 1880, at 10 on each of said days, six y of June, 1880, are allow-the creditors of said estate
ame for examination and
LES W. CULBERTSON
N G. HALL,
Commissioners.

NERS' NOTICE.
estate of Abbie Griswold,
ng been appointed by the
nty of Lenawee, Michigan,
, examine and adjust all st the estate of Abbie Grisp of Tecumseh, Lenawee ased, hereby give notice
at purpose at the office of village of Tecumseh, Len-
on the 27th day of August, 881, at 10 o'clock in the days, six months from the are allowed by the said of said estate to present
mination and adjustment.
C. FITZSIMMONS,
TON W. ANDERSON,
Commissioners.

S Sub-Bass and Coupler, boxed and shipped, on-
fos. $195 to $1,600.—
Address Daniel F. Beatty,

TH'S BIBLE DICTIONARY &
ORIAL BIBLES.
J. HOLMAN & Co., Phila.

COLLEGE.
ly furnished for giving Collegiate and Eclectic o in Music and Art. By its charges are unusually atalogue to REV. A. W. ra, N. Y.

ALT
W FOOD
Battery
CINE
TERS
Matchless, Renovator of d Constitutions with vio-
ctions of vile drugs, and cently labeled "bitters."
e popular confidence bermented Malt, Hops, and ngredients, according to re richer in the elements health-Making Power
r-worked, Nervous, Sleepand Fickle in Appetite, alt or Medicine. The gen-
by the company. Sold
TERS CO., Boston, Mass.

H AND STRENGTH
EVER USED.
opposition of PARKER'S
o disease can long exist ave Dyspepsia, Headeuralgia, Bowel, Kid-
, or if you need a mild e TONIC is just the med-ly curative and invigor-
ng. Try a 50c. bottle
you.

IONS.
ntitled. Every soldier wounds, disease, or acci-dating back to day of dis-
a finger or toe, entitles ows and dependent pa-
Time limited. Apply
ers now entitled to in-thousands. Land cases for inventors. Fees fix-ps for new laws, blanks
ELSTON & CO., Pension
k Box 725, Washington,

PARK, S DEALER
IAN,
before the ad-
oods, and can ducements to buyers.
SPECIALTY.
Hosiery, Gloves,
Neckwear.
BLACK SILKS.

HERALD office, a heavy is put up in rolls and length desired. Just

THE FARMERS' PAGE.

FARMERS IN COUNCIL.

IMMENSE PICNIC AT DEVILS LAKE LAST WEDNESDAY—FULL REPORT OF THE MEETING.

The County Grange Meeting at Woodstock on the Following Day.

The annual meeting of the Hillsdale and Lenawee Co. Farmers' Picnic Association was held at Devils Lake on Wednesday, Aug. 18, '80. It cannot be exactly estimated at what time the people began to gather at the grounds, but it would certainly be correct to state that at seven o'clock it was impossible to obtain stable room for a horse and almost impossible to even get a tree to hitch him to, and still people continued to come and kept on coming until three o'clock in the afternoon, at which time it was estimated that there were upwards of 10,000 people on the ground. Such a crowd was never seen in any one place in Lenawee county, and it would be a difficult task to find them at one gathering anywhere in the state. Persons were present from every town in the two counties, and many from Jackson and Monroe counties.

The Clayton, North Adams and Wheatland Bands were in attendance and discoursed music during the day.

About half past one o'clock the immense crowd was called to order by the president, I. E. Phelps, of Medina, and services opened with prayer by Mrs. Dr. Town, of Rollin; then the Doxology was sung by nearly 3,000 people, after which the President welcomed the guests and members with a brief but well chosen address. The audience then listened to the opening address by Mr. E. D. Allen, of the Morenci Observer, of which we give a short synopsis:

SPEECH BY E. D. ALLEN.

"I had heard of the Farmers Picnics at Devils Lake, but never until this moment had I an idea of their magnitude, and it is certainly a grand affair when a person can stand here on the platform and see farmers and their families from all parts of the two counties, and from almost all parts of the State.

I have traveled over all parts of this state, and have been a resident of it for many years, and it seems almost only a day since all this country thro' here was one vast wilderness; and now as we look over this vast farming country, and see the works of our intelligent and well educated farmers we cannot only see the best farms and farming country in our state but it ranks among the best in the world.

Yet not only has this part of the country improved, but the whole State; and it has come to a point where even many are glad to be Governor even though the salary be only one thousand dollars a year. Yes, we have hundreds of men who are seeking for our state and county offices, just for the honor conferred upon them by holding these offices. The woods are full of men who are seeking to be Sheriff of Lenawee county.

But, ladies and gentlemen, I will not longer detain you with this kind of talk. I am simply here to congratulate you on the success of your gatherings and this one in particular. All we have to do is to think that each one has a mission to perform, and then let each one perform that mission to the best of his ability; in this way our farms will improve, our families prosper and thrive, and in due time our farmers can say that they are the best educated, healthiest and wealthiest people in the country, as they are now fast getting to be."

SPEECH BY HON. BRACKLEY SHAW, OF DOVER.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:—I am glad to meet you here to-day, and see so many of our farmers and their families present on this occasion, for in such gatherings we become more and more acquainted with each other, and learn to be social and courteous.

I am before you to-day to speak more as a pioneer than as a farmer, and to get started on this subject at once:—What did we see in place of these surroundings forty-five years ago? At that time our homes were log houses, our families small but happy ones, our farms swamps and wood lands, and our society the love for improvement, which has stimulated us to make palaces of our log huts and splendid farms of our swamps and timbered lands.

At that time we had no State of Michigan, only a tract of country between the lakes; the central part of which was considered as one great swamp. But as this was not a country for large timber and as there were no mineral interests in this section, men came here to settle and stay, and this is the reason that in so short a time Michigan has become such a beautiful farming state, and why the farmers are so intelligent and prosperous; it was their love for improvement.

But my time is passing, and I will only say a word more to those who are enjoying the fruits of our early days and of hard pioneer labor; friends, be not too close, but enjoy them, and feel that we have not lived and worked in vain.

This was followed with a selection of music by the North Adams band.

The next on the program was the name of R. M. Johnstone, of the Michigan Farmer.

MR. JOHNSTONE'S SPEECH.

Ladies and Gentlemen of Hillsdale and Lenawee counties:—It is with extreme pleasure that I am able to meet with you here to-day, and am greatly surprised to meet such a concourse of people at such a time, and glad to see our farmers enjoying a day's pleasure after working hard to gather in a bountiful harvest. And right here it might be well to say that we are right in the heart of the best farming country of the great west, and among the most prosperous, wealthy and intelligent of the farming class; and indeed farmers, many of you do not know how well you are off. You have the best of climate for a farmer's prosperity; your lands are easy to clear and work; you have the heat of summer and the cold of winter to make you progressive and industrious farmers.—You began at a most auspicious time for farmers, and have been induced to improve both pecuniarily and intellectually since.

Our farmers induced by our climate and their love for improvement and advancement, have not only made great progress for the short space of time, but have also the best system of education among themselves, that might be seen in any farming community. We have an Agricultural College, and it was but a few days ago that I met a man from Missouri who came back to look into the management and workings of our Agricultural College at Lansing, that he might pattern after it, as it had the best reputation of any Agricultural College in our states; and this is only an example of how our State stands as far as schools are concerned.

Only a few years ago it was claimed that steam could not be practically used for shipping purposes across the ocean, that it was too expensive and not safe enough. Last Saturday eight steam vessels, laden with the products of the farmers, sailed from N. Y. city; and this is only an example of what is being done every week. Our farmers are to-day not only growing what this country can consume, but we have a large surplus of grain and vegetable products to be shipped to other countries every year, thus showing that no farmer who has a mind to work and work hard can fail to become prosperous and even wealthy.

But the one great reason why our farmers of Michigan have so prospered is because they have been wise enough to take advantage of the improvements in farming tools and new methods of farming; not being so foolish as to go through their lives without reading, and having an idea that no improvements could be made on the old way of doing business. And now, friends, all I have to say is, keep up the grand march of improvement, not only for yourselves, but for your wives, sons and daughters, that your children may progress as much in their generation as you have in yours.

SPEECH BY GOV. C. M. CROSWELL.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:—This is a great time and gala-day for the farmers, and indeed for every one present. I do not pretend to be a farmer, nor even the son of a farmer. I cannot look wise and tell of the days when I used to drive the team and hold the plow; however I may be a judge as to the qualities of a good farmer. No one can be successful unless he is skilled in his calling, no matter whether he be a mechanic, a merchant or a farmer, and it is that class of farmers that Michigan is blessed with. They get the best prices for their crops because they are skillful in the raising of them, and well read as to their value in the markets; and they are enabled by their industry and experience to drift more and more into this channel every day, as the sons profit by the fathers' experience.

No one can do well in any calling they do not love, no more than any man can be a good husband to a woman he does not love and cherish.—Our Michigan farmers love their calling, their labor and their families, and hence a great part of their prosperity.

A man who can look over his farm of sixty, eighty or a hundred acres, and see his stock improving, his wheat and corn nicely tended and growing, his buildings and fences in good repair, is the most independent man on the face of the earth, and yet our young farmers are constantly turning their faces cityward and making up their minds that to get independent on the farm is the work of a lifetime. To be sure many are the Stewarts and Astors, but millions are they who in our cities have scarcely food to feed themselves and their families. Young men, stick to your farms; progress and labor as your father's did and it will not be long that with strict industry and economy you may become what your parents are to-day, honest, wealthy and honorable men.

Our farmers' daughters too are some of them getting the idea that city girls dress better and with more taste than they do, that the life of the shop girl is easier and more refined than than that of a farmer's daughter. But this is untrue. Our country girls of to-day are well educated, healthy and well dressed and can make much more progress in the country than in the city. In short we can say that God made the country, that God made the city, that God made the country—in the country everything is natural, in the city all is artificial.

At the close of the Governor's speech he received three cheers for his efforts and they were hearty ones too.

This ended the regular program. Several persons were called on to make speeches. W. H. Wilcox, of Adrian, and the State Grange Lecturer, C. L. Whitney, responded with brief but appropriate addresses.

This was the end of the literary exercises. The next in order after music by the three bands in unison, was the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the Secretary. Then came the election of officers, the result of which is as follows:

President—Hon. Brackly Shaw, of Dover.
Vice-President—Mrs. J. W. Allen, of Rollin.
Secretary—Chas. A. Parker, Rollin.
Treasurer—Perry Knapp.

DIRECTORS.

Rollin—J. W. Hurhouse.
Hudson—A. H. Crane.
Medina—Henry Worts.
Cambridge—Robert Rogers.
Dover—Wilk Hathaway.
Rome—Martin Voucher.
Seneca—E. D. Allen.
Somerset—S. D. Hopkins.
Hopkins—Horace Boley.
Pittsford—S. Green.
Wright—G. H. Gorsuch.
Adams—G. W. Cutler.
Jefferson—James Leonardson.
Woodstock—Orson Kelly.

Several accidents occurred during the day, but nothing very serious. One chap lost his horse and buggy and finally had to secure the services of Dep'y Sheriff Potts, of the Hudson Post before he could again regain it. Several fellows lost their girls, and many did not find their dinners, but take everything all in all the 7th annual farmers' picnic was a grand success. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves and the accidents were few considering the immense crowd of people and teams in attendance.

GRANGE PICNIC.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Lenawee County Grange was held at Woodstock Grange Hall on Thursday, Aug. 19, 1880. Although the attendance was somewhat weakened by the immense farmers' picnic at Devil's Lake the day before, yet a good number was present and a most pleasant time was enjoyed.

At 11 A. M. short sessions in the fifth degree were given; and then the party adjourned to the grove some quarter of a mile distant, and after music by the Addison band and singing by the Grange choir, a brief but very able speech by C. E. Mickly was listened to. He, as he said, was there merely to further the way for the State Lecturer, Mr. C. L. Whitney, of Muskegon. However, he did more than this and want of space only prevents us from giving it a more extended notice.

After Mickly's speech all adjourned to the tables and partook of a repast that only good Grangers can prepare. This we can assure you, was a most interesting part of the program in which everyone seemed to take a lively interest. Even the HERALD reporter seemed to be happy.

After dinner, Mr. C. L. Whitney, of Muskegon, took his place on the stand and made the speech of the occasion, the main points of which we shall endeavor to give.

C. L. WHITNEY'S SPEECH.

Masters, Brothers, Sisters, Friends:—It is a great pleasure for me to be with you to-day to help what little I can to show you the great duty before you. Now, as I am supposed to be here to-day to talk about Grange matters the question might be asked of me what the Grange is? The Grange is an organization of farmers, for the farmers, and run by the farmers. We are aided by most of the farming community, but by some are opposed. Why, I have heard of some men who opposed the idea of union schools for the reason that education made their sons and daughters unfit for hard work, and it is this class of men who oppose the Grange, and this class only. Our best and most wealthy farmers have started this movement for the improvement and benefit of the farmers. Farmers only are elligible to membership, and they only run it.

I am expected to say something about the progress of the State Grange and, indeed, perhaps many of you who do not take the regular Grange paper do not know all about its goings on and advancement, as the city and country press have very little to say concerning the Grange and its movements. At first, hoping to gain a political hold on its members, they were very courteous, but gradually, as they found that we Grangers had a mind of our own and did not propose to be run by outsiders, let go their hold, and now say, as I said before, very little of us.

But to return to the subject of our progress, I would say this, some of our members are resting, some of our Granges are resting, but only to revive again after a time, with more vigor than ever, and there never was at any time as many active grangers in the State of Michigan as to-day, and never was the Grange in so flourishing a condition, as can be shown by statistics.

The Grange is learning to do its business in a more business like manner, and in a better way. Its members are finding out how to perform their duties with less bolstereusness and high blowery, and more by hard, active and effective labor; and now to show its advantages we would say it is for the improvement of the mind and for attaining for the farmer his just and equal rights with the other classes of people in this country. Of course it takes some time and money to run it, but time and money have to be expended for progress and improvement of any kind. Now all we need is the co-operation of the farmers of this State and we can accomplish the great work before us. By our action in petitioning the Legislature of 1879, we broke up the Michigan Land Plaster ring and reduced the price of plaster, freight and all, from eight dollars to four dollars per ton, also by the action of the Grange the patent scheme on sewing machines has been done away with, helping the farmers of our State about one million dollars, and at the same time benefiting others as well as the Grangers.

Our Grange at Muskegon saved the farmers and fruit growers of that section just one half, or thirteen cents a basket, on all their crop of peaches shipped into Chicago last year, and a little more this year. These and many other advantages could I tell to you of the benefits of the Grange; and more things of this kind could we do to work against the co-operative monopolies could we have the advantages of the co-operation of all the farming community.

In conclusion I would say, shake up these men who are sleeping; reorganize these Granges which have gradually died down, and each and every one help to complete the great work which we have to accomplish.

After listening to music by the band and glee club, the members of the Grange adjourned again to the Hall, where duties peculiar to the society were performed.

Suffice it to say that the Grangers held a good picnic which was well managed, well attended, and did good to the farming community in general.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!
This fact has been demonstrated in more than Ten Thousand Cases, by
DR. S. D. HOWE,
The Great Consumption Doctor of New York.
PROPRIETOR OF THE
Arabian Medicines,
Celebrated throughout the World for their remarkable Cures.
Dr. Howe's Arabian Milk-Cure,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Tonic,
Dr. Howe's Arabian Liver Pills.
The ONLY MEDICINE that has EVER BEEN KNOWN to "POSITIVELY" CURE CONSUMPTION.
TESTIMONY
Of the Hon. Jos. E. Gray, Judge of the Superior Court, Chicago, Ill.
CHICAGO, Dec. 14, 1876.
DR. S. D. HOWE,
DEAR SIR:—Permit me to add my grateful testimony to the army of witnesses to the virtue of your justly celebrated Arabian remedies. For a long time my wife was seriously afflicted with hacking cough, oppressed breathing, soreness of the chest, and constant acute pain in the lower portion of the right lung and under the shoulder blade. Her sufferings were intense, and she became extremely nervous and prostrated. Her disease was pronounced consumption by the physicians of Chicago and other cities, whose prescriptions had been taken without benefit. When you visited Chicago in June, 1873, we called on you, having very little hope of deriving help from your treatment. We were inspired with hope by the skillful manner in which your thorough examination was conducted, and the satisfactory explanation with which you closed your diagnosis. My wife determined to take your medicines in accordance with your plan and practical directions. She began to use the Arabian Milk Cure and Arabian Tonic; their beneficial effect at once became manifest—the cough loosened and soon ceased, respiration became easy, the soreness of the chest was relieved and all pain removed, she began to gain in flesh and improve in strength and appearance. I fully believe that your medicines and skillful advice have saved the life of my wife. She unites with me in this grateful tribute to the merit of your remedies.
Very respectfully yours,
JOSEPH E. GRAY.
The above letter is only one amongst thousands received from all parts of the United States.
Price of Milk-Cure & Tonic, each $1 per Bottle Pills, 25 cents per Box.
Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh
DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,
122 Liberty Street, New York.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE
A vegetable preparation and the only sure remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, and ALL Kidney, Liver and Urinary Diseases.
Testimonials of the highest order in proof of these statements.
For the cure of Diabetes, call for Warner's Safe Diabetes Cure.
For the cure of Bright's and the other diseases, call for Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.
H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.
Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

SEE NEW STYLES OF
CALLING CARDS.
At the Herald Office.

KENNEDY & HAYDEN
DEALERS IN FIRST-CLASS
FARMING IMPLEMENTS.
Champion Drills,
Missouri Drills,
Myers' Wind Mills,
Champion Fruit Ladders,
Gregg Sulky for Plows,
Gale Plows,

Standard Cultivators,
Kelly's Steel Barb Wire,
Lawn King and Young America Lawn Mowers,

Carter Fallow Cultivators,
Gale Fallow Cultivators,
Kala'zoo Spring Tooth Harrow,
Pure Bell-metal Farm Bells,
A. W. Miner's Force Pumps,
Garr Scott Engines,
Garr Scott Threshers and Vibrators,

Standard Reapers,
Standard Mowers,
Royce Reapers,
Meadow King Mowers,
Grand Rapids Small Tools.
USBORNE BLOCK,
TECUMSEH, - - MICH.

THE LITERARY Revolution.
The most successful revolution of the century, and of to American readers of books, the most important. Our works of the highest class are published by us, and the prices are low beyond comparison with the cheapest books ever before issued. To illustrate and demonstrate these truths, we send the following books, all complete and unabridged, postpaid, at the prices named.
Macaulay's
Life of Frederick the Great. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.
Carlyle's
Life of Robert Burns. Former price, $1.25. Large brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.
Light of Asia,
By Edwin Arnold. Former price, $1.00. Beautiful print, brevier type; price five cents.
Thos. Hughes's
Manliness of Christ. Former price, $1. Beautiful print, brevier type; price three cents.
John Stuart Mill's
Chapters on Socialism. Essays of exceeding interest and importance; Price three cents.
Baron Munchausen
His Travels and Surprising Adventures. Former price, $1.25. Burgeoise type; price five cents.
Mary Queen of Scots'
Life, by Lamertine. Former price, $1.25. Brevier type, beautiful print; price three cents.
Vicar of Wakefield.
By Oliver Goldsmith. Brevier type, beautiful print; price five cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.
Bourgeoise type, leaded; beautiful print; price six cents.
Private Theatricals.
By author of "Sparrowgrass Papers." Small plus type, leaded; price two cents.
Stories and Ballads.
For Young Folks, by Ellen Tracy Alden; with very fine illustrations. Selections complete from her book. Large type; price five cents.
Leaves from the Diary
Of an Old Lawyer. Short stories of thrilling, laughable, pathetic interest. Price three cents.
Booksellers
Everywhere (only one dealer in each town) keep these and our large list of standard books, which are selling by the million volumes, because the people believe in the Literary Revolution.
AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.
JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

HANCOCK AND ENGLISH. VERSUS GARFIELD AND ARTHUR.
HANG OUT YOUR BANNER!
WE ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR
CAMPAIGN GOODS
of all kinds. We supply agents, dealers or clubs at lowest possible prices. All orders should be sent as soon as possible, to avoid delay. We supply
Badges, Medals, Flags, Portraits, Photographs, Song Books, Caps, Capes, Torches, &c.
We will send a large crayon portrait, on tinted plate paper, heroic size, (of any candidate) for 25 cents or one dozen for $2. Photographs, Badges or Medals containing likeness of any candidate, sent for 10 cents each or 60 cents a dozen. Flags, all sizes, prices, etc.
We will give the agent or dealer who orders the largest amount of goods before the 1st of November a
Present of a $100 Gold Watch
—OR—
NINETY DOLLARS IN CASH.
Send for circulars, terms, &c., to the
U. S. MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 116 SMITHFIELD STREET,
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OLD AND RELIABLE.
DR. SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR is a Standard Family Remedy for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.—It is Purely Vegetable.—It never Debilitates.—It is Cathartic and Tonic.
TRY IT.
SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR
To Have Good Health, the Liver must be kept in order; its unhealthy action causes Bilious Attacks, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Bowel Complaints, Headache, Sickness, and other Disorders.
The Liver is the seat of malarial diseases. The Liver Invigorator protects the system from Miasmatic Influences. It Purifies the Blood, Regulates the Bowels, Assists Digestion, and Strengthens the System.
The Liver Invigorator has been used in my practice and by the public, for more than 35 years, with unprecedented results.
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.
S. I. W. SANFORD, M.D., 162 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.
ANY DRUGGIST WILL TELL YOU ITS REPUTATION.

THE SOUTHERN MICHIGAN

Carriage Factory!
Railroad St. Tecumseh, Mich.
T. CUMMINS,
Builder of Fancy and Staple
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES,
SLEIGHS, CUTTERS, &c.

"I DECLARE! THIS WIND IS TREMENDOUS!"

STATE FAIR PREPARATIONS.

The grounds of the state agricultural association in Detroit are in better condition for the coming State Fair than in any previous year, and especial attention has been paid to the race track, which has been fitted up and leveled, and the necessary ditches and drains constructed to carry off all water that may fall upon the roadway or bed of the track. The roadway itself has been nearly made over and raised at the turns, and, all that now remains to be done is the fencing in of the home stretch and the erection of a suitable stand for the reporters. Secretary Johnstone wants the public to understand that there will be the biggest and finest show of young roadsters of this and other states that was ever witnessed at any state fair. W. H. Cobb, of Kalamazoo, is superintendent of this department, and is the gentleman who has so successfully managed the famous Kalamazoo horse exhibitions. There are now 393 stalls ready for the reception of horses. The floors of these stalls have been leveled and filled up, and each put in safe and perfect condition. There are also ranges of stalls that will accommodate 450 head of cattle, and the object of enforcing the rule relative to the entries of live stock by September 7 is to give time to erect more stalls in case it should be necessary. There has been a greatly increased interest in sheep and swine during the past year, and ample ranges have been prepared for a monster exhibition. The poultry department has undergone a series of experiments, and a large number of new coops have been put in position to meet the additional requirements of exhibitors in this class.

The hay crop on the grounds has been harvested, and from 50 to 60 tons of good hay secured, which is now being pressed into bundles for convenient hauling. A large hay barn will be built without delay, and a supply of wholesome hay will always hereafter be found within the inclosure.

Blissfield Advance: The barn of Ad McWilliams, who lives about one mile north of Deerfield, was struck by lightning last Saturday and totally destroyed, together with the contents—a large quantity of hay and 400 bushels of wheat. Mr. McWilliams had just hauled in a load of oats, and had unhitched his horses, when the barn was struck. Hastily tying his horses to an adjacent fence, he ran back, and had just enough time to back the wagon out of the barn, the whole structure being a mass of flames; the top bundles of oats were also on fire. Nothing else was saved. The barn was insured for $900 which but partly covers the loss.

Deerfield Record: A painful accident occurred at Blinn & Weidmann's stave and heading mill last Saturday. A boy named Cook, about twelve yrs. old, was at work taking away the heading from the circular, when a small piece of heading was struck by the circular saw and thrown off with great force, the sharp corner striking the boy just over the left eye. A doctor was immediately called and the wound dressed, which proved to be a deep and very painful cut. Had the piece of heading struck half an inch lower it would certainly have ruined his eye, but, as it is, was a close call.

THE September "Popular Science Monthly," well sustains its character as a magazine of valuable reading. It is the only periodical we have which reports progress in the higher and broader applications of science that concern everybody. There is unusual fullness in the miscellaneous departments of "The Popular Science Monthly" for September. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

PETIT JURORS.

The following is the list of petit jurors, drawn on the 19th day of August, to serve at the September term of the Circuit Court. The first day of the term is the 28th of September:

Adrian township—C P Aldrich.
Blissfield—Miles A Wheeler.
Cambridge—Grandville Lyman.
Clinton—Ralph W Hillman.
Deerfield—J H Tenant.
Dover—William Bryant.
Fairfield—John Whitehead.
Franklin—William Hardcastle.
Hudson—Silas L. Allen.
Macon—Edwin Howell.
Madison—John D Ramsdell.
Medina—Samuel Koon.
Ogden—Gardner Davis.
Palmyra—Martin Lawson.
Raisin—James B Colvin.
Ridgeway—G. B. Waring.
Riga—Oliver H Holt.
Rollin—Amos R Cole.
Rome—John L Bennett.
Seneca—Benjamin F Horton.
Tecumseh—Robert Stretch.
Woodstock—Alonzo Lewis.
1st ward city—John Hawley.
2d " " —Enos Willett.

THE Universalist State Convention of Michigan, will convene at Hillsdale on Tuesday, Sept. 7th, at 3 o'clock P. M., and remain in session the Wednesday and Thursday following. The time will be taken up with convention business, religious services and a session of the Woman's Missionary Association. The Lake Shore Railway will carry passengers attending the convention at reduced rates. Full fare will be charged going, and one cent per mile for the return trip. The pastor of the Hillsdale church, Rev. S. Crane, invites a large attendance from abroad. A fine program of exercises has been arranged, and the convention will undoubtedly be a large and profitable one.

THE Adrian Times office has just issued the annual catalogue and premium list of the thirty-second State fair, which will be held in Detroit, Sept. 13—17. It consists of a pamphlet of 112 pages, and contains the By-Laws of the Society, a full premium list and much other information.

MARRIED.

TRAIN—GOODWIN—In Detroit, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Seth Goodwin, 926 3d Ave., Thursday evening, Aug. 19th, by Rev. J. H. Bayliss, Mr. Charles L. Train, formerly of Tecumseh, and Miss Celia Goodwin, of Detroit.

LETTER LISTS.

Tecumseh.

Remaining uncalled for in the Post-Office at Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., Michigan, Aug. 25, 1880:

Parks, Oren Segar, Wm. H.

Persons calling for letters in the above list will please say "Advertised."

E. A. TRIBOU, P. M.

MARKET REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE HERALD, Thursday, Aug. 26, 1880.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

For Week Ending Aug. 18, 1880.

Reported for the HERALD by Stacy & Ransom, Commission Salesmen, East Buffalo, N. Y.

Cattle—The receipts for the week show an increase of 1,862 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

16 steers	1269	4.45	36 steers	1197	$4.20
36 steers	1242	4.30	70 steers	1210	4.35

Sheep—The receipts for the week show a decrease of 1,700 head as compared with the same days last week.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

208 Mich. sheep			97		4.20
81 Mich. sheep			80		4.00

Hogs—As compared with last week the receipts show an increase of 2,105 head.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES.

69	203	5.10	87	207	4.75
98	215	4.75	84	201	4.75

DETROIT MARKET.

Wednesday, Aug. 18, 1 P. M.—Wheat—No 1 white, 96½c per bu.

Feed—Bran, $11.50@12; middlings, $14.50@15 per ton.

Butter—16@17c per lb.

Beans—City picked, $1.50 per bu.

Cheese—11½@12c per lb.

Apples—$1.50@1.75 per bbl.

Provisions—Hams, 10½@11c. Shoulders, 6½@7c. Bacon, 10@10½c. Dried beef, 12@13c per lb.

Corn—44c per bu.

Oats—34@36c per bu.

TECUMSEH MARKET.

Corrected Every Thursday Morning.

FLOUR—Shipped 1835 bbls.
EGGS—Shipped 176 crates.
BUTTER—Shipped 3940 lbs.
WRAP. PAPER—Shipped 23500 lbs.
GRAIN—Shipped 8 cars.
LIVE STOCK—Shipped 2 cars.
LUMBER—Shipped 3 cars.

—o—

Apples, ℔ barrel	50 @	1 00
Apples, dried, ℔ ℔	5 @	3
Butter, ℔ ℔	14 @	16
Barley, ℔ cwt	45 @	52
Beans, ℔ bushel	1,00 @	1.25
Buckwheat, ℔ bushel	50 @	60
Buckwheat Flour, ℔ hundred	3,25 @	3.50
Beef—dressed, ℔ hundred	600 @	8 00
Beef Hides	@	7
Calf Skins, ℔ lb	@	12
Corn, in ear	25 @	30
Corn—shelled, ℔ bushel	45 @	45
Clover Seed	3,00 @	3,00
Chickens—dressed	@	8
Eggs, ℔ dozen	@	8
Flour, ℔ barrel	6,00 @	7.00
Hogs Dressed, ℔ cwt	@	5,00
Hogs Live ℔ lb	3 75 @	4 00
Hay ℔ ton	8,00 @	10,00
Hides, ℔ ℔	@	6½
Honey, ℔ ℔	@	15
Ham, ℔ ℔	@	9
Lard, ℔ ℔	@	8
Oats, ℔ bushel	25 @	30
Onions, ℔ bushel	1,50 @	2.00
Potatoes, ℔ bushel	50 @	70
Salt, ℔ barrel	@	1,40
Sheep Pelts	50 @	1,25
Timothy Seed, ℔ bushel	@	2,50
Turkeys, dressed	@	10
Wood, ℔ cord	4 00 @	4 00
Wheat, White, ℔ bushel	@	88
Wheat, Red, ℔ bushel	@	93
Wool, ℔ lb	30 @	38

ABE HANFORD,

LICENSED

AUCTIONEER,

Will attend to selling property at Auction at all times either in city or country.

TERMS REASONABLE.

Orders left at the HERALD OFFICE will receive prompt attention. Or address

A. HANFORD, Tecumseh, Mich.

ABSOLUTELY CURES Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Chest.

The Only Lung Pad

Has performed many wonderful cures. If you suffer from

ASTHMA, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION,

Or any Lung infirmities, send for testimonials and our treatise, "Take Care of Yourself."

DR. ONLY'S LUNG PAD

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Is sold by all Druggists, or sent on receipt of price, $2.00. Address

THE ONLY LUNG PAD CO.

At wholesale by Farrand, Williams & Co., T. H. Hinchman & Sons, and Swift & Dodds, Detroit.

If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are young, and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are married or single, young or old, suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take

HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are, whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take

HOP BITTERS.

Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver, or nerves? You will be cured if you take

HOP BITTERS.

If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it.

HOP BITTERS.

It may save your life. It has saved hundreds. For sale by M. Wright & Son.

ESTATE OF JACOB L. VAN WINKLE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Jacob L. Van Winkle, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, of Edwin B. Wood, administrator, with the will annexed of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of deceased, the expenses of administration thus far incurred, and all legacies bequeathed in and by said will except residuary legacies, and is ready to file his final account in this court, and praying for the allowance of said account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 13th day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.)

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

A. H. BRIGGS, Probate Register. aug26

Home School for Boys, the

Michigan Military Academy

Offers superior facilities for obtaining a good English or Classical education. Location unsurpassed in beauty and healthfulness. Full corps of competent teachers.

Fall term begins September 15.

For catalogue or further information, address the superintendent,

COL. J. S. ROGERS, ORCHARD LAKE, MICH.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,

Practical and Analytical Chemists,

Lowell, Mass.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE

That Acts at the Same Time on

THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system. If they work well, health will be perfect: if they become clogged, dreadful diseases are sure to follow with

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Milky or Ropy Urine; or Rheumatic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned with the humors that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

will restore the healthy action and all these destroying evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer.

Thousands have been cured. Try it and you will add one more to the number. Take it and health will once more gladden your heart.

Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back?

Why bear such distress from Constipation and Piles?

Why be so fearful because of disordered urine?

KIDNEY-WORT will cure you. Try a package at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and One Package makes six quarts of Medicine.

Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Insist upon having it. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

(Will not pay postage.)

WARNER'S SAFE BITTERS

It is the best Blood Purifier, and stimulates every function to more healthful action, and is thus a benefit in all diseases.

In eliminating the impurities of the blood, the natural and necessary result is the cure of Scrofulous and other Skin Eruptions and Diseases, including Cancers, Ulcers and other Sores.

Dyspepsia, Weakness of the Stomach, Constipation, Dizziness, General Debility, etc., are cured by the Safe Bitters. It is unequaled as an appetiser and regular tonic.

It is a medicine which should be in every family, and which, wherever used, will save the payment of many doctors' bills.

Bottles of two sizes; prices, 50 cents and $1.00.

SAFE KIDNEY & LIVER CURE. SAFE DIABETES CURE. SAFE BITTERS NERVINE PILLS. READY: Save Thyself.

Warner's Safe Remedies are sold by Druggists and Dealers in Medicine everywhere.

H. H. WARNER & CO., Proprietors, Rochester, N. Y.

Send for Pamphlet and Testimonials.

XX COT (not painted, White Duck) $2.

Makes a perfect bed. No mattress or pillows required. Better than a hammock, as it fits the body as [illegible] and lies straight. Folded or opened in [illegible] Self-fastening. It is just the thing for hotels, [illegible], camp-meetings, sportsmen, &c. Good [illegible] or "coolest place in the house." [illegible] invalids or children. Sent on receipt of [illegible] For 50 cts. extra, with order, I [illegible] express to any R.R. station east of Mississippi [illegible] north of Mason and Dixon's Line. For [illegible] Mo. and Iowa.

[illegible] MOSES W. LADD, 108 Fulton Street, [illegible] Lot Canal St., New York; 185 North Second St., [illegible]; 94 Market St., Chicago. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

WESTERN MAIL STAGE.

Having taken the mail contract on the route between Brooklyn and Tecumseh, I will run a stage between these places three days each week, leaving Brooklyn on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, and returning the same afternoon. Passengers and baggage will be carried at reasonable rates from Tecumseh to Clifton, Springville, Cambridge and Brooklyn

JOSEPH E. SMITH.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN TONIC BLOOD PURIFIER

DIFFERS from all other preparations in its IMMEDIATE ACTION upon the

Liver, Kidneys and Blood.

Composed of the choicest Herbs, Roots and Extracts. Cures Boils, Blotches, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Cancers, Cancerous Humors, Pimples on the Face, Scurvy, Syphilis, Scrofula, and all disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, Malarial Fevers etc.

For "Nervous Debility," "Lost Vitality," "Urinary Diseases," and "Broken Down Constitutions," "I challenge the 19th century" to produce its equal.

Every Bottle is Worth its Weight in Gold

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN MILK CURE,

The only Medicine of the Kind in the World.

A Substitute for Cod Liver Oil.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Bleeding-Lungs, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, leading to Consumption. Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Cures Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Malarial Fevers, Sick Head-Aches, Chills and Fever, Constipation, &c. Price 25 cents per box.

SMOKE

DR. S. D. HOWE'S

ARABIAN

CATARRH AND ASTHMA CURE.

An infalable cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever and Asthma. Sweetens the breath and produces the most delightful sensation while, and after smoking it. Try it. Price 50 cents per box.

DR. S. D. HOWE, Proprietor,

122 Liberty St., New York.

Sold by M. Wright & Son, Sole Agents, Tecumseh.

THE READY FAMILY SOAP MAKER:

LEWIS' LYE

98 PER CENT. PURE.

(Patented.)

FINELY POWDERED.

HIGHLY PERFUMED.

The strongest and purest Lye made. Will make 12 pounds of the best Perfumed Hard Soap in 20 minutes without boiling.

The best water-softener made.

The best disinfectant.

The following are some of the advantages obtained by using Lewis' 98 Per Cent. Powdered Lye:

First. It is packed in an iron can with a slip or removable lid, easily taken off and leaving the contents exposed, thereby saving the trouble, annoyance, and danger (from flying particles), as with other Lyes, which, being sold in the cans, must be broken with a hammer to get the Lye out.

Second. It being a fine powder, you can remove the lid and pour out all the contents, being always ready for use.

Third. A teaspoonful or more can be used, as in water-softening, scrubbing, etc., and the lid returned to the can, and thereby save the balance of contents. With other Lyes all must be dissolved at once and used in a short time, or the strength is gone.

Fourth. Absolute purity. Free from all adulterations.

Fifth. The best Soap can be made in from ten to twenty minutes with this Lye.

Sixth. No failure is possible in making Soap with this Lye when the simple directions given are followed.

Seventh. One can of this Powdered Lye is equal to twenty pounds of Sal Soda or Washing Soda.

Eighth. One can of this Lye will saponify one pound more of grease than any other Concentrated Lye, Ball Potash, or Saponifier.

Ninth. This Lye is 38 per cent. stronger than any other Lye or Potash.

Tenth. One to two teaspoonfuls will soften a tub of the hardest water.

Eleventh. One teaspoonful will thoroughly cleanse Sinks, Drains, or Closets.

Invaluable for killing Roaches, Mice, Rats, etc.

The best article for washing Trees.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

G. T. Lewis & Menzies Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

CENTAUR LINIMENT

always Cures and never Disappoints The world's great Pain-Reliever for Man and Beast. Cheap, quick and reliable.

PITCHER'S CASTORIA is not Narcotic. Children grow fat upon, Mothers like, and Physicians recommend CASTORIA. It regulates the Bowels, cures Wind Colic, allays Feverishness, and destroys Worms.

USED ALL THE YEAR ROUND!

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA,

—FOR—

LIVER COMPLAINT

—AND—

PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

It has been in use for 50 years, and has test proved to be the best preparation in the market for Sick or Nervous Headache, Pain in the Side or Back, Pimples on the Face, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Piles, and all Diseases arising from a disordered Liver or an impure state of our best people to their children. Thousands daily attribute their health to the use of this medicine. It is recommended strictly vegetable, the most delicate can take it, and it is one of the best for regulating the bowels. It is sold by all responsible druggists at one dollar for a quart bottle, or six bottles for five dollars.

W. JOHNSTON & CO., Manufacturers.

DETROIT, MICH. AMHERSTBURG, ONT.

1880.

Harper's Young People

ILLUSTRATED.

The evils of sensational literature for the young are all well known, and the want of an entertaining journal which is equally free from the objectionable features of sensational juvenile literature and of that moralizing tone which repels the youthful reader has long been felt. This is supplied by Harper's Young People, a beautifully illustrated weekly journal, which is equally free from the objectionable features of sensational juvenile literature and of that moralizing tone which repels the youthful reader.

The volumes of the Young People begin with the first Number, published in November of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

INDUCEMENTS FOR 1880 ONLY.

☞ Thirteen Numbers of HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE will be furnished to every yearly subscriber to HARPER'S WEEKLY for 1880; or, HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE and HARPER'S WEEKLY will be sent to any address for one year, commencing with the first Number of HARPER'S WEEKLY, for January, 1880, on receipt of $5 00 for the two Periodicals.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Weekly

ILLUSTRATED.

This periodical has always, by its able and scholarly discussions of the questions of the day, as well as by its illustrations—which are prepared by the best artists—exerted a most powerful and beneficial influence upon the public mind. The weight of its influence will always be found on the side of morality, enlightenment, and refinement.

The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage Free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S WEEKLY, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twenty-three Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Bazar

ILLUSTRATED.

This popular periodical is pre-eminently a journal for the household.

Every Number furnishes the latest information in regard to Fashion in dress and ornament, the newest and most approved patterns, with descriptive articles derived from authentic and original sources; while its Stories, Poems and Essays on Social and Domestic Topics, give variety to its columns.

The Volumes of the Bazar begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to commence with the Number next after the receipt of order.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

The Annual Volumes of HARPER'S BAZAR in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7 00 each. A complete Set, comprising Twelve Volumes, sent on receipt of cash at the rate of $5 25 per volume, freight at expense of purchaser.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1 00 each.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

1880.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

"Studying the subject objectively, and from the educational point of view—seeking to provide that which, taken altogether, will be of the most service to the largest number—I long ago concluded that, if I could have but one work for a public library, I would select a complete set of Harper's Monthly."—CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr.

Its contents are contributed by the most eminent authors and artists of Europe and America, while the long experience of its publishers has made them thoroughly conversant with the desires of the public, which they will spare no effort to gratify.

The Volumes of the Magazine begin with the Number for June and December of each year. When no time is specified, it will be understood that the subscriber wishes to begin with the current Number.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, One Year	$4 00
HARPER'S WEEKLY, " "	4 00
HARPER'S BAZAR, " "	4 00
The THREE above-named publications, One Year	10 00
Any TWO above named, One Year	7 00
HARPER'S YOUNG PEOPLE, One Year	1 00

Postage free to all subscribers in the United States or Canada.

A complete set of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, comprising 50 Volumes, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by express, freight at expense of purchaser, on receipt of $2 25 per volume. Single Volumes, by mail, postpaid, $2 00. Cloth cases, for binding, 88 cents, by mail, postpaid.

Remittances should be made by Post-Office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of HARPER & BROS.

Address HARPER & BROTHERS, New York.

The Tecumseh Herald.

VOL. XXXI.—NO 15. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 2, 1880. WHOLE NO. 1552.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY!!

We can now exhibit the most complete line of goods for Men, Boys and Children ever shown in Lenawee Co. It is safe to say we have FIVE TIMES as many goods as any competing house, bought by an experienced buyer FOR CASH, and exactly adapted to the wants of this community. Children's Suits from $2.50 up. Boys Suits from $3.50 up. Men's Suits from $5, a good workingman's suit, to the finest cassimeres and broad cloths. We cannot be undersold, and for variety of styles and qualities our stock is to a [illegible]s as 5 to 1. STRONG & NAIR.

GREAT BARGAINS IN

Fine and Common Furniture!

New Bed Room and Parlor Suits, Ladies folding work Tables cheap, 40 fine Lounges, 50 Center Tables, Looking glasses, Picture Frames, 150 different styles of Chairs, patent rockers and folding Chairs 10 large rooms crammed full of nice goods of every description. I am also General Agent for the sale of all the best Furniture made. WM. McCOWEN.

UNDERTAKING.

My stock in that line is also very large, and in great variety. I have been in the business over 6 years and I shall do my very best to please in every respect. My elegant Gold trimmed Hearse with fine horses always ready Free of Charge.

All kinds of Repairing done in a workmanlike manner by Mr. E. HAND.

WM. MC COWEN,

WE HAVE, WE CAN, AND WE WILL DO IT!

DO WHAT!

SELL BETTER SUITS

For the Same Money than Any House West of Lake Erie.

Our stock is complete. Bought before the great advance in goods and we propose to give our customers the benefit of our early bargains. All goods will be as recommended, and your money's worth every time. Call at the

Palace Clothing House

—OF—

George Heseen.

Who will fit you with a CHOICE DRESS SUIT, or a substantial and serviceable one, at prices unequaled. Come all—Boys, Youth or Men, and secure Great Bargains on early bought Goods.

Hats, Caps, Gloves, Overalls, Hosiery, and a full line of Furnishing Goods always on hand

REMEMBER

THE PALACE CLOTHING HOUSE

One Door West of Bills, Lilley & Co.'s Bank.

Over 30,000 Now in use!

USE NONE BUT THE

BUCKEYE,

For Hand or Wind-Mill Purposes. For sale at

John Whitenack's.

THE OLD EIGHTEENTH MICHIGAN.

They Reunite for the 13th Time With Hearty Shakes—Palmyra Sets a Loaded Table and the Boys do it Justice—Interesting Exercises and a General Good Time.

Last Thursday morning, Aug. 26th, the members of the 18th Michigan Regiment in and about Tecumseh took the morning train for Palmyra, where their 13th reunion was to be held. At every stop along the way their old comrades kept coming on board the train until they arrived at Palmyra. Here they were met by many friends and their hand shaking commenced. It was a sight that made the heart of a spectator leap for joy to see the manifest pleasure and feeling among the boys in meeting comr les whom they had not seen since the close of the war. It was more like a family reunion than anything else. Boys who had carried their knapsacks side by side on many a long march, who had cheered each other time after time on the field of battle, saw each other here for the first time, in many cases, since they were mustered out. One of the boys especially, Lampson Ovenden, Co. D, who came all the way from Gratiot county to meet his many friends and to learn of their individual battles in life since the rebellion, met with a cordial and ardent reception, as he was remembered as the boy who attempted to climb the flag pole and to raise the colors when the 18th was besieged at Decatur, Ala., by the rebs under Gen. Hood. The circumstances were as follows: The 18th had been detailed for provost duty at Decatur, while their division was at Nashville preparing to receive Gen. Hood. The 18th was in one of the forts erected at Decatur and Gen. Hood had advanced his forces up to them so that one morning when any of them showed themselves outside their quarters they were the object of a heavy fire from the rebs in the "gopher holes" near by. Here they were, not able to move out, every one disheartened and awaiting their expected death, the flag-staff with no colors flying to the breeze. The Major went to Ovenden and talked with him about trying to raise the colors, but in order to do this he would have to climb the flag-staff and loosen the rope, as it would not work on account of its shrinkage. Ovenden, although then a mere boy, actuated by a brave heart, volunteered to face the rebel fire and fix the colors. He had scarcely raised his head from the barracks when the bullets commenced to whiz about him, but with a determined mind he grabbed the flag-staff and commenced to climb it. In a few seconds, though his neck was pierced by a bullet, still he kept ascending the pole, every eye turned upon him. Another bullet then shattered his leg, but nothing could stop him until pierced by seven bullets he dropped to the ground unconscious from loss of blood. But during this time when all the rebs were fixing their attention on him, a company had passed around and came upon the men in the "gopher holes" unawares and captured them. Ovenden soon received a discharge on account of his wounds after his recovery, and last Thursday for the first time met his old comrades since his discharge. Under such circumstances the reunion could not fail to be one of the brightest days of their lives.

The forenoon was passed in recalling the old battle scenes and stories.—About noon Col. Doolittle arrived, and his old boys formed in line and gave him three of the lustiest cheers they ever gave and a tiger that sent a thrill through all. Then they rushed and surrounded him, clasping their hands with his in hearty shakes such that only old comrades can give each other, and the countenance of the Col. expressed sincere joy as he looked upon the faces that surroundod him and recognized his old boys who had followed and fought under him.

COMRADES PRESENT.

Through the kindness of Secretary Harvey, we give the list of the surviving members of the 18th present at the reunion:

A. Camburn, Co. E, Tipton.
John Lee, Co. E, Springville.
John McKinney, Co. E, Tecumseh.
G. W. Burroughs, Co. E, Tecumseh.
Charles Odell, Co. E, Geneva.
Thomas Wyrill, Co. E, Tecumseh.
P. J. Welling, Co. E, Tecumseh.
Milo Boree, Co. I, Clayton.
H. W. Stevens, Co. I, Tecumseh.
Charles Grier, Co. I, Adrian.
Daniel H. Warren, Co. I, Clayton.
Ezra Bovee, Co. A, Clayton.
A. P. Albring, Co. K, Sylvania, Ohio.
M. D. Wood, Co. B, Tecumseh.
H. Corell, Co. I, Medina.
Nelson Westgate, Co. C, Adrian.
Reuben Power, Co. C, Adrian.
J. F. Nevins, Co. F, Frontier.
Lyman Carr, Co. A, Pittsford.
Wm. Millspaugh, Co. E, Clinton.
M. E. Baldwin, Co. E, Tecumseh.
H. Miller, Co. H, Dundee.
Wm. Thayer, Co. C, Fairfield.
Edwin Young, Co. B, Adrian.
Daniel Warner, Co. H, East Milan.
J. L. Slick, Co. A, Lambertville.
Charles Davis, Co. E, Clinton.
Charles Davis, Co. H, Milan.
L. B. Wolcott, Co. D, Hillsdale.
M. B. Peach, Co. A, Hudson.
Thomas Dumphrey, Co. C, Dundee.
J. B. Davis, Co. E, Ogden.
Albert Sprague, Co. B, Rome.
J. U. Davis, Co. B, Adrian.
C. A. Fawson, Co. E, Tipton.
J. B. Cornell, Co. A, Frontier.
O. J. Roberts, Co. K, Deerfield.
W. H. Rankin, Co. C, Dundee.
John Miller, Co. K, Petersburg.
W. H. Myers, Co. C, Ogden.
E. Service, Co. I, Fairfield.
Edwin Camp, Co. F, Lickley's Corners.
C. K. Spafford, Co. E, Tecumseh.
H. B. Hathaway, Co. E, Blissfield.
S. S. Church, Co. A, Hudson.
J. H. Dean, Co. A, Toledo, Ohio.
Asa S. Davis, Co. H, Milan.
David Lamley, Co. B, Blissfield.
Capt. R. P. Ingersoll, Co. H, Dundee.
Maj. J. D. Hluckley Jackson.
John H. Purdy, Co. D, Hillsdale.
Sampson Ovenden, Co. D, Bridgeville.
Martin Langdon, Co. H, Dundee.
J. W. Stodard, Co. H, East Milan.
P. H. Babcock, Co. H, Dundee.
J. H. Edwards, Co. C, Newaygo.
John M. Cheever, Co. C, Dover.
E. Bristol, Co. K, Lambertville
W. K. Colvin, Co. E, Lenawee Junction.
Rob McCarty, Co. H, Ann Arbor.
Capt. J. D. Pratt, Chicago, Ill.
Lieut. R. M. Cole, Co. I, Adrian.
George Merritt, Co. H, Dundee.
Lieut. Col. H. A. Colvin, Adrian.
J. H. Pratt, Chicago, Ill.
D. C. LeBaron, Toledo, Ohio.
Col. C. C. Doolittle, Toledo, Ohio.
J. J. Munger, Dundee.
Henry Rouse, Co. K, Ottawa Lake.
H. R. Austin, Co. K, Monroe.
I. W. Robertson, Co. B, Ogden Center.
Sam Hersey, Co. A, Toledo, Ohio.
Dan Harmon, Co. K, Toledo, Ohio.
Capt. C. R. Miller, Adrian.
W. W. Johnson, Co. G, Toledo, Ohio.
J. Pool, Co. H, Oakville.
L. C. Liverly, Co. D, Milan.
E. H. Wadsworth, Co. H, Petersburg.
Thomas Sprague, Co. B, Paint Creek.
Thomas Smith, Co. E, Tipton.
Wm. Smith, Co. E, Tipton.
L. B. Wood, Co. E, Palmyra.
Wm. Brooks, Co. C, Blissfield.
Samuel Kidder, Co. D, Woodland.
L. Cushing, Co. E, Palmyra.
S. G. Harvey, Co. I, Cleveland, Ohio.
Jasper N. Smith, Co. K, Lambertville.
John P. Rankin, Co. C, Dundee.
R. B. French, Co. B, Blissfield.
George Jennings, Co. B, Adrian.
W. H. Williams, Co. F, Jonesville.
S. M. Darrow, Co. B, Blissfield.
Emery Bacon, Co. C, Blissfield.
Fred Bey, Co. C, Blissfield.
George Young, Co. C, Rock Island, Ill.
M. Wheeler, Co. E, Tecumseh.
David Pifer, Co. B, Ogden Center.
Henry Willey, Co. C, Palmyra.
C. J. Corbitt, Co. C, Palmyra.
O. H. Kelly, Co. C, Palmyra.
C. VanWey, Co. E, Palmyra.
L. VanWey, Co. E, Palmyra.
W. H. Marshall, Co. C, Blissfield.
W. R. Hibbard, Co. H, Ogden.
Thomas Simons, Co. E, Adrian.
Nathaniel Stoner, Co. E, Blissfield.
George S. Spicer, Co. K, Deerfield.
McEldowney Stores, Co. K, Ida.
David Crocket, Co. C, Metamora, Ohio.

BUSINESS MEETING.

Comrade R. P. Ingersoll called the meeting to order. Capt. Miller was chosen temporary treasurer, who proceeded to collect 25 cents from each comrade as a fee to defray expenses. Clayton was decided upon as the place for the reunion to be on Aug. 26, 1881.

On motion of comrade Lebaron the meeting voted $5.00 to purchase one hundred copies of the Tecumseh HERALD for distribution among those present.

Dorren H. Warren was appointed chairman of the committee of arrangements for the ensuing year, and on further motion all the resident comrades of Clayton were appointed members of that committee.

Two comrades were reported as having died within the past year. Oscar Belman, Co. K of Riga and A. S. Paulding, Co. D of Adrian.

DINNER.

After the business meeting the boys of the 18th formed into twos behind the Blissfield band while many other old comrades of other regiments brought up the rear. Col. Doolittle then gave the command "battallion forward, march." They soon halted at a cool and shady grove where the people of Palmyra had turned out en masse and loaded the tables down with the best of their abundance. Through the efforts of Comrade Colvin, chairman of the local committee and his many helpers, the arrangements were perfect. The tables presented a beautiful appearance being tastily trimmed with bouquets and dainties unsurpassed. Between 1200 and 1400 people were fed and still the unselfish citizens of Palmyra had furnished dinner for as many more. The hospitality the boys received there will never be forgotten.

THE EXERCISES.

After dinner the crowd seated themselves around the speakers' stand. The exercises were as follows:

Music—Blissfield band.
" —Choir.
Prayer—Rev. Mr. Taylor.
Music.
Welcoming address—Rev. Mr. Arney.
Response—Col. Doolittle.
Music.
Oration—Col. Watts.
Music.

Remarks were made by Capt. C. R. Miller of Adrian and George Young.

The exercises were listened to with great satisfaction which they justly deserved.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

was as follows:

Gentlemen, Ex-Members of the 18th Regiment of Michigan Volunteer Infantry: The citizens of Palmyra have imposed upon me the pleasurable duty of presenting to you the welcome of their hand, hearts, and hospitality. Your coming, boys, brings us a thousand reminders which we regret that our limited time forbids us to allude to. In our imagination we hear again to-day the thrilling fife and drum; the bugle sound of "rally;" the emphatic words "fall in," "attention," "forward, march;" and with banners floating in the breeze, we hear the cry of tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching. And the fact of your coming here also reminds me of a story I heard the boys of the 18th tell. The scene is laid at Danville, Ky. When the rebel Pegram, or may be the son of Nasby's Deacon Pegram was making you an unexpected and unwelcome visit. The boys say they calculated for certain they had lost both Colonel and Adjutant. They saw them in an enclosure surrounded by a high board fence, and some confidently asserted that they saw the Col. deliver his sword to the enemy, which was heard with many sighs of sadness. But the boys will never forget the shout that rang through all their camp when the next day the commander returned covered with glory, without being killed or captured at all. We have been more amused over it, by the report that a woman figured so conspicuously in the case. I think she must have been either a Northern woman, or a woman with a Northern heart for it is said that when she saw that the Colonel's saber was not strong enough to batter down the wooden walls of the prison pen in which they had cooped him up, she supplied a woodman's axe in exchange for the saber with which he broke down the barriers, and mounting his old brown pony, with the rebs pressing, made better time for twenty miles than ever Sheridan made from Winchester to Fisher's Gap. Well, comrades, the ladies are here to-day, but not to furnish sword or battle axes, but smiles of cheer and greetings; chicken pies, and pork and beans and succotash. The gap of the fence is already open, and they have commissioned me to bid you a hearty welcome. With you we are glad to meet others of our veterans and comrades who fought and bled and died with us, and to them also I present the same cheerful welcome.

The oration of Col. Watts was substantially as follows:

THE WILDERNESS AND SPOTTSYLVANIA.

Sixteen years ago last May, near two hundred thousand soldiers camped upon the banks of the Rappahannock in and about the neighborhood made famous by the pen of Thackeray, as the place where Washington spent his boyhood, struck their tents, swung their knapsacks, faced toward the Capitol of the Confederacy, took up the song of "Old John Brown" and with a swinging march of gaiety moved out to conquer or die. For two days this mighty host, with their tramp, tramp, and their songs of mirth and jolly jokes moved on. But notwithstanding all this, and however marvelous it may seem, I much doubt whether two hundred thousand men could be gathered together to-day from whose number so many could be found content with their lot, as there were in the army of the Potomac on the morning of May, 4, 1864, when it was apparent to the dullest mind that a great battle was close by. At the head of this royal army of nature's noblemen rode that silent man of fate, whose previous successes in the West inspired us all with unbounded confidence in his leadership. The Rappahannock and the Rapidan were crossed without opposition, and the army of the Potomac on the morning of May fifth, stood upon ground hitherto untrodden by the soldiers of the North. Hancock with his fine corps had moved early, and was just emerging from the east side of the Wilderness, the right corps some twenty miles in the rear, moving on in the same route, the fifth and sixth corps were in the midst of the great woods also moving eastward. Such was the position of Grant's great army when Lee, having massed his forces on the south side of the Wilderness, with the swiftness of the eagle from his perch swooped down upon our column, unquestionably having little doubt that the velocity of this blow would break our line, demoralize and scatter our army, and thus end the campaign ere it had fairly begun. Before the sun had set on the day of the sixth Lee had felt an iron grip upon his throat, he knew that, at last, it had come there to stay, and he could feel it, like a relentless and remorseless fate shaking him in advance with anticipated doom. When our long line was thus struck in the center, it hung together with the tenacity of iron. It is true that it bent and swayed with the terrible onset, but still it held together, and as it became certain the enemy's whole force was on our flank, the rear corps was pushed forward. Hancock about faced and hastened back to the center, and as Lee continued to pound, the Union army grew more and more compact, until it became a large circle, at every point belching fire. On the second day of the battle the roar and the rattle of the musketry rolled and continued to roll all around this great ball almost without ceasing. The savage defiant yells of the blue and the gray, as with faces blackened and begrimmed with burning powder, eyes blood-shot and flashing, they frequently charged until the two lines would crash together, mutually rebound, and separate, only to crash together again. The unceasing smoking hiss of the bullet, the frequent dull thug as it tore its way through human flesh, the roar and the rattle of firearms at every point of the compass, the smoke and the smell of burning powder, the crackling blazes of the forest on fire, the groans and cries of the wounded as they plead for water and assistance, the dead and the dying strewn all about everywhere; all of this in the brilliant light of our boasted civilization. When night at last came, and darkness spread its protecting cover over these hideous woods the men of those two great armies, wearied and worn with the awful work of the day, sank down to rest upon the ground where they were standing, with a feeling of relief.

When the dawn of the third day coming in, drove away the dark pall of night, and lighted up the gloomy hollows of the Wilderness, the Federal skirmish line again moved out, feeling for the foe, with the purpose of renewing the contest where it had left off the night before. The line moved further and further on, until it was discovered that Lee had withdrawn to his entrenchments, under cover of which he ever after remained until the close of the war. The only skill and the only command given by either of those two leaders was to begin fighting when the day dawned, from thence forth until darkness closed the combat. Neither Grant nor Lee could do aught or scarce knew aught as to how the day was going. It was simply a grapple of death between the common soldiery. They supplied the brains as well as the muscle and blood for the battle of the Wilderness; to them belonged whatever there was of honor, whatever there was of glory. No one man more than another on either side is entitled to be called the hero of the Wilderness. When the sun rose on the morning of the 12th, five days after the battle of the Wilderness, these two great armies looked out and each beheld the other again in battle array, and each side well, knew that the awful wrestle of death so short a time before recoiled from thro' sheer exhaustion, was again to be renewed. The army in gray stand behind well built earthworks, the army in blue stand out in the open field. At last the order is given and the long line moves steadily on. Soon we hear the pop, pop of the skirmishers, then here and there a genuing rattling volley, and a rallying cheer, until finally the yell or the cheer here or there sent up tells the story to other parts of the line. On they go until rod by rod they fight their way close upon the enemy's works. One of those Michigan regiments went into the battle that morning over three hundred strong. There were left at night able for duty twenty-eight officers and men.

But the battle of Spottsylvania is at last over, and as the sun sinks behind the forest trees, the soldiers' ear catches the sweet strains of a Confederate band, and then another and another, and very soon the air is filled with the music of "Dixie's Land." And then we knew from this assumed cheerfulness that the enemy, too, had been badly punished, and that there was a fear that too heavy a gloom might settle over the Confederate camp.

And now come the Confederates with their "Bonnie Blue Flag," while ours again reply with "The Star Spangled Banner." And thus in this battle of the bands, the soldiers of either side are made to forget their weariness and woe, and again and again the welkin rings with their answering shouts.

And now, after a short silence, a band far down the left, whether Confederate or Union I never knew, send forth the sweetest, the divinest strain of melody ever heard by mortal ears. A moment more and a thousand voices on either side join in, and "Home, Sweet Home" floats out upon the air, up to heaven and into the hearts of the angels, down to earth into the hearts of the weary, worn, wounded, dying and living men of these two gallant armies. And behold! a quarter of a million of the best and bravest soldiers in the world are moved from angry, defiant cheers, to tender, melting, forgiving tears.

Want of space prevents our inserting the entire speech.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

NOBODY'S CHILD.

There's where they found it
Nothing around it
But an old shawl
So sweetly sleeping
No one watch keeping,
Some wintry night.

How came it out there
Out in the cold air,
Nobody knows
Not one human soul did the Poor little babe hold
Far from mother's fold
Perishing unknown alone
Cold to another
Her sister of years
Big with sorrowing
Who are old enough
To guide or our child?

Did nobody take it
Into an Asylum to make it
Proof against shame?
Pale little flower,
Born without dower—
Not even a name.

Ah, all the city
Came there to pity,
And weep as it sadly
And while we stood weeping,
God took to his keeping,
"Nobody's child."

JONES'S MISTAKE.

"Heigho!" yawned Mr. Ellicott, the real-estate agent, as he looked out of the window at two old women, a market cart, and the postman. "Times are dull—fearfully dull! Never have known 'em so stagnant since I was in the business. A list of houses to rent and for sale that would suit anybody, at prices that are absolutely scandalous, as far as cheapness is concerned, and no demand for them—literally none!"

And Mr. Ellicott lighted his cigar, arranged the "To Lets" a little more attractively in the window, and shook his head mournfully at the big ledger on the high desk.

But just at that instant in which he drew a sigh, indicative of the extremest despondency, a stout, middle-aged gentleman, with a felt hat, an umbrella under his arm, and square-toed boots, walked into the neatly-carpeted office. The agent slipped nimbly off his chair, laid down his cigar assumed the Business smile.

"What can I do for you?" he said, rubbing his hands, and scenting a brown-stone sale, or a red-brick exchange, at the very least.

"My name is Jones," said the stout stranger.

"Happy to see you, Mr. Jones," simpered the real estate agent, rubbing away harder than ever.

"And I want to rent a respectable house in a pleasant neighborhood," added the gentlemen. "I am sick of boarding, and I intend to take a house and go to housekeeping."

"Certainly, by all means," said the agent, beginning briskly to flutter over the leaves of his book. "We have I am happy to say, a number of most eligible residences here, which can hardly fail to meet your requisitions."

"Give me a list," said the old gentleman.

"Certainly," said Mr. Ellicott, dipping his pen into the wooden standish.

"I mean business," said Mr. Jones.

"I am glad to hear it," said the agent.

And scarcely five minutes more had elapsed, before the middle-aged gentleman with the alpaca umbrella and the square-toed boots was where a fat-lettered "To Let" hung conspicuously beside the door.

Miss Pamelia Peppermint was just taking her hair out of crimp in the front third-story apartment as the bell sounded its hollow tocsin through the house.

"Joanna," said Miss Pamelia, over the stairs, "look out of the area window and see who it is."

"It is a gentleman, ma'am," Joanna answered, in a shrill whisper, "in a superfine broadcloth coat and a new umbrella."

"Come to answer the advertisement," said Miss Pamelia, radiantly. "Show him into the parlor, Joanna, and tell him I'll be down directly."

She settled her crimps once again, pined a petite ribbon bow in her back hair, gave her forehead a farewell dab with a powder puff, and read over for the last time a paragraph in the morning's paper, which ran as follows:

WANTED—By a young lady of education and experience, a position as housekeeper to a gentleman of means. No triflers need apply to Miss P., No. 99 Nixon street.

"Dear me," said Miss Peppermint, "how my heart flutters—for surely this is a crisis in my life. How often does a housekeeper become something nearer and dearer to a gentleman of susceptibility and appreciation! I hope he is fond of poetry."

She crossed the threshold with a tripping step. To her surprise the apartment was empty.

"Where is he Joanna?" said she looking around in dismay.

"Please, ma'am," faltered the maid, "I think he's an escaped lunatic—for he's walking all around the back kitchen, and peerin' into the stationery wash tubs, and muttering to himself like everything."

"Ah!" said Miss Peppermint, with a satisfied smile. "Very natural—quite so. He means to find out what kind of a practical housekeeper I am. A-hem! here he comes. But mamma, there's stove blacking on the bridge of your nose and a hole in your stocking. A-hem! Please to walk in sir," to the middle-aged gentleman who appeared on the threshold with his spectacles tipped over the bridge of his nose, and his umbrella carried jaunty fashion, under his arm. "I have the pleasure of address—"

"My name is Jones," said the gentleman, brusquely. "You are the lady who—"

"Who advertised? Yes," said Miss Peppermint, with a sudden inclination of her head.

"Then I wonder at your!" ejaculated Mr. Jones.

"Sir!" said Miss Peppermint.

"As old as the hills," said Mr. Jones. "All out of repair. Fifty years old at the very least."

"Sir!" ejaculated the lady, more astounded than ever.

"Truth is truth," said the gentleman. "Not even decently painted."

"Painted?" gasped Miss Peppermint instinctively remembering the pearl powder.

"Rheumaticky, and full of fever and ague!" energetically added Mr. Jones. "A fairish—a—a old ruin."

"Sir, you insult me!" cried the spinster, bristling up.

"Then, madam, you shouldn't obtrude your damaged wares before the public."

"I was never so abused before in my life!" faltered Miss Peppermint wringing her hands.

"It's high time somebody spoke the truth," said Mr. Jones.

"Leave the house, sir!" said Miss Peppermint.

"And welcome," said Mr. Jones, putting his hat belligerently on the side of his head, and shouldering his umbrella.

"But first let me give you a little advice. The next time you have a house to let—"

"But I have not any house to let," indignantly interposed Miss Peppermint.

"Eh?" said Mr. Jones.

"And never had," added the lady breathlessly.

"Isn't this house to let?"

"Yes, but it isn't mine, and I've nothing to do with it."

"You said you advertised."

"So I did," said Miss Pamelia, with difficulty keeping back her hysteric tears. "But I wanted a position as housekeeper, and—"

The middle-aged bachelor stood aghast, the full horror of his situation gradually breaking upon him.

"Madam," he said, "I beg your pardon—"

"Sir!" said Miss Peppermint, "there has been an unfortunate misapprehension all around."

"I was alluding to the housemaid, when I used those unfortunate adjectives," explained Mr. Jones. "I hope you don't think ma'am, that I could apply them to a lady?"

"I am a solitary female," said Miss Peppermint, retiring behind her handkerchief, "and I find myself compelled to earn my bread in a genteel way.—You couldn't recommend me to any single gentleman in want of a capable house-keeper, could you?"

"N—no ma'am, I couldn't, that is just at present," stammered Mr. Jones. "But if I hear of one I will certainly let you know. Good morning."

And he bolted out of the house in a state of cold perspiration.

"What a fool I've been!" said he to himself, as he strode along the windy April streets, wiping his forehead with a red silk handkerchief. "I'll go back to Mrs. Budget's and engage my rooms there for the next ten years."

And so he did.

Nobody answered Miss Pamelia's advertisement; no one rented the desirable mansion, No. 99 Nixon street.

Mr. Ellicott, the real estate agent, declares that business is duller than ever, and Mrs. Budget, the boarding house keeper, says to her daughter:

"Whatever has come to Mr. Jones, I don't know, but he's as docile as a lamb, and hasn't found fault with his roast joint in a month."

"Wonders will never cease," says Miss Budget devotedly.

CONUNDRUMS.

When is a wall like a fish?—When it is scaled.

How does a stove feel when full of coals? Grateful.

Which of the reptiles is a mathematician?—The Adder.

When is a boat like a heap of snow? When it is a-drift.

When is a doctor most annoyed?—When he is out of patients.

When is a literary work like smoke? When it comes in volumes.

Why is the letter G like the sun?—Because it is the centre of light.

What is it that shows others what it cannot see itself?—A mirror.

Why is the letter N like a faithless lover?—Because it is in consistant.

How does a cow become a landed estate?—By turning her into a field.

Why is whispering a breach of good manners?—Because it is not aloud.

What is an old lady in the middle of the river like?—Like to be drowned.

PASSED THE POINT.

I must tell you, said the skipper, as he took a fresh cigar, about Stiles, a shipmate of mine on one of my early voyages. Stiles was a simple-minded, transparent young fellow, and when we sailed had been paying attention to a young lady, whom he had reason to think was the prettiest girl in the world. Well, we had a fair voyage, but not so pleasant to Stiles as it might have been, for he was haunted by a dreadful fear that the lady would have another lover before he came back, and he was miserable in consequence. Stiles would say, with a doleful shake of the head, "I don't believe Ann Jones will have me anyhow."

We cruised in the Pacific a month and had fitted with full success. Stiles' lamentations modified, the burden of his monologue changed to—

"Well, I don no, but what Ann Jones'll have me after all."

With a thousand barrels of oil under hatches, he became still more hopeful.

"Chance is pretty good for Ann Jones," he would say. "Pretty good, now."

We cruised southward, taking in the Cape of Good Hope, and Stiles assumed a self satisfied manner and thus soliloquized:

"I guess there's no danger but what Ann Jones'll have me now."

At two thousand barrels—

"Ann Jones will be glad enough to get me now, I know."

When we cut the last whale that was to fill the Rose, and squared away for home, Stiles threw his hat in the air, with a yell of triumph—

"I'll be blowed if I'll have Ann Jones anyhow."

And he didn't.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.

Kellogg's Columbian Oil is a powerful remedy, which can be taken internally as well as externally by the tenderest infant. It cures almost instantly, is pleasant, acting directly upon the nervous system, causing a sudden buoyancy of the mind. In short the wonderful effects of this most wonderful remedy cannot be explained in written language. A single dose inhaled and taken according to directions will convince any one that it is all that is claimed for it. Warranted to cure the following diseases: Rheumatism or Kidney Disease in any form, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Sprains, Bruises, Flesh Wounds, Bunions, Burns, Corns, Spinal Affection, Colic, Cramping Pains, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Diarrhoea, Coughs, Colds, Bronchial affection, Catarrh, and all aches and pains, external and internal. Full directions with each bottle. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co., Tecumseh.

NOT THE GUILTY PARTY.

The conduct of some of the drivers on the street cars in Galveston is certainly very reprehensible. Yesterday an old lady got on the street-car, and as soon as she set her eyes on the driver, she called out: "You are the very driver that refused to stop the car, and made fun of me."

"Yesterday afternoon?" he asked.

"Yes; yesterday afternoon."

"On the corner of Twenty-seventh street and avenue L?"

"Yes."

"On the north-west corner."

"Just about that corner."

"At 3 o'clock?"

"Yes, sir; at 3 o'clock."

"Was it a blue car, with a bay mule?"

"Certainly; blue car and bay mule, and a feller with a red pimple on his nose and mouth like a catfish just like yours, driving it."

"And you craned out your neck this way and opened your mouth until one could read the maker's name on your false teeth, and bawled out: 'Stop—that—car! Stop—that—car!'"

"Yes; you scoundrel," she replied, drawing back to hit him with her umbrella.

"Then it wasn't me, for I am always polite to ladies, even if they are 95 years old, sport porcelain teeth, and sass car-drivers. Ta! ta!" and he jumped over the dash-board to swap cars with the driver coming the other way.—Galveston News.

A Great Chicago Enterprise.

The Laboratory for the manufacture of Electric Bitters is one of Chicago's greatest enterprises, giving employment to a large number of hands. The extensive sale already attained for this wonderful remedy is astonishing.—Wherever once introduced and be comes known, it is almost impossible to supply the demand, because of their true merit—curing where all others fail—and at a reasonable price (fifty cents). Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

Wash-Blues are often poisonous.—American Ball-Blue is warranted pure harmless, and efficient. Try it and you will want no other.

If you are troubled with Kidney Complaint, try Hill's Compound Extract of Buchu and Cubebs. It will cure you.

Who ever heard that a brick flue?

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION, and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

N. B.

The Terrible Slaughter of Prices on

Clothing!

Still Continues at

SILVERS'

Mammoth Clothing Stores

Clinton and Manchester.

All Wool Cass. Suits, $7,50, $8,50 & $10,

That We Defy Competition on in the County.

Stocks Must be Reduced before Invoicing July 15. COME EARLY.

Silvers, The Live Clothier.

'JO. WILSON,'

This is the Name to Remember

WHEN YOU START OUT TO BUY

Boots & Shoes

HIS STORE IS FILLED WITH

BEST GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

An Inspection is Solicited.

We respectfully invite the patronage of our friends and the Public generally, promising to use our best endeavors to maintain our good reputation for Fine Work and Fair Dealing.

CUSTOM WORK A SPECIALTY.

JOE. WILSON.

UNDERTAKING.

A. W. SLAYTON is prepared with a Complete Stock and the Finest HEARSE in Southern Michigan, and his prices are as reasonable as any. NO CHARGE for use of Hearse.

D. W. CLARK.

GENERAL DEALER IN

Groceries & Provisions,

Confectionery, Etc.

A full line of Choice GREEN & JAPAN TEAS always on hand and sold at the lowest possible figure.

GOODS DELIVERED FREE WITHIN THE CORPORATION

Richard's Block, North Side Chicago Street,

Tecumseh. - - Michigan.

Fresh Fruits and Vegetables,

EVERY DAY AT

JAMES LOWRY'S

GROCERY STORE.

ALSO ALL KINDS OF

Groceries and Provisions.

CALL AND SEE THE

CROCKERY AND GLASSWARE.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.

MERRITT & WOODEN, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Willis Merritt, Circuit Court Commissioner. W. R. Wooden, Notary Public. Room 1, over Postoffice.

WOOD & BURRIDGE, LAW AND COLLECTION OFFICE. Over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

C. A. & S. C. STACY, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office in Hersen Building.

B. L. & W. F. BAXTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW. Office over Heesen's clothing store.

S. E. MERRITT, Justice of the Peace, Notary Public and Insurance Agent. Collections a specialty. Second floor, Bidwell's Block.

P. S. McKINNON, Attorney at Law and Solicitor of the Peace. All business promptly attended to. Office over W. & S. W. Anderson's Store.

EDWIN HADLEY, Attorney at Law and Solicitor in Chancery. U.S. Register in Bankruptcy. All business promptly attended to. Office, Room No. 4, Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

C. A. & J. A. STACY, Attorneys at Law and Solicitors in Chancery. Office in Underwood Block, Adrian, Mich.

PHYSICIANS.

HAMILTON & NORTH, PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. Office over Wimple's Shoe Store.

C. M. WOODWARD, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office at Residence, Chicago street.

G. M. MASON, M. D., PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON. Office over Heesen's Store.

E. M. CONKLIN, M. D., ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN & SURGEON. All calls will receive prompt attention. Office in Osborn's Block, up-stairs.

HOTELS.

SINK'S HOTEL, (Formerly the Merchants') W. H. SINK, PROPRIETOR. RECENTLY REFITTED AND REFURNISHED. Corner Chicago and R. R. Sts.

EMERSON HOUSE, (Formerly the Pioneer Hotel.) GEO. H. EMERSON, PROPRIETOR. ONE BLOCK FROM THE DEPOT, Railroad Street.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TECUMSEH CHAIR FACTORY. A. J. PALMER, PROPRIETOR. Chair Repairing, Band and Scroll Sawing. Wood turning done to order, on short notice.

TECUMSEH FOUNDRY & STEAM ENGINE WORKS. H. BREWER & CO., PROPRIETORS. Manufacturers of Steam Engines, Mill Gearing and General Machinery, also manufacturers of the Tuttle's Improved Patent Pain The Machine, Sword's Brick Machine, etc.

WILLIAM DeMOTT, Insurance Agent. District Agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., with Assets of $16,000,000. Applications received for loans on Real Estate in amounts of from $2,000 to $20,000, in this State and Locality, office over Heesen's Store.

CENTRAL MEAT MARKET. J. W. COLE, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in Fresh and Salt Meats, Fish, Poultry, etc. Chicago Street.

RAILROAD STREET MARKET. JOSEPH W. WOODEN, PROPRIETOR. Dealer in all kinds of Fresh and Salt Meats, Fresh Fish, etc.

DAVE MACHAM, Fashionable Barber and Hair Dresser. Shop on Railroad Street.

CURRY & BOOTS, Fashionable Barbers and Hair Dressers. Shop in Lilley & Wright's New Block.

E. WILLIAMSON Manufactures Cooperage of all kinds. Water Tanks and Cisterns made to order. Tight barrel staves and heading, and stayes, ready hoops and hoop poles wanted. Shop on Van Buren Street, opposite Water Works.

S. W. TEMPLE, Dealer in Lumber, Lath, Sash, Doors, Blinds, and all kinds of Building Material. Office and Yards on Shawnee Street, near Depot.

A. D. BROWN, Practical Piano Tuner, and agent for Hazelton Bros., Gabler, Wheelock, and Haden & Sons' Pianos. Also, American Organs. Adrian, Mich. Orders left at Adamson's Bookstore in Tecumseh, will receive prompt attention.

J. D. SHOLES, Manufacturer and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Whips, Collars, Bridles, Halters, Brushes and Combs, Tecumseh, Mich.

E. H. MERRITT, Manufacturer of fine Imported and Domestic Cigars. All kinds of Smokers Goods. East side Railroad St., Tecumseh.

S. C. LeBARON, Agent for the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Lenawee County. Office at residence.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

TWO VALUABLE LOTS—On Chicago St. in this village, within two blocks of the Postoffice. A splendid location for fine residences. Price low and terms easy. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE

A GOOD HOUSE AND LOT—On Pearl street. Will be sold cheap or exchanged for farm property. A rare chance for a bargain. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

TWO HOUSES AND LOTS—In the village of Tecumseh, located within three blocks of the Postoffice, and will be sold at a low figure and on long time. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

BRICK STORE AND LOT—On Chicago Street in this village, known as the O'Row Store Property, will be offered for sale cheap for thirty days. Terms easy. A good chance for a bargain. Enquire of James A. Stacy, or at the HERALD OFFICE.

A GOOD BARGAIN—A place one-half mile from the Postoffice in Tecumseh, good house, barn and out-buildings, with four acres of land. Can be bought at a bargain within the next thirty days. For particulars enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

VILLAGE LOT—Size, six by twelve rods, between the residence of Mrs. E. Jones and H. W. Stevens on Ottawa street. For terms enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

AGENTS WANTED

To sell the MYERS

Improved Wind Mill.

Has a Solid Wheel, built expressly to stand ANY STORM; with rotary Crank Movement, Self-Oiling Attachment, Perfectly Balanced on the derrick in or out of gear; when in motion as regular as a steam engine, with Improved Brake. Pronounced by the best of mechanics to be

Superior to All Other Mills.

Manufactured by Silver & Deming Manuf'g Co., Salem, Ohio. Send for a full descriptive circular.

A. J. CHAPPELL, Adrian, General Agent for Michigan.

REAL ESTATE.

Persons having Real Estate for sale, should advertise the same in the HERALD. Special contracts made on favorable terms with those who wish their notices to run any length of time. For particulars apply at the HERALD OFFICE.

YOUNG MEN will save money by attending the Business College at KALAMAZOO, MICH. Send for Journal. W. F. PARSONS, Rec't

OUR CHIP BASKET.

Lame ducks—medical quacks.

Law'n order—keep off the grass.

The midnight hush—soothing syrup.

Rifle clubs—gang of pickpockets.

Straining a point does not make it clear.

It takes time just ten years to become decade.

Did the man who returned after many days get them?

Unprofitable employment—laboring under a mistake.

Musicians are known by the "accompaniments they keep."

The best way to keep meat in hot weather is to keep it on the hoof.

A musquito always settles before he presents his bill.

A bolt does not hold a political convention together.

A fifty dollar painted fan raises no more wind than a five cent palm leaf.

"Sanitary shoes" are advertised in England. They are warranted not to squeak.

There are no railroads on shipboard; yet if you go into the hold you can see the cargo.

Any old bachelor will shriek for a better half when a counterfeit 50-cent piece is shoved on him.

Ladies are not entitled to bare arms when they have to load them with powder.

A Philadelphia woman who had twins sent a request to the census enumerator to call again.

"Drawn to a clothes," as the tramp remarked when he lifted the remaining shirt from the line.

The bee and the mule are too tender-hearted to look upon suffering.—They always turn their backs when they strike.

Church choirs are put at the back end of churches to accommodate the timid worshippers who cannot face the music.

In the first place, according to science, Dr. Tanner couldn't do it. Now that he has done it it's of no consequence.

A little girl defining "bearing false witness against your neighbor," said "it was when nobody did nothing and somebody went and told of it."

"How does painting agree with my daughter?" asked an anxious parent. "It makes her too red in the face," replied the teacher.

The American riflemen of to-day can hit a blue-bird where the famous Boone and Crockett would have missed a crow.

One thousand American ministers are in Europe getting ready to open their sermons by remarking: "When I was in—"

The bathing suit worn by the boys along the river front fits him well and is very simple and inexpensive. It consists of a wad of cotton in each ear.

Deaf lady—"What's his name?"—Young lady—"Augustus Tyler." Deaf lady—"Bless me! what a name!—Busthis Biller! Eliza, you must be making fun of me."

The Bone and Muscle producing Malt, the Nerve-quieting Hop, the superb Malarial antidote Quinine, and other precious ingredients, combined without fermentation, are the ingredients of "Malt Bitters," prepared by the Malt Bitters Company.

It is said that mud baths cure rheumatism. The political organs appear to be laboring under the delusion that Garfield and Hancock are badly afflicted with the rheumatism.

Better Times.

The Democrat, New Orleans, La., says: "Suffering among such as have been troubled with diseases of kidneys and liver, has been perceptibly better since the introduction among us of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

A Philadelphia contractor says that whiskey can be made out of garbage. And we believe him. Whiskey makes garbage out of man, and why should not man make whisky out of garbage? It's a poor rule that won't work both ways.

Given Up by the Doctors.

Where doctors have failed to cure, and have given their patients up to die, Electric Bitters have often been used, and a cure effected, greatly to the astonishment of all. Diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs are positively cured by Electric Bitters. They invariably cure Constipation, Headache and all Bilious Attacks. Try them and be convinced that they are the best medicine ever used. Sold by C.A. Wright & Co. at fifty cents a bottle.

A YOUNG WIDOW.

A certain census enumerator of this city called upon a woman the other day who resides not far from the Capitol, and propounded the usual question as by law directed. The woman said she was a widow, her age was twenty-five and her husband died two years ago. The faithful recorder, on receiving the name of the woman's deceased husband and his occupation when alive surmised that he must have been a relative, if not the same Mr. B—— who was a member of the One Hundred and Seventy-seventh New York Volunteers during the war. A conversation ensued, when finally the enumerator innocently asked if her husband was the same Mr. B—— who died during the war, saying that he himself was a member of the same regiment, and that he was well acquainted with the man. The widow, in a modified tone, replied: "Oh, yes, but that was a long time ago." The amusing part of the affair is that the man has been dead about seventeen years, and if the woman is only twenty-five, she became a widow at the early age of eight years.—Albany Argus.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney complaints and Rheumatism than any know remedy. Its continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on Rheumatism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects and will always cure when cures are possible. Call at C.A. Wright & Co's. and get a memorandum book giving more full details of the curative properties of this wonderful medicine.

Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumptive is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity.—Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggists, M. Wright & Son, and get a trial bottle free of cost which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh.

"I say, old lady," said a man on a country road the other day, "did you see a bicycle pass here just now?" "No; I didn't see no kind of a sickle, mister; but just now I seen a wagon wheel runnin' away with a man.—You kin believe it or not. I wouldn't if I hadn't seed it myself."

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old.—We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

CRUMPETS.—One quart of warm milk, one teaspoonful salt, half a gill good yeast, and flour enough for a batter, but not very stiff. When light, add half a cup of rich cream, and let it stand twenty minutes. Bake in muffin rings, in a quick oven.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all kinds of Skin Eruptions. This Salve guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 Cents per Box. For Sale by M. Wright & Son, Tecumseh, Mich.

Miraculous Power.

The Forest and Stream has it: "To preserve health use Warren's Safe Remedies. These are almost of miraculous power in removing diseases for which recommended. The wonderful curative qualities they are possessed of is vouched for by tens of thousands.

BEST IS CHEAPEST!

LEWIS' CONDENSED BAKING POWDER

STRICTLY PURE!

We will give $1000.00 for any Alum or other adulteration found in this POWDER.

Indorsed by the Brooklyn Board of Health, and by the best chemists in the United States.

It is STRONGER than any Yeast Powder in the world.

It NEVER FAILS to make light bread when used as directed.

It is COMMENDED by every housekeeper who has given it a fair trial.

It is an entirely NEW INVENTION, without any of the bad qualities of soda or saleratus, yeast or other baking powders.

It has in itself a tendency to sustain and nourish the system.

Good food makes good health; and health is improved or impaired in proportion as the food we eat is nutritious or otherwise.

LEWIS' BAKING POWDER always makes good food.

One can of this is worth two of any other baking compound.

It makes bread whiter and richer.

More than half the complaints of bad flour arise from the use of common baking powders, which often make the best of flour turn out dark bread.

The most delicate persons can eat food prepared with it without injury.

Nearly every other baking powder is adulterated and is absolutely injurious.

This is made from Refined Grape Cream of Tartar, and is PERFECTLY PURE.

It makes the BEST, lightest, and most nutritious

BREAD, BISCUIT, CAKE, CRULLERS, BUCKWHEAT, INDIAN, AND FLANNEL CAKES.

A single trial will prove the superiority of this Powder.

MANUFACTURED ONLY BY

GEO. T. LEWIS & MENZIES CO.

PHILADELPHIA.

TUTT'S PILLS!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of Appetite, Nausea, bowels costive, Pain in the Head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, Loss of memory, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Yellow Skin, Headache, Restlessness at night, highly colored Urine.

IF THESE WARNINGS ARE UNHEEDED, SERIOUS DISEASES WILL SOON BE DEVELOPED.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.

A Noted Divine says:

DR. TUTT.—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended; I used them. I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and have gained forty pounds flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. I. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25 cents. 35 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a Natural Color, acts Instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 35 Murray St., New York.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

DR. H. H. CLARK, South Hero, Vt., says, "In cases of KIDNEY TROUBLES it has acted like a charm. It has cured many very bad cases of PILES, and has never failed to act efficiently."

NELSON FAIRCHILD, of St. Albans, Vt., says, "It is of priceless value. After sixteen years of great suffering from Piles and Costiveness it completely cured me."

C. S. HOGABON, of Pittsfield, says, "one package has done wonders for me in completely curing a severe Liver and Kidney Complaint."

IT HAS WONDERFUL POWER. WHY? BECAUSE IT ACTS ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS AND KIDNEYS AT THE SAME TIME.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney and Urinary diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Female disorders.

KIDNEY-WORT is a dry vegetable compound and can be sent by mail prepaid.

One package will make six qts of medicine.

TRY IT NOW!

Buy it at the Druggists. Price, $1.00.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Proprietors, Burlington, Vt.

3

HILL'S English Extract of BUCHU, One of the Best

KIDNEY

INVESTIGATORS IN USE.

It is a specific in the cure of all diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Prostatic Portion of the Urinary Organs, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder, Burning Urine, Gleet, Gonorrhea in all its stages, Mucous Discharges, Congestion of the Kidneys, Brick Dust Deposit, Diabetes, Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder, Dropsy of the Kidneys, Acid Urine, Bloody Urine, Pain in the Region of the Bladder, PAIN IN THE BACK, Urinary Calculus, Renal Calculus, Renal Colic, Retention of Urine, Frequent Urination, Gravel in all its forms, Inability to retain the Water particularly in persons advanced in life. IT IS A GENUINE INVESTIGATOR that restores the Urine to its natural color, removes the acid and burning, and the effect of the excessive use of intoxicating drink.

PRICE, $1; or, Six Bottles for $5.

Send for Circular. Sold by all Druggists.

W. JOHNSTON & CO.,

161 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at GEO. P. ROWELL & CO'S Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce Street), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

Wolcott & Temple,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Lumber, Lath, Shingles,

AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.

Planing, Sawing, Matching, to Order

TECUMSEH, MICH.

Saving Mill and Yards corner Pearl and Bidwell Streets, North of Rail Road Depot. Formerly occupied by A. W. Slayton & Co.

I. C. WOLCOTT. JOHN S. TEMPLE

If you want No. 1 Flour & Feed

BE SURE AND GO TO THE OLD

GLOBE

MILLS of WM. HAYDEN.

These Mills have taken the lead in Southern Michigan, for over thirty years, and they still defy competition.

THE HIGHEST CASH PRICE PAID FOR WHEAT.

WM. HAYDEN.

NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

Established in 1848. ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

"VIBRATOR"

Thrashing Machinery and Portable and Traction Engines.

THE STANDARD of excellence throughout the Grain-Raising World.

MATCHLESS for Grain-Saving, Time-Saving, Perfect Cleaning, Rapid and Thorough Work.

INCOMPARABLE in Quality of Material, Perfection of Parts, Thorough Workmanship, Elegant Finish, and Beauty of Model.

MARVELOUS for vastly superior work in all kinds of Grain, and universally known as the only successful Thrasher in Flax, Timothy, Clover, and all other Seeds.

ASTONISHINGLY DURABLE and wonderfully simple, using less than one half the usual gears and belts.

PORTABLE, TRACTION, and STRAW-BURNING STEAM ENGINES, with special features of Power, Durability, Safety, Economy, and Beauty entirely unknown in other makes. Steam-Power Outfits and Steam-Power Separators a specialty. Four sizes of Separators, from 6 to 12 horse-power; also 2 styles Improved Mounted Horse-Powers.

22 Years of Prosperous and Continuous Business by this house, without change of name, location, or management, furnishes a strong guarantee for superior goods and honorable dealing.

CAUTION! The wonderful success and popularity of our VIBRATOR Machinery has driven other machines to the wall; hence various makers are now attempting to build and palm off inferior and pinched imitations of our famous goods.

BE NOT DECEIVED

by such experimental and worthless machinery. If you buy at all, get the "ORIGINAL" and the "GENUINE" from us.

☞ For full particulars call on our dealers, or write to us for Illustrated Circulars, which we mail free. Address NICHOLS, SHEPARD & CO., Battle Creek, Mich.

SLAYTON & SON AND M. E. CONKLIN, AG'TS, TECUMSEH.

JAS. H. SHERRARD,

SUCCESSOR TO

SHERRARD & ROBBINS.

DEALERS IN

JEWELRY

Gold and Siler Watches, Fine Gold Jewelry, Rogers & Bros. Silver Plated Ware.

Crockery, Glassware, School Books, Fancy Goods, &c. All Goods sold as Low as the Lowest, and Warranted.

N. B.—Engraving Free of Charge on goods sold by us.

WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
WRAPPING PAPER,
AT THE
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE,
HERALD OFFICE.

Chambers' Encyclopædia.

15 Vols. Over 13,000 Pages. Price During July, $6 25

Among the wonderful things which have been accomplished for lovers of good books by the "Literary Revolution," perhaps the most wonderful is the representation of this great Encyclopædia at a merely nominal cost.

It is a verbatim reprint of the last English edition, in 15 beautiful volumes, containing 9,000 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, for $7.50; the same printed on finer, heavier paper, with margins, and bound in half Russia, gilt top, price $15.00. The first ten volumes are ready for delivery. Vol. 11 will be ready July 15. The remaining volumes will be completed by October next.

$6.25. An Amazing Offer. $6.25.

The more widely and rapidly these volumes are scattered, the greater is their influence in inducing other purchasers of this and our many standard publications. Accordingly we give special terms to early subscribers.

To all, whose orders and money are received during the month of July, we will supply the 15 volumes in cloth, for $6.25, and in half Russia, gilt top, for $12.50. To any one sending from any place where we have no special agent (usually the leading bookseller of the town), a club of five orders, we will allow a commission of 10 per cent. The volumes issued will be sent at once by express, and the remaining volumes when completed.

A specimen volume in cloth will be sent, postpaid, for 50 cents, or in half Russia, gilt top, for $1.00, and may be returned at once, if not satisfactory.

The "CHAMBERS'S ENCYCLOPÆDIA" comprises the first 15 volumes of our "Library of Universal Knowledge," and the remaining volumes, complete in themselves, will be sold separately when published.

Standard Books.

Library of Universal Knowledge, 10 vols., $10.
Milman's Gibbon's Rome, 3 vols., $2.50.
Macaulay's History of England, 3 vols., $1.50.
Chambers' Cyclopædia of Eng. Literature, 4 vols. $2.
Knight's History of England, 4 vols., $5.
Plutarch's Lives of Illustrious Men, 3 vols., $1.50.
Cobbe's Life and Words of Christ, 50 cents.
Young's Bible Concordance, 311,000 references (preparing), $2.50.
Acme Library of Biography, 50 cents.
Book of Fables, Aesop, etc., illus., 50 cents.
Milton's Complete Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Shakespeare's Complete Works, 75 cents.
Works of Dante, translated by Cary, 50 cents.
Works of Virgil, translated by Dryden, 40 cents.
The Koran of Mohammed, trans. by Sale, 35 cents.
Adventures of Don Quixote, illus. 50 cents.
Arabian Nights, illus., 50 cents.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, illus., 50 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, illus., 50 cents.
Munchausen and Gulliver's Travels, illus., 50 cts.
Stories and Ballads, by E. T. Alden, illus., $1.
Acme Library of Modern Classics, 50 cents.
American Patriotism, 50 cents.
Taine's History of English Literature, 75 cents.
Cecil's Book of Natural History, $1.
Pictorial Handy Lexicon, 25 cents.
Saxtiffica, by author of Sparrowgrass Papers, 50 cts.
Mrs. Hemans' Poetical Works, 75 cents.
Kitto's Cyclopædia of Bib. Literature, 2 vols., $2.
Rollin's Ancient History, $2.25.
Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, illus., $1.
Works of Flavius Josephus, $2.
Comic History of the U. S., Hopkins, illus., 50 cts.
Health by Exercise, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Health for Women, Dr. Geo. H. Taylor, 50 cents.
Library Magazine, 10 cents a No., $1 a year.
Library Magazine, bound volumes, 60 cents.
Leaves from the Diary of an old lawyer, $1.

Each of the above bound in cloth, $1 by mail, postage extra. Most of the books are also published in the editions and time binding at higher prices.

Descriptive Catalogues and terms to Clubs sent free on request.

Remit by bank draft, money order, registered letter, or by Express. Fractions of one dollar may be sent in postage stamps. Address

AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE,
Tribune Building, New York.

JOHN B. ALDEN, Manager.

AGENCIES: Boston, H. L. Hastings; Philadelphia, Leary & Co.; Cincinnati, Robert Clarke & Co.; Indianapolis, Bowen, Stewart & Co.; Cleveland, Ingham, Clarke & Co.; Toledo, Brown Bager & Co.; Chicago, Alden & Chadwick; in smaller towns, the leading Bookseller, only one in a place

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.
Issued Every Thursday Evening
BY S. C. STACY.
Office in the HERALD BUILDING, One Door East of the Opera House, Tecumseh, Mich.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One year Cash in advance, $1 50
Six Months, 75
Three Months, 50
Persons receiving papers will be charged at the delivery rate for every three months that payment may be delayed.

ADVERTISING RATES

Business Locals, 10 cents per line for each insertion.
Special notices, 10 cents an line for each insertion.
Marriages, Births, and Death Notices free.
Rates for General Advertising, on Remunerative, made known at the Counting Room.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Correspondents' names are invariably required, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Anonymous communications will be rejected.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., SEPT. 2, 1880.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Democrats assembled in convention last Saturday, at Adrian, to place in nomination a county ticket.

Every town in the county was represented. W. T. B. Schermerhorn, of Hudson, was chosen temporary chairman, and R. I. Bonner was elected secretary. The usual committees were appointed and the convention took a recess until after dinner.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The committee on credentials submitted their report, and the convention proceeded to nominate candidates for the county ticket. The several nominations were all made by acclamation except that of Sheriff and there was no special contest and but two ballots for that officer.

Rollin Robinson, of Palmyra, one of the most prominent farmers of eastern Lenawee was put up for State Senator.

A ballot was taken for Sheriff with the following result: Whitmore, 37; Jewell, 32; Corbin, 18; Trupp, 6; D. Woodward, 2.

The next or formal ballot gave Whitmore, 139; Corbin, 12; Jewell, 5.

Ancil K. Whitmore was then unanimously nominated.

David A. Bixby was named for County Clerk. He is the present Recorder of the city of Adrian, and is well known around the county. In Mr. Bixby, Tom Hunter has a strong opponent.

Edwin B. Wood, of Tecumseh, was nominated for Judge of Probate by acclamation amid great enthusiasm. The nomination is a particularly fitting one, and Mr. Wood will make a splendid run in this section of the county.

E. H. Salsbury, of Hudson, was nominated for Prosecuting Attorney. Lieut. Salsbury is well known throughout the county and his nomination is universally conceded to be an excellent one.

Charles A. Chase, of Raisin, was chosen for Register of Deeds, and Geo. W. Moore, of Medina, for County Treasurer. Both are prominent farmers and highly respected citizens of their respective towns.

Wm. R. Wooden, of this village, and Walter Westerman, of Adrian, were nominated for Circuit Court Commissioners. They are both young attorneys who stand well in their profession, and are generally popular.

I. E. Phelps, of Medina, and Dr. Stephenson, of Adrian, were chosen Coroners, and Richard Kent, County Surveyor.

The Democrats are highly satisfied with the general fitness and personal character of the ticket throughout, and feel quite confident of their ability to elect a portion of it next November.

FAIR PLAY IN POLITICS.

The item below is clipped from the New York Herald, which stands at the head of the independent press of this country:

"A harrowing paragraph purporting to be a literal extract from a dreadful speech made by Senator Hampton, of South Carolina, at Staunton, Va., on July 26, is having an extensive circulation in the partisan Republican press and furnishes a text for the most paroxysmal exhibitions of campaign rhetoric. One journal in this city keeps it standing at the head of its editorial page. It represents Mr. Hampton as urging support of Gen. Hancock for President on the ground that the political principles of the Democratic party are the same for which Generals Lee and Jackson fought in the rebellion.

A report of this speech which we have received from Senator Hampton and printed in another column does not contain the paragraph in question. We find in it predictions of evil consequences to result from the possible election of General Garfield which are extravagant, such as that 'we shall behold no more free elections and no more untrammelled expression of political sentiment;' but it contains no phrase which is literally like that which Republican journals and speakers put into his mouth, nor any which by a fair construction can be tortured into its significance.

Turn and turn about is no more than fair. Since the Republicans deem that Mr. Hampton's view of what are the principles of the Democratic party is [illegible] by the rules of fair play let them now quote for a while his view of what the principles of their own party are."

A party paper in this county—and one that lays claim to respectability, too—keeps the spurious extract referred to standing at the head of its editorial columns. When will partisan newspapers learn that honesty is the best policy even in politics?

BURNING OF THE MARINE CITY.

A Terrible Steamboat Disaster on Lake Huron.

There seems to be an epidemic for steamboat disasters this summer.—Scarcely a week passes since early spring that the country has not been shocked by some ocean or lake steamship accident. The burning of the Marine City last Sunday in Lake Huron brought our citizens to a realizing sense of their danger, as there were three Tecumseh people among the passengers, Misses Anna Brewer and Maggie McConnell and Mr. T. F. Kanouse. We gather the following details of the disaster from the Evening News:

ALGONAC, Mich., August 30.—The steamer Marine City left here yesterday at 3:30 P. M. with a full load of freight and passengers. She had gone but about two miles when fire was discovered in the hold. The alarm was at once given and all possible means were used to stop its progress, but without success. The boat was then headed for shore. The engineer was soon driven from his post, but at the time he left the engine was still working. The fire was now working forward very fast, and soon after drove the wheelsman from the wheel. The wind at the time was about northeast and moderate. As soon as the wheelsman left the wheel the boat worked around and headed to the wind. The tug Vulcan, Capt. Thos. Hackett, fortunately was about two miles out in the lake at the time and at once came to the rescue and did good service taking passengers from the burning boat. As soon as the fire alarm was sounded great excitement prevailed, and many jumped overboard with what they could get to help them. The fire and smoke filled the cabins so quickly that none could secure their baggage.

WILLIAM H. WALDBY.

The Adrian Press gives this biographical notice of the Democratic nominee for Congress, Hon. Wm. H. Waldby:

Mr. Waldby came to Adrian in 1846 a poor boy. He has contended with poverty and knows its burdens and its privations. He was born in Cooperstown, New York, in 1826, attended the Utica Academy until twelve years of age, and then learned the printers' trade with his father, Ralph Waldby, who at that time became the founder of the Rome, N. Y. Sentinel. He worked in the Sentinel office five yrs. as printer and book-keeper. His first employment in Adrian was in the old Bidwell store, and he continued in merchantile pursuits until 1850, when Ira Bidwell decided to open a banking office in Adrian, and offered Mr. Waldby an interest in, and the management of the same, which was accepted. The following year Mr. Bidwell retired, selling his interest to Mr. Waldby, who conducted the same for nearly twenty-three years. While he was in business he enjoyed the reputation of being one of the very best bankers in Michigan. He retired from business in 1872, since which time he has lived a private life, and enjoys the highest respect and confidence of the entire county of Lenawee. During the past winter Governor Croswell, recognizing his eminent fitness, appointed him a member of the Board of Control of the Michigan Reform School for girls. Through his untiring energy and ability to cope with all the efforts put forth by many other localities, he succeeded in securing the location of the school in Adrian, for which the citizens will always bear him in grateful remembrance. He has, also in many other directions lent his energies and his means in benefitting and improving the city of his residence and choice. As an evidence of his popularity "at home" it may be proper to say here that a few years ago, when he was a candidate for Mayor he was elected by over six hundred majority, carrying every ward in the city, although Adrian was at that time a Republican stronghold.

BROOKLYN.

The monotony of last weeks existence was enlivened by the teachers of Jackson county, who held an Institute here under the leadership of Professor Daniels, of Grand Rapids, and several heads of educational departments from other cities.

There was the usual lively canvassing of different methods of instruction, and the faults other remedies have failed to correct, received a liberal baptism of good natured ridicule.

Tuesday evening, Prof. Olney lectured on the sentiment regarding schools, for which he considered teachers in a great measure responsible, and prescribed an antidote for the many complaints made by people who expect students to graduate perfect engineers of all the business, choice or necessity induces them to engage in. It was composed chiefly of work, time and experience. The notion that judgment can attain maturity without individual self drill was thoroughly dissected, and not much of the fallacy remained to lay on the shelf.

The next evening Prof. Daniels reviewed the qualifications essential to successful teaching. The first of the schedule was love for the work and continued study, not only in book lore but all christian graces, and discretion enjoined to such a degree that whoever keeps the commandment never to say anything they would not wish repeated to their patrons, must either invent a flying machine, or incur the danger of becoming petrified by repressed variations. I imagine he shaped the rule by some guide to women or ministers. Among other truths he told, was this one: Children will associate with those dressed like themselves, because they shrink from having pride in personal appearance wounded by comparison. If parents could be made aware how nearly related goodness and a becoming dress are they would throw away the theory of no matter what children wear. No one will ask them when they are grown up. Perhaps not; but every teacher can affirm that slatternly dress develops a bad disposition. Prof. D. insists that there is a wealth of amiability and consequently good morals in a box of shoe-blacking.

I regret being absent during the rest of the session, but returned, in time for the Sunday evening study hour that Dr. Porter has grafted into that day's busy rest since his return from Chatauqua. He brought with him the method of Scriptural lesson learning pursued at the headquarters of Sabbath Schooldom. It is neither based on argument or Sectarianism.

The chapter selected was read literary fashion. The doctor asked any question he thought best, to elicit the opinion of each member of the class, who in turn asked any question they choose of him. No doctrine is advocated except enquiring into the character, mode of life, wanderings and work of earth's early pioneers and the geography of the lands they inherited.

When books were laid aside, he gave by request, a brief outline of Chatauqua life. It has been pictured with pencil and pen in Harpers I know; but every one don't take Harpers; besides his description was draped with the added interest one feels when looking at a live elephant instead of his portrait. I have no intention of calling him a beast, but he lived in the classic jungle two weeks and could tell as much more than Harper does of the camp ground of philosophy, the way and time to get there as well as the cost of a prolonged pic-nic with the worlds benefactors. Fortunately the price of good company is extremely reasonable, ten dollars buying a ticket for the term of six weeks. This admits the owner to all lectures, concerts, instructions in French, German and several other languages, besides showing him how to make good use of English.

He speaks of it as a place where the beauty of nature and intellect harmonize. Not an intensely religious association or excessively moral one, but the freedom they ask for themselves, they accord to others, and consequently is a good place to go to. PEARLIE.

RIDGEWAY.

Jacob Arner has built a neat fence in front of his lot on Railroad street.

Social Friday evening, 13th, at G.P. Waring's; refreshments a la pomologici. How's that?

Erv. S. Osborn has raised a pole and flies Garfield and Arthur at the mast head.

George Arner has gone to North Michigan.

The unexpected news of the death of Miss Scudder, of Macon, on Monday night, cast a gloom over the citizens of our village among whom she had made many warm friends.

Rev. A. B. Wood will preach his last sermon, of this conference year, next Sunday. We believe it is well understood that we cannot have him another year. So do not loose this opportunity.

Our B. B. boys went to Dundee on Thursday of last week, and the game resulted in a score of 27 to 7 in favor of the Ridgewayites, and last Saturday the East Milan nine came up and took their second punishment to the tune of 26 to 1. Next Saturday the second game between Ridgeway and Dundee will be played at this place. We hope to see a good turn out. The ladies are especially invited.

Oliver H. Smith, aged twenty-three years, died July 20th, 1880. He died peacefully trusting in Christ, leaving a widow and one child to mourn his loss. This is three losses from that family within a little more than three years. May they "meet beyond the river." W.

A SCHOOL of Music has been added to the different departments of instruction at Ann Arbor, which will be under the direction of Calvin B. Cady.—The school will open on Sept. 14, 1880, and will be for the benefit of those, whether students of the University or others, who wish to receive private instruction in vocal or instrumental music. Four assistant teachers will be employed besides the Director.

Grand Central.

You can always find at the

Grand Central Supply STORE

—OF—

HENRY McCLURE,

The Largest and Best Selected STOCK OF

Groceries, Crockery,

Glassware, Lamps, &c.,

IN TECUMSEH.

Teas a Specialty!

Canned Fruits of all Kinds.

In fact, anything in this line can be bought lowest figures.

Chicago Street — HENRY McCLURE, TECUMSEH, MICH

For the Latest Styles of

Buggies, Carriages,

SLEIGHS AND HARNESS,

GO TO THE

LENAWEE CARRIAGE FACTORY

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

J. R. HIALEY.

People living out of Detroit who cannot conveniently visit the City, may have Samples sent them at any time if they will send us a Postal, stating what goods they want.

Our terms are one price, and we can assure our customers of receiving goods as cheap as though they bought them in person.

Our large experience enables us to give satisfaction to any who may leave the selection to us.

Write name and Postoffice address distinctly with full description of Goods.

Orders must be accompanied by the money, otherwise the goods will be sent C. O. D.

NEWCOMB, ENDICOTT & CO.,

IMPORTERS AND RETAILERS OF

DRY GOODS,

2 & 3 Opera House Building,

DETROIT, MICH.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All SORES, CUTS, BRUISES, SPRAINS, BURNS, SORE THROAT, LAMENESS, RHEUMATISM, PILES, INFLAMMATION of LUNGS and BOWELS, BRONCHITIS, CROUP, SALT RHEUM, CHILBLAINS, AFFECTIONS of the SPINE, ERYSIPELAS, NERVOUS IRRITATION and all disorders attendant with INFLAMMATION.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve, and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should feel perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

D. RANSOM SON & CO., Prop'rs, Buffalo, New York.

CLOTHING, CLOTHING.

VISIT THE

MAMMOTH CLOTHING HOUSE

OF

KIES BROTHERS,

And see our First Invoice of Fall Clothing, Hats, Caps,

Gents' Furnishing Goods, Woolen Hosiery, Underwear, Etc., Etc.

SCHOOL SUITS

We have opened this week a large line of BOYS' SCHOOL SUITS, made expressly for our trade and at prices within reach of all, and cannot fail to be satisfactory to purchasers.

KIES BROS.,

One Price Clothiers,

HEWITT'S BLOCK, TECUMSEH, M.

W. J. KIES. G. A. KIES.

To the Front Again!

BAXTER

Will close out his entire Summer stock of Slippers and Walking Shoes at EXACT COST.

Just received---Large Fall stock of Men's Boots of the following make:

Celebrated saddle seam Walker Boot,

Pingree & Smith Standard Boot,

Rockland Ditching Boot,

And other makes which will be sold from $2.50 up.

R. C. VanAntwerp can be found at my PALACE BOOT AND SHOE STORE prepared to do all fine custom work and repairing. Remember the place.

BAXTER

A. W. SLAYTON

Manufacturers and sells Furniture at Bottom Prices

Call and examine Stock and Prices,

AT TECUMSEH.

A. W. Slayton, the Undertaker,

Is always prepared with a complete stock.

Finest Hearse in Mich. No charge for Hearse.

THING.

TH

OUSE

ERS,

of s, Caps,

n Hosiery,

UITS

line of BOYS' for our trade cannot fail to

OS.,

hiers,

SEH, M.

A. KIES.

gain!

R

ck of Slippers

ST.

len's Boots of lker Boot,

rd Boot,

oot,

rom $2.50 up.

my PALACE to do all fine

ber the place.

ON

Bottom Prices

Prices,

ertaker,

te stock.

for Hearse.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

SCHOOL BOOKS
At Adamson's.

SCHOOL BOOKS
At Adamson's.

NOTICE.

All watches and clocks left with I. M. Richmond can be obtained by calling on Henry Jones at the Express Office.

FOR SALE.

One new Lumber Wagon for sale cheap. Enquire of JOHN WHITENACK.

LOST.

A ladies port-monaie, last evening, on Chicago street, between Joe Wilson's and C. H. Hopkins'. Person finding will be suitably rewarded by leaving the same at this office.
CLARINDA WALKER.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

The Annual Meeting of District No. 7, of the Township of Tecumseh, for the election of School District Officers, and for the transaction of such other business as may lawfully come before it, will be held at the Central School Building on Monday, the 6th day of September, A. D. 1880, at 7 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dated this 26th day of August, 1880.
S. C. STACY, Director.

FOR SALE.

A good farm horse. Inquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Two good farm horses. For price and terms apply at the office of the undersigned at the Globe Mills, Tecumseh. WM. HAYDEN.

FARM FOR SALE.

On account of failing health, I offer my farm for sale, containing 50 acres, a good orchard, fruit of all kinds, permanent supply of best of well and cistern water, very pleasant location. For particulars inquire on the premises, one mile north of Ridgeway. JOHN BECKLEY.

HOUSE TO RENT.

A good house for a small family at very low figures. Enquire at the HERALD OFFICE.

FOUND.

On Saturday, April 17th, came into my enclosure One Sorrel Horse. The owner can recover the same by proving property and paying charges for keeping and advertising. BERT MORLEY.

I have worn this Corset three days, and every bone over the Hips is broken.

I have worn the Flexible Hip Corset three months, and every bone is still perfect.

A. B. COTTON

Is the only agent at Tecumseh for

Genuine Warner Corsets.

Made by the Doctor himself. You will know the difference by the fit and wear.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

The Circuit Court opened at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning, Judge Pratt presiding. Eight prisoners having plead guilty were arraigned to receive sentence. They were Abbie and Effie Eldred, who were sentenced to three years each at the Detroit House of Correction for larceny from Ackly's store; Jo Sheats, five years at Jackson for the larceny of three horses from Wm. Platt; Nancy Lee one year at Detroit work house for adultery; W. Thurston, one year at Ionia—particeps criminis with Nancy Lee; Sylvester Gardner, two years at Ionia for larceny from a house in the day time; Wm. Allen, sixty days in jail for selling stolen goods (Allen has just served a term of three years for the larceny of the goods in question;) Sylvester Walker, of Blissfield, who plead guilty to the charge of petty larceny at the last term of court was released on suspended sentence. The attention of the court for the balance of yesterday's session was taken up with a civil case in which testimony has been taken in open court; it will probably last all day to day. Adjourned to 9 o'clock this morning.

Morenci Observer: It was simply the old "snide" in another shape, and we are almost out of patience to think that our friends in the country will continue to walk right into the traps set for them by slippery villains and knaves. This week a couple of meek-looking individuals called on an honest and confiding farmer, residing some three miles northeast of this village, and desired him to take the agency of a washing machine which they had with them. The farmer was such a nice, influential man, and the profits were just magnificent, and he was only required to pay for what he sold once in four months, and so he signed an order for a hundred and fifty machines on the terms named, and by some hocus-pocus the contract turns out to be a note of hand $150, payable at bank in four months.

Card.

To the physicians, to our neighbors, to all the kind friends who befriended us in our terrible affliction, we extend our sorrowful but sincere acknowledgements.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH WILSON.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH. SEPT. 2, 1880.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

TEMPERANCE mass meeting to-morrow.

KIES BROS. have a new advertising card this week.

A DELIGHTFUL spell of muggy weather we are having now.

JOHN F. MURRAY, of Detroit, was in town on business last Friday.

C. C. BLACKMAR, of Cambridge, gave us a friendly call last Monday.

THE taker of the school census is perambulating about town the present week.

A HANCOCK club was organized in the township of Raisin last Friday evening.

THE coming State Fair to be held in Detroit will be the best show ever held in Michigan.

ABOUT 50 Tecumsehites went with the Adrian excursionists to Detroit on Tuesday last.

THE State Fair at Detroit will commence on Monday, Sept. 13th, and continue five days.

DAVE SILVERS, of Clinton, tells his customers a few facts in another column of the HERALD.

S. V. R. ELY'S water melon was a luscious one and was duly appreciated by the HERALD boys.

JOHNNY ORR is now rusticating down among the Hoosiers; we wish him lots of fun on his journey.

REV. AND MRS. J. PHELPS returned from their visit to Marquette last Tuesday, having enjoyed a very pleasant visit.

H. SCHROEDER has returned from his visit to Cleveland, and is now prepared to attend to all business calls in his line.

THE Farmers' Club will meet at the Temperance Reform Club Hall on Saturday at 2 o'clock P. M., for a regular meeting.

W. B. KEYSER took a canvass among his men when threshing and found the following result: 9 for Hancock and 3 for Garfield.

THE Republican Representative Convention for the first district of this county will be held in this village on Monday next, Sept. 6th.

THE regular annual school meeting of this district will be held at the Central School Building on Monday evening next, Sept. 6th, at seven o'clock.

THERE was raised on the Rufus Keyser farm this year 2208 bushels of wheat and 700 bushels of oats, making a total of 2908 bushels from 103 acres of land.

MRS. N. M. SUTTON returned this week from Damascus, Ohio, where she went to attend the "yearly meeting" of Friends, which has been in session there.

MRS. S. H. MERRITT, Miss Gussie Burlingame, and their guest, Mrs. Lee Burlingame, of Carthage, Mo., favored us with a very pleasant call on Tuesday afternoon.

ARTHUR CROSSMAN, of Wahoo, Nebraska, was in town last week visiting his father and other friends. He is now running a drug store at Wahoo, and is doing a good business.

JEROME GREEN has just returned from a business trip through Dakota. He has now finished his reaper ramblings for the present season, and expects to remain at home for a while.

ON account of the immense increase in business Mabley, the Detroit clothier, has been again obliged to enlarge his quarters. He has one of the finest establishments in the United States.

TECUMSEH was well represented at the 18th Regiment reunion which was held at Palmyra last week Thursday, and the boys who attended unite in saying that they had a splendid time.

TO-MORROW afternoon a game of base ball will be played between the East Raisin and Morenci clubs, on the Tecumseh grounds. The game will be called at two o'clock. Usual prices of admission.

THE firm of H. Brewer & Co., will exhibit their celebrated brick and tile machine at the various state fairs in the west again this fall. This week they are taking in the Ohio State Fair at Columbus.

JAMES UPDYKE, SR., has recently returned from a three weeks' visit to his native state New York. The crops are light where he visited on account of the dry weather which has prevailed there this season.

JOHN W. FORNEY'S life of Hancock is the best biography of the "superb soldier" now extant. Forney has a national reputation as a fine scholar and writer, and besides is a warm personal friend of Hancock's. An agent is now canvassing Tecumseh for the sale of this book, and we have no doubt that she will sell a large number of copies here.

Mrs. Wm. Tate is canvassing for the life of Garfield, written by Gen. Brisbin, which is the best life of Garfield that has yet appeared. She goes prepared to accommodate everyone. She can supply every customer with a good life of either Hancock or Garfield, just as they choose.

A play is soon to be put on the stage at the Opera House by Tecumseh amateurs.

THE latest news about the Marine City disaster is that only 18 lives were lost in all. That is 18 too many.

THE Morenci fair comes off next week. The ticket takers will commence business on Wednesday, the 8th inst.

WE were favored with a pleasant call this morning from Miss Grace DeWolf and her guests, Misses Manie Kedzie, of St. Joseph, and Amie Clark, of Flint.

MRS. SPAULDING will please accept our thanks for that splendid bouquet. Persons desiring flowers for funerals or other special occasions would do well to call on Mrs. Spaulding.

MISS ANNA BREWER arrived home safe and sound on Tuesday, and Misses Jennie and Maggie McConnell arrived yesterday. Their experience on the Marine City is one which they have no desire to repeat.

CONGRESSMAN EDWIN WILLITS, of Monroe, will address his fellow citizens in this section of the county next week as follows: At Raisin Town House, Sept. 7; Franklin Center, Sept. 8; Pennington Corners, Macon, Sept. 9.

WE notice hanging in the Postoffice a very neat glass sign, the work of John L. Trann. John is a good workman, as may be seen from the job, and deserves a good share of patronage. We also notice several signs of his work around town.

SUMNER COLLINS will raise a Hancock pole in front of his residence in Macon next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. We understand that this will be the first democratic pole raised in Macon for over twenty years. Turn out and give him a lift.

MR. E. P. FOREMAN, the general agent of the Franklin Fire Ins. Co., of Penn., and the Hanover of New York was in town last Friday and made a formal transfer of those companies from Amos Stocking to Miss Fannie Stocking, the new agent.

PERLEY BILLS returned home last Saturday from a lengthy visit at St. Louis and Ithaca, in this State. We regret to announce that he has been quite sick since his return, and is now confined to his bed, although his friends do not apprehend any serious consequences.

DR. R. B. HOUSE served his constituents so well during his last official term as coroner that his friends propose to keep him in that office a while longer. His management of the inquest in the grand stand cases gave the best of satisfaction to all parties.

Deerfield Record: There is an unusual crowd of visitors in town just now. By the by, why would not Deerfield be a splendid summer resort? Mineral water could be furnished from the town well, corner of Cary and River streets, and the island in the river could be turned into a park.

JUDGE STACY came within one of being a passenger on the Marine City. He was at Cheboygan on business last week and intended to return by the Marine City via Detroit. The boat was several hours late and as he wished to get home Saturday night, he changed his plans and came back by rail via Petoskey. Had the boat been on time he would have been a passenger.

HON. CHAS. S. MAY, of Kalamazoo, will address the Hancock club of this village, on Tuesday evening next, Sept. 7th, at the Opera House. Mr. May is probably the finest orator in Michigan, and the Tecumseh club has been very fortunate in securing him for a speech. A special invitation is extended to the ladies to attend the meeting and seats will be reserved for them. Good music will be provided.

MR. J. H. SHERRARD has bought the stock of O. B. DeWolf, and has moved into Mr. DeWolf's store. Mr. Sherrard has purchased only the retail part of the stock, as Mr. DeWolf intends to devote himself to his wholesale trade the same as heretofore.—This purchase added to Sherrard's former stock will give him a splendid assortment of goods in the jewelry and book lines. Read his supplement.

